Also there is that jovial half a ton of country fun, Fat Sanders, and his bagful of hearty laugh provoking stories, while the real high point of interest rests on Elenora King's presentation of that hillbilly gal, "Effie" and her strip tease dance.

Appearing on the same bill, in a revue type show that dares to be different, are the Three Singing Hicks, Curley and his fiddle, them Robbins Boys, hillbilly radio favorites and Fat Sanders.

These features are woven together in a fast moving hillbilly revue that will keep you well entertained.

On the screen, "Smoking Guns," with Ken Maynard.

Ralph Gilbert Dies Of Heart Attack

Ralph Gilbert, 57, Democratic candidate for the nomination as Lieutenant Governor, passed away Sunday at the Seelbach Hotel, Louisville, from a heart attack.

Mr. Gilbert was a native of Shelbyville, and had been prominent politically for 30 years. He had been majority leader in both the House and Senate.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Victoria Vodiia Gilbert; three daughters, Mrs. Dorothy Allen of Washington, D. C., Mrs. Jane Wells and Mrs. Betsey Wells, both of Glasgow.

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning at 10:30 from the Shelbyville Methodist church.

Gilbert Followers To Support Lackey

At a meeting in Shelbyville, Ky., August 1st, with Robert Beard, who was state campaign manager for the late Senator Ralph Gilbert, Democratic candidate for nomination as Lieutenant Governor, it was the general concensus of opinion of all chairmen and workers for Mr. Gilbert, that they support Hecht S. Lackey of Paducah, for Lieutenant Governor.

The name of Mr. Gilbert will appear on all ballots in counties where they are already printed, but of course, the name will be omitted from ballots not yet printed at the time of death.

4-H TOURS COMPLETED

487 4-H club members were visited in ten community all-day project tours and picnics just completed, according to H. B. Drake, Assistant County Agent. 250 agricultural project members were visited and 224 were found to have projects and project record books up to date. 26 members were dropped because of failure to start projects. The 224 members remaining have 125 tobacco, 44 poultry, 29 garden, 21 dairy, 14 corn, 15 swine, 5 potato, 5 rabbit and 2 sheep projects. There is one small fruit project. This makes a total of 261 projects.

DINNER IN HONOR OF R. L. VINCENT

Mrs. Lillian Sadler gave a Dutch supper in honor of R. L. Vincent, Democratic candidate for the nomination as Commonwealth Attorney, on Friday evening, July 28 at the Waltonian Hotel., Everyone reported an enjoyable time.

Judge Goodenough Speaks at Bracht

A crowd of about two hundred men and women gathered at Bracht Station to hear Judge Joseph P. Goodenough, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the office of Circuit Judge, Criminal Division, Kenton County, speak.

Judge Goodenough's speech is in part:

"We are on the eve of our election. I am very grateful to you, ladies and gentlemen, and to all the democratic voters of Kenton County for your support in my race. Your efforts and the efforts of the good citizens of our county will bear fruit on Saturday, Aug. 5.

"I have been Judge of the Covington Police Court since 1928. Everybody admits that I have an excellent record. I have interpreted the law fairly, justly and equitably for all who have come before me. As your Circuit Judge, I shall enforce all the laws at all times. I was born, raised and educated in Kenton County. At no time shall I, as a citizen or as a judge, permit our good county to be over run with gamblers or others bent on evil. I shall not wait five and one-half years to enforce all our laws.

"In keeping with the dignity and importance of the office which I seek, I have refrained from any personal attacks. I am running on my own merits. I am not associating with any other candidates.

"The good citizens of Kenton County are supporting me. The Women's Civic Betterment Committee of Kenton County of which Mrs. A. B. Davis is the President, has endorsed me. I have given of my time and ability to aid all churches, Parent-Teachers Associations and other charitable and civic organizations. I have served many of these groups with the presentation of a Mock Trial.

"I want to ask all the good citizens of Kenton County to go to the polls on Saurday, Aug. 5th, and vote for me. The one and only promise that I make the citizens is that I will treat all citizens fairly and justly, and that I shall see that your county and my county, is the best governed county in Kentucky."

$61,205.81 Available Under AC Program

Boone County farmers cooperating in the 1939 Agricultural Conservation Program will receive $16,205.81 if they cooperate fully under the program, earning 100% of their soil-building allowance benefits, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Seventy-nine and a half percent or 1,052 of the 1,320 farms in the county have been signed up for cooperation in this year's program. Farmers would have received a total of $7,988.45 had 100% of the farmers signed up this year.

The division of the maximum payments on the basis of 79.5 percent of farmers cooperating is $45,263.76 or 74% on soil-building practices, $14,740.54 or 24.1% for tobacco benefits, $330.48, ½ of one percent on wheat and $871.00 or 1.4% on commercial vegetables. A study of the above figures shows that soil-building practices and tobacco account for 98.1% of the total payment and that soil-building alone accounts for about three-fourths of the total payment.

Because soil-building is not a major source for benefit payments but represents one of the greatest agricultural needs, every effort should be made to see that every farmer earns 100% of the allowance has been earned. Present reports from field supervisors indicate that on cooperation farmers that only $21,047.64 or 46.5% of the allowance has been earned. This leaves $24,216.12 yet to earn. The remaining allowance has been earned through seedings and use of limestone and phosphate. Because few farmers will earn 100% of their allowance through seedings and the splendid results being secured through use of lime and phosphate, farmers are urged to recure limestone and phosphate immediately as each year there is a last minute shortage of both these important fertilizers.

Dave Haley For The Legislature

Dave Haley of South Fort Mitchell, is a strong candidate for the Democratic nomination to the Legislature from the 63rd District, Kenton County.

Mr. Haley is well qualified for the office, having served the State for 26 years. He has served as follows: 2 years as Cloak room keeper; 4 years as Bill clerk; 4 years as Assistant State Forester, and 16 years as Chief Cloak room keeper.

He favors a pension of $30 per month for the aged; endorses principles and policies of President Roosevelt; favors repeal of tax on water, gas, electric and telephone bills, as well as the tax on tobacco and cigarettes; would introduce bill for the State to provide $10,000 annually for maintenance of newly established Kenton County Sanatorium for Tuberculosis patients, and would favor repeal of State income tax.

A vote for Mr. Haley will be appreciated.

Name Committees For Woman's Club

Mrs. John Myers, president of the Walton Woman's Literary Club, appointed the following members to serve on committees for the coming year: Program, Mrs. R. P. Hughes; Mrs. A. H. Gaines, Mrs. D. H. Vest, Mrs. J. E. McCabe; hospitality, Mrs. J. R. Conrad, Mrs. B. W. Franks, Mrs. J. M. Ervin; membership, Mrs. J. L. Hamilton, Mrs. Clayton Jones, Mrs. W. O. Rouse; personal service, Mrs. Pearl R. Johnson, Miss Emma Jane Miller, Mrs. C. W. Ransler; recreation, Mrs. J. L. Vest, Mr. C. Scott Chambers, Mrs. R. G. Moore; better homes, Mrs. E. E. Fry, Mrs. A. P. Stephens, Mrs. Sam B. Sleet; publicity, Mrs. W. W. Rouse, Mrs. Lula Huey, Mrs. John O. Bedinger; historian, Mrs. Olivia Wills.

OPEN LETTER TO VOTERS

R. M. BAGBY

To the Voters of Boone, Kenton, Grant and Gallatin Counties:

I wish to call the attention to the readers of the Walton Advertiser that there is one candidate for Lieutenant Governor who has no political strings or clique to answer to. Upon investigating Mr. R. M. Bagby's record I have found that he is both admired and respected by both parties and will bring to Kentucky an honest, efficient and business administration which the state of Kentucky needs in the World's turmoil to today.

Trusting you will look into his record and give him every consideration, I remain

Yours truly,
JAMES H. JUMP.

BOONE COUNTY JUDGE HOLDS THREE TO JURY

Three of the four prisoners arrested last week by a Florence posse after allegedly breaking into an unoccupied Boone county farm house have been for the August 14 grand jury here in Boone county.

The three held for the grand jury, all on charges of housebreaking, are Willard Cowe, Edward Barber and Samuel Jarboe, all of Cincinnati. They waived examining trial and are in jail in default of $500 bond each.

Campbell did not waive examination, Judge N. E. Riddle, said.

Equality Is The Keystone

All the proposed legislative schemes for "doctoring" the railroads will come to naught—unless our national transportation policy is so revised as to assure competitive equality between all the various types of carriers. That is the opinion of Dr. B. H. Meyer, a former member of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"Equality is the keystone which holds the arch," Dr. Meyer continued. I believe equality would enable the railroads to secure a larger proportion of the transportable freight than they are now getting. Complete economic recovery for the country as a whole would not profit the railroads unless they could get their fair share of the increased tonnage which recovery is expected to produce."

The railroads do not ask legislation which will artificially divert traffic to them. They do ask a decisive change in existing legislation which artificially diverts traffic from the railroads to other carriers—by penalizing the railroads, and pampering their competitors. The stake of industry and of the people in this situation is of immense importance. At present, inequality of treatment unquestionably delays progress and betterment of transportation. In many instances, it tends to keep possible rate reductions from being made and destroys national employment and purchasing power.

Bills have been introduced in both House and Senate to correct the gross inequalities that now exist in transportation regulation. These bills, in their general provisions, have been given the strong endorsement of economists, of the press, of labor unions, of high government officials. If Congress adjourns without taking action on this vital subject, it will render the country a grave and inexcusable disservice.

The WPA "Strikes"

There is both tragedy and comedy to be found in various "strickes" of WPA workers which followed Congress' passage of a bill providing that these relief beneficiaries should work full time for their money, rather than a day or two a week.

In general, the strickers demand "higher wages," inasmuch as working hours were to be increased. And this shows the amazing attitude of a sergment of relief workers toward their jobs. They have come to not as a temporary and unfortunate necessity. They believe the taxpayers owe them a life-long living, whether or not they produce anything useful. They regard themselves as a class apart, signed up indefinitely on the public payroll.

Those WPA officials who announced that striking workers would be discharged after five days, simply did their duty. regard relief as a permanent profession—And they did more than that—they illustrated the forgotten fact that relief should be regarded as something to leave at the earliest opportunity, and not as a career. It is a salutary thing that many of the strikers returned to their relief jobs in a chastened mood.

Relief is a form of charity—that and nothing more. It should be provided when absolutely necessary, but it should not be classed as a "profession."

Barter Deals

The United States Government is going right ahead to legislate a trade of American cotton for British rubber. It is purely a barter trade made with the understanding that each country will store the surpluses for a period of six years. It may sound swell, but if the scheme goes through this year there will be more and more barter trades of the same kind until the whole scheme becomes top-heavy and surpluses are thrown overboard on the markets long before the six years are up.

"Don't be misled into believing that somehow the world owes you a living. The boy who believes that his parents, or anyone else owes him his livlihood and that he can collect it without labor will wake up one day and find himself working for another boy who did not have that belief and, therefore, earned the right to have others work for him."—David Sarnoff, President, Radio Corporation of America.

Story With A Moral

In a Philadelphia court six joyful refugees who had just been granted U. S. citizenship offered to buy an American flag to hang in the court room. There were three Italians, two Czechoslovakians and a Russian. The Russian was a refugee from a Communist country, and the others from Fascist countries.

Said the six after being granted their citizenship papers: "We are so happy to become American citizens and we thought Your Honor wouldn't object if we put our money together and bought a flag for your courtroom." The judge thanked the new citizens but refused their offer and ordered that a flag for the room be purchased immediately with the proper funds.

The plea of the refugees was a fine gesture, and they should prove to be valuable Americans, for they may help to convince some in this country that life in the "ism" countries is not what the dictators would have us believe that it is. Further, it should stir other Americans to vigilance to fight down the spread of these "ism" doctrines in the United States.

CIDER-MAKING

"GOD BLESS OUR HOME".

A very old art again has supporters; the sampler is sought after by antique hunters, for its intrinsic beauty and for its insight into other times and customs. Many of us grew up in neighborhoods where samplers were a matter of common occurrence, so common that nobody commented on any except new ones. Many girls and women made samplers as a matter of course, just as they pieced quilts and did hemstitching.

"God Bless Our Home" was the legend most often found on samplers. Sometimes that was all; sometimes a pretty fair outline of the house itself was made as a part of the sampler. Other appropriate mottoes were known, and vines and flowers found their way into the bright-colored silk thread used for the sewing of samplers.

Other samplers were made by girls but not framed. A very old-fashioned one included some figures of people, some flowers, some fancy letters, as well as a motto.

Closely related to the sampler was the motto printed in large, bright letters and hanging in any room of the house. These mottoes usually came from the Bible and were reassuring or admonishing in tone: "God Is Love," "Jesus Is the Head of This House," "Whatsoever a Man Soweth, That Shall He Also Reap."

Mottoes had a much greater appeal to our ancestors than they have now. The pillow shams bore the time-honored couplet, one line on each sham:

"I slept and dreamt that Life was Beauty."

"I woke and found that Life is Duty."

Tidies, or antimacassars, had had their mottoes, too, like the one I mentioned in this column, with its appropriate German verse. Mottoes graced one's school books, sometimes, as when the teacher wrote the pupils name and then added a motto.

Copybooks could hardly have existed without their mottoes. After vidual letters and could analyze them to the teacher's satisfaction, whole sentances were given to be copied: "I will try, has done wonders," "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again," "A wise son maketh a glad father," "The wages of sin is death." We liked the mottoes best that used the most difficult letters, so we could show the teacher how well we could write. I do not remember just now whether the moral precepts did any immediate good.

Mottoes also appeared oftener in talk, though they are common enough now. Hardly anything could be mentioned without suggesting a pat quotation, brief and pointed. Benjamin Franklin, the Bible, and any other source were drawn upon for these illustrative sayings.

As with so many things, this love for motoes and maxins allied our generation with ages long past. Quotations books were common in the Middle Ages and later. Many of them were used as textbooks, to illustration grammar and rectoric. Our grammars of a half century ago were almost always full of reparsing or diagraming, but probably put in with the hope, too, that they would inspire us to better deeds. Who knows but did have peared in samplers, or motoes, or copy-book material, or, sentences for grammars?

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

Who writes whose bills is becoming an important issue at the Capitol these days.

Congress is getting jealous of its prerogatives. This is especially so since the New Deal Brain Trusters lost the Congressional rubber stamp. That stamp has been missing since last November's election. The new Dealers can't find the stamp anywhere.

And, in the meantime, Congress is asking that embarrassing question of who wrote whose bill.

The issue has been projected to the foreground over the O'Mahoney bill. This measure is designed to strengthen the anti-trust laws. One means of doing this is by setting up severe penalties for violation of the laws. No one is opposed to that except for this BUT—

The BUT is that no one knows, in many instances, when the anti-trust law has been violated until the court decides. It's just as baffling as cracking a nut or opening an oyster. Both may look good from the outside but may not be so good on the inside.

Consequently, a business man may suddenly find that the way he has been conducting his business is in violation of the anti-trust law. If he is convicted of this he would be subject to a fine of twice his monthly income for the period he had been violating the law. His corporation is subject to a fine for the same period. The business man also may be removed from his position. Further, he may be prohibited from getting a job in the same line of business.

For this reason the question is being asked of Who Wrote Whose Bill. No Congressman wrote the bill. It was written by an administration New Dealer and sent to the Capitol.

The same has been found to be true witth the new Spend-Lend program. No Congressmen suggested the program. They had approved 1.7 billion dollars for relief next year. None of them thought of an additional 3.8 billion dollar lend-spend project.

And again, Who Whote Whose Bill, was asked. Again it developed that another administration New Dealer had worked up the project.

So goes the story of Who Wrote Whose Bill.

The neutrality fight has brought out some rather rash and conflicting predictions on the possibility of war. To support the plea for more White House control over foreign affairs, the administration pleaders for the neutrality revision sprinkled supposedly "confidential" reports around the Capitol, purporting to reveal "absolute" dope that a war was coming.

But the Congressmen were getting their dope elsewhere, and that information was that a war is not likely this year. That is the dope of Washington military experts who are really in the know. That is why Congress moved to shelve the President's request for neutrality powers.

Watch for some amazing stories to come out of Washington during August and September. On August 1 the House Committee investigating un-American Activities resumes its probing of the sub-surface boarings of Communists, Fascists, Nazis, and other un-American groups. Reports are current at the Capitol that the findings of the investigators during the recent recess of the committee are much more startling than had been anticipated.

A bitter feud is on between one of the Washington columnists and one of the ultra-New Dealish cabinet members. The writer said several blunt things about the cabinet members many weeks ago, and the cabinet officer took to a nation-wide radio hookup to say several unkind things about the columnist. The feud has been brewing since then and the latest activity has been this: The New Dealer has written to the editors of the papers printing the column "suggesting" that they drop the column from their papers. The answer has been a boomerang, for most of the editors are now urging the writer to publicly spank the cabinet member more frequently. And not a single editor has thus far dropped the column from his paper.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5582 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

In the good old days when the hog raisers in Northern Kentucky fed a great many hogs for the winter market (as that was the big hog-killing time for the killers depended on cold weather as they had no manufactured ice or refrigerators) the feeders would club together and drive their hogs to the Covington stock yards in large droves. They would appoint one or two of the leading feeders to represent them in selling all the hogs to the buyers. For the large Cincinnati packers, Mr. Charles Keith, Sr., represented one of the packing houses and was a good buyer. He had a deal well under way to buy the large string of hogs from two farmers' representatives.

There was strong competition among the buyers. Mr. Keith thought he had the deal almost closed when Mat Ryan, a big buyer from another packing house, got an opportunity to look at the hogs. He was willing to pay the price that Mr. Keith had offered but did not want to raise the bid. He conceived an idea that he would scare the owners, making them believe that if they sold them to Mr. Keith, they would have to take notes for payment.

Mr. Ryan said, "If you will take notes for your hogs I will give you much more than Mr. Keith has bid or will give you what he has bid you in cash that you can take home with you. I would not think you would go to the trouble of collecting notes which you might have to discount to get cash."

After the sellers considered the matter they told Mr. Ryan that they would sell him the hogs for cash as they were afraid of notes. So Mr. Ryan closed the deal before Mr. Keith could get back to talk to the owners. It was useless to say that it made Mr. Keith very mad, but he had no recourse on Mr. Ryan as he had not misrepresented anything.

Mr. Keith was a shrewd livestock man and while he got the worse of the deal, he afterwards matched his ability with Mr. Ryan and made him dance to his music and was his equal. They were of the old school of livestockmen and knew how to play the game. They have both gone to the Great Beyond (where there will be no hog contentions), leaving the younger generations to carry on the buying and selling which is quite different now from the old way when they did not have so many market guides, few telegrams, no telephones or radios to inform the buyers and sellers.

A chap told a story to a group, one of whom said, "Dandy story. I'll use that in my campaign!"

The story telled yelped indignantly, "You will not! I'll use it in my own campaign. Get your own stories."—Politickin' In Kentucky.

Nicholas Satchwell Dies

As the sun was sinking in the West last Thursday afternoon, the spirit of Nicholas Satchwell left its earthly home and went to the bright Heavenly home that awaits all true Christians. Mr. Satchwell spent his boy and young manhood in Gallatin county. He was educated at Lebanon, Ohio, and was for several years one of the finest teachers in the county, and was liked and respected by all who knew him. The clean honorable life he lived proved him to be a broad and noble minded christian gentleman. After his marriage to Miss Ruth Sarles, he gave up school teaching for other business pursuits, later moving to Louisville, where he lived until a few months before his death. He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, one daughter, one grandson, one sister Mrs. Tom Buchanon and one brother Lute Satchwel, with whom he was living at the time of his death, and a number of nieces and nephews, who loved and will greatly miss him and who have the sympathy of the writer and their many friends.

These Old Cars Did Not Speed

The Cincinnati Automobile Club has launched a "quit speeding" campaign directed to "sensible men and women" who appreciate the facts. The facts are the annual killing of more than 30,000 people in the United States. Some of these people, according to Judge Otis H. Hess, Highway Chairman of the Automobile Club, unknowingly commit suicide because they drive with their cars at too high speeding. They are unable to take curves in the road, to stop at railroad crossings, etc.

The old fashioned automobile, Judge Hess pointed out, had neither the motor power nor the high speed highways to travel on. In addition, the early automobile drivers were afraid of the cars they drove. They were afraid of punctures or blow outs, that the drive shaft might fall out, that the lights would go out, that the roads were liable to shake the "innards" out of the engine. Today, Judge Hess argues, if more people were afraid of the car they drove and recognized its great strength, which is multiplied at high speed, accidents, especially fatal accidents, would be reduced.

Motorists may join this activity by joining the division of the Cincinnati Automobile Club in the state in which you live.

R. L. VINCENT

FOR

COMMONWEALTH'S ATTORNEY

Grant County presents R. L. VINCENT for the Democratic nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney. He is one of ten brothers raised on a farm. He worked his way through college served seven years as principal of some of the best high schools of the State; served eight years as County Attorney of Grant County where he made a splendid record. He is a member of the Baptist Church, a member of the Williamstown Rotary Club, a member of the Grant County Farm Bureau, a member of the Williamstown Masonic Lodge and Chairman of the Grant County Red Cross Chapter. He has the confidence and backing of his home people, having won his last nomination by 900 majority.

The Commonwealth Attorney's office is a very important office. The criminal, with the high-powered automobile, can come into your community after you have gone to sleep and steal your sheep, your meat, chickens and other produce, and be a hundred miles away before daybreak. The safety of your property and the safety of your lives depends upon a FAIR, HONEST and FAITHFUL enforcement of your criminal laws. It is, therefore, necessary that we have an HONEST, DEPENDABLE Commonwealth's Attorney.

For the past twelve years Owen County has had the Circuit Judge's office, and for the past twelve years years Gallatin County has had the Commonwealth Attorney's office, and for twelve years before that Boone County had the Circuit Judge's office, and for fourteen years before that Carroll County had the Commonwealth Attorney's office. For a period of thirty years Grant County has not been honored with either of these offices.

We realize that we are in a heated campaign for Governor and other state offices but since the Commonwealth Attorney's office is so important tto the farmers and business people we urge you not to lose sight of the Commonwealth Attorney's race.

Boone County and Grant County have always stood together. We are in the same Senatorial District and are in the same Legislative District. Two years from now the people of Boone County will be asking th epeople of Grant County to support a man for Representative and possible for Senator.

A vote for R. L. VINCENT for Democratic nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney will be appreciated.

COMMONWEALTH'S ATTORNEY

The Citizens of our district will have an opportunity on Saturday to commend through their sufferage, a man who is honest, dependable and capable and one who served his people during the World War, as a member of the American Expeditionary forces in France.

Shortly after the outbreak of the World War in 1917, Judge Hardin enlisted in the Army and in January, 1918, he was sent to France and in June of that year assigned to the front lines, remaining there until October, 1918, at which time he was wounded in action.

He is the holder of two military citations and decorations as result of his service, one from his own Government and one from The Republic of France.

Since his discharge from the Army, he has been an active member of one of the major veterans organizations and is now, and has been for a number of years, service officer of his local post.

He has the confidence and respect of the people with whom he lives, they having selected him as Judge of Carroll County for a total of 16 years.

His past record and qualifications are such as to assure the people of our district a Commonwealth's Attorney who will serve them in such a manner as will justify their support and vote.

He served you well in 1918—

He will serve you well in 1940.

JOHN YOUNG BROWN for GOVERNOR

I have listened attentively to every speech that Mr. Keen Johnson has made over the radio and last Thursday at Burlington, in the interest of his candidacy for Democratic nomination for Governor, and at no time have I heard correct statements and facts regarding the Chandler-Johnson Administration, nor have I ever heard a candidate like Mr. Johnson, seeking the highest office in the gift of the people, lowering his DIGNITY and using the unscrupulous policies as calling his opponent, the Hon. John Young Brown and his supporters UN-AMERICAN.

I am under the impression that if Mr. Johnson should be elected Governor, that his integrity might fall in the gutter with his dignity. I don't believe that the good citizens and voters fo Boone County will cast their vote for Keen Johnson, who comes into our County and calls these citizens, who are not for him, UN-AMERICAN.

In Keen Johnson's addresses, he claims that the Chandler-Johnson Administration has been and is a great friend to the farmer. But, at no time have I heard Mr. Johnson or his speakers explain to the farmer why the Chandler-Johnson Administration traded out the farmer to the liquor industry and levied a tax of approximately 40c per pound upon his burley tobacco, which amounts to $400.00 per thousand pounds on all the tobacco produced on his farm. I would like to ask them if it isn't a fact that when the tobacco tax bill was introduced in the House and first defeated, if Governor Chandler wasn't out of the State, and when he heard of the bills' defeat, he rushed back to the Capitol, and Keen Johnson joined hand in hand with Governor Chandler, lobbied among the members of the Legislature. The bill was then passed in both the House and the Senate. Keen Johnson was President of the Senate, and was presiding over the Senate at that time. I want to ask you if this all didn't happen after an over night visit at the Capitol by Grover Whalen of New York, with his little black bag, representing the liquor industry.

If you will recall the Campaign four years ago, Governor Chandler pledged to the people, if he were elected Governor, that he would levy a production tax on liquor and condemned the Laffoon Administration for levying a production tax of only 5c per gallon on liquor. He said the liquor industry had agreed with Ruby Laffoon for a 15c per gallon production tax on liquor, instead of the Sales Tax. Chandler's statement was that Laffoon said he knew what the people wanted and that he was going to give it to them. That was the Sales Tax.

The Chandler-Johnson Administration promised us, taxpayers and farmers, that they would get their revenue from a production tax on liquor. But, the liquor industry said they knew what the Chandler-Johnson Administration wanted, so they sent a Mr. Whalen to the Capitol, representing the liquor industry, and the Chandler-Johnson Administration instead of giving us the production tax on liquor, gave the farmers and the tobacco industry the tobacco tax.

You have heard him in practically every speesh he has made, condemning labor. I wish to state that no candidate or group of people can oppose labor, and in return claim to be a friend to the farmer. If a laborer does not receive a fair and reasonable compensation for his labor, he cannot in return buy commodities, which our farmers produce.

Keen Johnson has been a candidate for Governor for your years, and Governor Chandler, acting as Huey P. Long, dictator, has stated time after time that he was going to give us Keen for our next Governor. They are using every deceitful and unscrupulous method to ram him down the people's throats, whether they want him or not.

Keen Johnson, being a candidate for four years, was unable to formulate a platform for himself, so he indorsed the Chandler-Johnson Administration 100%, including secret and padded payrolls. But, after the Hon. John Young Brown announced his candidacy and gave his platform to the public. Keen Johnson admitted John Young Brown's platform, which was quite a contrast to the Chandler Administration. But, Keen says he can administer a program under the Brown platform, but that John Young Brown cannot find the money to do so.

The Hon. Keen Johnson tells you in his speeches that the Chandler-Johnson Administration did not have the money and could not raise the money to pay our old people $30.00 per month, instead of the measley average of $8.40 per month. I want to call your attention to the fact that here was a bill introduced in the Senate and House to levy a production tax on whiskey to the amount of 10c per gallon to raise sufficient funds to pay the Old Age Pensioners the maximum $30.00 per month, and KEEN JOHNSON and GOVERNOR CHANDLER lobbied on the floor of the Senate and the House among the members of the Legislature that brought about the defeat of this bill. That is why our old people are going hungry and needy.

Shame unto Keen Johnson and Governor Chandler, asking the people of the Commonwealth of Kentucky to nominate Keen Johnson for Governor, who had the opportunity to raise sufficient funds without injury to the taxpayers of Kentucky, that has deprived our old people the payment of $30.00 per month. It shows you that Keen Johnson is willing to let our old people go in hunger and need in order to protect the liquor industry and New York capitalists.

There is much talk of the Chandler-Johnson Administration removing U. S. 25 from Boone County. The new road has already been surveyed through Kenton County. I want to remind the Boone County voters that we are still paying on the bond issue that was pooled with the Federal money with which U. S. 25 was built through Boone County. If county will be able to keep U. S. 25 in its present location.

BAY STATE FARM IS AUTHOR'S HOBBY

Martha Cheavens and her children

MARTHA CHEAVENS whose first novelette, "All Ye Faithful," appears in the August issue of Good Housekeeping Magazine, is a farmer by preference. She and her husband, Hugh J. Schuck, and their children, Nancy and Hugh, live on a farm in Massachusetts, replete with a brook and deer tracks in the garden.

Before making her home there, Martha Cheavens lived in many foreign places. At the age of four months she was taken to Mexico by her parents. Her father served as a missionary in Mexico for fourteen years. Her husband's first assignment after their wedding took them to Japan. Mrs. Schuck likes writing children, growing things and the American scene.

Storybook Characters Come to Life in Movie

THE process of bringing a fairy tale to life is almost as fantastic as the fairy tale itself, Jane Hall says in an article on the Wizard of Oz in August Good Housekeeping Magazine. The Wizard of Oz is currently being made into a motion picture by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The production of this childhood classic, written in 1900 by L. Frank Baum, cost three million dollars and the cast is one of the most unusual ever assembled. A large portion of it consists of several hundred midgets who portray the Munchkins in the Land of Oz. There is also a Cairn terrier who has been trained to display all the unusual mannerisms of Toto, the dog in the story, by Carl Spitz, famous Hollywood animal trainer.

The role of the Cowardly Lion is rendered up by Bert Lahr, who uses his own face for the part with the addition only of jowls and whiskers, and wears a costume made of a real lion skin which weighs more than fifty pounds. Mr. Lahr's expressive tail in the picture is motivated by an automatic tailwagger, equipped with electric motor, gears, lever and fishline. Jack Haley portrays the Tin Woodman who has no heart, wearing a costume which weighs hundreds of pounds and creaks. His face is made up with silver which costs fifty cents a day to apply.

The Wizard of Oz is played by Frank Morgan who manages to be everything from a bolt of lightning to a cricket in the grass with remarkable aplomb. Dorothy, the heroine of the story, is played by Judy Garland. She wears a checked farm dress throughout the picture and is the only member of the cast who does not have wardrobe discomfort. A fire extinguisher has to be kept handy for the scarecrow. Mr. Lahr suffocates under his lion skin and the Tin Woodman's joints have to be oiled daily. Most of the midgets are forced to wear cellophane to work.

One of the most famous Oz characters, Horse of Another Color, provided an outstanding problem. The Horse of Another Color is in reality four horses colored to taste. The SPCA refused to permit the wardrobe department to dye a horse with dye. The difficulty was finally solved by dying the four horses with four different colors of gelatin.

Unique difficulties were encountered in the filming of some of the sequences. Fifty men had to dance inside tree trunks for one scene and since it was impossible for them to hear music when encased in trees, a system of colored lights had to be set up to communicate the rhythm to them. Other actors who had to be trained for dance routine include 118 midgets, 10 poison bats, several flying monkeys and Toto, the dog.

Sponsor of Peace Amendment Puts Congress on Spot

IF war comes to Europe, a little coterie of 267 individuals in Washington can pitch us right into it. This is no fantastic thinking. As this group decrees, so must the nation go. The destinies of one hundred-thirty million people determined by a handful of men! Who are these vaunted personages, powerful enough to force upon us a declaration of war, to send us off to die and to kill, while they themselves are immune from military service? They are any 267 of the 531 members of Congress—a majority of House and Senate.

Louis L. Ludlow

This unnatural control over human life in a democracy is the heart of the argument forwarded by Congressman Louis L. Ludlow in the March Good Housekeeping why his Peace Amendment—House Bill No. 89—should be written into the Constitution. The amendment would take away from Congress the power to declare war and give it ever to the people for safekeeping. Under the set-up today the people have little to say about war except to die in it and pay for its cost.

Why should the war power be transferred to the people? asks Congressman Ludlow. "Because the antidote for war is democracy," he answers. "Woodrow Wilson spoke as with the voice of inspiration when he said that he had heard of governments making war on governments, but never had he known of 'peoples making war on peoples.' When the war power ceases to be centralized and becomes democratized, when those who have to do the dying and the suffering and to bear the unspeakable burdens and griefs of war comprise the jury that is to decide the question, we shall begin to see the end of wars."

Congressman Ludlow warns further that members of Congress are subject to "a thousand different kinds of influence and pressure" that could not conceivably be brought to bear on the nation as a whole to force us into war. And these very same members of Congress, he continues, are more or less under the domination of a single individual — that individual being whoever may be at any given time the President of the United States.

Congressman Ludlow also finds it deplorable that women have so little, so pathetically little, to say about war. In the present Congress, the 76th, only five members are women. "Women go down into the valley of the shadow of death," he passionately exclaims, "to bring our boys into the world. Why should they not have something to say as to whether their flesh and blood shall be hurled into the hell of a foreign conflict?"

The proposed amendment, Ludlow points out, would not interfere in any way with rational defense. It would simply change the war mechanism so that the trigger that starts hostilities would be pulled by the people themselves and save them from being pushed into war by unseen forces. This combination, national defense and a Constitutional referendum on foreign wars, he says, is the best formula to prevent America from repeating her folly of twenty years ago.

One candidate recently said, "And so I am asking those who have pinned to vote for me, and those who have not to vote for the other fellow."

"You'll carry the county u-nenan-i-mous," whooped a hearer.

"No he won't," shouted another, probably a Republican, "'Cause you Democrats are so crooked you'll vote against him just to make folks think you're pious."—Politickin' In Kentucky.

Socialized Medicine Controversial Topic

COMPULSORY health insurance, loosely called socialized medicine, is the subject of one of the most violently controversial bills which has come before Congress in recent years, according to Marine Davis in an unbiased presentation of the problem in the August issue of Good Housekeeping Magazine. The National Health Bill, introduced by Senator Robert F. Wagner, is being attacked and defended all over the United States by physicians, social workers, economists, laymen and the man in the street.

"Those advocating the bill see in it the first step toward a great humanitarian goal—the extension of medical care to millions who at present cannot afford it," writes Miss Davis. "Those who oppose it refer to it ominously as the opening wedge for what they call "Socialized medicine!"

It is recognized, Miss Davis continues, that the cost of emergency medical care is a threat to the financial stability of the average American family. The rich can pay their own way. The poor who live in sizable communities can depend on charity, but in between these lies the greater per cent of all Americans, to whom the threat of emergency illness is a constant nightmare. There are forty million people in America whose family incomes average about $800 per year. These cannot afford to get sick but they do.

The National Health Survey conducted by the U. S. Public Health Service in 1938 reiterated the need of these people for some system of health care, for the smaller the income, the greater the threat of illness. Illness and the cost of illness often push low-income families over the borderline into state dependency where there is an increased burden on taxpayers. Many citizens contend that the health of the citizenry is the concern of government. Out of this contention rose the Wagner National Health Bill.

A number of famous doctors and scientists oppose the measure on the basis that compulsory health insurance will be more costly to taxpayers, already overburdened with fixed costs; that bureaucracy will be extended and that such a system will become a powerful political instrument in the hands of a few; that the people will take advantage of such a system by malingering; that the quality of American medicine will deteriorate and that compulsory insurance is not needed because it is the first principle of the physician to give his services, regardless of the patient's ability to pay.

Advocates of the National Health Bill insist that compulsory insurance will not add to the taxpayer's burden because medicine is already expensive. They indicate that people must manage to pay for medical care by one means or another and this is a more systematic and economic way. Supporters of the Wagner bill point out that abuses on the part of the patients under a compulsory health-insurance system could be controlled by doctors in charge. They say that political chicanery is possible under such a system but not inevitable or necessary, as many well-run state health departments testify. To the objection that medicine will deteriorate under such a plan because the finest doctors will never be attracted to government practice, advocates of the bill reply that the average man will receive better medical care under a government system than he now finds available to him.

Miss Davis describes the British system of compulsory health insurance as an example of what can be accomplished along this line.

WITH THE REDS

Cincinnati—In a vigorous defense of their first-place perch, the Reds are now engaging the Eastern clubs of the National League as they swing through Cincinnati on their semi-final invasion.

The Reds will meet the Brooklyn Dodgers in a night game at Crosley Field, Friday. As usual, the contest will be preceded by a festive pregame show, featuring the Drum and Bugle Corps of the Spanish War Veterans. This unit of fifty pieces, garbed in green and gold uniforms, is one of the best outfits of its kind in Ohio. In addition, the Reds will present something entirely new: a "phantom infield drill" in which no baseball is used. The Reds have been practicing this bit of baseball comedy for some time.

Brooklyn will also clash with the Reds in a single game Saturday and a double-header Sunday.

Following that, the Reds will take off for a severe series with the Cubs in Chicago. The Reds are scheduled to meet the Bruins in successive double-headers on August 8 and 9 and in a single game on August 10. Then they will move on to St. Louis for a single tilt on August 12 and a twin bill on the day following.

The New York Giants will close their present series here Thursday in a ladies' day game. This series was to start Tuesday.

Ticket for Friday night's game and Sunday's double-header with Brooklyn are now on sale at the club's down-town ticket office, the Henry Straus Cigar Store, Sixth and Walnut streets.

Kenton Farm Notes

Soils and Crops Tour Very Instructive to Farmers

Farmers who attended the soils and alfalfa tour held on Thursday, July 27, learned a number of important practices necessary to improve their alfalfa, hay and grass crops in the Bracht, Fiskburg and Towers sections of the county.

State Aronomy and Dairy specialists explained practices at each of the farms visited. Wm. C. Johnstone, Agronomy Field Agent, and George Harris, Dairy Field Agent, from the College of Agriculture, explained the need of better use of lime and phosphate on hay, grass and pasture land in order to provide good roughage for livestock production. Much of the hay and pasture land is lacking in lime and phosphate. The hay crops and pasture land can also be greatly improved by the use of better pasture mixtures. According to Mr. Johnstone a good practice to follow is to seed legumes with all grasses and to seed several grasses with legumes. By following this practice more and better grazing can be had from pature land and better hay crops result where mixtures are used.

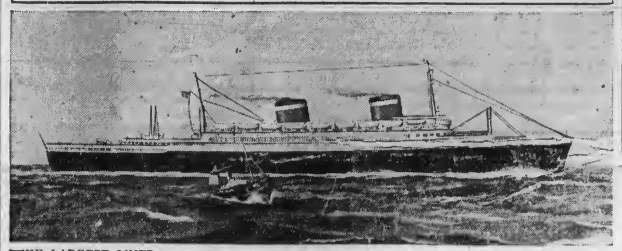
Lime and Phosphate For Good Pasture

Mr. Johnstone also pointed out the fact that many of the pastures in Kentucky need a liberal addition of lime and phosphate before good nutritious pastures can be produced. Much of the land will produce bulk of hay and pasture, but it is lacking in minerals. For this reason lime and phosphate are essential addition to the land if good pasture and hay crops are to be grown.

The first farm visited on the tour Thursday, was the farm of John W. Sleet on the Green Road. A four acre field of alfalfa was inspected and also a field on sloping land. The field on the sloping land showed considerable more soil erosion than on the alfalfa grown where the land was not so steep. In this connection Mr. Johnstone pointed out that most alfalfa should have some grasses seeded with it on sloping land to prevent soil erosion. Several good grasses can be used if a few pounds are seeded with the alfalfa, blue grass, orchard grass, timothy, red top and others can be used according to the likes of the farmer. In the case of timothy or red top only two or three pounds per acre are needed to make a sod that will help control erosion in the alfalfa field.

At the second farm visited, that of C. E. Flynn in the Fiskburg section, a study was made of how to obtain a good stand of alfalfa on a field that had been growing alfalfa many years before. This field showed that it is important to rotate the alfalfa growing and after a field has been in alfalfa four or five years it can be cropped and left in grass several years before putting it back in alfalfa.

The third farm visited was the farm of Emil Stein in the Towers section. Mr. Stein had an excellent demonstration showing how alfalfa can be grown in rotation by using the right amount of lime, phosphate and potash to replace the minerals which are removed when large hay crops are harvested.



Alfalfa Is a Heavy Feeder On Lime, Phosphate and Potash

When two or three tons of hay are removed from the land each year a large amount of the elements are removed from the soil. The farmer who expects to grow alfalfa and not deplete his soil must study these problems and take the necessary steps to protect his soil from erosion and to return the removed minerals to the soil.

Illustrated Talks Given by Specialist

At the afternoon meeting Mr. Johnstone and Mr. Harris gave illustrated talks on soil erosion and recommended practices for improving pasture land and the growing of good hay crops.

U. S. Lines Names New Flagship "America"

THE LARGEST LINER ever to be built in the United States will be christened America when she is launched next July at Newport News. The great passenger vessel is under construction for the United States Lines, and will become the flagship of the fleet when she enters the New York - Channel ports - Hamburg service early in 1940 as running mate to the popular Manhattan and Washington, largest and finest American liners now in operation. The name was chosen from among the many patriotic and historic names suggested in thousands of letters, received by the United States Lines from all parts of the country, as the one best expressing the significance of the ship — the most important and most costly unit thus far under way in the country's merchant marine program which contemplates the construction of fifty merchant vessels a year for the next ten years. Every State in the Union is contributing in raw materials, equipment or labor to the building of the vessel, which will cost about $16,000,000. The America will be 723 feet long, 93 feet beam, and 75 feet deep from promenade deck. She will accommodate 1,219 passengers and carry a crew of 639. Her gross registered tonnage is expected to be about 26,000.

Plant Identification Contest

During the afternoon a legume and grass identification contest was held in which fifteen different kinds of grasses and legume plants were judged. The three high scoring farmers in the contest were Emil Stein, Ben Mehmann and C. D. McDannold. Seed prizes to the winners in the contest were awarded by Geo. W. Hill & Co. and Geo. C. Goode, of Covington.

The tour was a part of the program of activities recommended by the soils and crops committee of Kenton County for 1939.

CONCORD

The Young Peoples' Rally at Concord, Thursday was enjoyed by all present and Mt. Zion carried the attendance banner back home.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Robinson, Howard Miller and family all motored to Frankfort and Lexington on a sight seeing trip Monday.

The Home-coming at Bethel Baptist church, was very well attended Sunday and so many good old friends met and enjoyed the day. The revival is in progress there and some from Concord are attending.

Mrs. Charles Stafford, son Earl and daughter Dorothy and their two friends from Latonia, spent the weekend here and at Mt. Zion visiting relatives. They returned home Sunday night.

Mrs. D. R. Chapman visited her sister Mrs. Gora Peek at Worthville.

Juanita Chapman, Lucille Bingham, Clifton Worthington, Clifton Webster and Ray Bingham all visited Mammoth Cave over the week end. We are sure they enjoyed the sights.

New Tractor With "Culti - Vision"

"I couldn't believe it until I saw it," said "Woody" Butler of Butler Brothers, McCormick-Deering dealers at Nicholson, who has just attended a preview of the new Farmall-A tractor, held at the Kenwood Country Club, Cincinnati, by the International Harvester Co.

"This latest rubber-tired addition to the Farmall line," continued Mr. Butler, "which sells for a new low Farmall price, brings the grower of row crops something he has never had before—full vision of the work that is being done directly under the tractor. Just as television brings the radio listener something he has never been albe to see, so the Farmall-A enables the man who is cultivating corn or other row crops to see what he is doing without having to crane his neck or twist his body.

"It's all in the design of the tractor," Mr. Butler said. "The engine is cleverly placed so it does not obstruct the view of the rows. The driver rides easily in a comfortable sponge-rubber upholstered seat and watches the cultivator shovels at the same close range that is possible on a horse-drawn riding cultivator.

"It's surprising," Mr. Butler said further, "how much more power and low-cost service have been built into the new Farmall-A. It will bring power farming to the man who farms small acreage, with 40 to 60 acres under cultivation. It will also be welcomed by the big grower who needs a second or a third tractor to supplement the power of his larger tractor.

"At its interesting low price this new Farmall-A will be in big demand immediately. Production at the factory is in full swing and samples should arrive soon. Nothing of such importance has happened in the agricultural implement field for a long time. Growers in this vicinity will look forward with interest to seeing and trying out the new Farmall-A as soon as the first shipment arrives."

State Depart mnt last week was 150 years old.

GEORGE KEARNS BECOMES COUNTY'S FIRST MEMBER OF A. J. C. C.

George Kearns of Union, recently became a member of the American Jersey Cattle Club. From the present county office records, Mr. Kearns has the honor of being the first Boone County farmer to accept membership in this organization, despite the fact that Boone County is one of the leading Jersey counties in the State.

Mr. Kearns is very much interested in the development of a county Jersey Breeders Organization to promote greater interest in Jersey breed in the county. He is also one of the first five applicants for membership in the new Northern Kentucky Dairy Herd Improvement Association. Additional applicants are R. B. Huey and Son, Robert Youell, Jesse Wilson and Dr. R. C. Garrison. Plans are to complete the enrollment in the next few days. Approximately five more memberships have been allotted the county. Those dairymen who are interested should contact the county office immediately.

TO THE PEOPLE OF BOONE COUNTY

I know that my many friends in Boone county will not be misled by certain false reports concerning me, that are being circulated during the last days of this campaign.

You have known me well during the last 12 years, that I have served as your Commonwealth's Attorney.

I believe you have been satisfied with the way I have discharged my duties.

My campaign throughout has been on a high plane, I have not said an unkind word concerning anyone, and my only promise has been, that I will at all times give my BEST to make you a good Circuit Judge.

I want to thank my many friends for their loyalty and devotion in the past and express the hope that they will show, in the Primary election on August 5th, their continued faith in me.

GRATEFULLY YOURS,
WARD YEAGER

AT THE JAMES

James E. Falls, owner of the James Theatre, is giving the people of this vicinity one of the best line-up of attractions you will ever have the opportunity of seeing. The first is "Lawless Valley" with George O'Brien. It is an exciting screen play of a modern cattle war, showing that while methods may change, the best man with the quickest gun still gets the decision and the girl. This show will be on Friday, Aug. 4th.

The second big attraction comes on August 5th, Saturday matinee at 3:15 being "A Woman Is the Judge." What more befitting picture could you want to see on electtion day, a picture that bridges the gulf in our every day lives, played by your favorite stars, Rochelle Hudson, Otto Kruger and Frieda Innescort.

The big attraction for the weekend is "Young Mr. Lincoln" with Henry Fonda, Marjorie Weaver and Alice Brady. Its the story of Abraham Lincoln that has never been told, one of the best pictures you will see this year, playing only one night, Saturday, August 5th. Two shows, at 6:45 and 8:30.

On Sunday, August 6th, you have an opportunity of seeing one of the most talked of pictures of the day, "Goodbye Mr. Chips" with Robert Donat and Greer Garson. Matinee at 2:30 and evening show at 7:30.

Monday, August 7th, our big bargain night special attraction is "Sweepstakes Winner" with Johnnie Davis, Allen Jenkins and Marie Wilson. See what happens when they leave their best 'gal holding the bag—but they didn't know there was $150,000 in it. Two shows, 6:45 and 8:30 p. m.

The biggest thrill of the week is "Fat" Sanders and His Country Cousins, in person on the stage, on Tuesday evening, August 8th. Eight hillbillys bring you your favorite songs and tunes as you have never heard them played before. The big climax of the evening is "Effie" and her strip tease dance—well worth twice the admission for this one act. In conjunction with the vaudeville act we are showing Ken Maynard in "Smoking Guns." Two shows, 6:45 and 8:30.

JOHNSON-SWOPE WIN IN SATURDAY'S PRIMARY

D. H. I. A. Quota Almost Completed

Boone County's quota of ten Northern Kentucky Dairy Herd Improvement Association members is just one short of the county goal, according to H. B. Forkner, County Agent. Kenton and Campbell counties have been allotted the remaining sixteen memberships. A total of nine dairymen had requested membership at the close of the first week. They were R. B. Huey and Son, Robert Youell, Jesse Wilson, George Kearns, R. C. Garrison, Albert Parker, A. A. Liggett, Grant Maddox and William Moore. Several additional dairymen have advised the county office they are interested but have not definitely requested membership.

The Dairy Herd Improvement Association is composed of twenty-six dairymen who cooperatively employ a full time tester who one day each month weighs and tests each cow's milk in the herd, calculates feed costs, profit or loss above feed costs, keeps breeding records and works for a better understanding and efficient improvement in the dairy herd.

It is easily calculated from available records that if the unprofitable cows in the herds of the county were eliminated, the entire milk surplus would be removed and a higher price for all dairy products would result. D. H. I. A. members become outstanding breeders because they are first interested in improving their herds and second in that they have accurate records on each individual cow in the herd from which to select foundation stock. They also have more profitable herds in that boarder cows can be identified and eliminated. The cost of membership is $12.50 for the first quarter year and $10.00 per quarter after that period. The records are supervised by the College of Agriculture and are accepted as official D. H. I. A. records for both the herd and individual cows in the herd.

Judge Goodenough defeated Judge Northcutt by 7,095 votes in Kenton County primary.

Mrs. C. A. Rouse Passes In Chattanooga, Tenn., Last Thursday

Walton and vicinity was shocked and saddened last Thursday evening when word was received of the sudden death of Mrs. C. A. Rouse of Huntington, W. Va., in Chattanooga, Tenn. about 3:30 p. m.

Mrs. Rouse had been ill for about a year and some time ago was taken to Chattanooga for treatment and was thought to be improving, when the end came. She was accompanied to Tennessee by her sister, Miss Mary Ransler, of Walton, who was her constant companion.

Mrs. Rouse, age 41, was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Ransler, and was born and reared on a farm near Richwood. She was a graduate of the Walton High school and a member of the Walton Christian church. She had a most pleasing personality and her friends were legion.

The remains arrived here Friday evening, accompanied by Miss Ransler and Mrs. O. F. Buffalow of Chattanooga, and were met by her husband, daughter Lois, relatives and many close friends, who accompanied the body to the home of sister, Mrs. Estelle Gordon, on South Main street.

Funeral services were conducted from the Walton Christian church at 2:30 p. m. Saturday. Rev. J. M. Ervin, pastor, gave a very appropriate funeral discourse and prayer, with Rev. R. F. DeMoisey also offering prayer. The floral offerings were many and beautiful.

Pallbearers were H. L. Smith and J. J. Mitchell of Huntington; F. A. Rouse and E. F. Clevenger of Holden, W. Va., and J. B. Dorn and C. W. Ransler of Walton. Interment was in Highland cemetery.

Mrs. Rouse is survived by her husband, C. A. Rouse; one daughter, Miss Lois Rouse; three sisters, Mrs. Estelle Gordon, Mrs. J. B. Doan and Miss Mary Ransler, all of Walton; an uncle, William Ransler of Walton; an aunt, Mrs. Barbara Gibbs of Detroit, Mich., other relatives and many friends.

We extend our most sincere sympathy to the bereaved relatives and friends.

A large number attended the funeral, and among those from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Hite, Orville P. Cobb, Beecher Callihan, Francis Schuler, William Thompson, all of Huntington, W. Va.; Mrs. O. F. Buffalo of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Clevenger, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bensher, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Rouse, all of Holden, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Louis DeMarque and Mrs. Reed Hume of Covington, and Miss Elena Demarco of Chicago, Mrs. Pearl R. Johnson of Lexington, and Misses Helen Perrigo and Mary Frances Rouse of Littlefork, Mary Frances Harris of Littlefork, Minn.

Chambers & Grubbs had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Homemakers Plan Exhibit at 4-H Fair

Boone County Homemakers are making plans to have an educational exhibit at the 4-H and Utopia Free Fair, according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent.

A committee, appointed by the County President, Mrs. Sam Sleet, met last week in Burlington to make arrangements for the exhibit. Samples of "before" and "after" of refinishing furniture, cane seats, Hong Kong seats and slip covers will be displayed by the homemakers. Handicraft work done as minor projects will also be shown. This includes woven rugs and knitting bags done with looper clips and hand made gloves.

The committee making arrangements for the exhibit are Mrs. Geo. Casper, chairman; Mrs. Orville Kelly, Rabbit Hash; and Mrs. J. R. Williams, Bullittsville.

Fidelis Class Enjoys Picnic

The Fidelis class of the Walton Baptist church was delightfully entertained with a picnic at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Breeden last Friday evening.

Those enjoying the evening were Rev. and Mrs. C. J. Alford, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Percival, Dr. and Mrs. D. L. Maddox, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Laws, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Rector, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Carlisle, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Breeden, Mrs. Flora Maddox, Mrs. Ben Elliott, Mrs. Ernest Webster, Miss Helen Gillespie, Geraldine Elliott, Ernestine Webster, Charles and Gayle Roberts, Dwight and John Maddox, Guy Carlisle, Annabel and Margaret Percival, John Dudley Breeden, Junior and Franklin Breeden, and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Breeden.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Miss Lovenia Edwards, who has been quite ill for some time, was taken to Bethesda Hospital, Cincinnati, Monday afternoon in the ambulance of Chambers & Grubbs.

Her many friends here regret to hear this, but trust that the move will be a beneficial one.

WALTON POSTMASTER APPROVED BY CONGRESS

Last Friday, Congress approved the appointment of Clinton Cleek as postmaster at Walton. He has been the acting-postmaster since the resignation of his father, O. W. Cleek, as postmaster.

Mr. Cleek is, no doubt, one of the youngest postmasters in the country.

WALTON ATTORNEY WINS NOTE CASE

John L. Vest, Walton attorney, was relieved of liability in connection with a $10,000 note signed for T. O. Morton, president of the now defunct Taylor National Bank of Campbellsville, in an order of Federal Judge H. Church Ford at Lexington, on August 2nd.

Mr. Vest had been sued as signer by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, a receiver of the closed bank. Judge Ford traced the history of the signature, in a written opinion. The opinion related that Mr. Vest and Morton were friends, that Morton obtained Mr. Vest's signature on the note by saying that he wished to borrow the money himself, but did not want it known he was borrowing the money for the bank.

Morton agreed to post collateral to cover the debt fully, and at first did deposit securities then worth approximately $12,000, Judge Ford said. Mr. Vest received $10,000 and immediately turned it over to Morton, at no time deriving any return from the transaction.

OSCAR L. PINER

Oscar L. Piner, 72, retired city of Covington employe, passed away on Saturday, Aug. 5, at his home in Covington. He was a member of the Junior Order and the Fiskburg Christian church.

He is survived by one son, Wm. O. Piner of Covington; four daughters, Mrs. Florence Underwood, Mrs. Howard Commer, Mrs. George Grasmick and Mrs. Robert Tuttle, all of Covington; a sister, Miss Hattie Piner of Florence; a brother, William Piner of Bracht; 14 grandchildren and 2 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held from the Allison & Rose funeral home, Covington, at 2 p. m. Tuesday, with interment following in Linden Grove cemetery.

R. E. SHARON GIVEN UNIVERSITY POST

R. E. Sharon, former superintendent of schools in Pendleton county (1930-34) and Kenton county (1934-38), has been appointed to a professorship in the School of Education of the University of Southern California at Los Angeles. A graduate of the University of Kentucky, Mr. Sharon has B. A. and M. A. degrees.

Since J. A. Caywood of Crescent Springs was named head of the Kenton county schools, Mr. Sharon has been Kentucky representative for a publishing house in Kingsport, Tenn.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Sharon here and in Kenton county are pleased to hear of his appointment to this splendid position.

Vincent, Yager and Juett Were Nominated In Saturday Primary

Saturday—Primary Election Day—was a quiet one in Walton. A fairly large vote was cast, and workers for the various candidates were "on their toes" throughout the day.

Naturally, the race which caused the most discussion was that of Keen Johnson against John Young Brown for Governor. In Walton, as well as Boone county, Johnson was the winner. He carried Walton by a majority of 45 votes, taking precinct No. 1 by 44 votes and precinct No. 2 by one. Johnson carried every precinct in the county but Beaver.

As we go to press about 600 precincts remain to be counted, and it appears that Johnson may win the nomination by something like 25 or 30 thousand votes. He was leading his opponent, Brown, by 26,388.

In the race for judge of the Fifteenth Judicial district, Ward Yager of Warsaw, was the winner over Judge J. G. Vallandingham, incumbent, of Owenton, by 2,312 votes. This distriot is comprised of Boone, Carroll, Gallatin, Grant and Owen counties. Mr. Yager carried all but Owen, home county of Judge Vallandingham. Yager has served as Commonwealth's Attorney for the past 12 years, and for a like number of years, Mr. Vallandingham has been Judge.

In the race for Commonwealth's Attorney, between R. L. Vincent of Williamstown and Judge R. F. Hardin of Carrollton, Mr. Vincent came out triumphant by a 958 majority. The County Attorney of Grant county lost to Mr. Hardin in Carroll, Owen and Gallatin counties, but carried Boone and Grant two to one.

In the Representatives race (Boone and Grant), two Grant countians fought it out, and John Juett defeated Charles A. Pettit by 153 votes. Pettit carried Grant county 1,618 to 1,304, but lost in this county, 1,392 to 925.

From the present trend, the Democratic party will likely be represented by the following in the regular election in November, for State offices:

Governor—Johnson.
Lieut. Gov.—Myers.
Treasurer—Shannon.
Secretary—Adams.
Attorney General—Meredith.
Clerk, Court Appeals—O'Connell.
State Auditor—Logan.
Com. of Agri.—May.
School Supt.—Peters.

In the Republican primary, Judge King Swope was the apparent winner in the race for nomination for Governor from Cooper, by a large majority. At last reports he was ahead 36,078. The closest race on this ticket was for Lieutenant Governor and was between James Turner and Ross Todd, with Todd seeming the likely winner.

Williamstown Man's Neck Slashed In Fight

Robert Gamble, 23, Williamstown who allegedly cut Ackman on the back of his neck following an argument that grew out of a "crap" game in the city park on Main street, has surrendered to authorities.

Gamble was being held in jail Monday, pending arraignment before County Judge Ernest Chipman. At the time of the argument and resulting fight, Gamble was free on probation on a ham-stealing charge.

Ackman, a bridegroom of two months, was treated in Williamstown by Dr. C. M. Eckler, who took 18 stitches in the man's neck.

Store Employes Help Harvest Hidden Tax Crop

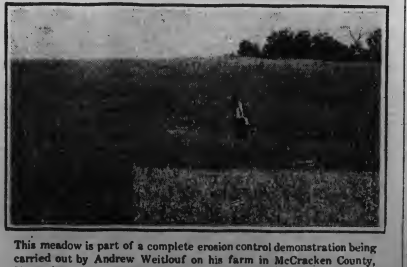
Boone County has an estimated 196 "unofficial tax collectors" who indirectly are helping local, state and national governments harvest their annual revenues, the National Consumers Tax Commission declared today.

The unofficial, and generally unwilling, "tax collectors," according to the NCTC are the proprietors and employes in the 130 local retail stores.

"There are 898 official tax levying and spending governmental agencies in Kentucky," said Mrs. Melville Mucklestone, president of the nation-wide women's organization. "But every clerk behind a store counter is actually a tax collector, too.

"In every sale, these clerks collect fractions of hidden taxes that have increased the cost of production and distribution of the article purchased. These taxes, of necessity, must be passed on to the consumer as a part of the price. A major share of all local, state and national taxes now are hidden to the consumers who pay them this way.

"However, retail merchants should not be blamed. No business could possibly survive today if it attempted to absorb the multitude of taxes to which it is subject. In consequence, every ring of the cash register represents not only a sale but a tax payment."



The NCTC now has study groups in approximately 5,000 communities in 45 states in its educational campaign to expose "unnecessary consumer-penalizing taxes," Mrs. Mucklestone said. The crusade in this state is led by Mrs. J. E. Warren, of Mayfield, state director.

MUST HAVE 1939 OPERATORS' LICENSE

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 3—The Kentucky Department of Revenue recently advised all circuit court clerks that they may issue 1939-40 motor vehicle operators' licenses after July 31, 1939, without qualifying examinations to any individual upon presentation of his 1938-39 motor vehicle operator's license or one of a previous year. The law requires that motor vehicle operators' licenses be secured by August 1. The Kentucky drivers operating their cars after August 1 without 1939 operators' licenses may be fined $25 to $100 or imprisoned six months or both. The annual license fee is one dollar.

Examinations for all applicants who have not previously held a Kentucky operators' license continue to be conducted throughout the State under the supervision of the State Highway Patrol.

Legumes, Grasses Hold Soil

This meadow is part of a complete erosion control demonstration being carried out by Andrew Weitlouf on his farm in McCracken County, Kentucky, in cooperation with the Soil Conservation Service. The field was treated with lime, phosphate, and nitrate, and was seeded to an alsike red clover grass mixture. The first year hay yield was 2¼ tons per acre. And Mr. Weitlouf prevented soil erosion.

Get Ready Now—

It isn't pleasant to think of winter while enjoying the warm days of summer. But summer is the time when your home should be prepared against the cold and rainy period ahead, in the interest of comfort and fire prevention.

Check up on your heating plant first of all. Furnaces and chimneys should be thoroughly cleaned, and necessary repairs made by a qualified expert. Likewise, clean out the fuel bin and when you stock it arrange your fuel in an orderly manner. Papers or rags mixed in with wood or coal may result in spontaneous heating.

It is very possible that certain minor changes in construction in your home are advisable as an aid to fire prevention. Wood beams extending into chimney walls, for instance, have started many fires. And adequate fire stops are all-important.

Check over any exposed electric wiring dark days bring maximum demand for light, and heavy use of electric heating appliances. Don't make amateur repairs yourself—bad wiring has caused many a serious fire. Your electrician will do it properly, and what little he charges is insignificant in the light of the fact it may save your home from destruction.

Finally, go through the house thoroughly, and clean out accumulations of papers, magazines, discarded clothes, broken furniture and other inflammable junk.

Get ready for winter now. It's a little job that pays big dividends.—Industrial News Review.

Independent Worker or Public Servant—

When a campaign is on to promote government or municipal ownership of some activity that is logically a private enterprise in this country, the argument is used that it will be of great benefit to the public and that the people will acquire certain privileges not enjoyed under private enterprises. Probably no statement could be more misleading, because when government goes into any line of business, with all its tax-exemption and tax-subsidization privileges, the private citizen goes out of business.

The workers of the country are generally supposed to be on the side of government ownership of business. A free workman could hardly take a more inconsistent attitude.

This was strikingly illustrated in the recent strike of WPA workers, when the President of the United States said at a press conference, "You cannot strike against the government." Striking against the government is on a par with starting a revolution.

The more government ownership of business that a country has, the smaller is the field for independent employment. And by the same token, the smaller grows the opportunity for a worker to give free expressoin to his ideas about his job.

You become a public servant when you work for the government, not an unrestricted private citizen doing as you please. It will be well for workmen to think this situation over before they fall too far for the socialistic, government ownership program now being promoted in this country, for you don't strike against the government unless you favor a revolution—and for the time being at least that is not popular in this country.—Industrial News Review.

New Job Opportunities—

What motivating forces are in the offing to act, as did the great industrial developments of past decades, as new accelerating agents for the general economy?

The head of a large corporation was interested enough in that question to conduct a survey among more more than 100 industrial organizations, large and small, which he said reveals an amazing number and variety of new things—some already being produced on a commercial basis, others so well advanced in the laboratory as to indicate the probability of their practical application in a short time.

Accordingly, this leader was able to answer his own question with the following conclusions, which are those of Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., Chairman of General Motors: "One emphatic answer lies in the laboratories of industry, in the constant striving for more and better products at lower cost.

"With only casual public notice, there has been emerging from industrial laboratories and scientific workshops everywhere, during the depression years, a flow of new products and new concepts which bid fair to create for us, in reality, a new world of tomorrow. New knowledge and new skills have opened up fields of possibilities little dreamed of even a decade ago.

"Seldom in so short a period of time have so many possibilities appeared upon the industrial horizon. It may be said, therefore, that there exists today the fundamental elements essential to a broad and sound upturn in economic activity. For as new products are brought into being and new methods are discovered to bring products, new and old, within the reach of more people, job opportunities are created and better standards of living prevail.

"We have had forced on our attention too much the descending spiral of events that led to depression lows. It seems advisable to recall that there are equally effective and powerful forces which, once set in motion and given freedom to act, will build an ascending spiral leading to new levels of prosperity and progress."—National Industries News Service.

A LIVE WIRE BRIAR HOPPER

An Explanation! Why I am having my Briar Hopper stories reprinted: All but a few of my original stories were lost in the flood, and having a great many requests for the [redacted] I am having them reprinted with the intention of putting them in book form with other interesting matter.—Will S. Norris.

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5582 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

I heard a story told by a preacher who afterwards became a missionary to Africa. He and his good wife were massacred while in the mission fields and have gone to the great beyond a number of years ago.

Their work like the work of all good men and women, lives long after them. The story was a simple one, some might not give in much consideration, but it made a strong impression on me, and has been an inspiration when I get discouraged at times when it looked as if the odds were against me.

Here is the story, about a little shoemaker who was very small, almost a pigmy compared to his large wife. When business would get dull, the woman would put her husband into an open sack along with his cobbler's hammer and throw it over her back.

She would walk up and down the streets crying in a loud voice, "My old man, he mends shoes, My old man he mends shoes." That would attract a lot of attention and the little man would pop up with his hammer and go through the motions of pounding pegs, saying "I am the laddie that can do it, I am the laddie that can do it."

Wives, when your husbands get out of work don't scold them. Pat them on the back and give them an encouraging word. This holds good for our fellow men to each other. You can never tell when an encouraging word may turn the trend of a man or woman's life.

This reminds me of my experience when I was discouraged 25 years ago. I did not know which way to turn. I told a friend of mine I believed I would go another city and start over. He said to me, "Don't do it. You have spent years building up business, reputation and friends and you'd have to do the same thing over again in another city. You can do better and regain your losses right here better than any other place." While he did not give me a dollar, he said, "I will help you rebuild your business. (Not boasting or bragging, I have had my crosses and losses, but I have made it a rule to always help the other fellow.' My friend and former adviser came to me not a great while ago saying he was down and out and needed help, I did not talk depression and hard times to him. I said, "Brother, I will help you financially. He will pay me back as he gets able. If he fail, I will never regret helping him. There is many a good man who could have been saved during the depression if he had gotten a little help instead of being pressed to the wall, like so many have been.

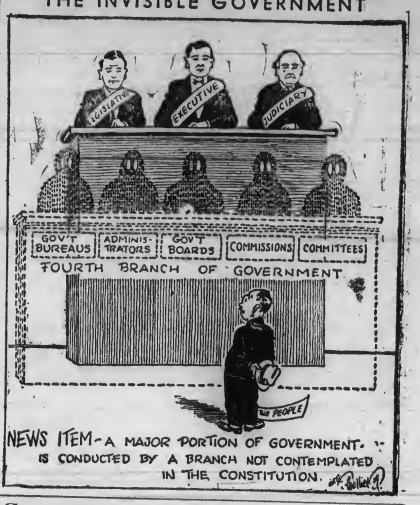
WILLIAM TRIMBLETOE

Who was William Thimbletoe, I have never found any learned references to him, as well known as he was to us children of other generations. Like Jack Horner and Old Mother Hubbard and Tom the Piper's Son, he apparently lived his life and departed, leaving no heirs and no biographers.

We knew him around the fire in winter evenings, when we played games. He gave his name to a counting-out game. Each child participating laid down on a chair or some one's knee a dirty finger. The one who was it touched a finger with each word as he repreated this rigmarole:

"William Trimbletoe, he's a good fisherman;
Catches hens, puts them in pens.
Some lay eggs, some none.
Wire, briar, limber, lock;
Three geese in a flock;
One flew east, one flew west,
One flew over the cuck-oo's nest,
Clock fell down,
Mouse ran round.
O. U. T., spells out and gone,
You old dirty dishrag, YOU!"



The grubby finger touched on YOU—there were lots of ways to run your words together to make them come out on the right child—belonged to the one who must go across the room and turn his back to the others.

After the others had named themselves and the OUT child names of birds, one of the children asked, "Which had you rather come home on, a bluebird or a redbird?" (or any other two). The child guessed. If he guessed his own name, he was told to "come home on your tiptoes." If he guessed another, that one had to go and bring him home. Then the leader asked, "Whatya got there?" The answer was invariably, "A bag of nits." "Shake 'him till he spits." Then followed a violent shaking, for the one being brought home liked to prolong his agony to show how brave he was. A fair-sized fight often resulted, or a chane to another game. But nice little boys and girls soon ended the first chapter of the game to that the exciting pastime could be done over indefinitely.

Foolish? Yes, as most things are in print. But to play it or even to remember it takes one back to a childhood that had to devise games and stunts and stories to while away the long winter evenings. Books were scarce; games, except checkers and dominoes, were almost all of the traditional kind; there were no picture shows or radios. People knew how to invent or to pass on forms of entertainment that seem pretty dull today but were the means of making life endurable.

Dear old William Trimbletoe, whoever he was! He ought to have a memorial of some sort, a memorial to childhood and its games and plays.

THE INVISIBLE GOVERNMENT

NEWS ITEM—A MAJOR PORTION OF GOVERNMENT IS CONDUCTED BY A BRANCH NOT CONTEMPLATED IN THE CONSTITUTION.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

Not all the ghosts in Washington write speeches for big-wig tongue waggers or haunt houses, it now seems. There are other ghosts who fill in nicely when there is need for an anonymous pronunciamento.

These mythical figures have been called to duty quite frequently of late. Most recently, the ghost has been playing the role of a business man. And in that role, the ghost has been making some strange but important noises. The person to whom the mythical figure has been talking is no less a personage than the President of these United States and he has passed the statements on for all to heed.

The latest word the President has passed on from the ghost is that the United States Senate has done the business men an evil turn by not following the wishes of the White House in the matter of neutrality. The Chief Executive quotes the anonymous business man as saying that the Senate has nipped a business boom in the bud by its anti-New Deal antics on neutrality.

Reasoned the ghost: If the White House had its way on the question, we could sell war materials abroad. Thus would come the business boom.

But reasoned the Senate: If we have our way (and they did) we'll keep our war materials at home. Thus all the "booming" will be kept over there.

Washington correspondents have endeavored to learn the identity of the ghost figure, but with questionable success. They do have the name of one man which some authoritative sources say is the real ghost in the case. But it turns out the man in question is NOT a business man, but simply a speculator.

As one newspaperman remarked: "Of late there has been a 'businessman' who goes to the White House; sits down and argues with the President and always loses."

The whole ghostly business has become such a joke to the writers that they now jestingly ask the peanut vendor who has his stand at the White House gate, if he is not, in fact, a secret White House advisor?

Those in the Capitol who look more seriously at the question of business conditions, are not in agreement with the White House "spooksman."

The neutrality issue has played no part in present conditions, they say. This school of thinkers feels earlier hopes of business aid have not been fulfilled.

Early in the session of Congress, they point out, there was some indication that such business deterrents as the National Labor Relations Act, taxes and Federal fiscal policies might be revised. Because of this wishful thinking many industries expanded plants, increased payrolls and prepared for a return to normal economic operations.

Only the tax structure was modified, however, and that revision was not all that it has been headlined to be. Actually, under the new tax measure, there is no reduction in the amount of taxes collected. The misdified tax schedule simply collects the taxes differently.

But most important, there was no action on the hoped for overhaul of the NLRA or any change in the deficit spending policies.

More Argentine Beef: Washingtonians are wondering if the Argentine beef issue will ever be forgotten (a lot of them wish it would be). One of the Congressmen fanned the flame anew recently by carrying a tin of the Argentine product into the House chamber, with the announcement that "I bought this in the basement of the Agriculture Department Building," where a grocery and meat counter is operated for the benefit of government clerks.

Stamp Note: It is a dull day in philately when the Post Office Department isn't thinking up something new for the stamp collectors. The indefatigable thinker-uppers in that department can turn out new picture ideas for stamps faster than the Bureau of Engraving can produce the finished product. The P. O. officials are about to release 35 new stamps, honoring great Americans in the arts and sciences.

The founding of a herd of registered cattle by A. W. Gabbert brings Daviess county's purebred herds to five.

Campaign for Home Safety Inaugurated

"ACCIDENTS in the American home account for more than 30,000 deaths annually, 150,000 permanently maimed limbs and bodies of men, women and children, and 5,000,000 or more temporary disabilities," says Katharine Fisher, director of Good Housekeeping Institute, in the August issue of Good Housekeeping. "Home accidents cost American families hundreds of millions of dollars in addition to the immeasurable cost in heartache."

Miss Fisher, in a recent address before the General Federation of Women's Clubs in San Francisco, suggested that each club set aside a week during the next club year to inaugurate a campaign against home accidents. She suggested that every individual member make a list of hazardous conditions existing in her own home and try to correct them. Such an effort on the part of clubs would arouse non-members in the interests of this grave situation.

"Home safety begins at home," Miss Fisher declares. "Some people may feel that because their homes are comfortable, well-run, modernly equipped and well-kept, they are immune. Falls in bathtubs contribute no little share to accidents in the home and families in homes of good environment usually take the most baths. Home safety begins at home in all kinds of homes and homes of good environment should afford an example to those less fortunately situated.

"Any hope of immediate benefit from safety education lies, of course, in educating grownups. But for the long pull, we must see to it that our children are taught to understand and practice the principles of home safety. If home safety is not being taught in your schools, persuade school officials to incorporate it in the curriculum. If it is being taught, find out how well and suggest ways and means of teaching it more effectively. Don't stop with schools. Extend your efforts into community organizations such as the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, 4-H Clubs, YMCA, YWCA and Church clubs.

"Home safety suffers through lack of publicity," Miss Fisher concludes. "Home accidents are seldom spectacular. They are commonplace. They happen every day. Consequently, they receive scant space in the newspapers. But activities in behalf of home safety and club activities are news, and you can help the cause of home safety by letting the press know how definitely a part of your activities home safety is. Dramatize your club program and seek publicity for it through the newspapers. P.T.A. Bulletins and other mediums at your disposal.

In commenting upon the home-safety campaign, Mrs. Chester Edwards, chairman of the Home Safety Division of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, says, "Where the importance of home safety is already recognized, the General Federation hopes to be permitted to assist the movement by active participation of members of affiliated clubs. In communities where home safety lags, perhaps our efforts will aid in establishing safety as a vital factor in the welfare of the family and the community."

THE POCKETBOOK of KNOWLEDGE BY TOPPS

MINISTER APPLIES PSYCHIATRY TO WOE

DR. JOHN SUTHERLAND BONNELL, pastor of a Fifth Avenue church in New York City, is one of the first ministers to apply the principles of modern psychiatry to human problems brought to him for solution. In his small "consultation room" in the Church House adjoining his church at the corner of 55th St. and Fifth Ave., Dr. Bonnell interviews and advises hundreds of troubled individuals who come to him for help.

"One of the most destructive forces in the life of the individual is a repressed sense of guilt," Dr. Bonnell states in an article in the September issue of Cosmopolitan. "It produces all manner of symptoms of both mental and physical disorder. Consequently, the relief afforded through confession and the acceptance of God's forgiveness is excellent spiritual therapy. The great difference between the work of a minister and a professional psychiatrist is that the minister utilizes the power of religion in the solution of human problems and the healing effect of spiritual thinking on mental and bodily ills."

Dr. Bonnell received early experience in psychiatric theory and practice as well as practical nursing due to the fact that his pre-college years were spent assisting his father who was supervisor of a mental hospital. He found that psychiatry, combined with the resources of religion, exerted a powerful influence for mental and spiritual recovery among the abnormal and insane, and he realized that this would be even more potent as a force for recovery in cases of normal persons bowed down by despair.

In the early days of his ministry, Dr. Bonnell says, his greatest obstacle was the reluctance of Protestants to discuss their troubles and misdeeds with a minister. By sympathetic interest and practice he overcame this difficulty and in the seventeen years of his ministry, he has interviewed more than 5,000 persons from every walk of life.

"Scores of these people were on the verge of suicide," Dr. Bonnell says. "I have followed up such cases and I do not know of one where the intention was carried out after the interview."

It is often necessary to bring to light long-buried memories, Dr. Bonnell says, in order to get at the root of despair. Events in childhood, shocks, psychoses developed by forgotten incidents, can wreak havoc in later years. Mental and physical symptoms which arise are often the result of self-punishment. Dr. Bonnell asserts that the most effective therapeutic agent known in such cases is the received forgiveness of God.

SKY-LINE ROUTE NEARS COMPLETION

Engineering Feat Provides 97-Mile Scenic Drive Along Crest of Mountain Ridges

Above: Right over the tops of mountains is the route of Sky-Line Drive. Firm road foundations, topped with skidproof pavements, provide added safety for motor travellers.

BEFORE the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads is through, John Motorist will be able to enter a mountain-top highway at Front Royal, Virginia, and ride south with the clouds for nearly 600 miles. The first section of this scenic highway, known as Sky-Line Drive, is now nearly completed and is open to traffic for almost its entire 97-mile length.

To link Sky-Line Drive in the Shenandoah National Park with the Great Smoky Mountains National Park in North Carolina and Tennessee, construction of the Blue Ridge Parkway is progressing rapidly and it is expected that over 150 additional miles will be open to travel by the summer of 1940.

Characteristic of the careful engineering employed in building this mountain highway system is the preparation of the road base before final surfacing. To guarantee long life and easy maintenance of the finished roadway, particular attention has been given to provide a firm, consolidated foundation. A typical method used to accomplish this purpose is illustrated above.

Here, a carefully proportioned mixture of coarse and fine soil materials has been placed on the roadway, then stabilized with calcium chloride, a chemical used to absorb and retain moisture. During the time preceding application of the bituminous surface, this stabilized layer solidifies and packs down as dense as concrete. In furnishing this firm foundation for the final surface, the engineers have greatly reduced the possibility of future frost bumps and dips which are so dangerous to motorists and costly to correct.

This, of course, if but one of the measures taken to insure safety and comfort for travellers of the mountain route. The bituminous pavement is of coarse texture to prevent skidding, stout guard-rails give protection wherever necessary, and parking overlooks are provided at frequent intervals to afford panoramic views without the danger of stopping on the travelled way.

When the Blue Ridge Parkway section of this scenic highway is completed a few years hence, American motorists will enjoy a mountain drive without parallel in the whole world —a monumental tribute to the ingenuity of the country's highway engineers.

"NO BAD EGG SMELL" SCIENCE'S CLAIM FOR NEW COOL-CREAM DEPILATORY

Have you ever sat across the room from an attractive woman and noticed a young forest of hair showing through her chiffon hose?

Of course you have! And when those legs come out into the open at a beach or swimming-pool, or in shorts on a tennis court, you are apt to wonder where on earth their owner's personal daintiness and taste can be that she'd allow herself to prance around like that!

No getting around it... women are supposed to be hairless creatures when it comes to arms and legs, and seeing them otherwise is anything but alluring! However, with legs uncovered as much as they are... arms in evidence everywhere from the street to tennis courts ... it stands to reason that the femininity of today would have more to consider in the matter than their mothers. Which is all very well if they DO consider it ... but pretty awful if they don't.

The good old razor method is still a standby ... but there's no getting round the fact that it DOES leave legs looking like the skin of a chicken you've plucked. Not to mention how legs feel with that stubble. And, of course, for use on arms it's out of the question.

Then there's the alternative of using a depilatory which smells up the whole house (and you, too). Or ripping the hair off with wax (effective, very, if you can stand it). But until now there has been nothing else to solve the problem.

Now you can have legs and arms as smooth as satin and clean as a whistle ... without pain or porcupine stubble or smelly applications. You simply apply a new cool-cream hair-remover called "Wisk." You leave it on for about ten minutes ... and wash it away. That's all. It has no odor. It is not painful. It is quick as a wink and easy as pie. The large tube for home use is $1.00, at beauty shops only. Or you can enjoy the luxury of a Wisk professional salon treatment at a reasonable price.

BELLE OF YUKON IS NOW AUNT KATE

GLAMOROUS days of the Alaskan gold rush are recalled by Barrett Willoughby in the September issue of Cosmopolitan with a verbal profile of the most glamorous figure in old Dawson history, Klondyke Kate, the Belle of the Yukon, sweetheart of the Sourdoughs. Kathleen Rockwell, the original Klondyke Kate, is now Mrs. John Matson. She lives in a modest home in Oregon, noted for its hospitality to people down on their luck, and she is known all up and down the Pacific Coast as Aunt Kate.

Mrs. Matson was honored recently by the Alaska-Yukon Sourdoughs on the occasion of their thirty-fifth annual reunion in Portland. According to Mr. Willoughby, she is a pleasant, gracious woman in her early fifties with dark blue eyes and a heart-shaped face. The mop of red-gold hair which made her famous as a dance-hall girl is tinged with gray, but her figure retains the grace and poise of the Savoy dancer.

"My father was Judge F. A. Bettis of Spokane, Washington," Mrs. Matson said in her interview. "When I was a girl in convent school, my mother and I lost him, our home and our money, all at once. I didn't know how to do a single thing to earn money, but I loved to sing and dance and make people laugh. To my mother's horror, I got a job with a chorus in a production going on the road. When we got to Seattle, everybody was talking about the Klondyke. I took a job with the Savoy Theatrical Company and headed north."

AUNT KATE MATSON

Conditions in Dawson were considerably different than movie productions lead one to suppose, Mrs. Matson indicates. "Our usual costume on the dance floor was a white, starched shirtwaist with long sleeves and a choker collar, a long dark skirt, belted with a golden belt. For special occasions we wore evening gowns. A Frenchman made two trips to Paris every year to buy frocks for us girls. The prices ranged from $500 to $2000. If I had appeared on the Savoy stage with bare legs or even a bare back, the Northwest Mounted Police would have run me in. Speaking of legs, women didn't have them in the Klondyke. We had limbs and they were encased in tights and ruffles."

Klondyke Kate was the miner's favorite and received many fabulous presents from them. One gold evening bag, made in the shape of a rose and out of solid gold, weighed so much that it made her lopsided when she walked. She stayed in Dawson four years and returned to the states with a sizable fortune. Her natural generosity and naive trust soon resulted in the dissipation of her wealth, as she staked friends indiscriminately and usually lost. She married John Matson thirty-three years after she first saw him in the Savoy in Dawson. He had fallen in love with her at first sight but was too timid to push his suit until many years later when their paths recrossed.

4-H GIRLS ARE PREPARING FOR FAIR

Forty-nine 4-H girls enrolled in the canning project are preparing exhibits of canned products for the 4-H and Utopia Fair, scheduled for August 26. Local adult leaders are holding project meetings during the summer for the girls. Each girl enrolled in the canning project attends three to four meetings during the summer, conducted by a local leader. The newest methods of canning fruits and vegetables are demonstrated at these meetings.

Each canning member is preparing to make an exhibit of her work and record book at the fair, according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent. The following classes have been provided:

Adult leaders assisting the girls are Mrs. Vernon Pope, Burlington; Mrs. Irma Markseberry, Florence; Mrs. Orin Edwards, Hamilton; Mrs. Sibbia Reimer, Burlington; Mrs. Sam Sleet, New Haven; Mrs. Gatha Payton, Petersburg, and Mrs. Miles Berry, Taylorsport.

A pasture demonstration on R. O. Wilson's Livingston county farm of sweet and crimson clovers, redtop and lespedeza has made excellent growth.

How Tall Will Your Child Be?

AT any age after six years, it is possible to determine the adult height of your child, according to Dr. Josephine E. Kenyon, who provides a chart for the determination of height, in an article in the May issue of Good Housekeeping Magazine. The height of the child should be accurately measured and recorded at each birthday in order to determine whether or not he has made the average growth expected at each age.

Johnny is Measured Annually to Record His Increase in Height.

The present median height of the average adult in the United States is 5 feet, 7½ inches and the figures in this chart are based on this median height. If your child is two inches taller at each birthday than the figure on the chart, he is likely to reach an adult height of 5 feet, 9½ inches. Boys who grow to be six-footers are usually 55 inches high at the age of nine, 63 inches high at the age of thirteen and 69 inches at the age of fifteen. If your son is consistently two inches shorter on each birthday than the figure in the median chart, he will probably attain a stature of only 64½ inches when he is grown.

Alien Smuggling Is Big-Time Racket

SMUGGLING of aliens is divided into two categories, according to the account of this illicit trade told to Barton Merril by a smuggler's wife in the June issue of Cosmopolitan. Small-time smuggling is the comparatively careless running of barely identified human beings between the West Indies and Central and South America. Big-time smuggling is the highly organized business of running aliens, usually of questionable background, into the United States. Those entering by this method are paid for on arrival just as if they were commodities. If they happen to have criminal records thousands of dollars may be extorted from their anxious families and relatives. A prison record precludes an alien from the American quota but the families of such men will go to almost any extreme to enter them in this country, where they usually continue their unfortunate habits.

Many traders in human flesh are also smugglers of opium. Cargoes of opium are transferred to smugglers' launches in midocean contacts. The launches convey the opium to some arranged-for base where it is flown into the United States.

This illicit traffic piles up tremendous revenues for smugglers, according to the woman interviewed, but they rarely live to enjoy their spoils. Sooner or later they come to violent ends.

HAL KEMP BRINGING HIS RADIO STARS TO CONEY

Hal Kemp, one of the particularly brilliant stars in the field of dance music, and his famous orchestra are announced as a special one-night attraction in Moonlite Gardens, at Coney Island, "America's finest amusement park," Cincinnati.

They will appear Friday, Aug. 18, which, by the way, will be a "nickel day" at Coney in honor of Newport, Ky., Day. The admission price that day on all rides and fun devices will be only five cents, and reduced rates will prevail at the swimming pool.

Hal Kemp, who is known to millions of radio listeners and dance enthusiasts, will feature an array of his stars from his "Time to Shine" radio revue, which has been a weekly feature on the Columbia network for some time. These include The Smoothies—Babs, Charlie and Little; Nan Wynn, winsome song stylist; Bob Allen, romantic baritone; Jack Le Maire, whose name is associated with "Jitters Titters"; Eddie Kusby, sensational trombonist; Harry Wilieford, beat singer; and Clayton Cash and his golden horn.

DATES SET FOR THE FALMOUTH FAIR

Falmouth Fair will have as attractions this year the Boone County Jamboree, a Western Rodeo, and 36 classes and stakes for show horses.

A number of entries have been received from Ohio, West Virginia and Illinois for the horse shows and races. Entries will be accepted until the day of the event.

Propaganda Our Worst Foe, Correspondent Says

"PROPAGANDA, not only British but French, Italian, German and Russian, is America's Public Enemy Number One," Frank Gervasi, prominent foreign correspondent who has just returned from the European news front, declares in an article in September Cosmopolitan.

"The air and the public prints are being filled with panaceas, social dogmas, half-truths and downright lies," he says. "No harder task faces Americans than that of silencing the warmongers, the bellicose intellectual patriots, who are the conscious or unconscious allies of foreign proselytizers," according to Gervasi.

Men do not willingly die unless they are fanatics, Gervasi says. So they must be keyed up to the point of fanaticism in the conviction that there is a cause worth dying for. The task of establishing such a cause and arousing mob enthusiasm is the work of skilled propaganda experts. This process is called "emotional conditioning" and it has already been begun in the United States.

The cause common to the United States, Great Britain and France is the old reliable one, democracy. Senator Gerald P. Nye recently read into the Congressional Record excerpts from a book written by an Englishman, Sidney Rogerson, in which a cold-blooded plan to enlist the emotions, man and money power of the United States in another crusade to save democracy is unfolded.

The fact that all these foreign types of propaganda are really at work in America, is demonstrated by the state of mind of the American people, Gervasi says. He finds that a widely diffused war psychosis and a deeply rooted social unrest on which it feeds, predominate in the mental attitude of the country. Many persons have adopted a fatalistic attitude that when war comes, America will not be able to avoid it, or in event of a European war, we must eventually come to the aid of the European democracies. Others, especially young people, are willing to forsake a fraction of their freedom in favor of a system which will insure them more security if less liberty.

"If I have distilled anything from five years' experience as a correspondent covering the European news front, it is a conviction, first, that there is an [illegible] gulf between us and European democracies, unbridged by our vaunted 'common ideals' and, second, that Europe should be left to work out its own destiny," Gervasi writes. "Through strict neutrality in spirit as well as in action, the United States can render civilization and democracy a service of incalculable value. She can thus avoid being drawn into a conflict herself, and by adhering to principles of strict nonintervention, she might accomplish a diplomatic miracle."

Competent observers agree that Britain and France will not engage the Nazi-Fascist powers in a war unless they are certain of the assistance of men and money power from the United States, Gervasi contends. British Prime Minister Chamberlain indulged in a campaign of appeasement designed to pacify European dictators until he received some assurance from the United States that he would have support for a stronger, firmer foreign policy. Almost immediately he scrapped his peacemaking-by-compromise for a policy of encirclement, consisting of a series of agreements with small nations to lend them military assistance in event of aggression by Nazi-Fascist powers, Gervasi states.

"The most difficult part of the task of saving America lies ahead," he says. "True neutrality presupposes not only nonpartisanship in a diplomatic, political and military sense, but also nonintervention in spirit. America, whose democratic cornerstone is self-determination, should be the last nation in the world to interfere with other forms of government."

Gervasi adds that it is no exaggeration to say that every American of gun-bearing age would willingly give his life in defense of his country, but that the possibility of an effective attack from overseas on our shores is as remote as the probability of the disintegration of the universe.

FBI Strives to Sever Gangland's Political Ties

"LOCAL political corruption dots America from Atlantic to Pacific, grasping impartially large town and small," declares J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in a plain-spoken article, "Streamlining Justice," written in conjunction with Courtney Ryley Cooper in the September issue of Cosmopolitan.

"The amazing interlock of crime and corrupt politics," Hoover writes, "which came to the knowledge of the FBI in the investigation of what the average citizen believes to be ordinary criminal cases, was horrifying to Frank Murphy, Attorney General of the United States, when he took office last January. Attorney General Murphy instituted his "speed-and-spine" program and the result has been magical. Justice has been materially speeded up and rendered more efficient. Numerous communities, given new strength against corrupt domination have announced plans for housecleanings.

Att. General Frank Murphy (right) and J. Edgar Hoover, FBI Director (center)

Many instances brought to the attention of Mr. Murphy were matters which the Department of Justice could not solve or remedy, because they were outside its jurisdiction. Hoover says. "Citizens who are being robbed by venal politics must face the facts. The other fellow can't help you unless you help yourself. Your city, your county and your state government will be only as good as you fight to make them," he declares.

"Persistent, big-time crime simply cannot exist without the aid of corruption; this is its heart and soul. If your city has a high crime rate; if there is gambling, widespread prostitution, graft; if there are lopsided elections due to assessments on city employes, merchants and the underworld, then you have corruption and you must fight it by legal methods or by never-ceasing vigilance for evidences of Federal infraction."

A detailed history of the corrupt Pendergast machine of Kansas City, Mo., forms the basis of Hoover's article. The Pendergast dynasty which collapsed recently following the conviction of Tom Pendergast, its boss, for income tax evasion, held Kansas City in its grip for forty years. Tom Pendergast and his brother, Jim, now dead, succeeded in getting a stranglehold on the community through the age-old hokum and high-sounding hypocrisy of professional friendship for the underdog, free drinks, jobs and intercession with the police in case of arrest, Hoover relates. By these tricks, still continuously being worked in many American communities, they obtained a sufficient underworld following to obtain control of a ward in Kansas City's North End. They persistently added to this control until they were dictating the affairs of the entire city and controlling the Democratic delegation in national elections. While engaged in his altruistic efforts in befriending the poor, Pendergast was also able to head eight enormous companies which depended on city contracts for their existence.

To keep these companies in contracts, Hoover points out, it was necessary for Pendergast to control elections, and to do this he had to dish out largess to the forces which cooperate best with corruption. Eventually the Kansas City police department was controlled by an exconvict and all other manifestations of vice were in charge of henchmen who collected tribute and paid it into the Pendergast machine. As a result, Kansas City became a haven for vicious killers, criminals, bank robbers and kidnappers, all of whom were assured of protection.

In an investigation of election frauds in Kansas City by the Federal Grand Jury following the national election in 1936, three hundred persons were convicted but there was still nothing to implicate Pendergast in these putrid scandals. He was eventually tripped by his own avarice. A huge sum of graft money was unaccounted for in his income tax return and an investigation was started. Pendergast's secretary committed suicide after questioning and Pendergast plead guilty and was sentenced to prison. His conviction came as a result of fearless determination not only on the part of Attorney General Murphy but of several local officers. Its effect has already been far-reaching.

"Once given the opening, the Department of Justice will move in swiftly and surely, impervious to any political power which strives to halt it," Hoover says. "But it must and can act only within its jurisdiction. The adversary it most eagerly seeks is the crook behind the scenes, the corrupt and venal politician. But the other fellow can't help you unless you help yourself."

"What is new? What is ahead along the industrial road?"

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., Chairman of General Motors, recently put those questions to many leaders of American industry. Replies from 107 companies offer a preview of approximately 250 products and processes in a multitude of fields. Below are some of the highlights of that preview as just reported to General Motors' stockholders in a message entitled "The Creation of Job Opportunities."

AIR TRANSPORT—symbol of opportunity for youth—improved two-way radio, safety aids, new engine efficiency, trans-oceanic air service a reality through progress in engineering and design.

•

HEALTH—research in the fields of medicine and hygiene wages war against disease—adds to our lengthening life span.

•

AUTOMOTIVE progress—such recent features as automatic transmission, hypoid gears, steel safety tops, coil spring suspension and fluid drive point the way to further advancement in performance, economy, appearance, safety.

•

•

FOOD—research looking toward improved health, better utilization of resources, the creation of new job opportunities. Quick frozen foods, new types of containers, advances in food preservation—all promote appetite and health.

•

FARMING reaps results of research. Hybrid plant strains, better hi-handry, low-cost equipment, all spell higher living standards on farms and prosperity for farm communities.

•

CHEMICAL RESEARCH: Another key to ever better tomorrows. From our abundant resources new products and job opportunities.

•

Nitroparaffins now being developed for commercial use and stemming from abundantly available natural gas—open possibilities for a new series of chemical compounds.

Derivatives of milk, new phosphates from low-grade deposits, bromine from sea water, pectin from citrus fruits—from many sources come reports of new products and new uses.

•

TELEVISION a new art and a new industry offering new avenues of service, entertainment and employment.

•

METALS are the mainstay of our modern industrial development. The science of metallurgy strides ahead into unlimited new fields of usefulness for tomorrow.

Steel in dozens of new forms and new qualities permits special adaptations which pave the way for a multitude of new products in industry everywhere.

Alloy metals, performing tasks formerly thought impossible; powder metallurgy, opening new avenues of manufacturing technique; new methods in mining and manufacturing—all serve to expand markets, attract customers, make more jobs.

MACHINES for doing work, machine tools for expanding industrial efficiencies, tools to make work easier, to make more and better products for wider distribution—to make more jobs.

Continuous strip mills lower costs, improve quality; ganges of superhuman accuracy—powerful hoists, pumps—new office machines—new tools of every description are the results of research to help industry serve the nation better.

•

FACSIMILE REPRODUCTION by means of radio—a new form of communication still in its infancy.

•

HOUSING offers a vast potential source of new employment. Steel, aluminum, polished alloys, sugar cane fibers, rock wool, glass, asbestos, ceramics—new materials to implement the skill of the modern designer. New comforts and better living through wider availability of air conditioning, better heating, adequate ventilation and insulation, new electrical conveniences, new floor coverings and wall surfaces. Construction—a prime mover of industry.

•

RAILROADS: Spectacular developments, symbols of greater achievements to come, are creating a revolution in rail transportation.

Modern Diesel locomotives—products of industrial research—make possible new fast passenger schedules, cut switching costs in half, make 3,000 jobs not existing before. Research in electro-pneumatic brakes, roadbed construction, interlocking devices, lightweight equipment, fuel economy, all presage a new era in railroad progress.

•

PLASTICS: A new and growing family of chemically-created materials awaits tomorrow's needs.

•

FIBERS from a dozen new sources open up prospects for new industries, new utilization of raw materials, new jobs. From resources of the farm, the forest, and the mine, industrial research is creating new fabrics whose possibilities intrigue the imagination.

From coal, water and air comes a textile filament as fine as a spider's web, strong and elastic. A constantly growing variety of materials for our use from glass, wood, rubber and cotton. New jobs for the world of tomorrow.

•

POWER—Newly developed two-cycle Diesels, from 15 to 1,000 horsepower, perform a wide variety of tasks; economy, reliability. A new creator of job opportunities.

ONCE, LONG AGO, "there was a little city," which was besieged by a great king, and in this city there dwelt "a poor wise man" who by his wisdom delivered the city. So we are told by the writer of Ecclesiastes, who further declares that "the words of wise men are heard in quiet more than the cry of him that ruleth among fools," and, also, that "wisdom is better than weapons of war" (Ecclesiastes 9:14, 15, 17, 18). The latter statement is echoed today by spiritual thinkers in many lands, and wiser ways of handling world problems are being sought. It is increasingly evident that many are recognizing the futility of war as a-means of settling national or international problems.

The teachings of Christianity have always been opposed to war, and yet in the long centuries since Christ Jesus preached the gospel of peace on earth and good will to men, there has been unceasing warfare, The ages have advanced slowly in the apprehension and demonstration of spiritual truth. It took many long years of education and enlightenment before the practice of slavery was abolished in civilized countries. To abolish the barbarism of war demands the united effort of all who are interested in the progress of civilization.

War is pagan, uncivilized, idolatrous. Peace is Godlike, spiritual, and, in the best sense, civilized. Centuries ago, the prophet Micah proclaimed the coming of the true peace to the world when he said of God (Micah 4:3), "He shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." This ideal of peace between nations and peoples can be realized as the individuals who comprise them gain a more correct sense of God and man, and a demonstrable understanding of the omnipotence of God, good.

There is no doubt that the way of righteous conciliation is one that requires great wisdom, not only in international affairs but also in the affairs of individuals. False beliefs of greed, competition, jealousy, domination, and racial prejudice are some of the causes of war, and these beliefs must be overcome in individual and collective consciousness. The Apostle James, in his wise epistle, writes (1:5), "If ny of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him;" and he further defines divine wisdom thus (3:17): "The wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be intreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality, and without hypocrisy."

There is a sharp distinction between divine wisdom and the ways and means of worldly wisdom. A characteristic of true wisdom is that it is unselfed; it desires the good of all mankind. It is compassionate, tolerant, and forgiving. In "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" Mary Baker Eddy writes (p. 275), "No wisdom is wise but His wisdom; no truth is true, no love is lovely, no life is Life but the divine; no good is, but the good God bestows." To desire this divine wisdom, and to seek it diligently, not only enriches our lives but enables us to work out our human problems.

To seek and find divine wisdom, one must be willing to give up self-importance, self-love, and intellectual pride, and learn to be humble. There is no task so important in one's spiritual welfare as the pursuit of divine wisdom.

Our greatest need is to learn to pray the Christianly scientific prayer that acknowledges the supremacy of God, good, and the consequent nothingness of evil. This prayer of affirmation enables us to know that nothing can hinder the right way, the wise way, from being revealed to us, now, to meet the present need. A constant reminder of spiritual reality is the "Daily Prayer" from the Manual of The Mother Church (Art. VIII, Sect. 4) by Mrs. Eddy: "Thy kingdom come;' let the reign of divine Truth, Life, and Love be established in me, and rule out of me all sin; and may Thy Word enrich the affections of all mankind, and govern them!"—The Christian Science Monitor.

WITH THE REDS

Cincinnati:— As the National League field comes roaring into the stretch, the pace-setting Cincinnati Reds find themselves involved in a critical week of play on the road. After that, they will return to Crosley Field to meet the Pittsburgh Pirates in a night game on Aug. 14.

The Reds were to have opened an important series in Chicago, Tuesday, with double-headers that day and Wednesday, and a single game Thursday against the Cubs, defending champions of the league.

Friday the Reds open an equally gruelling test against the Cardinals at St. Louis with a single game that day and a double-header Sunday.

When the Reds meet the Pirates in the Auust 14 night game, it will be "Price Hill Night." Rooters from that suburb will honor the seven Reds who make their homes there. This game was originally scheduled for the night of June 28, but was rained out. The Reds also meet the Pirates on August 15.

The Chicago Cubs will then come to Cincinnati for a series with the Reds, the teams clashing in a ladies' day game on August 1 and a night game on August 17. This will be the last night game of the season at Crosley Field, and many extra attractions are being planned to make the occasion a gala one.

A single game with the Cardinals on August 19 and a double-header on August 20 will conclude play in Cincinnati until September. Following these contests, the Reds will take off for their final tour through the East.

Fifteen successive games against the Western clubs, starting this week, will have an important bearing on the outcome of the league race.

THANKING THE VOTERS

I want to take this means of thanking all persons who have so faithfully assisted me in Boone County in the recent campaign for the Hon. Keen Johnson for the nomination for Governor.

I want to congratulate Mr. Leonard Cook for the fine spirit of sportsmanship and fair play in this campaign, and solicit the support of everyone in the final election in November.

CHARLES W. RILEY,
County Chairman for Keen Johnson for Governor.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to express my sincere thanks to all who supported me in my race for Representative, and especially those many loyal friends who worked for me—for to them go the credit.

Those who did not support me, I hold no malice. I want them to consider me as their Representative, to feel free to call upon me at any time for any favor that I might honestly be able to confer.

JOHN S. JUETT.

VERONA

The New Bethel Homecoming held July 30th was largely attended by peple in the immediate vicinity and by those out of town. Rev. H. C. Wayman delivered the principal address for the occasion. An old fashioned basket dinner was served and probably realled many memories to those present who had attended similar occasions in years past. Next year, 1940, marks the church's centennial. It is hoped the homecoming will be the largest in its history.

The B. Y. T. U. attended a supper at Butler Park on Sunday afternoon.

The Daily Vacation Bible school closed Friday, Aug. 5th. Many children attended and took part. Since this was the first attempt, it is evident it was quite successful. This should be a yearly training unit and every effort will be made to make it even more successful next summer.

The revival, conducted by Rev. Roy Johnson of Covington, closed Friday night. There were no additions to the hurch, but the community received a great spiritual blessing from the messages and assembling together.

The Benson reunion was held on Sunday, Aug. 6th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Massie. The attendance was large. Mrs. Maxie Webster was unable to be present due to her husband's illness with typhoid fever.

Friends and acquaintances of Mrs. A. T. Hunt are glad to learn of her return from the hospital. Although her recovery is not complete she is greatly improved.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Vest of Richwood, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vest and daughters of Verona, spent the weekend in Hagerstown, Ind., visiting Mrs. Dan Hayden and family.

W. E. Waller and sons went to Cincinnati, Saturday afternoon, and met his niece, Miss Thelma R. Waller, daughter of Omer and Mrs. Lora Belle Vest Waller of Portsmouth, Va. She has been attending the Summer session of Missouri University, located at Columbia. She expects to be joined here by her parents, and after a short visit, return home with them. During her stay she will visit friends and relatives here and at Mt. Zion.

"Boys who show-off by driving recklessly, by speeding, by dashing up to an intersection and slapping on the brakes are not popular with the girls," according to Charles F. Fox, Safety Chairman of the Cincinnati Automobile Club.

This information was gained in a survey made among girls attending the Drivers' School operated by the Cincinnati Automobile Club in dual-control motor cars. In this school novices are taught to drive an automobile in a series of ten lessons, eight of which are actually driving an automobile, two are lectures on the mechanics of the car and its operation.

Girls are asked what other girls think of the show-off young man who tries to impress people by the dare devil attitude which he adopts in driving his automobile carelessly and usually with a great honking of the horn to attract all the attention possible. Without exception these girls realize, the Cincinnati Automobile Club report discovered, that one automobile accident may ruin them forever with a scarred face, a torn scalp, a broken leg or arm, disfiguring bruises . . . all of which destroy that which a girl values above all else . . . her appearance.

The survey also reveals that girls are asking their friends to take them home from a party rather than run the risk of driving with an escort who may be slightly typsy. If the women of this country band together against the reckless driver I believe they can do more for the cause of safety than all the campaigns ever launched, Chairman Fox stated. Boys may not listen to their mothers . . . but they will listen to another woman every time . . . the girl they are in love with. The Cincinnati Automobile Club seeks the cooperation of every motorist in reducing accidents.

BABY NEEDS SAFE MILK

MILK is the most important food you buy for your children. Be sure it is of the best quality, collected and sold under high sanitary standards, however, or it may be of an actual menace to their health.

This warning comes from Doctors Morris and William Fishbein, in a timely article about milk in June Pictorial Review, in which they point out the urgent need for uniform standards of quality and grading of milk in every section of this country.

"Four out of five communities in the United States with populations from 1,000 to 10,000 do not regulate the conditions under which milk is produced or distributed," these doctors reveal. "Less than 40 per cent of the milk used in such communities is pasteurized to kill disease-producing germs.

"Definite standards for milk have been established by the U. S. Public Health Service. About 700 communities now have model milk-control ordinances. Milk which meets certain high standards and is collected by approved methods is given a "Grade A" rating. If milk does not meet these standards in one or more respects, it is given a lower rating, perhaps "Grade B." There are standards not only for pasteurized milk, but also for raw milk. Grade A pasteurized must contain less than 30,000 bacteria for every cubic centimeter, and Grade B pasteurized less than 50,000. Grade B pasteurized is made from Grade C raw milk which may contain a million bacteria for every cubic centimeter."

Pointing out that there are about 1,000 cubic centimeters in a quart of milk, and considering the high bacteria content in every glass, these doctors declare that pasteurization is an absolute necessity for securing safe milk.

"Pasteurization," they go on to explain, "is an added safeguard that has been largely instrumental in reducing the number of cases of tuberculosis of the bones, glands and joints which formerly came from drinking contaminated milk. Undulant fever, also called Malta fever, may be transmitted directly from cows through raw milk, but no cases have ever resulted from drinking efficiently pasteurized milk."

FAIR FEATURES HOME AND HOME EXHIBITS

Exhibits of farm and home equipment will be a special feature of the Seventh Annual Boone County 4-H and Utopia Club Free Fair and County Picnic to be held at Burlington school grounds on Saturday, August 26, acording to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

Commercial exhibitors are showing much interest in plans to display their products. Commercial organizations who have already requested display space include Calvin Cress, International Farm Machinery dealer, Burlington; Huxoll Thuermer, Aurora, Ind.; Bi-County Farm Bureau Cooperative Association at Devon; Erlanger Electric Shop; Shell Gas Cooking Stove Equipment; Chevrolet Motors and others.

It is hoped that commercial display this year will be the largest on record in that ample space has been provided, displays offer special opportunity for concerns to contact large numbers of people and again everyone is interested in the latest productions of useful equipment.

The 1939 fair and county picnic will be the biggest and best on record, according to all present indications. Club members have their project work in splendid shape for display, gate prizes and special events have been increased for the general interest of everybody, the Simon Kenton High school Brass Band has been empoyed to make music all day, the Utopia Club is perfecting their organization to efficiently serve an abundance of eats and drinks on the grounds, rides, swings and special entertainment has been contracted and other features have been added to make the day interesting and enjoyable to all attending. This is Boone County's own county picnic sponsored by our 4-H and Utopia Club organizations in cooperation with all our people. It's your fair and one of the best ways to make your fair a sucess is to be there. Let's all render our fullest support.

ERLANGER SIGNS NEW WATER CONTRACT

Erlanger Council, meeting last Wednesday night, voted to sign a 9-year contract with the Kenton County Water Commission at the same rate as previously in effect, but with the removal of an annual $8 service charge.

Work on completion of the sewer system still is pending, it was reported, as the work order has not been issued by the state Work Projects Administration office.

Miss Lovenia F. Edwards Succumbs In Bethesda Hospital August 13th

Another of Walton's beloved, and well known business personalities, has been taken in the death of Miss Lovenia F. Edwards, which occurred early Sunday in Bethesda Hospital, Cincinnati. Miss Edwards had been a sufferer from cancer for a number of years and that dreaded disease finally was the cause of her death, although everything known to the medical profession was done to prolong her life.

She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Edwards, and a life-long resident of Walton. She was a devoted member of the Walton Methodist church, and was an untiring worker in both the church and the Sunday School. For more than twenty years she had been a teacher in the Sunday School, and at the time of her demise had charge of the Happy Helpers class. She had also efficiently served on various church governing bodies.

Miss Edwards was also well known in the business world. For a number of years she was postmistress at the Walton office. Later she conducted the Edwards Insurance Agency, a thriving enterprise which she sold after ill health prevented her further activities in this line.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. J. Walter Stephenson, Walton; one brother, A. R. Edwards, Detroit, Mich.; an uncle, A. M. Edwards, Walton; a nephew, Ralph Gaines Edwards, Lexington; four nieces, Miss Marie Curley, Nogales, Ariz., Mrs. John M. Simms, Covington, Mrs. Carl Conner and Mrs. R. C. Brakefield, both of Walton; other relatives and a host of friends.

A large number were present for the funeral services which were held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Walton Methodist church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. R. R. Rose, in a most fitting and pleasing manner, assisted by Rev. R. F. DeMoisey, who read the scripture, and Rev. D. E. Bedinger, who offered prayer. Mrs. India Lee Arnold sang a very pretty and appropriate song, accompanied by Mrs. J. B. Johnson on the organ. The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful.

CHRISTIAN SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

The annual convention of Christian Sunday Schools of Boone county will be held on Thursday, August 31st, beginning at 10 a. m., Central Standard time at Beaver Lick Christian church.

Dr. Corey, president of the College of the Bible, Lexington, will speak in the afternoon. Ministers from Boone county will also speak. Each church is urged to send a representative to this convention.

A SURPRISE MARRIAGE

Friends in Walton were surprised to learn, the latter part of the week, of the marriage of R. B. St. Clair to Mrs. Iva Funk.

According to reports, they were married in Yellowstone National Park, Wyoming, earlier in the week. They, in company with Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Rice, are on a tour to the Pacific coast.

Interment was in Forest Lawn cemetery, Erlanger.

Among those who attended the funeral from out-of-town were A. R. Edwards, Ralph Gaines Edwards, Mrs. John Simms; Aggie Hemingway of Crittenden; Mrs. Mary Fields, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest DeMoisey, Mrs. Otis Acree and Mrs. Lizzie Carpenter of Ludlow; Meredith Cooner of Erlanger; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene DeMoisey of Dayton; Carl Bentenback and Mr. Nichols of Louisville; I. T. Grubbs, Mrs. Myrtle Wright, Mrs. John Kent, Mrs. John White and Mrs. Jessie Baker of Covington, and Mrs. Dave Scott and son of Glencoe. Miss Marie Curley, who was visiting in Massachusetts, was delayed in her journey here, and did not arrive until after the funeral.

We wish to express our most sincere sympathy to the family. She, not only will be greatly missed by her loved ones, but by her church and her community, as well.

Chambers & Grubbs had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Community A. C. P. Meetings Held

Two community ACP meetings were held this week to discuss with farmers ways of earning 100% of the 1939 soil-building allowance, according to Mark Cook, Chairman of the County Committee. One meeting was held at Burlington last Friday evening. The meetings held this week were at Hamilton and Walton. Boone County farmers to date have approximately $24,216.12 that must be earned before October 31, or it will be lost to the county.

The meetings this week will be followed in about two weeks with a series of meetings in other communities.

The County and Community committee in conference at Burlington last Tuesday evening recommended as good farming the following soil improvement practices to be carried out for credit under the AC Program this fall:

Alfalfa—Seeded from 12 to 20 pounds per acre in August or before September 10. Now is an ideal time to seed alfalfa. The program pays $3.00 per acre seeded.

Orchard Grass, Blue Grass, Timothy, red top, annual rye grass or mixtures of grasses, vetch and crimson clover seeded now or not later than October 31. Rye grass should be seeded now in corn fields or early in September as soon as the tobacco crop is cut.

Ground Limestone—Pays $1.50 per ton and may be applied on any field or fields in the farm before October 31.

Phosphat—Pays $1.50 per hundred pounds when applied on grass and legume crops or new seedings of grass and legume crops—provided no small grains—are seeded this fall in connection with phosphate. Rye grass may be used as a winter cover crop instead of small grains and full credit for use of phosphate is given. Rye grass also pays $1.50 per acre when seeded this fall and the farmer may also sow other grasses with rye grass, but credit for only one seeding will be given.

There are a few other practices on which farmers may receive credit or payment under the program. Where there is any question, the farmer should call the county office phone Burlington 412. Every farmer should carry out sufficient practices to earn 100% of the allowance set up for his farm.

Yes—Banks Want To Make Loans!

A short time ago Gurden Edwards, Director of the Reserch of the American Bankers Association, had an extensive survey made to find out just how interested banks are in making loans. And here according to the published report, is what was found:

1. A very high percentage of commercial banks are making active efforts to stimulate the use of bank credit by both business concerns and individuals.

2. They have made liberal adaptations of their loaning methods and policies to meet varied requirements of indviduals and business concerns applying for credit.

3. The needs of small borrowers in the fields of business and personal finance alike are being well taken care of by the commerical banks.

This shouldn't come as a surprise to anyone who has thought about banking. Loans are commerical banks' main source of livelihood. They pay the overhead and the profits, if any. They help the community to grow, which is necessary to the growth of the bank.

No banks want to refuse any loans, but there is a percentage of loan applications which must be refused—because they are unsound or unsafe, would endanger the depositors' savings, and perhaps be illegal. After all, the banker doesn't own the money, and the protection of his depositors, who do own it, must come first. But that doesn't obivate the fact that bank are more than eager to make sound loans, for any productive, legal purpose.—Industrial News Review

The Silent Partner

All of us realize the necessiy for fire insurance as a protector of our investment in physical property. Few of us, perhaps, realize the immense contribution fire insurance has made to the development of this vast, rich land of ours.

As a prominent fire insurance company executive has said: "Fire insurance has been a silent partner in every enterprise that went into the making of our nation. As the frontiers expanded, and the railroads pushed their steel ribbons into the wilderness, captiol stock company fire insurance extended its protective arm, and helped to make it possible the thousands of new communities that replaced fields and forests.

"From the begining of our country through every type of industrial and commerical enterprise, you will find fire insurance in the same close and indispensable relationship, bringing stability to cred it and commercial activities that are the warp and woof of our national economic fabric . . . . It stands ready to go on render ing that same efficient service through the years that lie ahead."

Fire insurance has been considered the "backlog of credit." And that makes it the backlog of all industry, all building, all economic activity. It is an industry which eminently deserves the proud designation of "an institution serveing the public interest."—Industrial News Review.

North And South Poles

Admiral Richard E. Byrd is the only living man who has commanded expeditions to both the North and South poles, and therefore it is natural that he should have been selected to head the American Government expedition which will depart in less than three months to lay official claim to millions of acres of territory in the Antarctic.

The expedition plans to establish Antarctic bases by January or February. There will be three bases, and they may become permanent. In any event the camps will be provided with ample food to last two years, and the definite purpose is to claim the South Pole regions for the United States Government.

Admiral Byrd explained to a group of newspaper men in Washington the other day that the North Pole is covered with ice over a thousand feet of water, and that the Antarctic, or South Pole, is covered with mountains reaching a thousand feet, and more, above the sea level. A part of the Antarctic lies in the Western Hemisphere and is less than 500 miles from South America. Petrified trees and inexhaustible coal deposits prove, according to Byrd, that the South Pole was at one time a region where things grew. Sometime, he says, it may again be a land that is settled. In the far-ahead future the Antarctic may be an important frontier.

Other nations are planning, as we are, about the South Pole. Germany has already planted its Swastika and laid claim to a small portion of the great area.—National Industries News Service.

Latest official statistics estimate 10,600,000 unemployed in the United States. The lowest number of unemployed in recent years was 8,282,000 in 1937 and the largest number was 13,271,000 in 1933. Prior to 1929 the rate of unemployment had been between one and two million for seven years. The figures are from the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics. —National Industries News Service.

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5582 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

When I hear the song over the radio, "The Bully of the Town," it reminds me of a bully of an Ohio River County in Kentucky, who was the bully of his county, so that most everyone was afraid of him. He did not realize that this is a big world and perhaps had not heard of the Irishman who could whip any man in the world, who found, to his sorrow, that he had taken in too much territory.

This Kentucky bully was a livestock shipper to the Cincinnati Union Stock Yards. He would come with his stock, and unfortunately, for him, he undertook to bully Joe Williams, and old Civil War veteran, an old rebel soldier who had fought all through the war. When Joe got through with the bully he looked like he had been through the battle of Waterloo, in fact, he met his waterloo.

When he got able to go back to his Kentucky home, he quieted down and became a good, peaceful citizen. After this occurance, one of the former bully's neighbors came to Cincinnati, saying he wanted to shake hands with the man that had taken all the bully out of his neighbor and made a christian out of him.

Joe Williams was quiet, peaceful and unassuming. Not quarrelsome, but when anyone undertook to bully him it was just too bad, for that old rebel fighting blood would raise in him. When he hit his opponent with his big fist and long arm, the other fellow went to his knees, feeling as if he had been kicked by a mule.

Several parties attacked him, through a mistake, at a Boone County picnic. He brought them to their knees as fast as they walked up to him. He walked up to the grounds and told his friends he had had a little round with some of the bullies from Covington.

It is not our aim to encourage fighting. In fact, it is hard work. Our aim is to give the boys or fighters a lesson that, while they think they are good fighters, the best way to go through life is with the principle of not trying to put things over on other people in any way and be law-abiding. You only have to think back a few years to realize that law-breakers soon go down, big ones and little ones.

PICTURES IN THE HOME

However inexpensive the pictures in the old-fashioned home may have been, there were often reprints of some of the best in existence. The one great place for a picture was in the center of a fire screen, a device to cover the fireplace during the summer. A frame was made large enough to enclose the fireplace and the space between it and the mantel. Over this frame was tacked canvas or unbleached domestic. Wall paper, when it was obtainable, was pasted over this canvas, with a picture from a newspaper or magazine in the center. The picture I have most often seen was Rosa Bonheur's "Horse Fair," really a good picture. Sometimes the whole screen was covered with pictures, in black and white or in colors. I wish some one, sensing the value of such things, had photographed representative fire screens when they were in full swing; such photographs would today have a value in any study of folk industries.

Pictures on the walls were of three kinds: prints like those on the fire screen, photographs, and enlarged pictures. Just as Rosa Bonheur's "Horse Fair" was so often found on screens, it was likewise often seen in a simple frame on the wall. A stag at bay, probably by Landseer, graced many a home. Some of these prints were obtainable at the village store by paying seventy-five cents after buying so many dollars' worth of merchandise. Many of these pictures had elaborate frames and were in their way works of art. A few homes, Protestant or Catholic, had sacred pictures, either in frames or pasted or pinned to the walls. No home was too poor to have a picture, even if it were only the cover of some farm magazine. I have often wondered at the quality of the pictures that were to be found in simple homes, pictures that often may have determined certain trends in the lives of the boys and girls.

In the front room there were photographs in frams, sometimes several on the walls at one time. The frames that I like best have over-lapping corners and are about an inch wide. Some of them are rustic in appearance. Full-length or half-length pictures of members of the family were the ones usually found in these little frames.

A whole book could be written about enlarged pictures. They are the portraits of homes that cannot afford oil portraits. Practically every community has had one or more visits from solicitors for pictures of this sort. A tintype or later picture, no matter what the size, is converted into a large one, with an imposing frame. Long-dead ancestors, members of the family when they were much younger, and sometimes a picture of some distinguished friend or neighbor are the ones found. I always look on the walls when I enter a house, because I want to see the enlarged pictures. An antique dealer of my town says that he often has calls for ancestors; just any unidentifiable portrait looks good to ancestor-hunters. A portrait like this, hung up in the front hall, strikes envy into the hearts of others who can afford only genuine enlarged pictures.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

There is a sequel to the White House "ghost" story about the mythical businessman who supposedly told the President a business boon had been nipped in the bud by Senate refusal to grant him broad neutrality powers.

Furnishing the sequel is the corps of government economists, who endeavor to keep the President, and others, posted on the future business outlook.

Hardly had the White House ghost announcement dried in the headlines when the economists came forth with their business condition prediction for the rest of the year. That prediction is that business will be better this fall and winter. That doesn't jibe with the crepe hung on the business indices by the White House "spooksman."

In addition this ultra-optimistic prediction of the economic seers embarrasses the White House on another point. The Washington hangers-on remember that not so long ago the White House viewed with considerable alarm the threat of a late-summer European crisis. The official viewers-with-alarm agrued that much broader powers were needed for the White House to deal with the expected situation; that the problem shouldn't be left in the hands of Congress.

Now, however, the economists are making light of the "alarming situation." If they foresaw any such serious crisis as was seen by the administration big-wigs, their business predictions would not be so optimistic.

If there was ever a time when the political wisemen of Washington were in agreement on a question it is now on the subject of the C. I. O. vs. Vice-President Garner. All agree that the beetle-browed C. I. O. leader blundered onto a political banana peeling when he made his unprecedented personal attack on the popular Texan.

That the political strategists are in agreement is unimportant, however. What is important is that the event may lead to many policy reforms in Washington.

Certainly it deflates C. I. O. influence in Congress, meaning that Congressional groups who still found it expedient to follow the will of the C. I. O. will now find it difficult to convince more conservative colleagues that the C. I. O. should have its way. Then, too, the National Labor Relations Board, which is about to be investigated by a Congressional committee, is expected to suffer a setback as a result. The C. I. O. has been its chief defender.

Interesting, too, is the fact that big and little political figures alike are trying to climb into the John L. Lewis verbal spotlight. Few can be found now who want (or will accept) C. I. O. supprt for re-election. Rather, they believe their chances are stronger if Lewis will attack them.

Note, here, that at a White House press conference shortly after Lewis called the Vice-President harsh names the Number 1 boss carefully pointed out that the C. I. O. had also attacked him once upon a time.

But, there were broad hints that the Lewis name-calling against Vice-President Garner was actually cooked up by Garner-haters within the Administration. Lewis a few days before having been a White House caller. Everyone agrees, though, that if Lewis did pull his stunt while acting as a White House Charley McCarthy, he either got twisted up on what he was told to say, or should get a new ventriloquist.

COST OF LIVING NOTE: Coal prices may be higher this winter if Secretary Ickes' new Bituminous Coal Division can work out all the complex details. Here is the background:

Present transporation costs make shipment of coal by water cheaper than shipment by rail. Thus, coal shipped to consumers by water routes can sell at lower prices.

To raise the price of water-shipped coal to the level of that shipped by rail, the division is trying to work out a basing point price fixing arrangement that will force coal operators to charge more for coal that is to be shipped by water.

Test plots of hybrid corn on 20 Scott county farms have made excellent growth.

Bride's House On View At New York Hotel

MORE alive with color and freer in design than ever before, House Beautiful's sixth annual Bride's House is open to the public at the Savoy-Plaza Hotel in New York.

This year the Bride's House is made up of five separate houses (34 rooms in all) ranging in size from two to six rooms, excluding kitchen and bathroom. All five houses take inspiration from the various periods, although the eighteenth century pervades more generally than any other.

This being a year of color—tangerine, dramatic greens, blues, brilliant golds and reds predominate, blazing their way through the entire house. Basic in the decorating scheme is that color be made to flow from room to room, fusing them all into an harmonious whole. Thus, the gray damask curtains in the mirror room of one of the houses (the Devon) paves the way for the gray walls of the room beyond; or the trace of chartreuse in the piano chair's satin seat finds its counterpart in the carpet of the living room.

Among the many decorating innovations, the most daring is that of using color schemes in five of the rooms as backgrounds for five distinct feminine types: blonde, chestnut, brunette, titian and silver gray. There are hostesses in these rooms to illustrate the striking color affinity possible with proper make-up.

The five houses, in order of size, are called the KENTWOOD (6 rooms): yellow damask living room, gold striped dining room, blue striped bedroom, man's bedroom, green library and guest room; the DEVON (5 rooms): mirror room, gray living room, dining room, camellia bedroom and study; the PENNFIELD (3 rooms): modern living room, white dining room and peasant bedroom; the BEDFORD (2½ rooms): modern living-dining room and canopied bedroom; the SHERWOOD (2 rooms): blue living room and bedroom.

Miriam Thompson, talented, young American decorator, planned the Bride's House, lending all her efforts to the living, dining and bedrooms, while other experts decorated the kitchens and bathrooms. Miss Thompson borrowed a pattern from her own life and supplied the house with youthfulness and freshness and a perpetual radiance—qualities every young couple starting house-keeping together look for in their first home.

The Bride's House, cooled by an air-conditioning system, will remain open to visitors all summer.

Luncheon Set Which Should Take Honors in Crochet Contest

Cobwebs

THE lacy, cobwebby design of this charming luncheon set gives it a fragile effect that belies its sturdiness. Made of mercerized crochet cotton, it will give years of good service, and will bob up smiling after many tubbings. Lovely crochet designs like this will be popular entries in the Second National Crochet Contest this fall. Directions for crocheting this, and details of the National Crochet Contest may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to The National Crochet Bureau, 522 Fifth Avenue, New York City. HIGHWAY TRUCK OPERATORS DEMAND MORE EFFICIENCY IN MOTOR TRANSPORTATION

By COLEMAN SUTTER
Nationally Known Automotive Editor

ROBERT W. CANFIELD

NOT the man from Missouri—but the average man on the street has to be shown," said Robert W. Canfield, secretary-treasurer of the Differential Wheel Corporation.

"About a year ago we first put the differential dual wheels on the market," he continued. "Public response was slow. Only a few pioneers in the industry accepted the dual wheel operation on their own trucks, busses and trailers, but their findings were closely watched by owners and operators of heavy motor vehicles all over the country. This was our testing ground and clinic. Our findings were more than satisfactory."

Upon entering the offices of the Differential Wheel Corporation, I met E. Richard Bagarosy, vice-president, and Philip M. Carter, executive vice-president. These men have been intimately connected with the development of this new type of dual wheel since its inception.

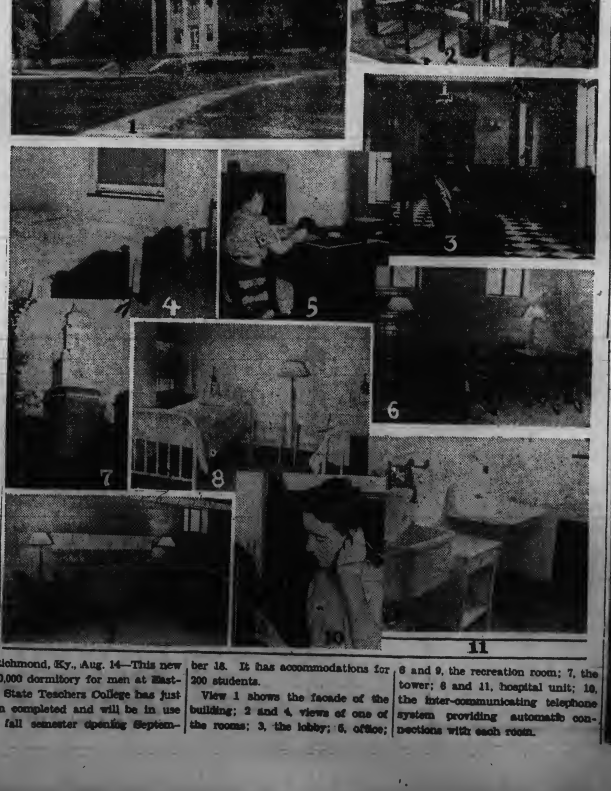
The idea which created the differential wheel is based on a simple but clever change from rigid wheels. Each pair, instead of being bound together solidly, is attached by means of telescoping hubs. This serves to keep each pair as firmly together as in the case of rigid wheels, yet allows each individual wheel to revolve at its own rate of speed.

Experiments conducted by the corporation, Mr. Bagarosy stated in response to my inquiry, showed that there is always a differentiation in the rate of revolutions between dual wheels on the road crown, even on the straightaway. The variation is from three inches per revolution on a straight road to twelve feet on a full turn.

It is the differential construction which provides for material savings in tire treads and gas consumption as well as for greater driving safety.

"As the vehicle makes a turn," explained Mr. Bagarosy, using line sketches to illustrate his point, "each wheel rotates on its individual arc, in contrast to the rigid wheel combination where both wheels in the pair rotate on the same arc. In this way drag on turns is eliminated."

Settling back in his chair, he enumerated advantages of this construction. "Less power is needed for pulling purposes, with a resultant saving in the amount of gas required. Operators using our wheels have reported this saving to be as high as twenty per cent and never lower than ten per cent, bearing out the conclusions made in our factory tests.



"Reduction of the abrasive traction drag also operates to increase the life of tire treads to almost three times that of treads used on rigid wheels. In addition there is less danger of blowouts, which gives us the double advantage of economy plus greater safety.

"Another factor in the safety angle is that vehicles using differential wheels are easier to control, thus cutting down the chance of accidents caused by skidding or jack-knifing."

Mr. Carter, who has been mechanically minded since boybood, took up our conversation at this place to elaborate on details of the construction of these wheels. Both the differential and rigid types of dual wheels rotate on standard bearings on standard axles, but in differential hubs the outer wheel rotates around the extended hub of the inner wheel, thereby doubling the bearing space and reducing friction by a like amount.

Braking action remains of the old type for the inner drum. A clutch between the pair locks the outer wheel as soon as the brake is applied to the inner wheel, and so makes the action for both simultaneous.

WEEK-ENDING DECRIED BY VETERAN HOST

THE pernicious problem of week-end entertaining is dissected by Jack Alan in the September issue of Cosmopolitan. He says that the strange American custom so strenuous for both host and guest, interests him more than anything in the cosmopolitan world and he comes to the conclusion that if a man's home is his castle, his summer one should have a deep moat around it. Mr. Alan has explored the seamy side of week-ending as host and guest and finds no percentage in it from any angle. "The Monday-morning farewell brings relief on both sides," he says.

"It is easy to be a host," Alan points out. "All you have to have is an unlimited income, a capacity for going three days without the use of your bathroom and an air of good fellowship that your guests can cut with a knife and probably will. Being a good host includes a cluster of talents in the entertainment and dramatic fields which could only be found in a character combining the best features of the two Rands, Sally and Talley."

If you don't have these qualifications, he concludes, you might solve the problem by taking two places—a room and a bath for yourself and a large, draughty manor at least twenty miles away for the misuse of your summer visitors.

IT'S A FACT..

AND IT'S A FACT THAT A PENNY IS BIG MONEY WHEN YOU SPEND IT FOR ELECTRICITY

The penny is Uncle Sam's smallest coin but it's big money when you spend it electrically. At this company's low average rate, one cent will light a 60-watt bulb nearly three hours. It will make 10 slices of toast or percolate 8 cups of coffee. It will wash a big tubful of clothes or vacuum clean two large rugs daily for a week. It will provide two hours of radio entertainment. In fact, if you paid for your electricity as you used it, pennies would pay your electric bill.

Budget of $100 Rejuvenates Home

READING, Pa. (Special)—The decorative results that can be accomplished by imagination coupled with ingenuity and a wise investment in plate glass mirrors were interestingiy illustrated here by a homemaker with but $100 to spend on three rooms.

Mrs. Roy Shugart, of Wyomissing, a suburb of Reading, was the homemaker who glorified three rooms on a decorating budget of $100, accumulated by careful housekeeping economy and giving up a few recreational pleasures. But the results in a rejuvenated home more than justified the sacrifices to save the necessary funds.

Fireplace Redeemed

Faced with the problem of a badly proportioned fireplace, and eager to achieve something out of the ordinary in the way of decoration, Mrs. Shugart decided on mirrors as offering the most in charm at the least expense. She first attacked the fireplace.

The mantel was high and narrow. Therefore, if it was to become an asset instead of a liability the proportions must be changed. An eight inch board across the top was removed and a panel of mirrored plate glass reaching to the ceiling was installed at a cost of $42.07. Mrs. Shugart felt justified in spending this amount on the mantel since the mirror gave gaiety and charm to the entire room and made the formerly ugly fireplace a focal point of interest by reflecting other furniture groupings and two excellently proportioned windows at the opposite end of the room.

Next a little-used and antiquated piano was removed and in its place were put a gateleg table previously in another part of the room, a lounge chair and a maple arm chair brought down from a bedroom. In order to catch the vistas from two more windows opposite this grouping, Mrs. Shugart spent $9.85 on another mirror.

The divan and two upholstered chairs were treated to new slip covers at a cost of $12.00 for materials, the work being done at home. Other expenditures in the living room were for pictures, ornaments, lampshades, a lamp, rug, a radiator cover and an end table, amounting to $14.48.

Furnished in simple maple, which had been a wedding gift, the dining room's particular problem was a grate of necessary but unattractive shape. Again a mirror seemed indicated and for $8.85 the amateur decorator secured a good mirror in a simple frame Her husband removed the green paint from the old chest and rubbed it down with oil. Above the chest directly opposite, Mrs. Shugart hung a wall shelf bought for $1.25 and stained at home, using bright bits of pottery and vases of field flowers to brighten it. Thus two drab corners were delightfully redeemed at a cost of $7.55.

Mirror in Nursery

The nursery received a "face lifting," with a total investment of $13.68. Paint and gay but inexpensive chintz revivified the nondescript furniture and the man of the house contributed a home-made but attractive bookcase for $1.90. A mirror removed from a chest and framed for $1.75 served to emphasize a charming view of a park and to remind an untidy little daughter of her appearance. Chintz and bedspread materials costs $4.97 and a chest and a child's chair required another $5.08.

The decoration budget added up to $99.63 but, says the woman who accomplished this miracle of room transformation, the results in uplifting the spirits of the family are out of all proportion to the amount she spent.

CURING COLDS AND FLU

By Emil [illegible] M.D.

"EPIDEMIC of Flu Sweeps Mid-West," say the headlines reporting that in Chicago alone between 700 and 800 policemen were ill, and several schools had suspended classes, while city health officers estimated that more than 5,000 residents of Peoria, Ill., were ill of respiratory ailments.

Dr. Emil C. Aurin

Fortunately there is little likelihood that the epidemic will become general or that it will assume the dread proportions of the great flu plague of 1918. It is well, however, that we pause a moment to review briefly the preventive measures which have come into existence since those World War days.

Of the scores of remedies suggested both for the prevention and the cure of flu during the 1918 epidemic, grapefruit is one of the few that has stood the test of time.

Medical science had long known the value of grapefruit in combating colds, and it was natural that both physicians and laymen should try it out when influenza began taking such a tremendous toll.

The earliest reports from medical men showed remarkable results in preventing, aborting and curing the disease. Many cited cases which had been aborted in from 24 to 48 hours. The relatively few failures were almost invariably due to either beginning the treatment too late or using the remedy in insufficient quantities.

At that time most authorities believed that the effectiveness of grapefruit as a remedy for both [illegible] influenza was due to its content of mineral elements which served to combat the acidosis almost always present.

However, since that time Vitamin C has not only been isolated but also synthetically produced, and the tendency now is to give major credit to the large amount of this vital element which is present in grapefruit.

This is quite logical, for numerous investigators have found that there is a marked deficiency of Vitamin C in practically all infections and especially those of the respiratory tract —even such severe ones as whooping cough, pneumonia and tuberculosis.

Whether or not the deficiency of Vitamin C plays a part in the cause of these diseases, or is a result thereof, is after all immaterial. The essential thing is that medical authorities are coming more and more to believe that Vitamin C plays an important part in one's resistance to all infections.

In addition to the mineral elements and the Vitamin C, grapefruit has yet other valuable properties The fever in flu tends to bring on a dehydration or drying out of the tissues, with a consequent need of fluids, and the tartness of grapefruit juice makes it particularly acceptable to the fevered patient.

Likewise it has a slightly laxative as well as a diuretic effect. Since it is important to keep bowels and kidneys functioning properly, these minor effects are not without value.

To get the full value of grapefruit juice in colds and influenza, however, it must be given freely. The juice of half a dozen grapefruit in 24 hours is none too much. If the fresh fruit is not available or one does not want to bother with the extraction of so much juice, the canned juice may be taken with full assurance of good results.

BOHEMIANISM DIED WITH BOB CHANLER

THE death in October, 1930, of Bob Chanler, whose lurid exploits are described by Parker Morell in the September issue of Cosmopolitan, marked the end of an epoch as well as a life, the writer notes. With the beginning of the great depression Bob Chanler's way of life could never have continued. It was part of the fantastic years between the great war and the stock-market crash.

Chanler's parties at his House of Fantasy in New York have never been remotely duplicated in America. Revels so elaborate and Bacchanalian in character that they would have put a Roman orgy to shame, took place there and were attended by many celebrities of his day. Chanler had quiet parties too, in a room especially fitted out for the use of his more serious friends. He separated a portion of his house into a section which he fancifully named the Gobi Desert. Walls were covered with unique panels, windows were stained glass and the floor was strewn with luxuriant rugs. Many creative efforts in literature, music and art had their inception in the Gobi Desert.

Chanler did not always attend his own parties. While his guests disported themselves, he would retire to his studio and paint madly when the mood was on him. His unruly genius was recognized by critics everywhere. The Metropolitan Museum purchased his "Porcupines" screen for permanent collection and the Luxembourg Museum in Paris bought "Giraffes." Chanler was the only American except Whistler, whose work was hung in the Luxembourg during his lifetime.

To be painted by Chanler became a distinction. His portraits were rarely flattering but showed uncanny insight into the sitter's personality. He charged staggering prices for his work, selling his famous screens for as much as ten or fifteen thousand dollars. He charged between twenty-five and fifty thousand dollars to decorate a house. He had a fine disregard for money and once, to antagonize his guests, he threw a hundred bill out of the window into a snowy street where it was plowed under by a city snowplow.

FISH AND GAME

Major James Brown, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, stated today that he has notified the Interior Department at Washington that Kentucky wishes to avail itself of the $18,848. appertioned it for development of wildlife resources.

The money allotted on a basis of acreage and hunting licenses sold and must be used to pay 75 per cent of the cost of developing wild life resources. The state pays the remaining 25 per cent—about $6,000. The Interior Department recently allotted $1,380,000 for such developments in a large number of the states in the Union.

The projects to which the funds are to be deveted have not been decided upon, Major Brown said.

Ripe Peach Jelly

"SOMETHING OLD, SOMETHING NEW" is as nice for the pantry as it is for the bride . . . and if you've never made ripe peach jelly, you'll like this recipe. Peach jelly is still cooking news, you know — grandmother wouldn't have believed it. The trick is to add the pectin to the fruit juice—it doesn't [illegible] any of its own.

[illegible] directions are quite foolproof, give you nine glasses from just three cups of juice, and all the flavor of sun-ripened fruit. Best of all—the half-minute boil won't heat up the kitchen these warm days!

RIPE PEACH JELLY

(Makes about 9 medium glasses)

3 cups juice
6½ cups sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin

To prepare juice, remove pits from about 3½ pounds fully ripe peaches. Do not peel. Crush peaches thoroughly. Add ½ cup water.

Bring to a boil, cover, and simmer 5 minutes. Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice.

Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute.

Poultry Pointers for August
by Cecil M. Hinton

During the month of August considerable attention should be given the growing pullets. All late maturing pullets that are in poor condition should be culled and sold as fryers with the cockerels that are not going to be kept as breeders. The cockerels that are to be kept as breeders should also be selected this month. Choose the large bodied, early matured, fully feathered cockerels that have plenty of vigor and either take them away from the others or mark them so that they will not be sold by mistake.

The old hens should be culled from time to time in order to maintain a high average in egg production during the hot weather. Remove from the flock all hens that molt during August. Remember the early molters are the poor layers. All old birds that show yellow pigment in the shanks and beak should be removed because they have been out of production for some time and would be unprofitable to keep another year.

Before placing the pullets in the laying house, be sure it has a thorough cleaning to remove all filth and infective material left by the old birds. Spray and scrub the house with a solution composed of one can of lye to twelve gallons of hot water. Remodel and repair the house before moving the pullets in for the winter.

During the culling process check the birds for lice and mites. They must to kept free of parsites if they are to continue in production. Paint the roosts with old crankcase oil and kerosene in equal parts to kill any mites that are present.

Lice will retard the growth of the pullets. They may be destroyed by using commercial sodium flouride. This may either be applied by the pinch method, by dusting or by dipping. If the pinch method is used be sure tthe powder gets next to the skin under the wings, vent, on the back, on each thigh, the breast and on the head. If a considerable number of birds are to be treated it is equally effective and more rapid to dip the birds. Use one ounce of sodium fluoride to each gallon of water. Dipping should be done on warm days only.

If the flock last year showed any signs of chickenpox, it is very important to vaccinate this year's pullets before they start into production. If no chickenpox was present last year it will not be necessary to vaccinate now. Consult your county agent before vaccinating your flock.

THE NOVEL
By DONALD HOUGH
(From Argosy Cosmopolitan)

TRAFTON was a funny fellow. For twenty years, while he was grubbing on a newspaper, he had saved his money so that he could take a year off, get a cabin in the mountains far from human habitation, and write the novel in his mind. Finally he got the money together and that's exactly what he did. He rented Jim Harper's shack, way up in Boulder Canyon, packed his typewriter and provisions to last a year, and set himself to do his book.

The people in Cache Creek, the little town below Boulder Canyon, worried a lot about him because they were acquainted with the snowbound winters up there and they were afraid something would happen to him. They were bred in the tradition of mutual support and they depended on each other for companionship and even sanity, against the harshness of elemental forces. Still, they respected the strange man's wishes. After all, he had said that he didn't want to see anybody. He was writing a book and he might have to start all over if they broke his train of thought. Still, they worried more and more about him when the snow began to fly.

It was a bad year though, and finally some of the leading citizens decided on a plan. They would trek up to the cabin and look in the windows to see if Trafton was making out all right. If everything seemed in order they would come away again without bothering him. Ed Anderson and Billy Rue and Einor Nelson got out their packs and snowshoes and struggled through the drifts in Boulder Canyon. On the way up the wintry slopes, Billy Rue hurt his leg and they had a hard pull to get there. When they finally did, they peered in the window and there sat Trafton before a warm fire, smoking a cigarette and writing on a piece of paper. The fire looked good but they didn't intrude. They went around and checked the provisions and observed he had plenty to last until spring thaw and then started back.

The wind had risen and covered the trail with snow and Billy Rue was suffering with his leg. They couldn't make it back to town and there was nothing for it but to camp. Einor and Billy didn't want to bother Trafton, but Ed was stubborn. So they went back and pounded on the cabin door. Finally it swung furtively open and when Trafton saw them there he slumped to the floor in a dead faint. They were stunned and ashamed. They knew that they had spoiled the novel.

When they were trying to find something to bring Trafton to, they discovered the letter. Trafton had come to the end of his row. He had broken his typewriter and used up all his pencils and the loneliness of Boulder Canyon had crept into his soul. There was a revolver lying beside the letter. They had saved Trafton from shooting himself.

WITH THE REDS

Cincinnati—Big doings are on tap for the Reds this week as they swing into action against stiff opposition at the home lot. Before the week's play has been completed, they will have faced the Pirates, Cubs, and Cards, the other three members of the National League's first division.

The final night game of the season will be played at Crosley Field, Thursday, when the Reds meet the Chicago Cubs under the arcs. This will conclude the two game series with the Cubs that was to start with a ladies' day game Wednesday.

The Kersten O'Day Drum and Bugle Corps of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will strut their stuff before the night game. This unit has won acclaim throughout the middle west. They were scheduled for an appearance at Crosley Field on June 28, when the game was rained out. Thursday night has been designated as "Knights of Columbus Night" and hundreds of members of that organization will be in attendance.

Ray Blades and his St. Louis Cardinals, runners-up to the Reds all season long, will come to Cincinnati, Saturday for a single game and will remain over for a double-header Sunday. Following that the Reds will depart for their final Eastern trip.

Pittsburgh was to have played a night game against the Reds Monday and an afternoon tilt Tuesday. By the end of the week the Reds will have completed a string of fifteen consecutive battles with the first division clubs of the circuit.

Tickets for Thursday's night game with the Bruins and Sunday's double meeting with the Gas Housers are now on sale at the Henry Straus Cigar Store, Sixth and Walnut Sts.

FREIGHT RATES LOW, SAYS EMPLOYES' MAGAZINE

The time-worn alibi that the high cost of living can, in part, be attributed to high freight rates, is shown tot be an untruth in an article in the August issue of the L. & N. Employes' Magazine. For instance, it costs but 10 cents to ship a man's ready-to-wear suit from New York to Pensacola; six cents to bring a pair of shoes from Boston to Atlanta and eight cents to move a hat between Philadelphia and Nashville. In fact, insofar as the freight rate is concerned, a well-dressed man's wardrobe costs considerably less than $1.00. Rates on other commodities are comparable.

Social Security News

Congress has placed a four year time limit on the period during which wage records of the Social Security Board may be checked and credited. This announcement was made today by Frank B. Decker, Jr., manager of the Social Security Board field office in Covington, Ky.

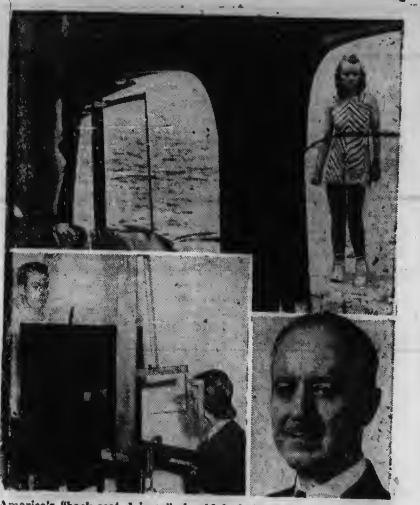
"Workers whose recorded earning will be the basis of their old age insurance should remember this fact," Mr. Decker said.

"The action of the Congress will prevent a worker who is covered by old age insurance from going back more than four years to get a revision of his wage record. The amended law provides that at the end of the fourth calendar year following any year in which wages were paid records of the Board shall be regarded as conclusive.

"This does not mean the Board will change its policy of giving all possible aid to that a worker's wage records may include every earned dollar that should properly be there. But it does mean a worker who suspects some of this wages have not been reported by his employer, and are not credited to the worker's account, will lose his right to an examination and adjustment of his record if he waits too long.

"Wage records for 1937 and 1938 are now available to all workers covered by the Social Security Act and may be had by the use of cards which are now available at our office," Mr. Decker said.

WITH L. & N. 50 YEARS



Latest to join the L. & N.'s diamond button clan, which includes all employes with 50 years or more of continuous service, is W. H. White, engineer, Louisville. Mr. White has been working for the Old Reliable since February 1, 1888 and has a son who also works for the L. & N. He has been piloting the company's huge locomotives for over 40 years.

Five 45-year buttons, eight 35-year buttons and scores of buttons for 25 and 15 year periods of service were also awarded employes by the L. & N. during the last month.

FREIGHT BUSINESS BETTER

The L. & N. Railroad's freight business continued to show an encouraging trend in July, 1939, according to the August issue of the L. & N. Employes' Magazine and as a result the mercury reached a point on the business barometer of 72.6 percent of normal. This was a gain of 8.9 points over July, 1938, and helped in establishing a figure of 71.3 percent of normal for the first seven months of 1939, as contrasted with the comparable figure of 65.0 percent in 1938.

SCIENCE POINTS WAY TO MOTORISTS' EYE HEALTH

America's "back-seat drivers" should look to their eyesight in this age of motor travel. Tests by Dr. Andrew H. Ryan, right, Chicago scientist, show that eyes are taxed by strain of looking through distortion waves of safety sheet glass in side windows of automobiles. Result is blurred images such as that of pretty blonde at top. Below is laboratory test where it was found girl could read 13 per cent faster through plate glass than through sheet.

A. H. Ryan, M.D., reviewing results of ten months of research, reported that passengers in automobiles looking through side windows of safety sheet glass suffer 32 per cent more eye-strain than those who look through safety plate glass.

"The constant advice from back seat drivers" Dr. Ryan said, "may result from this distortion in sheet glass automobile windows, because the passenger has much less ability to judge distances through sheet glass than he has through plate glass. Approaching automobiles or objects along the roadside appear out of place through these distortion waves—which are accentuated by the factor of motion—often giving the impression that an accident is imminent when actually there is no danger whatsoever."

Automobile editors of newspapers and magazines were introduced to the new theory of eye-strain by Dr. Ryan at a luncheon sponsored by the Fisher Body division of General Motors Corporation at the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co. They also heard Charles F. Kettering, vice-president of General Motors Corp., and John D. Biggers, president of Libbey-Owens-Ford, describe developments in 1940 car models designed to increase the health and comfort of motorists.

"Plate glass in automobiles," Dr. Ryan said, "ranks with proper lighting and eye glasses as a sight conservation measure. Statistics show that 28 per cent of the persons living on farms and nearly 60 per cent of city dwellers suffer from eye defects. Because millions of persons ride in automobiles, this distortion in the side windows of many cars is a serious threat to the sight of the entire population."

MORGANSVILLE

"Withhold not good from them to whom it is due, when it is in the power of thine hand to do it." Once a benefactress by kindly scattering food on the ground for our little warblers, gained many friends among them and was greatly missed when death claimed her. When it comes our turn to go, will we be missed by needy ones around?

Most warmly were Mrs. G. C. Morgan and daughters Misses Anne and Sara welcomed out Wednesday evening.

Ungrazed Woodlands Provide Cash Crop, Prevent Erosion

The importance of farm woodlots in a sound land use program cannot be overemphasized, soil conservationists claim. A well-managed woodlot adds considerably to the farm income. Grazing of woodlots, as shown above, prevents reproduction and provides little forage. The woodland shown below is fenced against grazing and a selective cutting policy is followed.

"THE SMOOTHIES" TO STAR WITH HAL KEMP IN CONEY PROGRAM

"The Smoothies" — Babs, Charlie and Little — who have been featured on the networks in Hal Kemp's "Penthouse Party" program, "Vocal Varieties" and again in Kemp's "Time to Shine" broadcasts, will be with Hal Kemp and His Orchestra in their special one-night engagement in Moonlite Gardens, Coney Island's palatial summer ballroom, Cincinnati, Friday night, Aug. 18.

The success of the Smoothies reads like fiction. Charlie and Little Ryan were newsboys in Baltimore when they hit on the idea of harmonizing in order to lure newspaper buyers from their competitors. A theatrical agent heard them, made them a vaudeville offer, and they proved an immediate success. Later they added a charming songstress to their act, and they have been a favorite stage, ballroom and radio trio ever since.

Hal Kemp also will feature other stars of his "Time to Shine" program in his personal appearance at Coney Island, including Nan Wynn, Bob Allen, Jack LeMaire, Eddie Kusby, Harry Willford and Clayton Cash.

UNION

THE WORLD'S No. 1 TRANSPORTATION

DO YOU KNOW that American railroads can haul, speedily and efficiently, more than a billion tons of freight a year—more than 30 tons for every family in the United States?

—that railroads handle more than eight times the tonnage handled by any other common carrier serving the nation?

—the railroads do this job at an average charge of about 1 cent for hauling a ton a mile? And that this is far less than the average charge made by any other carrier providing general transportation service?

—the average capacity of a freight car is more than 48 tons—and that many locomotives are able to pull, in a single train, a load of 5,000 tons?

These are facts—and they are made possible because the railroads have the real super-highways of today and tomorrow, built and maintained by private enterprise.

Railroads have kept pace with the times by constantly improving and modernizing their track and equipment. The billions of dollars invested in improved facilities have been railroad dollars—not tax dollars. For railroads build their own tracks, maintain them, and pay taxes on them.

When you look at the record of the railroads and the job they are doing, you can see why government transportation policy should give all carriers equal treatment and an equal opportunity to earn a living.

Advertising Pays YOU!

By H. W. Manz

Lumping together all the advertising in the country, the total expenditures amount to less than 2% of the value of all goods sold.

This is very small in comparison with other selling and distributing costs. The Department of Commerce estimates that in 1936 the total cost of distribution was 2%. So it appears that the total amount spent for advertising is only 1/14 of the whole cost of distribution.

If no money was spent for advertising, the cost of selling and distributing would be far higher than it is now, and prices would have to be higher.

THE opportunity to be of service to our customers and their friends is always welcomed by

Sheep Protective Association To Meet

The Boone County Sheep Protective Association will complete its first year's successful operation on August 31, and will hold the first annual meeting at the Burlington Courthouse, Monday, Sept. 4th, according to H. E. White, president of the association.

Losses have amounted to approximately fifty percent of funds paid the association and all claims will be paid in full with the members being offered the privilege of lowering the rates for 1940.

The sheep protective association has given farmers greater confidence in the development of the sheep industry in the county. This past year 100 farmers insured more than 5,000 sheep through this mutual cooperative organization. This represents approximately one-third of all sheep in the county.

A large increase in membership is expected following the September meeting. All existing insurance expires the first of September and both old and new members must sign up for the 1939-40 year if they are to receive insurance protection after this date. New applications may be signed at the County Agents office in Burlington at the annual meeting or by the precinct directors of the association.

Officers and directors for the 1939-40 year will be elected at the annual meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Hughes and sons Perry and Jack, Mrs. Estelle Gordon and daughter Luke enjoyed a motor trip to Hanover, Ind., Sunday. Enroute they visited Clifty Falls. Perry Hughes and Luke Gordon will attend college at Hanover this fall.

D. H. I. A. Membership Goal Reached

Boone County's quota of ten members for the Northern Kentucky Dairy Herd Improvement Association was reached the past week, with T. F. Helle of Walton requesting the tenth membership, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agt.

Additional membership may be possible if one of the adjoining counties do not secure their full quota at an early date. Dairymen desiring membership and who have not been included in the quota should notify the County Office immediately.

Dairymen who have signed up for the 1939-40 herd improvement program are T. F. Helle, Grant Maddox, Wm. Moore, Harold Grigler, A. A. Liggett, George Kearns, Albert Parker, R. C. Garrison, Jesse Wilson, Robert Youell and R. B. Huey and Son. A full time tester will be employed in the near future and testing work will begin Nov. 1.

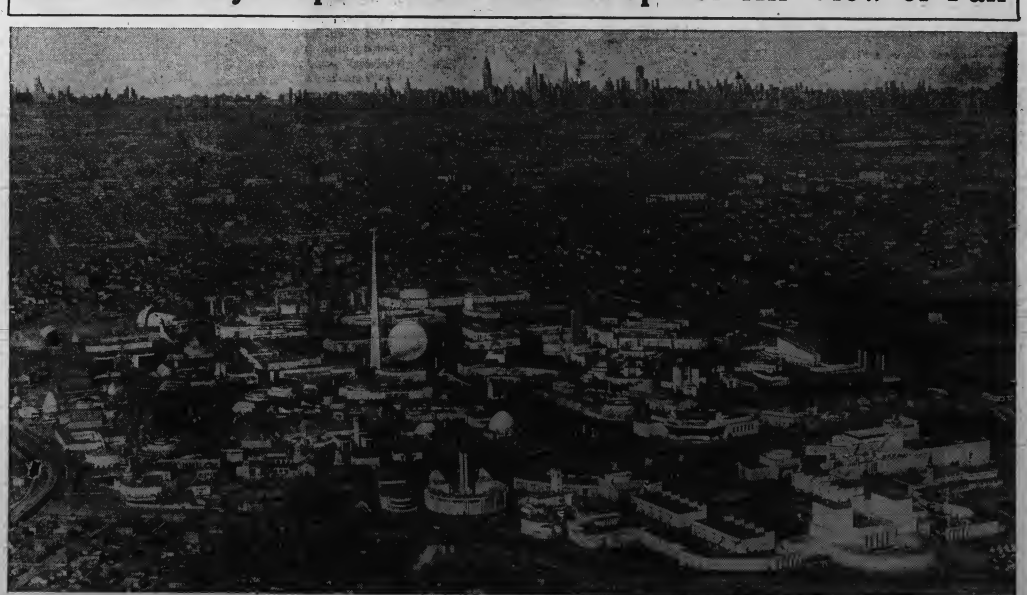
The following were present, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Dudgeon, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Black and children Marie, Lewis, Dickie, Buddie, Vivian and Mary, Mrs. Lula Dudgeon, Mr and Mrs. Albert Land and children Otis Lee and Donald, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Dudgeon, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thorpe and baby and Clarence Land, all of Aurora, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Buddie, Kathryn, Alene, Pete and Dorothy, Mr. and Mrs. Omer Dudgeon and son J. O., Mrs. Edith Black and daughter Mary, Russell Sparks, Pete Waters, Miss Frances Dudgeon, Jim Dudgeon, all of Walton; and the frostess Miss Ann Dudgeon and Glodys Dudgeon. A covered dish dinner was served at the noon hour, which everyone enjoyed. In the afternoon Mrs. Ida English was present.

PHOSPHATE DEMONSTRATION

Fifty-five thousand, six hundred pounds of triple superphosphate were ordered Monday, Aug. 14 from the Tennessee Valley Authority for demonstration work in Boone county, according to H B. Drake, Assistant County Agent.

The seventeen farmers conducting these demonstrations will use the phosphate on meadow or pasture land, leaving it unplowed for at least four years.



Limestone will be applied on this land at the same time in most cases. Check plots will be left in order to determine the fertilizing value of these important materials. A small area is left without any treatment, one with phosphate only and one with lime only. By observing the difference in growth on the various plots, it will be easy to determine the comparative results obtained through the use of these two important fertilizing materials.

The picture shows the Fair's close proximity to Broadway and the skyscrapers of upper Manhattan. Actually the Fair is only 10 minutes from Broadway by Long Island Railroad, and about 25 minutes by subway. By motor the trip requires about 30 minutes, with 5 parking fields furnishing ample space.

District Governor At Rotary Luncheon

Rv. Horace Kingsberry, Lancaster, Ky., District Governor, was speaker at the Walton Rotary luncheon at Stephens Restaurant last Thursday noon. He is quite an able speaker and gave a most interesting lecture on the principals and functions of the various departments of Rotary, following a very delightful luncheon. After adjournment he met with officers of the local club in a short business meeting.

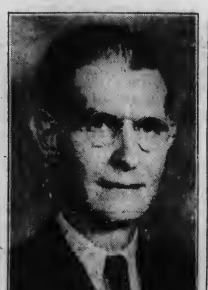
POSTMASTERS ATTEND MEETING IN LOUISVILLE

Clinton Cleek of Walton, Al Jeagers of Independence, Richard Von Hone, who has recently been appointed postmaster of Covington, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Klosterman, and Mr. Elmer of Newport, attended the meeting of the National Association of Postmasters held in the Brown Hotel, Louisville, Aug. 21 and 22.

Those from Washington attending this meeting were Superintendents of the Divisions of Postmasters from the 1st, 3rd and 4th Assistant Postmasters Generals office.

The postmasters who attended this meeting urge all postmasters to be present in the future, as these sessions are very beneficial.



SEE WORLD'S FAIR

Several of the staff of the Cincinnati Enquirer accompanied about 35 Enquirer carriers from Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana to New York to see the World's Fair with all expenses paid, as their reward for the spendid work they had done in a recent contest. They left Sunday and are expected back Friday.

Gussell Groger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Groger, of High School Court, was one of the boys to enjoy this trip.

Well Known Covington Shoe Man Appointed Manager New Shoe Store

L. A. Habig of 6 East 4th street, Covington, formerly manager of the Feltman-Crume Shoe Store, here, wishes to announce to all his friends that he is now in charge of the Quality Sample Shoe Shop's new store for Men and Boys only, at 805 Madison Avenue, Covington.

He says, "Stop in and let me show you what I know are real values."

KENTUCKY SHEEP WIN AT ILLINOIS STATE FAIR

Mary K. Ewbank, 14, Warsaw, a 4-H Club girl, exhibited eight head of her registered Southdown sheep at the Illinois State Fair last week and won eight prizes in "open to the world classes," including two "firsts" and "reserve champion ewe," two "thrids," two "fourths," and one "fifth."

Seventeen registered Southdown flocks were entered from several States with twenty to thirty head in each ring, thus making the eight premiums won by Miss Ewbank an outstanding achievement.

Miss Ewbank started as a 4-H Club girl in 1935 and has increased the quality of her flock each year, until last year at the Kentucky State Fair she not only had the grand champion ewe of the 4-H but also the champion ewe of Kentucky in the open class, and won several other prizes on her pens of lambs.

Negroes Tried For Theft Of Auto

On May 20th, three negroes, Louis Bratcher, George Tyler and E. Brooker, stole an automobile and snatched the purses of three white women in Cincinnati, and then left for Louisville, to attend the Derby.

However, they missed Route 42, at Florence, and continued on Route 25. At Devon, after side-swiping two cars, their car landed in a ditch and was badly wrecked.

Brooker, severely injured, was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington, where he later died. Tyler, also injured, secured the services of a nearby farmer to take him to the above hospital, where he was arrested. Bratcher broaded a bus at Devon, but when it arrived in Walton, he was removed and placed in jail by Officer James Bolington.

Monday, the case of Bratcher and Tyler was brought before Judge Thomas Morrow in the Criminal Division of the Hamilton County Court. They were found guilty and sentence will be passed by Judge Morrow, Saturday. A charge of this type carries a sentence of from five to twenty years.

MARK B. JUDGE

Services for Mark B. Judge, retired farmer, will be held today (Thursday) at the Taliaferro Funeral Home, Erlanger, with interment in Richwood cemetery.

Mr. Judge passed away early Tuesday at his home on Walton Route 2, following a long illness. He was 74 years of age.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Emma Afterkirk Judge; one son, Everett Judge; one daughter, Mrs. Ella Grasmick, Covington; one sister, Mrs. Anna Ruffra, Union, and one brother, Morris Judge, Erlanger.

ATWOOD E. PETTY

Atwood E. Petty, 67, farmer, lifelong resident of Kenton county, died early last Thursday at his home in Independence. Services were held Saturday at 2 p. m. at the Swindler Funeral Home, Independence, with burial following in Independence Cemetery.

He was a member of Independence Council No. 53, Daughters of America; Atwood Lodge, I. O. O. F., Atwood, and Independence Council No. 35, Jr. O. U. A. M.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Matilda White Petty; seven sons, Dudley, New York City; Raymond, Covington; Clyde, Alton, Arnold and Woodrow of Independence; one daughter, Mrs. Helen Eilers, Independence, and two brothers, Dr. Charles M. Petty and Ova Petty, of Independence.

JOHN S. RICH

Services for John S. Rich, Piner, Kenton County, were held Friday at 2:30 p. m. at the Wilmington Baptist church, Fiskburg, with burial in the Independence Cemetery.

Mr. Rich was 82 years old and was a retired rural route mail carrier. He died from a stroke of apoplexy last Wednesday at his home. He leaves his widow, Ms. Carrie Lambert Rich; five sons, Joseph Rich of Brooklyn; Ben Rich of Erlanger; Dr. S. B. Rich of Dry Ridge; Dr. Albert Rich of Williamstown, and Spurgeon Rich of Piner; three daughters, Mrs. Russell Bridges of Ft. Thomas; Mrs. N. H. Ellis of Williamstown, and Mrs. Vaught Mills of Bellevue.

FALLS ON TOBACCO STICK

Ray Gruelle, farmer, of Union, was injured seriously this week when he fell on a tobacco stick as he was hanging tobacco in his barn.

His brother, Fred Gruelle, with whom he was working, took him to St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington.

Home-Coming and Dedication Of Hammond Organ At Walton Methodist Church Sunday

The Hammond organ of the Walton Methodist church is to be dedicated at the 11:00 a. m. service (Central Standard Time) Sunday, August 27th. The pastor, Rev. R. R. Rose, will preach on the subject of "Music—It's Meaning, Purpose and Value" and will perform the dedicatory rites, assisted by the Rev. D. E. Bedinger of Walton. The church organist, Mrs. J. B. Johnson, is preparing special instrumental number to be rendered at this service, and at other special services of the day. She will also sing a solo. Mrs. F. E. Bedinger is the director of the choir.

In connection with the program of the dedication of the organ, the church will also feature a "Home-coming" day. All present and former members, and friends, together with all former pastor, are cordially invited to be present. All who will are asked to bring "basket" lunches to be spread in community style in the dining room of the church at the noon hour. At 2:30 p. m., Rev. W. B. Garriott, Methodist pastor at Erlanger and a former pastor of the Walton congregation, will preach and assist the pastor and others in the administration of the sacrement of te Lord's Supper.

The evening services are to be conducted at 7:30 p. m. by the pastor, who will bring the closing message of the Conference Year and of a quadrennium for him as pastor of the congregation.

Almost the entire amount of money, necessary to pay off the organ debt in full, has been raised, and the remainder is fully expected to be raised before Sunday.

Homemakers Plan Exhibit At 4-H Fair

Furniture that has been refinished or repaired by the Boone County Homemakers will be displayed in an educational exhibit at the 4-H and Utopia Club Free Fair to be held in Burlington, Saturday, Aug. 26. Samples of furniture with natural finishes, cane seats, Hong Kong seats and slip covers will be in the display, according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent. Handmade gloves and looper clip weaving will be included in the exhibit also.

Dolls dressed to represent twelve countries belonging to the Associated Country Women of the World will be shown. The local Homemakers club having the most representative doll will receive an electric fan donated by the W. & W. Electric Shop of Erlanger.

The committee in charge of the exhibit is composed of Mrs. George Casper, chairman; Mrs. J. R. Williams, Mrs. Sam Sleet, Mrs. M. A. Yelton and Mrs. Orville Kelly.

MASONS TO MEET

The regular monthly meeting of the Walton Masonic Order will be held this (Thursday) evening at 7:30, in their hall.—W. O. Rouse, Secretary.

TO ATTEND CONFERENCE AT WINCHESTER

Rev. R. R. Rose, pastor of the Methodist churches at Florence and Walton, will leave here Monday for Winchester, where he will attend the Annual Conference of Kentucky Methodists. This is the first conference since the unification of the three branches of Methodism—Methodist Episcopal Church, South; Methodist Episcopal Church, and Methodist Protestant Church. Bishop U. V. W. Darlington of Huntington, W. Va., who is head of the new Methodist Church of Kentucky, will preside and announce appointments of pastors to pulpits throughout the entire district at noon Sunday.

Rev. Rose has served the Walton and Florence charge for the past four years, where he has done a wonderful work. During his stay here the Walton congregation has paid off its church debt, redecorated the church building, and purchased a Hammond organ, which is expected to be free of indebtedness by the time the pastor leaves for the conference. At Florence a new house of worship has been erected and well financed.

FLORENCE FIREMAN PASSES SUNDAY

Services were held Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. at the Florence Christian church for Orville Byrne, 31, a member of the Florence Volunteer Fire Department, who passed away suddenly late Sunday at his home in Florence. Burial was in the Florence cemetery.

He was a member of the Florence Christian church, had been an employe of the Andrews Steel Co. for 5 years before he was forced to resign in October, 1938, because of heart trouble.

The deceased had been a resident of Florence for 16 years. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Geneva Osborn Byrne; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Byrne; twobrothers, Lawrence Byrne, Bromley, and George Byrne, Florence, and a sister, Mrs. Paul Faust of Price Hill, Cincinnati.

Tharp & Stith, Florence funeral directors, were in charge of the arrangements.

MRS. TOM MARSHALL'S MOTHER PASSES

Mrs. Rebecca Ashcraft, age 80, passed away at her home in Rising Sun, Ind., this week. She was the mother of Mrs. Tom Marshall of Edwards avenue, Walton.

Pastor Receives Ovation

Last Sunday night at the close of the special all-day services at the Florence Methodist church, the congregation, by rising vote, unanimously expressed appreciation of the ministry of the pastor, Rev. R. R. Rose, for the effective services rendered to that church and community during the last four years in which period of time the new house of worship was erected in spite of adverse conditions. Gratitude was expressed for the progress made in general, both in the building of the new church plant, the large increase in the number of members, and for the marked advancement made otherwise.

It was further voted that the secretary of the church be instructed to write to Bishop U. V. W. Darlington expressing appreciation for his having sent Rev. Rose as pastor of that church for the past four years.

Labor and The Law—

The action of the House is approving a resolution to investigate the National Labor Relations Board deserves commendation—from worker as well as employer. For, rightiy or wrongly, this Board, and the Act creating it, has probably done more to damage the interests of legitimate organized labor than any law ever put on the statute books.

The Labor Relations Act was, according to its sponsors, designed to end labor strife. In practice, it has fomented it, and been the direct cause of the bitter warefare between the CIO and AF of L. It was supposedly designed to put dealings between management and employes on a fair and equitable basis. Instead, it has deprived the employer of vital rights and placed almost unlimited authority over industrial policies in the hands of a politically appointed group. It was supposedly going to call a halt to labor racketeering. Instead, it has encouraged it, and gone a long way toward placing the workingman at the none too tender mercies of professional labor leaders.

That there are good things in the Act no one will deny. These things can and should be retained, and every protection should be given the worker against the occasional unscrupulous, sweat-shop-minded employer. But this doesn't mean that the lazy and incompetent worker is to be given a life lease on his job—that the workers' rights supersede the rights of everyone else—or that one union should be favored by the law at the expense of another. The welfare of the honest workingman can never be served by any law that is opposed to the public interest, and to decent and fair industrial relations.

It is unfortunate that Congress has so long delayed needed revision of the Act. The proposed House investigation should lay the groundwork for making necessary and fair changes early next session.—Industrial News Review.

"They Weren't So Hot"

Democrats and Republicans — of all breeds and stripes, are worrying about 1940. The White House and Capitol Hill got astride the same spending and economy beams recently. But they didn't do a very good job, when results are all added up.

:o:

Why Investment Lags—

Any number of factors are blamed for the present dearth of new investment. Banks, for instance, come in for criticism. But, in the view of experts, blaming banks is a poor excuse.

Some time ago a banker, in replying to a query concerning the reluctance to invest, made these pertinent observations: "Despite the fact that many business men are willing to try anything with other people's money, the fact remains that the majority of businesses, large and small, will not engage additional capital unless prospects are favorable. Sound situations are not now seeking new capital, so investment opportunity is choked at the source . . . A discussion of reasons would become something of a political treatise."

That goes straight to the heart of the problem. For seven years the rabble-rousing politicians have attacked, frightened, discouraged and burdened capital. They have exploited the successful in order to subsidize the failure. They have apparently regarded the ability to create, to save and to make money as something of a crime. They have deliberately adopted a tax policy which takes the profit out of speculative undertakings (and anything which is new is usually speculative) in case they succeed, while leaving the investor to take all the loss if they fail. And now they are crying because there isn't more productive, job-making investment!

It would be more logical to wonder why there is even as much investment and employment as there is. You can't batter the investor, large or small, from pillar to post and expect him to spend savings that would produce good times and make jobs for the unemployed. The dearth of investment is the inevitable result of a flood of suicidal laws and regulations that could do nothing but discourage investments and destroy business. What a laugh ao watch the wiseacres hunt theoretical excuses for present conditions, when the real reasons are staring them in the face on all sides.—Industrial News Review.

A Lesson Well Learned

More and more of the products of the farm pass into the channels of consumption through cooperative marketing organizations. More and more does the farmer depend on voluntary cooperation with his fellows as a solution to his economic problems.

:o:

Life Insurance and Shoes—

Life insurance, in one sense, is like shoes. A fine pair of shoes that isn't your size would be useless to you, while valuable to some one else. And a life insurance policy which doesn't fit your needs and objectives is a waste of money, though it might provide the perfect protection for your neighbor next door.

And that is where the life agent comes in. His job is to make the insurance he sells you fit—just as your shoes or your suit fits. He has gone through a long training just in order to be able to do that for you. No man is more worthy of his hire.—Industrial News Review.

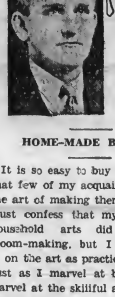
By WILL S. NORRIS
5582 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.



A true story: During the 1896 free silver campaign there came a man to the Cincinnati stockyards who was born and reared in Lewis county, Ky. He was educated to be a preacher but begun to be skeptical. He went West and became first a cowboy and then a saloon-keeper. Later he got into a shooting affray and killed a man. When he came to the stockyards he opened a free silver saloon and because a good fellow at the stockyards. I learned to like the man, especially when I learned of the former life he had led and often said to him; "Brother they educated the wrong man," as he had been educated at the Millersburg school where I had been offered a scholarship and where my father would not let me go because he did not want me to be away from home.

I said to my saloon friend, "If I had your education and preparation to preach the Gospel, I would be trying to save my fellowmen instead of selling them that damnable stuff to injure him."

He sold his saloon and opened another in a different part of the city. He then began drinking to excess. He got into a saloon brawl and killed a man. For this act he was sentenced to the penitentiary for life. Most of the men around the stockyards turned against him, but not me. I knew he had the stuff in him and that he would come back to the old-time religion. He was smart, a good writer and talker. When he had been in prison for some time he began writing people trying to get out. I signed his pardon petition because I didn't think he should have had to serve life.

When he was released from the pen, he brought his parole papers to me and I was appointed his guardian. He had to make a monthly report to me, which I forwarded to Columbus officals until he had earned his parole.

He finally came to me a good clean-cut moral citizen. I had a great many talks with him and he told me of his prison life, and that he now realized I was right when I told him he was on the wrong track when he was keeping a saloon. He moved to another part of the state where he now is living an upright christian life with his family.

HOME-MADE BROOMS

It is so easy to buy brooms today that few of my acquaintances know the art of making them at home. I must confess that my training in household arts did not include broom-making, but I have looked in on the art as practiced by others. Just as I marvel at basketry, so I marvel at the skillful art of making brooms.

For raking yards in the fall or spring a fair broom can be made from huckleberry bushes. They grow tough and have hosts of short, crooked limbs, making a pretty fair rake or broom naturally. By tying a bunch of these together, you can have a broom that will prevent your using a more expensive one.

Broom corn does not seem a farm necessity now. Once every farm had its patch, planted at some distance from the sorghum, with which it would mix and produce a sort of cane that is unfit for use as brooms or for stock food. The long heads have a tendency to bend into queer shapes after the seeds get ripe; hence it is wise to bend the stalks down at a certain stage of their growth. The straws thus grow straight, and, I am told, the lasting quality of the head is increased by this partial separation from the stalk. The heads are cut at the right time, which I must confess I have forgotten, though I raised the cane several years. The seeds are removed by holding a flat stick on the head and drawing the straw between it and a broad. Then the heads are dried until they become light; they are then ready for broom-making.

Broom-makers of the ordinary type made round brooms, arranging the heads around a stick and wrapping them properly with a kind of wire made especially for this purpose. Then the body of the broom was sewed with some bright-colored carpet warp. This broom, though not very artistic, would last a long time and was usually strong and stubby.

More artistic broom-makers could create a bat broom almost exactly like the ones we could buy at the general store. These artists were very rare, however, in our part of the world.

Brooms were and are useful inventions. When a new household was being started, or when the members of the church gave a donation party, a broom was sure to be a present from some well-wisher. I find in my old diary that I contributed a broom to the Methodist preacher when I attended the one donation party of my life.

The broom became and remains the symbol of good housekeeping. "A new broom sweeps clean." Not to know how to sweep properly has branded many a girl who would otherwise have been a model wife. No man whom I have ever known is handy with the broom, except in sweeping up trash that is big enough to stumble over. Older writers called woman the user of the distaff, an earlier form of the spindle; in our times it would be more appropriate to call one's mother's side of the house the BROOM SIDE.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

Congress has adjourned, but the camp-followers left behind in the exodus of adjournment are busying themselves with a critical perusal of the accomplishments of the session. There is already no doubt in their minds that the session reflected a distinct change in public thinking. Members of the House—who must stand for re-election every two years—are closer to the people than any others in Washington, even Senators. Those looking at the session find that it mirrored this public thinking: Business should be given a chance to move forward and create jobs and absorb the unemployment and "blank check" signing for use by the Executive Department's professional spenders should be restrained or even halted.

The helping hand which Congress extended to business was indeed a shaky one and mainly involved wiping from the statute books the last vestige of the white-rabbit-out-of-the-hat Undistributed Surplus Tax. Then too there was a lightening of the burden of taxes on payrolls—the socalled Social Security Taxes. Business baiters in Washington who have felt the pinch of public opinion grasp at these two sops to business and exclaim—"Now, let's see industry and business move ahead."

From the very beginning, however, brsinessmen have warned that dry bones tossed to business will not make it grow and thrive. Substantial changes must be made, they have said, before private enterprises can move forward.

Pointedly, critics of the session turn to the Wagner Labor Relations Act, which some of America's leading economists and political scientists now are asserting is breeding strife and warfare to such a degree as to be the leading obstacle in the way of recovery. Aside from an important move by the House to investigate the National Labor Relations Board, which administers the Act, there was no effect from the effort made to correct the one-sidedness of the Act and prejudice to those who make payrolls. It is from these payroll makers—employers, farmers and a large section of the public—that resentment against this Act and similar ones on the statute books has sprung.

The sight of a politician being kicked about (figuratively) is not an unusual one for those permitted to tread in the wings of the political stage, but the sight of a cabinet member being "kicked" up two flights of stairs is something extraordinary. The victim is Secretary of State Hull.

Secretary Hull has his office suite on the second floor of the historic State Department Building just across the street from the White House. It is not more than a minutes walk from his desk to that of the President. Now, however, he must give up his choice second floor quarters because that is the space desired for the six "Assistant Presidents."

The six assistants (with a passion for anonymity) are being hired under authority of the Reorganization Bill passed several months ago. They will take over many of the President's duties, such as seeing people and settling matters the President will delegate to them. They will be the assistant ringmasters.

To accommodate the "little presidents" and their office help (the assistants to the Presidents) will require most of the entire second floor of the Building. Secretary Hull, therefore, must move to the fourth floor.

SIDELIGHTS: The Post Office Department announces a $10,000,000 surplus for the last fiscal year—but the three cent postage still goes on as an "emergency" tax! . . . Secretary Ickes is going to see to it that the hundreds of thousands of government clerks in Washington suffer no idle hours. He is having a biological study of nearby fish colonies made to assure delightful fishing for Washingtonians. Under the Ickes program, particular attention will be paid to assure a proper diet for the fish so that they may grow to the proportions necessary to do full justice to the angler's fish story . . .

Fruit growers of Henderson county met at the Green farm to see the results of the new method of pruning peaches.

W. R. Mears, Green county, turned under 10 acres of soybeans, to be followed by red clover and alfalfa.

Soybeans, buckwheat, and millet seeded in Rowan county after the flood are making satisfactory growth

Approximately 100 homes will be reached by the rural electrification program in Franklin county.

THE WATCHMAN ON THE JOB

They Picnic in the Ford Garden

WHO says the New York World's Fair is expensive? The average food check on the Fair Grounds, computed after examining a day's business at 70 different restaurants, is 42¢. Fat, juicy frankfurters sell at the standard price of 10¢ and complete meals are served for as little as 40¢.

People who bring their own box lunches, of course, can cut their costs to almost nothing. The Ford Exposition's Garden Court is a Mecca for such as these. Here are comfortable beach tables and chairs, shaded by spreading elms and by spacious blue beach umbrellas. Ample patches of green lawn, splashing fountains, and occasional puffs of breeze help the Fairgoer keep cool.

Each afternoon and evening the visitors — the Garden Court comfortably accommodates 800 at a time—may listen to free concerts by Ferde Grofe, eminent modern composer whose "Grand Canyon Suite" is known to everyone, and his New World Ensemble. They play popular tunes, music beloved by everyone.

The Gilberti family comes from New Jersey. Their lunch basket, in case you're interested, contained salami, delicious Italian ham, hard-boiled eggs and big red peaches. Gilberti, who has been looking for work since his employer's company folded up last March, said he appreciated the many comforts, and the glorious concerts the Ford Exposition offers without any charge. And Mrs. Gariazzo echoed: "I could stay here always."

Visitors to the Fair may use rooms in private homes for as little as $1 a day. Lists of these rooms, compiled by Mayor LaGuardia, are free for the asking. And the Federation of Greater New York Churches has established five centers where children may be "checked" during daytime hours. For $1 a day they are cared for, entertained and fed.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 18—Twenty-two letter-men will be among the fifty stalwart young men who will report to Coach Ab Kirwan the morning of September 1 on Stoll Field for the initial practice session of the 1939 season for the University of Kentucky football squad.

With this number of experienced players, Coach Kirwan and his assistants believe the Kentucky Wildcats will be considerably more powerful this year than they were last season, when they were able to win only two out of nine games. The Kentuckians again have a nine game schedule this fall against some of the hardest opposition in the country. Four of these games will be played at home while five, including one at Louisville against the Georgia Bulldogs, will be away from home.

Only five players from last year's team were lost by graduation and only two of those were considered as regulars—Sherman Hinkebein, captain and center, and Harry Brown, tackle. To replace thesse losses there will be a promising crew of reserves from last season, whi were sophomores then, and some sparkling talent from the fine freshman team of 1938.

The 1939 outlook at Kentucky is encouraging due to several factors: more and adequate reserves, more speed in both backfield and line, more experience, and the fact that the players have had a year in which to assustom themselves to the system used by their coach, who will be entering his second year at Kentucky.

The squad will be made up of former high school stars, including 22 former high school captains, from every section of Kentucky and from half a dozen near-by states. Joe Shepherd, Louisville, quarterback, is captain of the 1939 eleven.

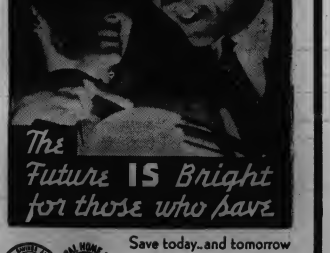
Fruit Basket Salad Stars Fresh Bartlett Pears!

First of autumn's harvest fruits, fresh Bartlett pears make their appearance from California in mid-summer, to make glad the hearts of summer diners, and to provide a true inspiration for warm-weather meals.



Few fruits possess such universal appeal to appetites old and young as the mild and mellow juice-filled Bartlett, symbol of summer sunshine. Within its delicate, pink-cheeked plumpness there's a world of tempting delight for fruit-lovers everywhere.

Highly prized as the late summer pears are for their own sweet selves, their versatility in many varied salads and desserts has been too little appreciated. Bartlett pears serve as the inspiration for one of the most beautiful as well as one of the most delicious of all the season's salads—a Summer Fruit Basket Salad, combining melon, pear slices, blackberries and currants.

Summer Fruit Basket Salad is made by placing a half cantaloupe on a salad plate which has been adorned with fresh grape leaves, galax, or any summer leaf. The center of the melon is filled with slices of fresh Bartlett pears, melon balls, blackberries, and a few red currants to complete the color symphony. Sections of pears are then cut into thin lengthwise slices and placed on the cut edge of the melon, pin-wheel fashion.

Iced coffee in tall frosted glasses makes the perfect accompaniment for this cooling fruit-basket of a salad.

PETROLEUM AT THE FAIR

The intricacies of a modern refinery where thousands of everyday petroleum products are transformed from crude petroleum are shown in this working model depicting petroleum refining processes. While crude oil enters a glass bubble tower to show a part of the process, a voice explains to the spectators the steps they are witnessing.

A downward view of the giant 200 foot oil derrick where the process of drilling for oil is demonstrated daily for thousands of World's Fair visitors. The drilling apparatus used here is capable of drilling to a depth of 15,000 feet.

THE story of petroleum, one of the most fascinating in the annals of mankind's progress, is providing a never-ending source of interest to hundreds of thousands of visitors to the Petroleum Industry Exhibition at the New York World's Fair.

For the first time, many of them are getting a close insight into an industry that, in the brief space of eighty years, has been a vital factor in the advance of civilization. From an actual oil derrick where the operations for extracting crude oil from the depths of the earth are demonstrated, to a model refinery and on to a varied assemblage of animated exhibits and models, the most comprehensive story that has ever been told of oil is on parade at the Fair.

The exhibit is housed in a huge triangular building of gleaming blue metal which rises into the air to a height of eighty feet. No doors or gates impede traffic to or from the building as it is raised twenty feet from the ground by star shaped pillars and four replicas of oil tanks which house special exhibits.

Flanking the building and towering 200 feet high stands the oil derrick, one of the largest of its kind in existance. On specially built platforms, visitors are permitted to get a unique close-up of drilling operations and watch the skilled drillers in action as they bore hundreds of feet below the surface of the earth.

Within the tank exhibits are shown the developments in transportation, industry and home and farm life, together with the advances in petroleum products that have made them possible. In the fourth of the exhibit tanks the economies of the petroleum industry are shown. Animated charts and models serve to highlight the features of this exhibit.

Immediately above the four exhibit tanks are four giant murals covering a total area of 7000 feet depicting scenes in the oil fields, the refineries, on tank ships and in the laboratories.

An animated relief map fifty feet across and flanked by moving bands of water showing how much petroleum products are rolling from refineries each year periods since 1859 when the first oil well was drilled. Illuminated derricks, moving freight trains, tank ships and flowing pipe lines indicate the forward march of the industry.

Another feature of the exhibit is the all-technicolor motion picture enacted by a cast of novel rubber puppets of a type never before seen on the screen. In a highly amusing manner, these puppets, each representing a different petroleum product, depict the development of petroleum and its present day significance.

To demonstrate the important operation of transforming crude oil into usable products, a model refinery is exhibited. In it are shown the processes of cracking, dewaxing and other steps necessary for [illegible] of crude oil.

That oil withdrawn from the earth will not impair the fertility of the soil is shown outside the building where twenty-five apple trees are flourishing in the midst of equipment for the extraction and storing of crude petroleum.

Fifteen major oil companies are sponsoring the exhibit. They are: Richfield Oil Corporation; The American Oil Company; Gulf Oil Corporation; Shell Union Oil Corp.; Sun Oil Company; The Atlantic Refining Co.; Sinclair Refining Company; The Pure Oil Company; Cities Service Oil Co.; The Texas Company; The Secony-Vacuum Oil Co., Inc.; Tide Water Associated Oil Co.; Phillips Petroleum Company; Ethyl Gasoline Corporation; Standard Oil of New [illegible]

Daredevil Aerialists Featured In Fireworks Carnival At Coney Isle

The Deteros Sensation, one of a number of famous circus acts, will be among the free attractions to be featured in connection with the annual Fireworks Carnival and Festival of Light at Coney Island, Cincinnati, Aug. 25 through Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 4. Two other headliners in the free daredevil circus, to be presented at 4 and 9 p. m., daily, will be the Flying Comets and the Three Franks. Each of these is heralded as a sensational high-wire act, in which the performers stage breath-taking stunts, defying death and the laws of gravitation.

The Fireworks Carnival and Festival of Light will be presented each night immediately after the free daredevil circus performance, and will feature many sensational new fireworks creations. The drama of light will be enacted through the use of a battery of powerful lamps which were a feature of the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago several years ago. Each weighs 700 pounds and issues a beam of 1,000,000 candle power, with a range of ten miles. Changing colors through every shade of the rainbow, these lights criss-cross, zig-zag, fan out in every direction, and create grotesque fantasies as they play upon the smoke clouds created by special shells of the firework display.

Washing and Pressing of Summer Slacks Made Easy

Gone are the days when the men folk were willing to slouch around in disreputably soiled and unpressed wash slacks. Today's man is clothes conscious even in his lounge and sports outfits.

Any wife and mother likes to see Dad and Junior looking neat and spruce—but what a terrific problem looms up when one considers the necessity of keeping them that way.

The problem magnifies when we are told by statisticians that today ten times as many wash slacks are being worn by the nation's males as five years ago. Another survey—conducted by a large soap manufacturer—brings to light the fact that in eight out of ten cases laundering is done in the home, despite the existence of some 7,000 commercial laundries in the country.

One happy thought, for those whose men wear wash slacks fitted with slide fasteners, is that the old task of replacing buttons vanishes. It is said that more than half this year's output will be so made.

Always in washing slacks avoid boiling water—a temperature up to 140 degrees is good. Suds should be made from a proven, mild but effective soap, a number of which are on the market. Soaking for a half hour or longer before washing helps to loosen the dirt and makes washing easier.

When you wash slide fastened slacks always close the fastener so that the little couplers will be meshed, and therefore cannot be damaged in your washing machine. Also there will be no chance for the fabric of other garments in the wash to tangle in an open fastener.

In wringing, make sure that the wringer rolls are adjusted as loosely as possible so that the slider or movable part which opens and closes the slide fastener will not be crushed or damaged.

When you reach the pressing stage the slacks should be lightly starched and pressed damp rather than wet. Your iron should be hot.

Tackle the pockets first. Iron them inside out and iron until dry, then replace them to their normal position. Next press the waist of the slacks by beginning on the front over the right end of your ironing board, as shown in the illustration.

Continue ironing in straight strokes with the thread of the fabric until each section is dry. Bring the garment towards you over the ironing board as you finish each section.

When the slacks have a slide fastener—press the waist sections on the right end of the ironing board with the fastener open all of the way so that the slider is off the board entirely. Although no harm will be done if you press on the couplers of the fastener, never press on the slider. When you finish the waist, close the fastener completely and start on the legs.

By placing the inseam over the outseam and pressing from the inseam side, you are assured of getting the leg creases in the right place. Of course, you press only one leg at a time and the experts tell us that it is wise to press the cuff thoroughly first before pressing the rest of the leg.

Sorry to say Mrs. Violet Perkins is almost at deaths door this morning.

MORGANSVILLE

"Christ came not to be ministered unto but to minister and to give Himself a ransom for many." There is no happiness apart from helpfulness. The life that counts is the one that is devoted to the cause of Christ and to the service of his fellowmen, and not the one who drifts aimlessly through the world. Death can not blot out such a life. It lives on and on in the hearts of many and pours blessings upon the lives of all mankind long after it has left the earth for the eternal hills. What a tragedy it is for one to pass on and not be missed by the church and community in which he lived. Be one who cares for the unfortunate.

After a pleasant fortnight's stay with relatives and friends, Mrs. Bessie Baker Trapp and son Blaine have returned to their home in Tiffin, Ohio.

WITH THE REDS

Cincinnati:— As the National League race reaches its most critical stage, the Reds are rolling through the East, their last visit to that territory. They will not return to Crosley Field until September 2, when they meet the Chicago Cubs in the first of a two game series.

The Reds opened a three game series in Philadelphia Monday, and on Thursday they will transfer the scene of their activities to Brooklyn, where they meet the Dodgers that night under the mazdas. The Reds and Dodgers also have a double-header scheduled for Saturday.

Sunday the club opens an engagement at the Polo Grounds, clashing with the Giants in three single games, and the tour will close in Boston, where the Reds will play the Bees on August 30 and 31.

Then come the big doings at Crosley Field September 2 and 3, with the Cubs as guests. Tickets for these games were placed on sale Tuesday morning at the Henry Straus Cigar Store, Sixth and Walnut Streets.

On Labor Day the Reds will be in St. Louis for a double-header with the Cards, and from there they will move to Pittsburgh, where five games will be played with the Bucs in three days. Then on September 12 they will start the final home stand of the season.

UNION

Mrs. Walter Ferguson had as guests Wednesday, Mrs. Tom Robert Huey, Mrs. Katherine Rachal, and Mrs. R. P. Hughes of Crittenden.

Mrs. John Oliver Taylor and Miss Jean Taylor of Louisville, are the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. James A Huey.

Mrs. Walter Ryle of Belleview, is enjoying a pleasant visit with her cousin, Mrs. Helen Stephens.

Walter Ferguson is home from Pittsburgh, where he spent last week as a delegate to the Convention of the Young Men's Democratic Clubs.

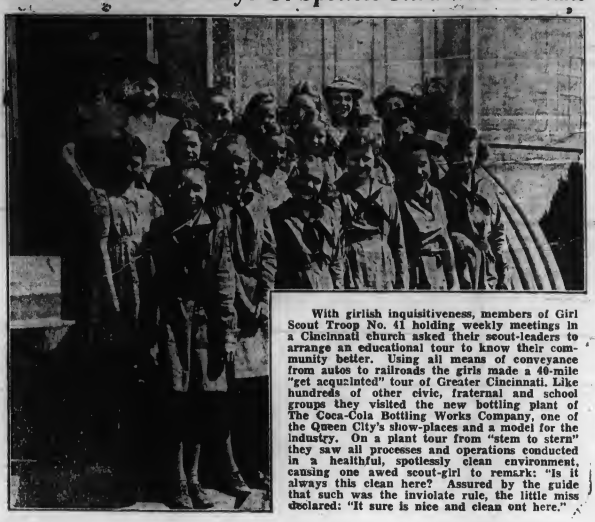
Twenty-five members of the New Haven Homemakers club were in Cincinnati, Wednesday for an interesting tour of the Schultz Baking Company and Proctor & Gamble's plant at Ivorydale.

A hay stack on the B. L. Norman farm was struck by lightning during the storm Saturday afternoon and entirely destroyed.

Mrs. Ralph E. Barlow, Mrs. Dan Barrett and son Jim McGee of Cincinnati, stopped in the village for a brief visit with friends Friday on their way to Montgomery, Ala., where they will vacation for several weeks with relatives.

Mrs. Myra McConnell Pope and James Hasting Pope have returned to their home in Columbus, Miss., after a brief visit with their kinswoman, Mrs. Bessie M. Baker.

Rev. J. Russell Cross, who has been in Paducah the past two weeks with his mother was in the community for a short time Tuesday, enroute to Benton City, Mo., where he will hold a ten-days evangelistic service. Mr. Cross will be home on Sept. 2nd to resume his pastorate at Richwood and Union.



Mr. and Mrs. V. Y. Norman's daughter, Miss Mary Elvi Norman, is arriving Friday from Birmingham, Ala., for a week's visit with her kindred here.

Mrs. Otis Richards, Mrs. Helen Crouch and son, Master D. J. Crouch of Florence, and James Feldhaus of Louisville, were dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Newman.

Members of the Presbyterian Sunday School held their picnic Wednesday in Butler Park, Carroll county. A delightful day and a good time was had by those in attendance at this very popular resort.

Dr. G. R. Coe is slowly recovering from a badly wrenched back, suffered in a fall some ten days ago.

With girlish inquisitiveness, members of Girl Scout Troop No. 41 holding weekly meetings in a Cincinnati church asked their scout-leaders to arrange an educational tour to know their community better. Using all means of conveyance from autos to railroads the girls made a 40-mile "get acquainted" tour of Greater Cincinnati. Like hundreds of other civic, fraternal and school groups they visited the new bottling plant of The Coca-Cola Bottling Works Company, one of the Queen City's show-places and a model for the industry. On a plant tour from "stem to stern" they saw all processes and operations conducted in a healthful, spotlessly clean environment, causing one awed scout-girl to remark: "Is it always this clean here? Assured by the guide that such was the inviolate rule, the little miss declared: "It sure is nice and clean out here."

"OVERDRIVING YOUR HEADLIGHTS," DANGEROUS

The next time you feel inclined to boast about the speed record you set the other night between Hometown and Big City consider these facts released recently by the Trippe Safety Foundation of Chicago.

If your head lamps are in perfect condition, you have safe vision for 235 feet ahead at 45 miles per hour. However, the average head lamps provide safe vision for only 150 feet. If you drive at 45 miles per hour, it requires 200 feet to stop with the average brakes. Fifty feet of this distance is "driver's reaction" time.

Thus, with average head lamps, average brakes and average driver reaction, you are "overdriving your headlights" eighty-five meet if you drive 45 miles per hour on the highway at night. In other words you have no margin of safety.

Overdriving the headlights is one of the major causes of night accidents, according to R. R. Whipple, chief engineer of the Trippe Safety Foundation, who showed, too, that the hazards of night driving are greatly increased when the air contains rain, snow, dust or fog.

You are overdriving your headlights, according to Whipple, when your braking distance exceeds the distance of your head lamp beam.

BIG BONE

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Hamilton were shoppers in Covington, Saturday.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Perry were glad to see them here Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kite, Mr. and Mrs. John Corrigan and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hamilton and family were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Omer Atha and family entertained Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Sisson and family of West Virginia, G. W. Sisson and Mrs. Henry Sutton and son of Warsaw.

Plans are being made to attend the 4-H fair at Burlington, Saturday

Joe Lee Noel is back at his home here after spending the summer with Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Smith of Mud Lick.

Mr. and Mrs. Omer Atha entertained Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Beach of Napoleon, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Robbins of Hopeful, and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Atha of Big Bone.

FARMERS MAKING PLANS FOR FALL SEEDING

Many Ways To Earn Soil Building Allowance

Many formers are busy cutting tobacco and putting up hay. Others are making plans for carrying out farm practices this fall to earn the balance of their Soil Building Allowance. The following practices may be used in carrying out fall practices:

Use of Ground Limestone, Phosphate on hay, grass or pasture land.

Seeding practices: Blue grass, Orchard grass, Timothy, Redtop, Rye grass, Crimson clover, Hairy vetch (should be inoculated). Sweet clover, Korean Lespedeza and common Lespedeza may be seeded, the latter part of October if unhulled seed is used. NOTE: On thin land where you have difficulty getting stands of Korean Lespedeza, mix a few pounds of Common Jap (lespedeza) because it can make a stand where the Korean fails.

It is not safe to seed winter vetch, crimson clover or rye grass after the 10th of September because the seeding will not make enough growth in the average season to make a stand through the winter, in the northern part of Kentucky.

Seed Your Fall Grasses Early—Much of the blue grass, orchard grass, timothy and the like is lost because it is seeded too late in the fall. Early seedings pay. Late seeding is a failure in most seasons.

Farmers who made out a Farm Plan for 1939 under the Agricultural Conservation program and who meet the requirements of the program may use the various practices named above to earn their un-earned Soil Building Allowance for 1939. If you have not received a notice lately telling you of the un-earned allowance communicate with the office to see if you have earned all your allowance for 1939.

Agricultural Limestone

Farmers who are planning to have limestone pulverized this fall to earn soil building allowance should make arrangements early with Pulverizer operators. Each year farmers fail to get their limestone in time because many rush to have the work done during the last month.

HOMEMAKERS FALL MEETING

This class included two leaders from each of the Homemakers clubs in Boone, Kenton and Campbell counties. Miss Iris Davenport of the Kentucky University, Lexington, gave the instructions in a very pleasant and interesting manner to about fifty members.

Dresses, costumes, materials and trimmings were used to demonstrate this lecture.

Mrs. J. C. Bedinger, Mrs. A. H. Gaines of Walton, Mrs. Sam Sleet and Mrs. John Taylor of Beaver were among the guests.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our appreciation to everyone who was so considerate and helpful to us through the illness and death of our beloved husband and father,

BALANCED DIET OF PLANT FOOD NEEDED BY GROWING CROPS

CHICAGO.—Growing crops need a balanced diet of plant food from the soil, the same as human beings or livestock need a balanced ration in their foods, a bulletin issued by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee points out.

"If certain plant food elements are missing from the soil, growing crops will develop weaknesses and a susceptibility to diseases," the bulletin declares.

"For the best crop yields and the rehabilitation of the soil, a careful balance of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash is necessary. Some soils require more of one element than another. Crops likewise vary in their fertilizer needs."

What analysis of commercial fertilizer is best for a farmer to use and how much he should apply will depend on a number of factors. The best way of finding out is to consult the soils and agronomy department of the state college and agricultural stations. They have information readily available and are eager to cooperate.

MRS. SCENA FRANKS

Mrs. Scena Powers Franks, 87, passed away early last Thursday at the home of her daughter, Mrs Finnell Blackwell of Covington. She was the widow of the late Jesse E. Franks, and years ago they were residents of Walton. Mr. Franks was the organizer of the Verona Bank. Mrs. Franks was a sister of the late G. B. Powers.

Mrs. Franks was a member of the First Baptist church of Covington. She is survived by one other daughter, Mrs. Earl Ross of Covington.

Funeral services were conducted last Saturday at 2:30 p. m. from the home of Mrs. Blackwell, with interment in Highland cemetery.

Those from Walton attending the funeral were Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Johnson, Mrs. B. W. Franks, Mrs. Bess Conrad and Mr. and Mrs. John Sleet.

PROFITABLE CROP ROTATION LIES IN CAREFUL PLANNING

CHICAGO.—How to make crop rotation pay farmers more dividends in increased yields per acre and lowered production costs was explained by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"The key to successful rotation is careful planning," a report says. "If crop rotation had more definite beginnings and endings, farmers generally would do more planning at the start of a three, four or six year cycle, and they would be more likely to take stock of the results.

"In most rotation programs starting this spring corn will be the basic crop, largely because of the amazing production records of 'Hybrid' seed.

"In planning the rotation, the matter of fertilizer will be extremely important. Because of its high yield per acre, corn makes heavy demands on the plant food resources of the soil, particularly nitrogen.

"The only practical alternative to replenish the extra amounts of plant food removed from the soil is to use commercial fertilizer."

Children Given Toys at Fair Festival

ANN REID, 6, of Asheville, N. C., center, smiles happily as Miss Fumi Nasaka presents her with a Japanese doll during the Festival of Dolls and the Boy's Day celebration held in the Japanese Pavilion, New York World's Fair. Happy, too, is Wilbur Muller, 9, of Roseland, N. J., holding kite and paper carp that were given him at the festival. Hundreds of dolls, kites, and vividly-colored paper carp were distributed to children in a joint celebration of the two, popular centuries-old holidays, held annually in Japan.

FIFTY ATTEND UTOPIA CLUB MEETING

Fifty members attended the Aug. meeting of the Boone County Utopia Club at the home of Robert and Dell Graves, Thursday night, August 17, according to H. B. Drake Assistant County Agent.

The girls of the club enjoyed the refreshments at the expense of the boys, the girls having won the membership contest earlier in the year.

N. R. Elliott, landscaping specialist, from the College of Agriculture was the main speaker of the evening. He gave sme very interesting and practical suggestions on landscaping farm homes. Members were urged to start with the simpler things and gradually build up until the home is completely landscaped.

Committees for the 4-H and Utopia Free Fair were appointed. These committees manage the concession stands for the benefit of the fair. Chairman of the committees include Wilford Siekman, Nevel Green, Roscoe Akin, Virgil Vice and Sterling Dickey.

Prisoners tearing down an old police station in Nashville were permitted to keep any articles found in the debris. One Negro found $20 in an old envelope, then paid the remaining $19.75 due on his fine, and gained his freedom.

Although a bolt of lightning wrecked the bed on which she was sleeping and set it on fire, Mrs. Julius Adams of St. Petersburg, Fla. was uninjured.

Farmers expect to seed more than 200 acres in rye grass following corn, in Metcalfe county.

Boone county farmers will receive 50,000 pounds of phosphate for use on demonstration plots this fall.

ENJOYING PICNIC LUNCH AT N. Y. WORLD'S FAIR

Tick Blamed In Death Of Florence Woman

A tiny tick—presumably infected—was blamed Saturday for the death of Mrs. Matilda Brown, 61, of Florence.

A tiasty survey among physicians revealed only one other previous death this year in Kentucky was caused by the disease — Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

Mrs. Brown was the wife of J. F. Brown and she passed away late Friday at Booth Hospital, Covington.

The tick was removed from Mrs. Brown on Aug. 11th by members of her family. Ill effects were noticable two days later. She finally collapsed and then ran a fever.

She complained of body aches and her fever mounted. She was taken to the hospital last Monday and was attended by Dr. McAtee, Covington physician.

Mrs. Brown is believed to have "picked up" the tick on their farm near Florence. It was Dr. McAtee's theory that the tick was infected, possibly by cattle or some other animal. Such infection, he explained, does not harm the tick.

Besides her husband she leaves three daughters, Mrs. Marie Kinman, wife of R. G. Kinman, well known Northern Kentucky auctioneer, Mrs. Cecil Fralm and Mrs. Elva Benson; two brothers, a sister and five grandchildren.

She was a lifelong resident of Boone county, and a number of years ago, with her family, resided in Walton. She was a member of the Florence Baptist church.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 2:30 p. m. at the Florence Baptist church, in charge of the pastor, Rev. R. F. DeMoisey. Burial was in the Richwood cemetery.

Tharp & Stith had charge of the funeral arrangements.

ROD AND GUN CLUB ENTERTAINED AT WALTONIAN HOTEL

Mrs. Lillian Sadler entertained the Latonia Rod and Gun club with a Dutch supper at the Waltonian Hotel, Saturday evening, in honor of Mr. Fasiz, a member of the club. Everyone reported an enjoyable evening.

Secretary Hull returned to capital after three weeks' vacation.

Large Attendance At Conny Fair

The seventh annual county picnic and 4-H and Utopia Club Free Fair held at Burlington school grounds last Saturday was considered one of the most successful held to date, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Approximately 3,000 people attended the event and enoyed the day in recreation and county-wide fellowship and in viewing educational displays.

The 4-H and Utopia club displays were the best on record, with a total of 151 members making 447 exhibits. The Home Economics work represented the largest number of displays with 89 members making 266 different entries. The Homemakers display also attracted special attention.

There were a large number of commercial displays on the grounds all of which added to the interest of the fair.

The fair was sponsored by the 4-H and Utopia Clubs, Homemakers Clubs and Future Farmers Clubs of the county through their executive committee, the Boone County 4-H and Utopia Club Council. The council wishes to thank all committees, leaders, members, patrons and commercial organizations for their splendid spirit of cooperation. The holding of a successful county fair is not the work of any one individual, but the cooperation of all the people.

MISS VIRGINIA MOORE TO SPEAK AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH, SUNDAY

Miss Virginia Moore, who has just returned from attending the World Youth Conference of the Christian Young People at Amsterdam, Holland, will speak at the Walton Christian church, Sunday at 7:30 p. m. Miss Moore was one of six delegates representing the Disciples of Christ at the conference. There were more than 1,500 delegates representing the Protestant churches of nearly every nation in the world.

In addition to attending the conference, Miss Moore visited in England, France, Germany and Switzerland. She will speak upon the general theme, "My Impression of the World Youth Conference." The public is cordially invited to attend this service.

WON'T YOU ASSIST A WORTHY PERSONAGE?

The readers of this paper are, no doubt, acquainted with the appeal of Miss Wallie M. Morgan of Kenton county for financial aid to redeem her home—Lambert Memorial Baptist Park.

Miss Morgan has been a helpless shut-in for many years, and is worthy of this assistance at the hands of her many friends and those who know her through the Advertiser. She has been writing a weekly letter to this paper for many years. She is a consecrated Christian woman and her appeal should reach the hearts of many of our readers. Those who can and will donate to this worthy cause will be richly blessed.

The Advertiser urges all who can to make a liberal donation at once. Send contributions, large or small, to Miss Wallie M. Morgan, Route 1, Morning View, Ky.

In speaking of her home, Miss Morgan recently said, "I long to see it transplanted into a place of beauty and used for the glory of God." So—won't you help?

FALL FROM HAYLOFT FATAL TO WM. BAGBY

William H. Bagby, 73, a farmer of the Fiskburg neighborhood, died Sunday at Booth Hospital, Covington, from injuries received Aug. 22 when he fell from a hayloft.

Kenton County Coroner, James P. Riffe, who returned a verdict of accidental death, said death was due to the fracture of the neck.

Mr. Bagby had been a lifelong resident of Kenton county. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. William Breeden of near Walton, and Mrs. William Heneyre of Campbellsburg; a son, C. J. Bagby of Campbellsburg; three brothers, J. Y. Bagby of Wichita, Kan., Edward Bagby of Fiskburg, and David Bagby of Newport; six sisters, Mrs. Anna Bridges of Fiskburg, Mrs. Eva Collins of Barkfick Station, Mrs. Stella Brinsten of Cincinnati, Ohio, Mrs. E. A. Elliott of Wichita, Mrs. Joseph Highenbothem of Fort Thomas and Mrs. William Crane of Butler, and several grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock from the Fiskburg Baptist church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Bradshaw, and assisted by Rev. C. J. Alford and Rev. R. F. DeMoisey of Walton. Interment was in the Fiskburg cemetery.

Chambers & Grubbs of Walton, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

IDA F. SECREST

Mrs. Ida F. Secrest, a former resident of Walton, died at her home in Ludlow, last Friday after a long illness. The remains were removed to the Taliaferro Funeral Home, Erlanger, for preparation.

She was a member of the Walton Christian church and the Crescent Council Daughters of America of Ludlow, the latter organization holding their impressive services at the residence Sunday night at 8 o'clock. The D. of A. honorary pallbearers were Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Wick, Mrs. Proble, Mrs. Bradshaw, Mrs. Margaret Grumelser and Mrs. Gibson. The active pallbearers were Hugh Ward, John Shenanshang, Bud Harding, Tim O'Connell, Joe Lennahan and Chas. Helmuth.

Services were conducted at the late residence Monday at 2:30 p. m. by Rev. Frank Hartman, pastor of the Ludlow Presbyterian church, interment following in Highland cemetery by the side of her husband Edw. Secrest.

Funeral Director Philip Taliaferro had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Organ Dedicated At Methodist Church

The "home-coming" and all-day services at the Walton Methodist church Sunday were well attended and greatly enjoyed.

At the morning services the Hammond organ was dedicated. The dedicatory services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. R. R. Rose, assisted by Rev. D. E. Bedinger. The dedication of the organ means that that this instrument has now been paid for. In fact, the church is now completely free from debt, of which the congregation is justly proud.

In the afternoon, at 2:30 p. m., Rev. W. B. Garriott, pastor of the Erlanger Methodist church, and a former pastor here, gave an interesting sermon, and assisted the pastor and others in administering the sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

The pastor again spoke at 7:30 in the evening. This service concluded four successful years of work here for Rev. Rose. During his tenure as pastor here the membership of the congregation has been substantially increased and, as previously stated, the church freed from debt. This is indeed a fine tribute to him and we congratulate him on his accomplishments.

Rev. Rose left Monday to attend the annual conference of Kentucky Methodists at Winchester, Ky. It is expected that the Walton church will become a station next year—a full time pastor—and if this occurs Rev. Rose will not be returned.

Police Court News

The Walton Police Court docket has been light during August, thus far only four arrests have been made. In fact only five cases have come before Judge Simpson since July 31. The cases tried are as follows:

August 28—Oscar Locket, colored, of Chicago, but working near here, was fined $5.00 on a drunkeness charge.

August 21—John W. McLean of Louisville, was fined $10.00 for improper driving and drunkeness. James Sproute, Louisville, was fined $5 on a drunkeness charge, and Ed. S. Seohrest, colored, was fined $10 for drunkeness and improper driving.

July 31—Robert Watson, Walton, was fined $10.00 on a drunkeness charge.

EVELYN TOWNSEND

Mrs. Evelyn Townsend, 53, passed away Saturday morning at her home on Route 42 near New Haven, from carcinoma.

Her remains were taken to the Chambers & Grubbs Funeral Home for preparation and laid in state here until Monday, then conveyed to Berry, Ky., where funeral services were conducted from the Methodist church by the pastor. Burial was in Pytheon Grove cemetery.

She leaves her husband, Milton Townsend, three sons, two daughters, one grandchild, her mother, three brothers and two sisters.

Chambers & Grubbs had charge of arrangements.

JULIUS CORBIN

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lillie Corbin; a daughter, Mrs. Russell Mitchell; two sons, Elmer Corbin and Charles Corbin; a brother, Thomas Corbin, and a sister, Miss Viola Corbin.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 p. m. from the residence, with burial following in the Florence cemetery.

Philip Taliaferro, Erlanger, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

NEW FIRE HOUSE FOR INDEPENDENCE

Contractor Hess Durr is in charge of construction of a new fire house at Independence, which is moving forward at a good gait. The building, of brick and metal, is 30 feet by 50 feet, and is located in the courthouse yard.

This structure is being financed jointly by the town of Independence and the Kenton County Fiscal court. In addition to housing the fire fighting apparatus it will also afford a meeting place for the town council.

Independence is to be congratulated on the construction of this modern fire house, which will house the recently purchased fire fighting equipment of this thriving little city. The town also has a well organized Volunteer Fire Department.

Verona Away Sunday; At Home Monday

The Verona baseball club will take to the road Sunday, going to Ross, Ky., where they will be guests of the Martz Cardinals. For the convenience of players, and fans who wish to accompany the team, a truck will leave Verona at 11:30 Sunday morning, and will depart from Walton about 12:00 noon.

On Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 4, the Verona boys will be hosts to the Bob & Gene nine at the Verona park. Play will be called at 2:00 p. m., Central Standard Time.

These are both strong clubs and will, no doubt, provide plenty of opposition for the Verona nine.

New Bus Line To Independence

The High Line Bus Line has recently established bus service between Independence and Covington. Nine trips are made five days per week, with 10 being made on Saturday and 8 on Sunday. The buses leave Independence for Covington as early as 5:45 a. m. and leave Covington for Independence as late as 11:10 p. m. This service affords the people along this route excellent transportation facilities, and they are greatly pleased by this service offered by the High Line.

The Wringer Is Started—

It took Congress a long time to awaken to the fact that our debt-breeding fiscal policy was leading the nation rapidly toward bankduptcy. But, judging by the session which has recently closed, the majority of the lawmakers finally awakened.

The action of Congress in sharply reducing appropriations all along the line, and in flatly refusing to pass more radical "emergency" legislation, has earned that body the gratitude of the thinking people of this country. It has encouraged business, and given the advocates of common sense, who were long routed by the free spenders, a revival of optimism. And, to some extent, it has cleared away clouds that obscured the future.

All this will be true, of course, only if succeeding congresses hew to the same line. And, in addition, they must go farther. It is not enough to reduce one year's deficit, as this Congress did. Deficits must be eliminated, and government outgo brought sharply in line with income. It is not enough to refuse to levy new takes—after a definite program for orderly retirement of today's national debt has been put into effect, means must be found for cutting existing taxes.

So the economy activities of the last Congress must be regarded as a work just well started. The finish is far in the future. Infinite patience, labor and courage will be needed to return this country to honest fiscal solvency. Wringing the water out of our national financial structure won't be an easy or pleasant job—but it must be done. — Industrial News Review.

The Great Destroyer—

Fire, the great destroyer, has been in fine fettle this summer.

Fire, raging and uncontrolled, has made black and barren and ugly, thousands of acres of the nation's finest forest land. Fire has turned pleasant homes into smoking piles of debris. Fire has ravaged factories, and added men and women to the long rolls of the jobless. Fire has marched irresistibly through farms, killing livestock, razing buildings, and ruining crops.

A few of these fires may be unavoidable. But they are very few indeed, and so rare as to be hardly worth mentioning. Eighty per cent of all fires, say the experts could have been prevented. They need never have occurred. But they did occur—because someone was thoughtless, someone was careless, someone was ignorant, someone took a chance.

Back of all these fires, great and small alike, lies the human element. A cigarette butt tossed from a speeding car—a camp fire not quite extinguished—a clean-up job left undone till tomorrow—a vacant lot left to dry, untended weeds—these are the things that make fire, this year, last year, next year.

There can be no recompense for the fires of the past—unless it is in a general campaign to prevent the fires of the future. It can be done. It's up to us—each of us, as an individual, holds the weapon that will destroy the great destroyer.—Industrial News Review.

The Acorn and The Oak—

There has been such a crusade against so-called big business for some years past, that many persons get a warped idea of what is big business and what is little business.

Where does little business stop and big business begin? Should a business be prohibited by law from growing beyond a certain point? Where should a man's energies be curtailed? Where should service to the public be restricted?

Newspapers recently carried the story of the 24th anniversary of the Safeway Stores—the second largest food retailing organization in the United States. This institution grew from one man's determination to buy foodstuffs direct from suppliers, eliminate inbetween commissions and costs, and pass the savings on to consumers.

The founder of Safeway Stores had no subsidies, no special privileges, no outstanding opportunity—he just started a one-horse store based on his ideas of service to the public, in the little town of American Falls, Idaho. The rapid expansion of his venture was beyond his own wildest dreams.

A similar history can be recorded for the J. C. Penney Co. which started with one store in one of the most sparsely settled parts of the United States—Kemmerer, Wyoming. Similar instances could be cited for American businesses and industries too numerous to mention. Such businesses could not have grown as they have except as the result of unusual service to the public, for purchases are purely voluntary.

The United States wouldn't be the nation it is today if handicaps had been placed on ambitious individuals, which limited the development of their ideas or enterprises.

So when you talk about "big business" check back a generation and see if it wasn't "little business" to begin with. The same opportunities exist today. Is it the part of wisdom to limit those opportunities by legislation of taxation which curbs the fullest play of individual initiative in seeking to render a better public service?—Industrial News Review.

Nothing for Nothing—

"Nothing comes from doing nothing," wrote Shakespeare, and this advice seems more necessary today than ever before. For the first time, in our American history at least, a substantial group of citizens have come to believe that they are entitled to something for nothing. They feel that the world, as exemplified by their government, owes them a living. They are quite convinced that no responsibility devolves upon them to save, to work, to think, to plan.

Well, it is time they learned otherwise. For the country has spent billions providing something for nothing, and about the only result is a tax and debt burden that is throttling our productiveness, and a new "class" holding out their hands for more money they did nothing to earn. We've squandered a great more than we can afford already, to learn that "Nothing comes from doing nothing."—Industrial News Review.

A LIVE WIRE BRIAR HOPPER

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5582 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

While on a visit to Madison County, I learned of the death of one of the County's most distinguished men, Col. Brutus J. Clay, who lived to the ripe old age of 85 years. He served as U. S. minister to Switzerland for five years. Declining the appointment of minister to the Argentine, he was appointed commissioner of the Paris Exposition. He was a life member of the Union Society of the Civil War and he founded the Pattie A. Infirmary at Richmond, Ky. as a memorial to his first wife, always contributing to its maintenance, which is an outstanding hospital in Central Kentucky.

Col. Clay did a great many commendable things to help make the world better by having lived in it. He was the last surviving son of Gen. Cassius M. Clay, the Lion of White Hall, Madison County, who was Major General in the Union Army, an officer in the Mexican War and a minister to Russia through the appointment of Lincoln. While minister to Russia he bought Alaska for which he was criticised, many calling it the purchase of an iceberg. To prove his far reaching judgement it proved to be one of the United States' most valuable additions. General Clay was a man of strong convictions.

I first met General Clay when but a small boy. He took a stage coach with us from White Hall to Lexington, over the old Kentucky Central R. R., to Covington then by bus to Cincinnati, to make speeches for Horace Greeley in his campaign for President, for which he was again criticised but did not have any bearing on him. He afterwards voted for Cleveland which established he was independent and a free thinker. If a man's principles and platform were not in line with his convictions, he would not vote for him.

What we need is more leaders like Henry Clay, Cassius M. Clay and Brutus Clay, who stood for and acted upon their convictions.

THE CAT-HOLE

The November, 1938, issue of THE NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC MAGAZINE had a picture of a cat crawling through a cat-hole, a very elaborate one, with a small door that could be pushed up as the cat crawled in. That picture has convinced me that I will no longer be called untruthful if I chronicle this passing institution. Several times I have mentioned the cat-hole publicly, only to be met with a blank stare, a stare of incredulity. "Now it can be told."

Not every house had a door with a cat-hole, but they were fairly common a half century ago. Such a trusted household pet as the cat was worthy of a door to enter when it pleased. Thee typical cat-hole was in the door to the kitchen, merely a small square piece cut out of the door at one corner. It was so much a matter of course that it created no comment on the part of visitors.

All sorts of jokes are told about cat-holes. One of the most time-honored is that some fellow cut a big one for the big cat and a smaller one for the kittens. The one I like best goes to this effect: a visitor in a mountain cabin remarked on the fact that there were several holes, when one would have accommodated all of the numerous cats in the household. The owner of the shack and the master of the cats replied, "That's true, stranger, but when I say 'Scat', I mean 'Scat'."

When screens came in, a third of a century or more ago, the cat-hole was stopped up. Some cats that I knew were equal to this emergency and learned to push the screen door open and enter like the lords of the universe that they seem to imagine themselves to be.

While I am speaking about cats, there are some more things I would like to record about them. Your cat, especially if you are an old-timer, was almost human; it was human in every way except speech. Other cats might have caught birds or chickens, but not yours. Probably it once forgot that it was yours and acted its nature; you gave it a good scolding or switched its legs a few times, and the wild tiger in it was subdued.

It is queer that such a gentle animal as a cat, when it is yours, becomes a much-feared and ferocious beast when it is some one else's. I have been the most calm people become literally scared to death at tame cats that were probably as much scared as they. Meeting a cat on the highway at night frightens many people, largely because of the bright eyes in the glare of the car lights.

When there is a death in some homes, great care is taken to keep cats away, for they are said to eat dead human bodies. Likewise cats are thought to such the breath of sleeping infants. Just when and where such things have happened is not clear, but hundreds of people keep the superstition alive, though innocent old Tabby may not have done one such deed in a century.

Many a pet is less known now than formerly, but the cat, long a household pet, seems to be holding its own and to be increasing in respectability, as the prevalence of Persian and Maltese cats would indicate. And the aristocratic cat in the picture I have mentioned allies himself with the traditions of the past by crawling through a cat-hole, even though it is much more aristocratic than the square hole in a cabin door.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

Congress has gone home now, bag and baggage, so those who make a career of speculating on matters political are turning their eyes away from Washington to find subjects for discussion. But all the discussion is still influenced by what happened in the national capital before the boys packed up and left.

One question looms large in the minds of both the public and political commentators: How substantially will Congressional action last session help business recovery?

Critics of industry got in the first lick by claiming that Congress had "accepted industry's challenge" by making what legislative changes and reforms it did accomplish, and that now responsibility for complete and hasty recovery rests squarely on the shoulders of business.

If this argument was supposed to make an impression, it missed fire rather badly. It was too easy to see the flaw in the argument that, after ten years of experimentation and tinkering with the economic machinery of the country on the part of the politicians, industry should take heart the moment that signs of a change for the better made their appearance. Business knows, from experience painfully gained, that a lot remains to be done to put things back in good running order. Congress has a lot more constructive work ahead of it next session if it really wants to be helpful.

Meantime, however, all indications are that business management is moving ahead to the best of its ability, grateful for the encouragement that the Senators and Representatives have afforded by their actions and attitudes. Among the things that are most heartening to industry, and that came out of this year's Washington legislative mill, the defeat of the spending bill, the tax revisions incorporated in the Revenue Act of 1939, and social security reforms may be listed as outstanding.

The collapse of the vast immibus spend-lend "white rabbit" was cheerful to business because it served as an indication that Congress no longer intends to run down the road with every spending program that is suggested. Business, which bears so large a part of the nation's tax burden, hopes fervently that this particular action by Congress is the herald of a real economy drive at the following session.

The tax revisions made this year were not all that business had hoped but they were a step in the right direction. And the amendments in social security requirements followed fairly closely suggestions made by business long before the original bill was drafted, seemingly indicating that, in matters which touch business so closely, the lawmaker might save many unfortunate errors if they listened to business-men's advice a little more often.

It is, of course, evident to all unbiased observers that the failure of Congress to amend the Wagner Labor Relations Act, in spite of overwhelming public opinion favoring such changes, was a blow both to the democratic process and to industrial prosperity. To be sure, a committee has been appointed to investigate the Board itself, but this investigation, while important, does no remove the drawbacks to employment involved in the defects of the Wagner Act itself.

When the significance of the steps taken in Washington last session are really thus placed clearly in perspective, it is easy to see how absurd are the claims of those who are screaming a challange to business, ordering it to bring about recovery in the five months between Congressional sessions.

What confuses the spectators is this: Business is expected to do something the challengers haven't been able to do in seven years!

COINCIDENCE NOTE: The printed volume of the 1940 Federal budget weighs four pounds, seven ounces. That volume represents what the administration is asking for to run the government for a year. The printed volume of the Federal tax laws, which represents what the government collects to run the government for a year, weighs only three pounds, one ounce.

Coincidentally, that is just about the difference between the amount of money collected and the amount spent.

Garden Picnic Adventures

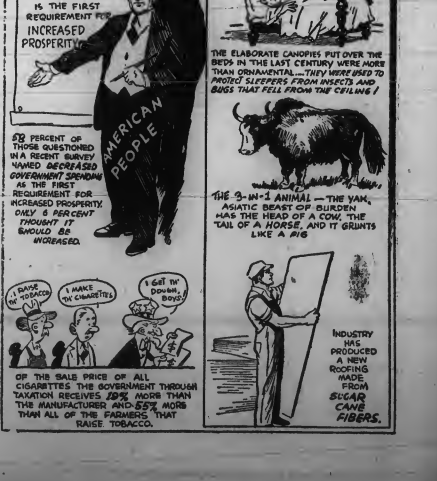
By MARYE DAHNKE,
Director of Home Economics Department
Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation

Any one who can remember back to the days when a picnic lunch spread in one's own back yard represented adventure of the highest sort has kept his youth intact. Such picnics appeal to childhood's eternal love of make-believe.

Somewhat like the box social endeared to memory, the picnic party for young people owes half its charm to the fact that every one has a picnic basket of his very own. The baskets may be packed for two, to carry the box social idea further.

Important among the "makings" for this delightful kind of party is cream cheese, all ready to perform a thousand important picnic functions. As a spread for sandwiches, cream cheese combined with peanut butter, with jelly, or with thin slices of ham makes a delectable and simple party food.

One of the most entrancing desserts for the picnic party is gingerbread men, spread with mild, snowy cream cheese which has been moistened with milk. No dessert could be simpler to prepare—none could be better suited to the special gayety of such an event.



Large sugar cookies spread with cream cheese are almost as alluring to young appetites as gingerbread men—and grown-ups will be as pleased with squares of gingerbread spread with cream cheese frosting as are the children.

The garden picnic party idea is the most engaging party news of the season for young members of the family. And busy mothers will find it no less delightful. So simple to prepare, so charming in effect, individual picnic baskets are bound to be the hit of the season's most successful parties.

Car in Glass Case Illustrates Value of Research to Individual

Research seems such an intangible thing when you attempt to measure its value that one cannot help being fascinated by an ingenious, if possibly fanciful, measurement that has been taken in the latest of a series of informative booklets published by General Motors, entitled "Research Looks to New Horizons." Above is the illustration used, with this explanation:

Suppose that in 1920 an automobile had been sealed in a glass case. Assume that this seal has been so tight that nothing could happen to the car in the interval. It is in perfect condition.

In front of the car stands a sign—$1500. That was the price in 1920. There were only one or two closed cars selling at a lower price then.

What would you offer for this car now? Before you decide, look the whole car over carefully. Its appearance is funny, of course. High and clumsy-looking, square corners. flat fenders.

It has small hard tires, no shock absorbers, no independent suspension. The seats are not so comfortable, and there is no means of controlling the ventilation. The gear shift lever is an obstruction in the middle of the floor. There is no synchro-mesh transmission and no automatic choke.

The body has no Duco finish, and the bright work would have to be polished frequently, for no one had heard of chromium plating at that time. The fan belt would have to be replaced five or six times as often as on a car built today. Any lengthy trip without a puncture would be something to boast about, and even the maker of the tires did not claim more than 5,000 or 6,000 miles' wear for them. The repairs on all parts of the car would be irritatingly frequent.

The engine is about the same size as present engines, maybe even larger. But it develops much less power. You would have to shift gears on small hills; you would be left behind at every traffic light; you could not maintain a high speed. The noise would aggravate you; the vibration would shake the whole car. There is no harmonic balancer, no air cleaner and intake silencer, no fuel pump or crankcase ventilation.

The brakes are on two wheels only and are not hydraulic. The windshield wiper—if any—is operated by hand. The protection of a solid steel top is missing, and safety glass has not yet appeared. And, of course, there are lacking all the details and refinements, all the improvements in design and manufacturing which have contributed so much to driving safety.

Knowing all this, what would you bid for the car? You probably would not want it at all, but someone might pay $50 or $100 for it. Yet this car sold readily for $1500 in 1920.

The car has not changed. Nothing has happened to alter its value except the march of time and the progress of research. The difference of $1400 between the price in 1920 and the price today is the figure at which you, the prospective buyer, rate the results of research and engineering during the intervening years.

Streams Stay Crystal Clear When Erosion is Controlled

Silt-laden streams represent farms moving out to sea. Every day the equivalent of two hundred 40-acre farms is lost through soil erosion, according to the Soil Conservation Service. Wheat drilled on the contour, top, slows water run-off and saves soil. Water draining from this field is clear, as shown by inset. Silt suspended in the stream obscures the man's fingers inthe lower inset. This water drains from the unprotected corn field pictured below. The corn is cultivated up and down slope instead of on the contour.

Many Kentucky farmers will soon begin planting winter cover crops —crops that will protect the soil from erosion during the winter months and yield a harvest next summer.

Among the most popular cover crops are wheat, rye and winter barley. Cover crops planted on the contour, or around the slope, rather than up and down, are more effective in controlling erosion.

It is important that cover crops be planted before late fall so that vegetation may be established before cold weather halts development of the plants, conservationists point out.

THE WORLD'S No. 1 TRANSPORTATION

DO YOU KNOW that American railroads can haul, speedily and efficiently, more than a billion tons of freight a year—more than 30 tons for every family in the United States?

—that railroads handle more than eight times the tonnage handled by any other common carrier serving the nation?

—the railroads do this job at an average charge of about 1 cent for hauling a ton a mile? And that this is far less than the average charge made by any other carrier providing general transportation service?

—the average capacity of a freight car is more than 48 tons—and that many locomotives are able to pull, in a single train, a load of 5,000 tons?

These are facts—and they are made possible because the railroads have the real super-highways of today and tomorrow, built and maintained by private enterprise.

Railroads have kept pace with the times by constantly improving and modernizing their track and equipment. The billions of dollars invested in improved facilities have been railroad dollars—not tax dollars. For railroads build their own tracks, maintain them, and pay taxes on them.

When you look at the record of the railroads and the job they are doing, you can see why government transportation policy should give all carriers equal treatment and an equal opportunity to earn a living.

SPARTA

(Arrived Too Late for Last Week)

Sunday August 20 th, the Reunion of the Riley family was held at Butler Park in the beautiful Rustic Club House. Sixty-five members of this family were present. The ancestors came across the stormy Atlantic at the close of the war between the States and are direct decendants of Ireland a country whose beauty charms us, whose story of her heroism thrills us, and the long record of her suffering saddens us, until we often view her ruins thru mist of tears. Today Ireland looks, half lovingly, half sadly, over the waste of waters toward the distant continent that has received so many of her children who have taken their religion with them and have so nobly defended the flag of this adopted country with a record second to none At noon a beautiful dinner was spread in the Rustic Club House where 65 guests were entertained with an old fashion Kentucky dinner. Mr. Jno. Conely of Verona blessed the food. Those present were:— Vernon Ellis, Dickey Ellis, Kathern Gardt, Mary C. Gardt, J. W. Conely, Mrs. C. M. MORGANSVILLE

"All things work together for good to them who love God, to them who are the called according to His purpose." However dark the clouds of sorrow, broken plans and blasted hopes, He overrules all to the purifying of His children upon the earth.

Many hearts were overshadowed with sorrow at the announcement of the passing of Mr. J. Steve Rich at his home at Piner, August 16th. Death was attributed to an ailment of the heart, for which he long had been under treatment. Before his retirement Mr. Rich served as Rural Mail Carrier on the Morning View Route for 30 years. Besides his invalid wife, he is survived by three daughters, 5 sons and 15 grandchildren. Last rites were conducted at Wilmington Baptist church of which he was a member followed by burial in Independence cemetery.

MOVING PICTURES OF WILDLIFE SHOWN

Frankfort, Ky., August 23—Conservation of wildlife in the fields and streams of Kentucky was brought to the people of Adair County Friday and Saturday, August 18 and 19, in the form of wildlife moving pictures and educational talks on conservation by James J. Gilpin, Director of Publicity for the Division of Game and Fish and Frank Phipps, Superintendent of Hatcheries for the Division.

Showing before approximately 2,000 persons, both young and old, during the two-day series, this educational wildlife conservation program took in practically every section and village within the county.

These shows were sponsored by the fish and game club of Adair county and under the direction of Dr. H. C. Randall, Advisory Director of the Kentucky League of Sportsmen.

Two carloads of western ewes have been brought into Madison county recently.

FIELD MEETING FOR KENTON POULTRYMEN

Mr. J. E. Mumphrey, Field Agent in Poultry, to demonstrate methods of selecting pullets for laying house. Poultry culling and feeding practices will be studied.

A field meeting for Kenton county poultry producers will be held at the farm of L. J. Rapp, Towers-Staffordsburg community, 3 miles east of Independence, FRIDAY afternoon, SEPT. 1, 1939 at 2:00 P. M., Eastern Standard Time.

Best Practices in Selection of Fall Pullets—

The purpose of the field meeting will be to demonstrate:

1. Tow to select pullets for the laying house.
2. How to cull early moulting hens.
3. Problems in poultry management that you should know to get the best results from your pullets during the fall and winter months.

U. K. EXPERT SAYS SOIL MAINTENANCE IS AN OBLIGATION

The holding of the soil should be viewed as a trust, its value to be maintained or increased in the holding. So declares Prof. P. E. Karraker, agronomist of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, in a circular dealing with Kentucky soils. He tells, in a simple way, how properly to manage Kentucky soils, and especially how to maintain and increase their productiveness.

Other statements introducing chapters follow:

The restoration and maintenance of the productivity of Kentucky's soils is vital to her well-being.

Unrestrained soil erosion inevitably leads to land destruction.

Liming, the use of phosphates, and the growing of legumes are basic to the restoration and maintenance of soil productivity. Almost as if by magic, the proper use of these practices makes good soil out of poor and brings about a prosperous agriculture in much of Kentucky.

A prosperous farming community is shown by its attractive homes, good barns, well-fed livestock and, even more truly, by a generous acreage of legumes and legume-grass sod crops.

To find out what nutrients are deficient in soils for crops and how to supply them, is a necessary part of farming.

How plants grow is a fascinating study and the products of plant growth bulk large in our present-day civilization.

Stresses Greater Use of Phosphate

A wider use of phosphate is one of the most important problems in the fertilizer field, according to a recent report of a committee of the land-grant agricultural colleges in the seven Tennessee Valley states.

The report deals with the testing of concentrated phosphatic fertilizers by thousands of farmers under the guidance of the agricultural extension service of the colleges.

"Phosphates are increasingly necessary to grow cover plants to protect farm lands from erosion and to rebuild the fertility of older areas to profitable levels of crop production," says the report.

Kentucky farmers last year received 33,263 tons of triple superphosphate from the Tennessee Valley Authority, in lieu of benefit payments in the Agricultural Conservation program, and so far their year have as ked for nearly 35,000 tons of this high-test phosphate. Nearly half of a million acres in Kentucky were treated with phosphate last year.

Social Security News

With the signing of the new social security legislation by President Roosevelt, plans for putting into operation the new old age insurance program is now going forward in the Covington field office of that federal agency.

"The President's signature makes the amendments adopted by the Congress the law of the land," said Frank B. Decker, Jr., Manager of the Covington field office of the social security board.

"Effect of the amendments is far reaching. Time will be required for study of the new law and to work out benefit schedules which are now established. These studies have been started in the Washington headquarters of the social security board; also in the Cleveland regional office, which serves the States of Kentucky, Michigan and Ohio.

"Immediate effect of the new legislation so far as our local office is concerned is to put an end to the payment of lump sum benefits which heretofore have been available to those reaching the age 65 after having worked in employment covered by the social security act. Monthly benefits will replace these single money benefits after January 1, 1940. We shall continue to pay single money benefits to the legal heirs of deceased workers who have died after serving in employment covered by old age insurance.

"The new benefit schedules are based on a formula which uses average wages rather than total wages, so far as the payment of monthly annuities is concerned. This schedule is now being worked out and will be announced later.

"Starting next January there will be expanded benefits for workers who have aged wives and who retire from employment covered by old age insurance after having served in such jobs since the social security act was adopted in August, 1935. There also are certain supplementary benefits for dependent children and dependent parents of such workers.

"Much thought must be given to the new legislation and procedure for payment of the benefits will require a great deal of study. We hope the holders of social security numbers in our service area will bear with us while we are working out methods which will enable us to do all the things contained in the new law.

"We suggest that any one who desires information regarding the new legislation write or call our office, giving his name and address. In a few weeks we shall have literature which explains the new old age insurance system in detail. This literature will be sent to all who request it. Requests may be made through a personal or telephone call or a postcard will do," Mr. Decker concluded.

Starting after Labor Day he is planning a broad program of informational activity to acquaint residents of this service area with their rights and duties under the amendments.

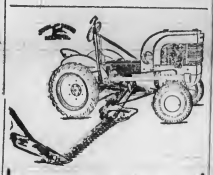
WITH THE REDS

Cincinnati:—When the Reds return from their final invasion of the East this week-end, they will find themselves pitted against the Chicago Cubs, defending champions of the National League at Crosley Field.

The Reds and Bruins will clash in single games Saturday and Sunday. The latter date has been designated as "Billy Myers Day," and hundreds of friends of the little Redleg shortstop, who has been a key man in his team's fight for the pennant this season, will present him with valuable gifts.

After Sunday's tilt, the Reds will journey to St. Louis for a Labor Day double bill with the St. Louis Cardinals, whose mad dash to catch the Reds has been a feature of the latter half of the season. Then Bill McKechnie's warriors will shift the scene of their activities to Forbes Field, Pittsburgh, where the Reds and Pirates will meet in a double header on September 6 and single games on the two days following. Then on September 9 and 10, the Reds will hook up with the Cubs in Chicago.

At present, the task at hand consists of finishing up their schedule in the East. The Reds were to close their series with the Giants at the Polo Grounds Tuesday, and then complete the junket in Boston, where the Reds and Bees meet on Wednesday and Thursday.



On September 12, the Reds will start their last home stand, meeting the Brooklyn Dodgers in a ladies' day game at Crosley Field. This last home stay will carry them to the last week of the season.

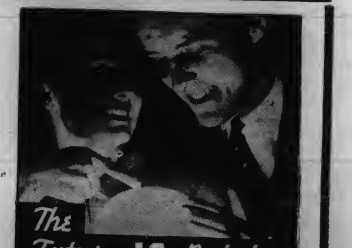
VERONA

Light Bearers Meet

The Verona "Light Bearers" Sunday School class held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. J. T. Roberts, August 23. A large number of members and many visitors were present. At noon a delightful covered dish luncheon and social hour was enjoyed by all.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. A. T. Hunt, at 2 o'clock for the business session and program. The class song, "Shine," was sung by the members, and Mrs. Gertrude Brewster had charge of the devotional exercises. A very interesting and inspiring program followed: "Capacity for Happiness," an da poem, "Life," by Mrs. J. T. Roberts; solo, Miss Jean Roberts; "Some Things We Kentucky Baptists Can Do," and "Fallacy That All Religions are Same," Miss Kathryn Harris; "What Kind of A Mother Are You?" Mrs. Robert Orr, Sr.; "We Mark Our Trails," and "Keeping Our Friendships in Repair," Mrs. A. T. Hunt, also "It Shines In Your Face" by Mrs. Hunt. After recognition of visitors, the class adjourned to meet with Mrs. John Locke at the next regular meeting on Sept. 27 for an all-day session.

Homemakers To Meet Sept. 1



The Verona Homemakers will hold their regular meeting, Sept. 1. They are planning a tour of the homes of the ladies who have participated in the different projects of the club the past year and see the display of work accomplished by each member under direction of Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent.

The ladies will meet at the home of Mrs. W. T. Renaker at 1:30 p. m. and tour from there to the home of Mrs. W. B. McCormick, thence to the home of Mrs. Lela Wassom, Mrs. Charles Vest, Miss Lizzie Vest, Mrs. Lizzie Noel, Mrs. J. T. Roberts, Mrs. O. K. Powers, Mrs. Maud Wilson and Mrs. John Myers, where tea will be served.

Much Interest In Advertiser Free Gift

Many Delighted With the Beautiful Pen-Pencil Sets Free For Short Time With Each Subscription

The large number of subscribers coming to the Advertiser office the past few days to take advantage of the subscription premium offer being made for a short time have been delighted and somewhat amazed at the beauty, durability and splendid writing the pen and pencil sets they have received as a free gift. Delighted with the gift and amazed that this newspaper is able to award such a worthwhile present with the payment of only a one-year subscription at the regular price.

The explanation is simple. The Advertiser is anxious to clean up in a very short time a number of subscriptions now due or past due and to add several new subscriptions. In order to accomplish this quickly we have gone to a great deal of expense to provide a premium that is needed daily by everyone, a premium that can be used by any and every member of the family, especially valuable to children in school.

The sets we are offering will prove satisfactory for every writing occasion. The pens are guaranteed by the manufacturers and may be repaired or replaced should such prove necessary. These are the reasons why practically everyone who has had the opportunity to call at this office and see the display have obtained a set.

Sets Ideal For School

Children and parents are finding these sets ideal for school requirements and that is one reason why so many of these premiums are moving out. Parents can make a substantial saving by getting these sets for their children. More than one set easily obtainable, simply by paying for additional subscriptions for yourself, relatives or friends.

Can Receive Set by Mail

Subscribers living at a distance and those finding it inconvenient to call at the Advertiser office, may mail their subscriptions to us while this offer is effective and the set will be mailed to them or to anyone designated. Just add five cents extra to your remittance to take care of the postage.

Offer for Limited Time

The remarkable subscription premium offer is made for only a short time, expiring Saturday, September 23. Make it a point the very next time you are in town to drop by the Advertiser office and obtain a set. Remember, you get a set absolutely free by merely paying one year's subscription at the regular price of $1.50.

Verona To Meet Chalks, Sunday

At the Verona ball park, Sunday afternoon, Sept. 10 at 2:00, the Verona club will meet the Chalks of California, Ky. This is expected to be a "red-hot" battle and a large crowd is expected to be on hand to witness the proceedings.

Last Sunday the Veronians were defeated 10 to 2 by the Martz Cardinals at Ross, Ky. Their game on tap Monday with the Bob & Gene nine was washed out.

Heavy Traffic Here Over Labor Day

During the holiday weekend the motor traffic was unusually heavy through Walton. Mrs. Wm. Brittenhelm made a check of the motor travel passing her home on South Main street, between 1:20 and 6:00 p. m., and the following figures were compiled:

A total of 2,185 motor driven vehicles passed her home. Of this number 2,118 were automobiles, 1,061 going North and 1,057 going South. Of the others, there were 50 trucks, 8 buses, 8 motor cycles and one wrecker. A lot of traffic we would say.

HAVE YOU CONTRIBUTED? IF NOT, DO IT NOW—

There are hundreds of well-to-do citizens of Northern Kentucky who would like to do a christian act toward one of their fellow beings, and we know of no better way than to send a cash donation to Miss Wallie M. Morgan of Morning View, Ky., Route 1, to help her regain her little home in Kenton county, which she considers the most sacred spot on earth.

There is no one in the whole wide world who is worthier and would be more appreciative of such an act than Miss Morgan. She is a shut-in and has been bedfast for many years, and although in this helpless condition, scatters more sunshine in the world than anyone knows. Surely you can help a little.

Annual Meet Of Homemakers Sept. 18

Boone County Homemakers will have their annual get-together meeting, Monday, Sept. 18, according to Mrs. Sam Sleet, County President. The program committee met last Monday afternoon in the office of Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent. The general program for the day was outlined by this group.

The annual meeting will be held in the auditorium of St. Paul's church in Florence. The Ladies auxiliary of the Christian and Methodist churches will serve a lunch in the dining room of the Baptist church. This meeting will be a climax to the study of the Associated Country Women of the World. The committee announced that Miss Myrtle Weldon, State leader of the Home Demonstration Agents, will be the guest speaker. She plans to show colored slides of her trip to Europe this summer.

Work accomplished in the Homemaker's clubs during 1938-39 will be described by county project chairmen. The Florence Chorus has been asked to furnish special music.

The following attended the program planning meeting:

Mrs. Sam Sleet, County President; Mrs. Alan Gaines, Vice President; Mrs. Vernon Pope, Secretary and Treasurer; County Project Chairmen: Mrs. George Casper, Home Improvement; Mrs. George Kottmyer, Foods; Mrs. D. M. Pope, Recreation; Mrs. Jake Cleek, Exterior Beautification; Mrs. Raymond Witham, Publicity, and Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie.

The Covington Retail Merchants Association, through its President Francis Vehr, has announced that National Retail Demonstration Week will be observed in Covington the week of September 11th.

Elaborate plans are being made by the retail stores of Covington to present to the public an array of the newest and finest merchandise ever before offered at prices that will appeal to the keenest of "bargain hunters."

Mr. Vehr has appointed Bernard Eilerman as Chairman of a special committee in charge of the program for the week, which is designed to acquaint the public with the important place held by retail stores in the social and economic life of a community. Employes of the various Covington stores are becoming greatly interested in National Retail Demonstration Week and are taking advantage of the opportunity to have their friends visit the stores during these days that are especially set aside to offer quality merchandise at real savings.

Many of the Covington Stores have arranged to have their annual sales during these days, so that all in all it will be an excellent time to shop in Covington.

On the night of September 15th an Old Fashioned Country Square Dance will be held on the market square in Covington. Nice prizes are to be awarded the best couples and the best squares.

All couples or squares wishing to enter this contest please send names to the Walton Advertiser not later than Monday, September 11th. This contest is part of the National Retail Demonstration Week that is being celebrated in Covington, under the slogan, "Covington Stores On Parade." In addition to this dance, many other entertainment features will be presented, and all stores will celebrate the Demonstration with Special Sales and Values.

WINNERS NAMED IN BABY CONTEST

In a contest sponsored by the Oelze's Studios of Cincinnati, of local babies, the following were the winners:

Jill Ann Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billie Williams; Patricia Clara Peebles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Peebles, and Dan Dudley Hance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Evan Hance.

NEW MINISTER FOR WALTON METHODIST CHURCH

Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Talley of Butler, are expected to move here this week, and occupy the Methodist parsonage on North Main street. Rev. Talley is the new minister at the Walton Methodist church.

Rev. Rose, who has been pastor of the above church for the past 4 years, will move to Newport, where he will be pastor of the Taylor Street Methodist church.

We heartily welcome Rev. Talley and wife to our town and community, and wish Rev. Rose much success in his new location.

DON'T LOSE YOUR RIGHT TO VOTE

Friday night, September 8th, is the dead-line for registration for the November elections. Persons who are not registered or who have changed their voting precincts since the last election, should go to the office of the county clerk and register prior to Friday night if they wish to vote in the November election.

Persons not properly registered are not qualified to vote in the November election. Don't fail to exercise your right to vote. Register today.

Rotarians To Enjoy Boat Ride Sept., 11

For the second consecutive year the Rotary Clubs of Carrollton and Madison, are staging a boat ride for Rotarians of Kentucky and Indiana, their Anns and friends.

The most magnificent of all river boats, the Island Queen, has been engaged for the occasion, and on the afternoon of September 11, Kentucky Rotarians, Anns and friends, representing all sections of Kentucky will embark at Carrollton at 5 p. m., proceed to Madison where a large crowd of Indianans will join with them for a restive occasion.

Clyde Trask and his famous orchestra, floor shows, and many other features will be provided for the entertainment of the guests, and a full five hours of delightful entertainment is promised to keep everyone happy until 10 p. m., when the "Queen's" Calliope will play the finale, "Home Sweet Home."

The "Queen" has a capacity of 4,000, glass enclosed decks, non-sinkable steel hull, and the Rotary Clubs of Carrollton and Madison are sparing no effort to make this outing the most outstanding one of its kind ever held.

Rotary Clubs from a large part of the state will be represented, and all club members may include as many friends as they wish, and of course the kiddies may be expected in great numbers to compete with Mom and Pop as to who shall have the most fun.

Last September a like party was given by the Carrollton and Madison Clubs, and a total of 935 persons attended. Requests from all over the state this year prompted the two clubs to stage this year's event, which promises to far exceed in numbers and interest, that of last year.

Industrial Research—

Why have the past three decades witnessed greater progress in the average man's ability to see and know the world about him, in his comfort, his convenience, his standard of living, than was made in any century of the past?

This question is raised and answered in the most recent of a series of highly informative and interesting booklets, entitled "Research Looks to New Horizons." The answer, telling of the marriage of industry and science, as well worth repeating:

"Back in the early days of the twentieth century, industry and research lived on opposite sides of the street.

"Each one had, in a sense, what the other lacked. Industry had aggressiveness—the ability to make things and sell them. Research had imagination, curiosity and patience. Both knew the meaning of hard work.

"For a long time each had managed to get along more or less without the other. The things industry made weren't very complicated. It required no particular knowledge of science to build a plow or a bicycle. And the things that research discovered weren't especially intended to be 'practical'.

"But the automobile made a tremendous change in this situation. It raised endless problems of chemistry, physics and electricity which research had never tried to answer, and which had to be answered if people were to find satisfaction in the motorcar.

"So industry said to research, 'Why don't we form a new partnership? You can find the answers to my questions before I ask them—I can take the things you discover and spread their benefits to millions everywhere'.

"Industrial research took the crude, unreliable automobile of 30 years ago and made it so dependable, so easy to operate, so economical to build and buy, that the United States today is truly a nation on wheels and owns more automobiles than all the rest of the world combined.

"This is only one example of the results of this partnership. Others easily come to mind, such as the modern coast-to-coast passenger airplane, the Diesel-powered streamline train, electric refrigeration, air conditioning and countless other advancements affecting our daily lives."

Fact vs. Theory—

It is often argued that a reduction in railroad freight rates to pre-war levels, would increase the volume of business handled by the lines. Leaving aside the very vital question of how the railroads would meet 1939 payrolls, operating costs and taxes with 1913 revenues, there is a fundamental fallacy in that argument.

Freight rates are entirely unlike passenger fares. A sharp reduction in fares will often increase the number of passengers riding the trains, and result in a temporary increase in passenger revenues. But, as an authority on transportation has observed, "Nobody ships freight just to give it a ride. Freight moves only because there is someone, somewhere, to use or consume it. Unless the freight rate is so large a part of the price paid by the final consumer as actually to limit his use of the commodity, freight rates have very little to do with the total amount of commodities shipped. Freight rates in the United States do not keep our people from eating food, wearing clothes, building homes, or doing anything else they want to do."

The argument for sharply reducing freight rates is naturally based on the premise that current rates are too high, and have an adverse effect on consumption. The truth of the matter is that freight rates are usually one of the smallest items in the selling cost of any product. The freight cost, for instance, on a fine big apple from Oregon, moved three thousand miles across the continent to the New York market, is just a little more than one-half cent. And the rail freight on all the lumber in a $5,000 house will not average more than $150.

What this all adds up to is that the American railroads, under private ownership, give the nation the finest transportation service in the world, at a very reasonable cost. That is fact, as against theories.

Congress and the Economy Movement—

It is a curious paradox that the last Congress appropriated even more money than its big-spending predecessor—yet has come in for considerable praise for its activities in the direction of economy.

The paradox is understandable. For, toward the closing weeks of the session, Congress, obviously appalled by the swiftness with which the national debt is approaching the $45,000,000,000 legal limit, finally put its foot down. It sharply reduced WPA expenditures, pared appropriations proposed in the "self-liquidating" spending bill, all along the line, and otherwise showed its belief that the time for some retrenchment was at hand.

The common forecast now is that the next session of Congress will go a great deal farther in the direction of a balanced budget. If it does, the lawmakers will really earn the plaudits of the nation. For no one can deny that the growing debt, which carries with it the inevitability of more and higher taxes on top of today's crushing burdens, is a major factor in holding business back.

In brief, the last Congress made a start. It is the duty of the next Congress to go on from there, and really achieve something besides more and bigger dificits. The spending spree this country has been indulging in has never before been witnessed in world history.

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5582 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A number of years ago when Jas. Conner was one of the leading livestock dealers and owners of real estate in Boone County, Ky., he owned a plot of ground that was well adapted for a cemetery. His father and brothers were Universalists; in fact, his brother Charlie was a prominent Universalist minister, having filled some of the leading Universalist churches as pastor.

While James Connor did not officially unite with a church he called himself the blacksheep of the family, however, he felt kindly toward his family and the church. The trustees of the church knowing this, met him in Burlington to make a bargain with him for the plot of land for a cemetery.

Mr. Conner in those days was abusy man and a quick trader who would make a gentleman's offer on anything that was offered to him. In the cemetery land deal he was a seller. He made what he considered a gentleman's price. They began to parlay with him saying they could not pay the price, as their church, as all churches are, was short of funds, and so he said, "Gentlemen, I am a very busy man, having a good many deals on hand. In order to close the deal quickly at a price that should be satisfactory to you, I will make you a present of the land, giving you a warranted deed to same, if you will give me a guarantee that your religion is all that you preach that all men will be saved, which will give me a title and mansion in Heaven and I will consider it the best trade of my life." He bade them goodbye, telling them to think it over and let him hear from them. He tells it as a joke that the brethern never called on him to close the deal.

Neither Mr. Conner or the writer of this story tells it with any disrespect to the Universalist congregation or church, for we both have good friends belonging to the church. We have a great number of friends who have passed to "That Great Beyond," and we hope they are saved. It gives us that are left behind, better chances.

The teachings of the Universalists "God is Love," is good. I cannot understand that God is so vascillating that he loves and kills. I do not believe God kills. If he does he is not as good as an earthly mother or father who would be considered insane if they killed their children. I think better of God for he is devine. He has made laws and if we break them we will suffer what law breaking brings, in sickness and death. In fact if we break any law we get into trouble. Let us learn not to blame God for our mistakes and troubles —but ourselves.

BUTTONS

From my earliest childhood I have had a liking for buttons. In the old-fashioned homes all buttons were saved and kept in a box. Consequently, there were many kinds to be found, some of them going back to what seemed remote times. As a little child I, as so many others of my time, liked to string buttons, enjoying the various shapes and forms. There were broad white buttons that children wore on their waists, or "bodices," when they were small. There were all sorts of pearl buttons and some shiny ones that were called "rice buttons." Tiny buttons from babies' garments were often in the box, hidden by the larger, coarser ones. Then there were metal buttons, from men's garments, some of them large and impressive ones from overcoats. When not stringing them, we would sort them out by kinds, enjoying their infinite variety. Every button had its own story, as related by Mother, just as every piece in the patch-work quilt had some connection with dresses or bodies, or shirts, or other garments that her hands had made. Over and over we would ask the history of queer buttons, not that we had forgotten, but just to hear again how such strange things came to be. Dolls of the long ago, kept by girls who had lost their youth before our time, wore clothes held together by odd buttons, some of them wholly unlike anything else we had ever seen and known.

Buttons had other uses besides their service in holding clothes together, as fascinating as that was. We played games with them. In "Button, Button, Who's Got the Button?" we passed some of the spare time that now seems to have been so plentiful then but never afterwards. Checkers were always buttons, white against cooper-colored. We often concluded that our particular kind was hoodooed, since either white or brass brought defeat. We played other games on the checkerboard, especially swap-out, in which the winner is the one who gets his men all jumped first. In checkers I was poor enough; in swap-out I was always defeated, for I hated to see my men jumped, even though that was a part of the game.

Buttons had and have several substitutes. A nail is the best, especially on a pair of cottonnade pants or overalls. A stick whittled properly will do about as well. Theodetically these areusd until the button is replaced by another one; that they sometimes lasted a long time is the memory of some of my generation.

On a door or gate we had another kind of button, one whittled out of wood and nailed on. Some of these are real bits of wood-carving. A button made of black walnut or wild cherry and used until human hands have polished it often becomes one of the most beautiful kinds of handwork. Stable doors had their buttons, but artistry was not the thing here but strength against the horse or mule inside. When these buttons came off because of the pressure inside the stalls, they made excellent things to step on with a bare foot, as I learned tomy own sorrow.

From shiny rice buttons to the coarse chunks of wood nailed on stable door frames is a long way, but reminiscent moods can take some of us farther afield than that.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

"Hell," a philosopher once observed, "is a state of mind." No disparagement is meant (though the national capital does happen to be extremely hot these summer days) when it is pointed out that the description fits Washington even more accurately. For Washington is not so much a place as a symbol — though perhaps a symbol meaning "all things to all men."

When the average American mentions Washington at the present time, the odds are reasonably long that he isn't thinking of the actual city itself, as he would be doing if he named New York or Chicago or Sheboygan; he's talking about government and all the cloudy or clear ideas in his mind concerning things governmental.

That's why a column called "Washington Snapshots" sometimes gets geographically out of bounds. For, just as wherever the royal feet of the Emperor of Japan are planted is supposed to be sacred ground, wherever politics are being played or statesmanship is being displayed is "Washington."

Summing up, then, this seems to be the story: All the straws in the wind point to a public interest in seeing Congress do the things that will most aid business recovery, and thus bring back prosperity for the whole country. You, as an American citizen, will be aiding your representative in Washington if you give him, in writing or in person, your opinion on these matters. And if the Congressman is half the judge of public temper he's chacked up to be, his return to Washington next session ought to bring the reforms business and industry need. All of which is pleasant for the average American to consider!

What will the individual lawmaker find out this time concerning the wishes of the constitutents back home? No one can say with absolute certainty, but there are at least three straws in the wind:

Straw one is the attitude of Congress itself at the session recently concluded. Naturally, Congress tries to interpret public opinion to the best of its ability; that is the keystone of the system of representative democracy, and it's the best system worked out so far though like all things human it isn't perfect.

The legislators last session didn't go too far out on a limb until they could check with the home folks, but they did institute certain reforms, all pointing in a single direction, In other words, Congress indicated a belief that what the public wants is legislative action of a type that will restore business confidence and start the wheels of progress rolling again.

Straw two is the "straw vote." Congressmen are naturally very anxious to find out whether they guessed right last session, and recent polls of public opinion seem to show that they were. These polls have evidenced increasing dissatisfaction with heavy government spending, mounting taxes, and political tinkering with the welfare of business. In the case of one reforme that industry considers particularly vital to its welfare—namely, amendment of the Wagner Act so that both sides can stand equal in the eyes of the law—the percentage of the public demanding a change in the Act rose in three short months from 62 to 70 per'cent according to the reliable American Institute of Public Opinion. It would be hard to maintain, in the face of a popular majority so heavy, that the public isn't vitally interested in this matter of restoring business confidence.

There's one more straw, less important perhaps than the first two, but still indicative. That is he opinion of he political observers who, like the Senators and Representatives, make their bread and butter out of guessing right more than half the time. Most seasoned observers without too special an axe to grind are inclined to go along with the belief that what's most needed, and most wanted by the public, is Congressional action next session to achieve the reforms business and industry most need: Wagner Act amendments sponsored by business and labor groups alike, taxation reforms that will make real sense and make investments in private enterprise offer the possibility of profit, and real governmental economy aimed towards ending the balloon-like ascent of the nation's debt load.

THE LITTLE HELPER

Roosevelt Days Never Dull; A Fireside Chat That 'Clicked'

AN army of secretaries, aides, ushers, clerks and Secret Service men strive to maintain routine and keep Franklin Delano Roosevelt's executive day running smoothly, according to Donald E. Keyhoe and John Jay Daly who collaborate on a description of the President's daily activities, in October Cosmopolitan. But surprises and humorous interludes occur both in the official and personal parts of Roosevelt's day.

During a recent fireside chat radio control room engineers noted a continuous clicking filtering through the famous Roosevelt voice. They checked their connections and flashed word to the chief technician in the White House to spot the noise and kill it. The technician frantically reported that the noise emanated from the President himself. Everytime he moved he rattled. After the broadcast the technician asked Roosevelt about the sound and the President reached in his bulging coat pocket and brought out a handful of poker chips. He had just won a jackpot in a poker game with several associates and had put the chips in his pocket.

Roosevelt's day begins ordinarily around 8 A.M., according to Keyhoe and Daly. Tom Qualters, his bodyguard, is the first person to see him in the morning and the last at night. Tommy Corcoran and Benny Cohen sometimes join his informal breakfast conferences. After breakfast, Steve Early and Marvin McIntyre arrive and, to save time, Roosevelt frequently shaves while he confers with them about the day's appointments. When these details are settled "Hyacinth" McDuffey, Roosevelt's colored valet, lays out the Chief Executive's choice of clothes for the day. When Roosevelt enters his private elevator en route to his office, a signal is flashed and his Secret Service escort is waiting when he emerges. He calls them by their first names.

On Mondays the first appointment is with the "big four" of the administration, Keyhoe and Daly relate. These include Vice-president Garner, Speaker Bankhead, and Democratic leaders Rayburn and Barkley. Regular appointments follow unless a Cabinet meeting is scheduled. Except when the subject is very grave, Roosevelt opens these Cabinet sessions with his usual informality. He recently began one by twitting Secretary Perkins on her new hat.

"The height of informality comes in press conferences," Keyhoe and Daly declare. "The President banters with those nearest his desk while the rest fill the oval room. When the last correspondent is in the room a Secret Service man takes his place before the door. Roosevelt releases any news he has and then the off-the-record phase begins. Questions come from all directions and the President fences when he gets a difficult query."

Roosevelt eats lunch at his desk and after lunch there is a period reserved for disposition of important mail. The President has a direct telegraph service and a private wire to a small and select group of prominent New Dealers whose telephones are painted white. Only the calls from these "White Phones" and long distance calls from members of his family are put through directly to his desk.

There is no schedule for the hours after Roosevelt leaves his desk in the evening. Usually he stops en route to the Executive Mansion at the swimming pool in the West Wing. Before dinner he may meet house guests, work on his book or sketch a design for a new stamp. Family dinners at the White House are highly informal. The President dines out only for highlight affairs such as the Gridiron Dinner of the Press Club. He has a wide choice of entertainment without leaving the White House. If he wished, he could have the premiere of practically any motion picture made in this country. He likes action pictures, especially those about the sea. He enjoys music and his taste runs from Mischa Elman to Tommy Corcoran's rendition of accordion solos. He sometimes harmonizes in a quartette of his intimates.

If no special entertainment is planned, he occasionally welcomes old friends after dinner, either for official chats or merely to swap stories. Roosevelt likes a joke, even when it is on himself.

WITH THE REDS

Cincinnati—A tough session on the road faces the Reds before they return to their native terrain to meet the Brooklyn Dodgers in a ladies' day game that will launch the last home stay on September 12.

Bill McKechnie and his gang were to meet the Pittsburgh Pirates in a doubleheader at Forbes Field Wednesday and in single conflicts Thursday and Friday. Then they will hop to Chicago for single games with the Cubs Saturday and Sunday. These contests with the Bruins will complete the season's series between the two clubs.

Cincinnati's last home stand will be the most gruelling test of the season. Because of rain that washed out engagements in the East and necessitated their transfer to Crosley Field, the Reds will be called upon to play 23 games in 17 days, and at one stretch will play nine games in five days.

The Dodgers will be here September 12 and 13, and will be followed by the New York Giants. The Reds and Giants are to clash in successive double bills on September 14 and 15 and in a single game on the 16th. Then come the Boston Bees for doubleheaders on September 17 and 18.

Three single games with the Phils, starting on September 19, will supply a brief respite from double duty, but the twin bill menu will be resumed when the Pittsburgh Pirates come here for doubleheaders on September 22 and 23, and a single game on the 24th.

The St. Louis Cardinals, runners-up to the Reds most of the season, will close the local schedule with a double bill on September 26 and single contests the next two days.

EXCITEMENT IS HUB OF HOLLYWOOD LIFE

"THE Hollywood social secretary must be a human dynamo, moving in an atmosphere of volcanic activity," says one of them in an interview with Patma Wayne in October Cosmopolitan. "The first establishment I entered was one of the most brilliant in the cinema world. 'See my secretary' was the household password and everything from selecting the ermine carriage robe for Joan Blondell's new baby to deciding the color of the new car, was left to me."

"My office was in the upper hall of the house," the Hollywood social secretary continues. "About me eddied the Hollywood scene, cyclonic and spectacular. I was the center of incessant voices, demanding, clamoring, tearing the air. There was no privacy and no retreat. Here I was served my luncheon on a tray which might be shared by some visiting star because it looked appetizing. There were thirty-two house telephones, the control board centering on my desk. All calls were handled by me personally. That was my job."

"Large dinners are planned on the spur of the moment," she writes, "and all dinner invitations in Hollywood are sent by telegraph. The telegraphic 'dinner-at-eight-black-tie' has become Hollywood Emily Post for invitations. Dinners are elaborate and may be followed by pictures in the projection room of the house—almost a Hollywood rite. After coffee, liqueurs and pictures, the guests settle down to the real business of the evening—gambling. Hollywood lives on excitement and its peak expression is gambling. High-salaried film folk will bet any amount on anything from the number of gallons of water in a swimming pool to the sex of someone's expected baby.

"The Hollywood social world is composed of two distinct sets. One includes the stars, successful producers, ace directors and their wives. The other, dovetailing with it at times—in it but not of it—consists of women with Social Register backgrounds who have married into the film colony. In this group are Mrs. Gary Cooper, Mrs. Henry Fonda, Mrs. Fred Astaire, Ellin Berlin, Whitney Bourne and Madeleine Carroll, who has been presented at the British Court."

Unlimited Visibility

THERE are perhaps few reports more welcome to an aviator than that of unlimited visibility," with its assurance of a clear atmosphere, unobstructed ceiling, smooth passage. Not alone to an aviator, but to others also, is the phrase significant, hinting something deeper than the mere technical implications. For instance, in whatever walk of life one may find himself, what peace and joy would come from an assurance of definite, continuous progress with no obstructions or reversals!

Such assurance is by no means impossible of achievement. If one were to depend simply upon mortal theories and panaceas for guidance and inspiration, he might sometimes enjoy temporary success, but ultimately he would experience disappointment and frustration. Yet in turning to the truth, founded on the Scriptures, he would have the sure basis for his hope, and realize progress and well-being. Throughout religious history, the consciousness of unlimited good has been the experience of many devout and spiritually-minded men and women. Christ Jesus possessed, in the highest degree, true spiritual vision, which enabled him to overrule every untoward condition presented to him.

John, in the bleak setting of Patmos, was so imbued with spiritual light that he received a glorious vision of "a new heaven and a new earth" (Revelation 21:1).

The term "visible" is defined, in part, as "perceivable by the eye;" and also as "mentally perceptible." When one grasps in some measure the great facts of spiritual being which are not cognized by physical sight, the possibilities of spiritual vision are seen to be unlimited and unimpeded by material, finite conditions and would-be obstructions. In the words of Paul (II Corinthians 4:18), one learns to "look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal." These eternal verities, discernible to spiritual sense, include illimitable goodness, affluence, and harmony.

Spiritual man is fetterless, unfallen, reflecting infinite Mind, God, his origin. Man's possibilities for expressing good and blessedness are therefore as unrestricted and inexhaustible as his source.

In human experience, the arguments that would make for mistiness or obscureness—fear, doubt, discouragement, ignorance, worldliness, sin—are the outcome of the belief that man has a mortal existence separate from God. But Christian Science reveals man as the individual expression of divine Mind, incapable of knowing aught but perfection, since Mind is perfect. All attributes of God, including discernment, wisdom, and ability, are expressed by man.

Freedom from a false sense of responsibility and the depressing fear of failure are won as one realizes man's eternal oneness with his heavenly Father. What serenity comes from the recognition that man, as God's idea or reflection, is dependent only on Mind for all capability and sagacity, and that this reflection is immutable, eternal, and irreversible! Likewise, to man, the flawless manifestation of Life, superstitious beliefs regarding sickness, age, accident, are unknown. However aggressive, terrifying, or stubborn the appearance of discord may seem to material sense, spiritual harmony alone is supreme and real. Apprehending this fact importunately and consistently, one can triumph over false beliefs and prove his God-given dominion.

"God's gifts put man's best dreams to shame," a well-loved poet once wrote, as perhaps a gentle, though forceful rebuke to the human tendency to outline what one might consider best and most desirable for his welfare. In "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 591) Mrs. Eddy defines Mind, in part, as "Deity, which outlines but is not outlined." . . . Love has established all good, and maintains His idea, man, in harmony, completeness, perfection, and joy. This truth, understood and applied, acts as law in one's human experience, supplying whatever the need may be—harmonious relationships, home, food, clothing, employment.

Progress, in its highest sense, means working with God, and is evidenced in one's intent and conduct rather than in merely material enrichment. But right reward necessarily follows righteous endeavor, and is inseparable from it. In these inspiring words Mrs. Eddy has assured us of ever-present divine help (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 113): "Divine Love is our hope, strength, and shield. We have nothing to fear when Love is at the helm of thought, but everything to enjoy on earth and in heaven."—The Christian Science Monitor.

ADOLF HITLER fears only one man. Still he is his closest confidant. Heinrich Himmler, head of the dreaded German Gestapo or secret police, is the one man in Europe who dictates to a dictator. "Renegade Catholic, farmer boy who has planted more corpses than seeds, whip hand of the secret police, commander of the black-clad, pure Nordic Death's Head army, sex stimulator to the nation and blackmailer to half the Reich, Himmler multiplies his power every day. Beginning as Hitler's gunman-in-chief, he has now reached heights where he can hold a gun to the head of Hitler himself," says Albert Grzesinski in the October issue of Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Hitler Himmler

Grzesinski, who was police chief in Berlin in 1933 and served as German demobilization commissioner in 1919, is now chairman of the French Government's refugee committee in Paris, a position which gives him access to confidential reports on the work of Himmler's agents both in and out of Germany. He was Home Minister of Prussia at one time and commanded Germany's old secret police. In an interview with Charles Hewitt, Jr., Grzesinski discusses the rise to power and the diabolic operations of Germany's only two hundred per cent Nazi.

"Hitler and Himmler, working together as never before, have brought Himmler's power to an all-time peak with their new 'Grand War Plan'," says Grzesinski. "It runs as follows: Annexation of a ring of vassal states around the Third Reich. In this area of insulation—Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Memel are the start—the next war is to be fought. All the population of these states that cannot be trusted or terrorized will be evacuated and forced to labor in the fields and factories of the Reich. This will free millions of native Germans for the front line service, multiplying Germany's man power in the last war by two."

Himmler is the spearpoint of Hitler's offense as well as his chief of defense, Grzesinski states. "The termitea of the Gestapo," he writes, "must bore away at the foundations of any state Hitler wishes to destroy. Himmler foretold the march on Prague six months ahead."

Half private army and expeditionary force and half spies and executioners, the Gestapo makes its chief the greatest tyrant of the modern world, Grzesinski declares. His real genius is twofold—organization and fanaticism. He is the soul of three major persecutions of the Third Reich: Jews, Protestants and Catholics. Himmler is head of 437,000 policemen today, or one to every 155 persons in the German nation. Operating abroad are 5,000 German political police. They and their drafted workers are active in every nation on the globe, including the United States, Grzesinski says, and he adds that what the Gestapo wants from these representatives and drafted workers abroad are long reports and money.

"Police Chief Himmler is first and foremost commander of a private army, the Schutzstaffel whose bizarre rules, 'Nordic Mission' and systematized sex life are still unfamiliar to America," Grzesinski says. "Its 350,000 members are the cream of the German nation. Applicants must present a family tree pass, certifying pure Aryan ancestry back to 1750. They must be at least 5 feet 7 inches tall, in good health and at least eighteen years old. They must pass a rigid examination on their wholehearted Nazi beliefs and they are required to resign from church memberships, as Christianity is considered weakening.

"Himmler's chief problem is to keep his black-shirted executioners from succumbing to normal human influences, such as friendship, religion and domestic love. No battalion is allowed to serve in its home area, so when ordered to fire on civilian populations, they will be as heartless as their leader. They are not allowed to remain in one district long, lest they fraternize with the masses. Transfers currently take place on an average of every three weeks. This shuttling back and forth, plus the wait for special marriage permits from Hitler, cuts weddings to a minimum. But every official effort is made to provide these youths with less confining entertainment. Consequently, the S.S., or Schutzstaffel, supplies and supports homes for unwed mothers throughout the Reich."

"Himmler is not only Chief of Police, he is also chief fanatic," Grzesinski concludes. When Hitler dies, he is the only man who can carry on all the Fuehrer's fanatic drives and Hitler knows it. He leans on him today as never before."

MORGANSVILLE

"Fear God and keep His commandments." God has given life to us for a definite purpose—to prepare for Eternity. May each one of us hear that welcome plaudit, "Well done," when the nighttime of death wraps its shadows about us and we are called to give an account of our stewardship.

Folowing an extended illness of tuberculosis, the passing of John L. Hargis, 25, beloved young son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hargis, occurred Friday, Aug. 25, and is deeply mourned. His genial personality had endeared him to many friends and it was indeed a sad blow and a most grievous disappointment that he should be called as he stood upon the threshold of life, but "Neath withered hopes God's plans are blossoming.' On Monday morning requiem high mass was intoned at the St. Cecilia church, Independence, followed by burial in the church cemetery.

CONCORD

Philip Chapman, Warren Jones and Elsie Blair of Columbus, Ind., visited relatives here over the week end.

RAILROAD PRESIDENT KEEPS HUMAN TOUCH

"I can fool Wall Street fellows on a lot of things," William Martin Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific, declared recently, "but I can't fool the man in overalls. He's on the job and he knows what's going on."

Jeffers' philosophy is expressed in that speech, according to Hickman Powell, who interviewed the UP president for October Cosmopolitan magazine. Jeffers went to work for the railroad when he was fourteen and labored for the same company forty-seven years, "learning the business from the road-bed up," before he took over the presidency in 1937. It is significant that at a time when the railroads are the nation's greatest economic sob story, Jeffers' road is one of the exceptions. Powell says. It is still paying dividends. Its bonds are above par, and it is doing new things in railroading.

W. M. Jeffers

Jeffers' interest, not only in the 32,000 employees of the Union Pacific, but in practically all people, helped to bring about a small revolution in passenger transportation. He avoids grandeur and it was by ignoring his private car and riding in day coaches where he got into conversation with passengers which led to the creation of a new type of train, composed entirely of coaches and tourist sleepers, priced below the usual sleeping-car rates, Powell reports. Banishing railroad plush, he had cars redecorated, each in different colors. He air-conditioned day coaches, put in larger rest rooms and fewer seats, installed reclining chairs cushioned with sponge rubber, and individual reading lights so that overhead lights could be turned down at night. He put a porter on each car and provided every passenger with a clean pillow every day free of charge. One additional passenger in each car paid for this new service.

When people found out that it could be done cheaply and comfortably, they started traveling again, Powell relates. Coach and sleeper traffic multiplied four or five times.

In addition to pleasing customers, Jeffers has always been able to please the men who work for him, according to Powell. During the war, when the government operated the railroads and set up adjustment boards to take the place of strikes, officials in Washington noted with surprise that there was one major line without a single labor complaint against it. This was the Union Pacific from Omaha to Ogden where Bill Jeffers was general manager. For years he had handled the collective bargaining with the men and as one Brotherhood president remarked, "He is a hard, two-fisted bargainer, but he is always on the square and ready to do the right thing."

Jeffers is proud that the Union Pacific has always settled its disagreements with employees "on the property", without recourse to outside boards, Powell declares. He is proud of the people with whom he works and one of his hobbies is the organization of Old-Timers on the railroad. They turned out 7,500 strong for a dinner to celebrate his election to the presidency of the road and they believed him when he said that he had rather be president of the Union Pacific than President of the United States.

EAGLE TUNNEL

Gross-Webb

A quiet but very pretty wedding was solemnized Friday morning, Sept. 1st by Rev. Her bert Tinsley at the home of Mrs. Katie Gross, when her only daughter, Miss Gaynelle became the bride of Mr. Everett Webb of Warsaw.

Only the immediate family of the contracting parties were present.

Gaynelle is a very pretty and accomplished young lady with many friends. She is a graduate of the Kentucky Female School at Midway, Ky., and at the time of her marriage held a position as stenographer with the Straus Building & Supply Co., Lexington, Ky.

Everett is a graduate of Warsaw High school and is a successful businessman of Warsaw, a fine moral young man with many friends and worthy of the young lady of his choice.

The bride looked very sweet in a simple blue suit, her flowers being pink roses. The groom was attractively attired in a blue-green suit.

Immediately after the ceremony the happy young couple left for Detroit, Mich., and other northern points, but will be at home to their friends after Sept. 10 in Warsaw.

The Advertiser extends congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy life together.

O. B Courtney spent Sunday with his brother in Owen county, Will Courtney and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Duncan and family attended a family reunion at Cliffy Falls last Sunday.

Whitney A. Gross is first in this neighborhood to finish housing tobacco.

Mr. and Mrs. John Courtney were business callers in Glencoe, Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gross and little daughter were recent guests of his grandmother, Mrs. Addie Gross.

SPARTA

(Arrived Too Late for Last Week)

Tackett-Riley

On Saturday evening, August 26, Lawrence Joseph Riley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patsy Riley, of Sparta, married Miss Allie Mae Tackett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Tackett of Long Ridge, Ky.

This young couple, both nineteen years of age, were united in marriage at the St. Joseph parsonage in Warsaw, the Reverend Gerald Connelly performing the marriage ceremony. The groom's sister, Miss Emma Jean Riley, acted as bride's maid, and Mr. Richard Young, a life-long friend and companion of the groom, served as best man. This marriage was the culmination of a High school romance, and everyone knowing this young couple is interested in their future welfare. They both have a host of friends who join in wishing them many years of wedded bliss and prosperity.

Lawrence is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Riley and their first child to marry, while Allie Mae the the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. John Tackett. This couple will make their future home in Sparta, where Lawrence is employed at the Willadean Nursery.

A party of young friends accompanied the newly married couple to Cincinnati, after the ceremony for dinner and a recreational period. Those making this trip were Misses Emma Jean and Mary Margaret Riley, and Virgie Lee Baker, accompanied by Richard H. Young, Marshall Donnelly and John Will Nix. All reported a very nice time, on their return to Sparta. The bride and groom remained in Cincinnati until late Sunday night, the guests of relatives.

Miss Helen Weldon has returned to Cincinnati after spending a weeks vacation at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wilson, of Sparta.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice White, of Louisville are spending a few days vacation at the home of Mrs. White mother, Mrs. H. C. Records, Sparta.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Records, accompained by their married daughter Martha Belle and her husband, Mr. Maurice White, of Louisville have motored up to Indian Lake, Ohio, for a few days at the beach.

Mr. George McCormack, of Sparta will motor to Fort Benjamin Harrison, on Saturday morning, Sept., 2nd, to bring home with him his brother Edward Russell McCormack, and Gile K Riley, who have been in training at the C. M. T. C. for the past thirty days.

Our community was saddened this week, by the death of one of our best business men and citizens, Robert Griffith. Bob (as he was familiarly known to his friends) suffered a Paralytic stroke on last Saturday morning, at eleven o'clock, and passed away on Monday morning, Aug. 28th, at 8:15. He survivied by his devoted wife and widow, Virgie Griffith, one son, Gilmer, and two daughters, Hazel, the older girl who is married and lives in Detroit, and Margret, the youngest. The deep sympathy goes out to this bereaved family at this sad hour.

THIS IS THE WEEK at the Advertiser office to obtain free a very useful and beautiful fountain pen and pencil set. Ideal for children's school work.

Mack Hopson, Trigg county, has ordered 100 high-grade western ewes to add to his flocks.

Two hundred and fifty pounds of rye grass seed per acre was combined from a field pasture earlier by P. E. Lester, Lyon county.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ashcraft are the proud parents of a new daughter, born one day last week.

Mrs. Mamie Lohan of Detroit, Mich., called on old friends and acquaintances in the surroundings of Morning View and Bracht Station, Sunday, looking over and viewing the country of her childhood days: days that can never be forgotten; sweet memories cling to the past—childhood. "Make me a child again just for tonight, Mother!"

Mrs. B. F. Elliott was visiting in Georgetown, Sunday.

HOMEMAKER'S CLUB IS ORGANIZED AT FRANCESVILLE

The thirteenth Homemaker's club was organized last Thursday in the Francesville community, according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent. Those who were interested in starting a club met at the home of Mrs. Franklin Ryle.

Mrs. Sam Sleet, county President of Homemakers, and Mrs. Sibbia Reimer, a resident of the Hebron community, met with the women to explain work done in the Homemaker's Clubs.

After the organization was explained, the local group elected the following officers:

President, Mrs. Arthur Henson.
Vice President, Mrs. Franklin Ryle
Secretary and Treasurer, Miss Elizabeth Stoll.

Leaders of the Modern Kitchen project, Mrs. M. F. Judy, Mrs. John Cave and Mrs. Roosevelt Jackson, substitute.

The new club will meet every 3rd Tuesday in the home of a member.

Social Security News

Persons who were 65 years of age prior to January, 1937, may become fully insured under the amended Social Security Act, according to Frank B. Decker, Jr., manager of the Old-Age Insurance Bureau field office in Covington.

"Heretofore such persons formerly were excluded from monthly benefits but with the passage of the amendments it is possible for them to become fully insured. In order to do this such workers must earn at least $50 in each of six different calendar quarters after January 1, 1939.

"The wages of individuals who remain at work in commerce or industry after reaching 65 are now subject to the same payroll deductions and taxes as those of younger workers. These taxes will be collected back to January 1 of this year or back to the date, if it falls in 1939, when the individual attained age 65.

"After having become fully insured individuals in the manner indicated, these workers will be enlisted to monthly benefits when they retire from covered employment. In case such workers have wives who have also attained age 65, the latter will be entitled to supplemental benefits equal to half the monthly benefit of the insured worker. These benefits become payable, upon retirement, starting in January, 1940, to workers who have qualified under the amended Social Security Act," Mr. Decker said.

VINCENT LOPEZ TO BE AT KENTUCKY STATE FAIR, SEPTEMBER 11th TO 16th

Louisville, Ky. (Special)—Vincent Lopez, whose nimble fingers nightly have brought th lilting tune of "Nola" through your radio loudspeakers, will be in person at the Kentucky State Fair each night from September 11th through to the 16th, Managing Director Horace S. Cleveland today announced. Lopez will first play for the Horse Show, starting at 7.15 o'clock and at 10:15 retire to a specially constructed outdoor dance floor on the Midway to play for public dancing at ten cents a dance.

This same Lopez, who you will see leading his men through everything from popular music and light opera to the hop-and-skip jitterbug arrangements, is what many musicians call a "natural."

VERONA

Homemakers On Tour

The Verona Homemakers went on an interesting and delightful tour Friday, Sept. 1st for their regular monthly meeting.

They made a tour of the homes of the ladies who had participated in the different projects studied in the club during the year, under the leadership of Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration agent.

Seventeen ladies went on the tour. They met at the home of Mrs. W. T. Renaker and after viewing the display of articles she had completed in home improvement work, the group journeyed to the home of Mrs. W. B. McCormick, then to the homes of Mrs. Clara Vest, Mrs. Lola Wassom, Mrs. Lora Stephenson, Miss Lizzie Vest, Mrs. Arch Noel, Mrs. J. T. Roberts, Mrs. O. K. Powers, Mrs. JohnMyers and Mrs. Raymond Stephenson.

Forty-five articles had been completed by the members of the club in home improvement and the members are to be complimented on the splendid work they have done. Much credit is due Miss Gillaspie Home Demonstration Agent, as director in this work.

The Homemakers were so pleased to have as guests on the tour, Miss Russell, Home Demonstration agent of Carroll County, and Miss Ida C. Hagman of the Home Improvement Department, Extension Division of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, who offered constructive criticism and praise while visiting in the different homes and gave an interesting summary of her observation at the end of the tour.

The ladies were so enthusiastic that is was decided to have a tour again next year.

The next regular meeting of the Homemakers will be October 6th. New officers for the coming year will be installed at this meeting.

All members are urged to be present and visitors are cordially invited.

WRITER TURNS MODEL

JANE HALL, who posed for the cover of October Cosmopolitan, painted by Bradshaw Crandell, is one of the promising young writers of the fiction and movie field. Miss Hall, who is in her early twenties, commutes between New York and Hollywood. She has a passion for smart clothes, hats and accessories and a penchant for "21". New York's super nightspot. She had rather be considered a glamour girl than a successful writer and says her secret ambition was realized when Bradshaw Crandell asked her to pose for him. Miss Hall's constant companion is her wire-haired terrier, Kathleen Scarlett, better known as Kate, about whom there are fabulous stories. Kate flies across the continent with her mistress and is otherwise no mere dog.

INSURANCE FIGURES ATTEST POPULARITY

ONE out of every two persons in the United States buys insurance, Maxine Davis, prominent writer, declares in an article entitled: "Money for Future Delivery", in the October issue of Cosmopolitan. "There are more than 60,000,000 policy-holders and they carry $110,000,000,000 worth of insurance—seventy per cent of all the insurance written in the whole world," Miss Davis writes in citing many examples of the benefits of insurance.

The majority of policy-holders are men and women of moderate incomes, Miss Davis reveals. Eleven per cent of them earn less than $1,000 per year. Fifty per cent earn more than $1,000 but less than $2,000. Thirty per cent earn more than $2,000 but less than $3,50. Seven per cent make between $3,500 and $5,000 and only 2 per cent make more than $5,000.

"When you buy an insurance policy, you are buying money for future delivery," Miss Davis says. "Conditions vary from person to person and from company to company. One company offers at least 150 kinds of policies, but in all policies the central idea is the same. The policy is a contract between you and the company by which you meet certain provisions specified in the policy, and at some time in the future the company agrees to pay you certain specified sums of money."

"The insurance salesman is the only person who can give specific advice to you on insurance problems, so it is important to give him a complete picture of your financial situation. He can show you how to make a policy fit your needs," Miss Davis adds. "Buy your insurance for savings and protection."

Superintendent J. A. Caywood releases the following facts relating to the Kenton County School system:

The schools of Kenton county are administered by the Kenton County Board of Education. The board of education holds its regular meetings on the first Wednesday night of each month in the office of the superintendent of schools at the Simon Kenton building.

Two six year high schools and eight elementary schools are operated for a term of nine months. Not more than fifteen counties operate their schools for nine months. More than fifty percent of the counties of the state a seven month school.

There are 48 elementary teachers and 40 high school teachers employed. Kenton county does not maintain a colored school, the colored children being transported to the Lincoln Grant school in Covington.

Kenton county ranks high in the state in the qullifications of teachers and in salaries paid. Most of the teachers are college graduates. The number of college hours is in excess of 130 per teacher. The average monthly salary is in excess of $105.00.

The average enrollment last year was 2,528 pupils. Approximately 2,200 of these were transported to school.

The county operates a fleet of 31 buses. 29 of these are equipped with all steel bodies, shatter proof glass and other modern safety devices. No county in Kentucky can boast of a more modern up to date fleet of buses. The investment in transportation equipment is in excess of $40,000.00 and the annual cost of operation is approximately $21,000.

The tax rate for schools is 75 cents. There are two special taxing districts: Visalia and Park Hills.

Entries will be received at any of the cooperating stores or at the Chamber of Commerce. A number of valuable prizes will be awarded the winners.

$50. Reward Posted By Sheep Association

A reward of $50.00 for the arrest and conviction of any party or parties found guilty of stealing sheep or lambs from members of the Boone County Sheep Protective Association was unanimously voted by membrs at the first annual meeting of the Association, held at Burlington Court House recently, according to H. E. White, president. A member of sheep raisers over the county and especially in the Beaver Community have reported losses this year and the reward is offered as protection to Association members in addition to the regular dog loss insurance.

The Association reported a most sucessful year, which closed August 31. A surplus of $443.00 accumulated the first year and was placed in the Association's reserve to take care of future losses. All reported loss claims were paid in full. It was voted to maintain the 10c per head premium rate again this year to build up a still larger reserve to take care of any future unexpected losses that may occur. Th Association voted to give all old members thirty days of grace from August 31st to sign up for protection for the new 1939-40 year, beginning September 1st of this year and closing August 31st of 1940. All old members who sign up during the thirty day period are protected from loses.

One Hundred and two members insured 6,127 sheep, representing more than one-third of all adult sheep in the county, were protected the past year. It is expected that this number will be greatly increased this year. All sheep raisers are urged to sign up immdiately as the rate is the same whether insured for one month or twelve months for the year ending August 31st. No insurance will be issued new members who have suffered losses from dogs within the sixty day period, previous to application for insurance.

The rate is 10c per head for adult sheep, 20c per head for registered sheep and $1.00 initial fee for new members signing up for the first time. Losses are paid for by the Association at the close of the fiscal year.

The Owen County Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation of Owenton, was alloted $267,000. This alotment is for an extension proect in northern Kentucky and includes Boone, Kenton and Campbell counties.

About 120 miles of electric line will be constructed in Boone county, and this will serve 476 farmers. In Kenton county about 50 miles of line will serve 180 farmers, and in Campbell county, about 50 miles will serve 190 farmers.

These projects were submitted to Washington in April, and now that they have been approved, construction is expcted to start soon. Farmers in this section will be greaty benefited by this project, and they are, no doubt, pleased to learn of its approvement in Washington.

ADVERTISER HAVING MANY CALLS FOR PEN-PENCIL SETS

Hundreds Have Already Been Placed in Homes of This Section and Crest of Demand Just Arriving

EVERYONE IS DELIGHTED

Every Recipient Has Been Highly Pleased With the Beauty and Utility of These Fine Sets

Already the Advertiser has placed a good many more of the pen and pencil sets than we had anticipated at the opening of the campaign. We knew that we had a splendid premium and had obtained same on such favorable terms that we could offer it absolutely free. We did not know however, how easy it would be to convince our readers that we are offering them something really worth while.

However, as soon as calls were made at this office to view the display and the sets started going out into the hands of subscribers the demand took on a very healthy color indeed. Neighbors told neighbors of the fine premium that could be obtained from the Advertiser free and this with our own efforts to advertise the offer have resulted in a splendid showing to date. And, of course, the peak of the demand is just now arriving. While hundreds have already been in to secure their premium, hundreds more are due to take advantage of the offer before the end of the campaign.

Not Surprising

The fine results are really not surprising when one considers that the Advertiser is offering a premium with universal appeal, one adapted to the use of everyone and needed by every man, woman and child of school age. There is scarcely a reader of this paper who does not have daily use of writing equipment and rarely is there a home so well supplied that every member of the family has own individual pen and pencil sets. Hence, the premium we offer is one that can be utilized to an advantage in every home.

This universal need and adaption along with the fact that the Advertiser is giving the sets away absolutely free explains very clearly why the offer is proving so highly successful.

Another factor is the high quality of these sets and the fact that they are fully guaranteed. Each set carries a guarantee slip.

Sets Ideal for School

Children and parents are finding these sets ideal for school requirements and that is one reason why so many of these premiums are moving out. Parents can make a substantial saving by getting these sets for their children. More than one set easily obtainable, simply by paying for additional subscriptions for yourself, relatives or friends.

Easy to Obtain.

The Advertiser has made it very easy to obtain one or more of these remarkable fine writing sets. The only requirement is to pay $1.50 for a year's subscription to this newspaper, the regular established price for many years, and a set is yours free. The payment can be for a renewal subscription or a new one. The offer is made on the same basis to everyone without any restrictions or stipulations and regardless of whether your subscription is now due or does not expire for several months. In the latter case your subscription will be extended a full year from the expiration date.

More than one set can be obtained by any reader as we are giving a set with each $1.50 paid. You can pay your own subscription for two or more years, your own sub. and that of as many relatives and friends as you desire, or should your own subscription be paid for in advance, you can pass up your own and pay for as many others as you care to. We'll give you a handsome set with each $1.50 paid us for subscription and let us say as to whose credit the subscriptions are to be entered.

Offer Nearing End

While there is still ample time to take advantage of this very remarkable offer, the fact remains that it is drawing towards a close. Final dateof offer is Saturday, September 23, a matter of only the remaining days of this week and next week.

Subscribers living at a distance or finding it inconvenient to call at this office, should mail their remittance within the next few days. Remember, we will mail the set to our address or to any address you designate provided you add five cents for postage.

Better make arrangements now to get your set or sets. The offer will soon be over.

Not With Impunity—

Some time ago the Macon, Georgia, Telegraph said: "It would be a genuine contribution to the straight-thinking of the American people if it could be realized, once and for all, that no government can violate economic laws with impunity, and the misuse of the taxing power as an excuse for regimentation and dictation is one of those blunders which amount to a crime."

This statement was occasioned by the situation in the Macon business district. Georgia has a stiff anti-chain tax law. And one immediate result of the tax was to depress rental value, and to empty store properties. In Macon, at the time the Telegraph wrote, 40 to 50 store buildings, representing a value of about $200,000, were empty. One-half of them had formerly been occupied by chains. And locations which had formerly brought as much as $60 a month could not find tenants even when offered at $25.

This, as the newspaper also said, has taken place throughout Georgia. And it has taken place in other states where punitive, class taxation and legislation have gone into effect. Business can "take it" just so long. Then it much succumb to the flows of the destructionists. One result is suinous decline in rental values. Another is a sharp decrease in employment. Onother is a reduction in general purchasing power. Another is the loss of normal taxes to all units of government. Another is an artificial increase in the cost of living.

This isn't just a "chain store problem." The chains are simply a current illustration of whot punitive treatment of business means to the people. It is a general problem, affecting all business, and all people. No truer words were ever written than the Telegraph's observation that "No government can violate economic laws with impunity."

:o:

Fair Prices Wanted—

The efforts of the leading agricultural marketing cooperative organizations to better the wholesale prices paid for farm products does not necessarily mean that the ultimate selling price to the consumer must likewise be increased.

The farmers realize as well as anyone else that any attempt to "stick" the public would be eventually suicidal. But they know that more efficient and economical methods of distribution can make it possible to give the farmer a fairer return—and also give the consumer the reasonable price he is entitled to.

As a result, these marketing organizations are working constantly on distribution problems, along with production problems. They are doing much to cut down in-between costs and to stabilize and balance markets. This work is directly in the interest of the consumer, as well as the producer.

An Opportunity for Congress—

It is a highly significant fact that the comparative conservatism in fiscal matters shown by the last Congress has invigorated business. The refusal of Congress, especially in the closing weeks, to endorse more fiscal lunacy has, in the view of various authorities, become a tangible influence in the interest of industrial recovery.

That being true, think what would result from a genuine economy program, based on a realistic survey of the nation's great tax and deficit problem. Think what would happen if our lawmakers said flatly that no additional taxes will be imposed—that the day of unbalanced budgets must end—and that a real start will be made toward orderly reduction of the debt, and to balancing outgo with income.

The consequence of such a policy would be to open up great new reservoirs of productive investment—and to put an army of unemployed men and women to work. For nothing can be so discouraging to industry and commerce as a continuous policy of "deficit financing" by government. Nothing can do more to increase the vast ranks of the jobless.

"In a few months Congress will meet again. And it will face a great opportunity—an opportunity to adopt a policy of fiscal sanity that will dispel today's widespread fears of potential national bankruptcy, and will give the industries of the country the chance to expand, to progress, to employ, to build, that they seek. Nothing could be of greater or more permanent benefit to this troubled nation.

:o:

Farm Loans Declined—

During the first six months of 1939, there were 8,697 farms purchased through financing by the Federal Land Banks, which a government report says shows is a decline in the number of loans by the Federal agencies that amounts to 14 per cent as compared with the corresponding period of 1938.

:o:

Washington and War—

Perhaps it is fortunate that Congress is not in session to stimulate discussion of European war issue. Politicans, great and small, get awfully excited in times like these.

Our Washington correspondent informs us that the National Capital appears to be an outstanding "isolationist" among all the great cities of the country, in which screaming headlines and screeching radios broadcast important war events down to the most minute detail.

When left alone by the politicians the Capital City lines up for all the sensible "neutrality" ideals that are neutral enough to amount to something when it comes to keeping our country out of this European mess.

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5582 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

The first and only time I ever saw Theodore Roosevelt was while he was President of the U. S. He paid a visit to Cincinnati by attending the Fall Festival, and made a speech to an overflow house at Music Hall. All the city was out to pay tribute and see a real live President. Standing room was at a premium. I stood upon a country wagon which was filled with country folks.

As the presidential party passed our way, everyone was clapping for the President. A lady standing by me, said which one is the President? She was told that the man with his hat off and bowing to the people and grinning the famous Roosevelt grin (which did not help his looks any) was the President.

She burst out in astonishment, "Land sakes is that plain, ugly looking man the President of the United States? If I had known he was such a looking man, I would not have gone to all the trouble to come to see him. I would have stayed at home. My husband John is a much better looking man than he." I have an idea she went home disgusted.

I was not interested in his looks, but wanted to hear him speak; as soon as he passed I hiked to Music Hall and got the best seat in the balcony to hear what the President had to say. I am always glad to listen to any man or woman who knows more than I do and will tell me something worth while, although I may not agree with he or she. That was how I felt when I went to hear Mr. Roosevelt, as he was a Republican and I did not agree with his party. However, I gave him strict attention. When he got through, I said to myself, I am an admirer of Roosevelt, for when it comes to real principles for the good of the people, he is bigger and better than his party.

I often told my Republican friends that Roosevelt was a Democrat in principles and that he was too good for a certain brand of Republicans which was the reason he fought the big interests and bolted his party. I classed Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Bryan both bigger than their parties and our country in general have come to grief for not following their principles. They would not have stood for so many mergers & combines of big interests which have helped to bankrupt the country.

Our so-called leaders and politicians have been paying too much attention to minor issues. The saddest part of it all is that too little mention is made of the two great men and their principles.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

Washington doesn't, as some may surmise, merely hum and drowse and swat flies between sessions of Congress. A great deal of important activity is taking place these days on the banks of the sluggish Potomac.

Late summer and early fall activity at the national capital might be conveniently divided into two general classifications. The first of these might be called "wireworks." That's the news that goes off with a big bang and thick, black inky headlines. Into this group would probably go much of the governmental hard work that results from the present jangled state of European nerves, work that has kept State Department windows ablaze with light many a night lately. Also included here would be the investigations of the Dies Committee, aiming to show the identity that exists among all the foreign "isms," and making it clear that all of them are equal menaces to our free American institutions — religious and civil freedom, representative democcracy, and the system of private enterprise.

The second classification of Washington activity would include news of a non-pyrotechnical variety. It doesn't set people to shouting in the streets, but it's frequently every bit as important to the welfare of the individual American as the stuff that makes the front pages.

An example of this latter class occurred just the other day when the Treasury Department issued a bulletin that trained observers immediately recognized as important for a number of reasons. The bulletin was the first part of a comprehensive study of Federal, state and local fiscal operations which is projected by the Treasury as the first step towards finding out what tax reforms are most necessary in this country.

The fact that Secretary Morgenthau's department is laying the groundwork for a better and sounder tax structure is, of course, cheering news. But the momentary impression, as one reads the present report and tries to make the figures come alive, is naturally one of gloom. "Naturally" is the inevitable word, for the bulletin shows all too forcibly the treacherous character of the swamp into which heavy spending and the theories in back of it have led this country and its taxpayers.

And, incidentally, almost all of us are taxpayers, including the one out of four in this country who answered a Galluu poll by solemnly declaring that they pay no taxes.

Perhaps the point that first hits the eye in the Treasury report is the fact that in the past six years the tax revenues of all governments in this country have increased 79.6 per cent, from about 8¼ billion dollars to well over 14¾ billions. That means an average tax burden of about $114 for every man, woman and child in the United States, which brings the load for a typical family to $456.

There might, of course, be a ray of sunshine even in the prospect of so heavy a tax on the individual family if the high rates were made necessary by a real drive to bring the budget into balance and start the hard work of paring down the national debt. But with the best estimators holding that 1939 governmental expenditures are going to be around two billion dollars higher than last year's, even that ray seems pale and ineffectual.

One other point brought out by the Treasury figures deserves the attention of all of us. This particular information is contained in a chart which breaks down last year's spending according to the various governmental functions. The largest single item—over three billion dollars—goes for relief, welfare and social security, and serves to emphasize that the first problem to be solved if we are to have a reasonable fiscal situation is that of giving business encouragement so that it can go forward with the expansion that means jobs and more payrolls.

The next two items are expenses which no citizen begrudges paying—governmental outlay for education and for streets and highways. But the fourth largest item is another sore thumb; it totals $1,639,000,000 and goes to pay interest on the government debt.

The "interest" item is the one to watch, for it represents the amount that the government must pay on the line to keep its credit good. It's the valve that serves to indicate when the debt limit is boiling dangerously high. And the present Treasury report shows the mercury far, far up with no present sign of coming down.

As mentioned before, the facts and figures are a bitter and oversized pill to swallow. But in the very fact that the Treasury Department is making an effort to determine the extent and nature of the whole fiscal problem lies the most heartening sign along this particular line in a long time. It may mean that next session Congress and the Treasury, working together can really start out to reduce what one wit aptly called "the liening tower" of government taxing and spending.

HOUSE-CLEANING

Once each year the average husband decides that he has sufficient grounds for a divorce; it is the occasion of the annual spring house-cleaning. There are many other days when nobody knows where some things are, but at this season, everything is lost. And yet, in spite of the discomfort of the season, I think I prefer the modern type of house-cleaning to the one I knew as a boy.

There were so many things to do in house-cleaning that I may not remember all of them. All the furniture had to be taken out into the yard, dusted, revarnished, and treated to prevent bedbugs. Corrosive sublimate was the drug used in my neighborhood for this last-named work. We took a turkey or chicken feather, soaked it in the medicine, and ran it around in the joints of the beds. It is vile-smelling stuff and apparently does its work well. I still feel bad when I think how much beautiful wood was painted or varnished over. Man of the choicest antiques of our times have been discovered by removing many layers of varnish or paint.

The carpets formed a unit of the work of cleaning house. The old one had to be taken up, and the straw and dust removed from beneath it. That was hard, dirty work, for the tacks that we nailed the carpet down with were difficult to remove; finger nails and tempers were much worse off after this process was finished. Then we had to scrub the floor and leave it for a while to dry. We put straw down for the new carpet, laid the fresh-smelling carpet down on it, and then, by violating all known laws of physics, lifted it and ourselves and tacked it down securely. At first there was spring in the carpet, until the straw got flattened out. Dust was strangely absent, too, until it got soaked into the rags and warp of the carpet. The fresh smell of colored carpet warp made the house seem new for days.

Paint and whitewash had their part in the housecleaning. Every few seasons the baseboard and window and door frames had to be repainted. The hearth, dull and unsightly after the long winter, had to be painted with Venetian red, whatever that is. The fire screen, hidden away in the attic during the winter, was brought out and given a new coat of wall paper and some fresh pictures. Wall paper itself was not so very common in my part of the world, as most of the houses were ceiled rather than plastered. Some houses had paper, though, and had to be restored at rare intervals. In earlier times it was customary to whitewash where we now paint. That house-cleaning was no joke, even in colonial and Revolutionary times, is shown in "Whitewashing," one of the essays of Hopkinson, who must have felt rather keenly the upset of this annual spring rite.

The feather duster, made of large turkey feathers, must be passing away. In other times we used it to stir up the dust that had settled on the furniture. Oiled rags were not known then. Some of the dusters were quite fancy, being made of peacock feathers. Any kind, however, could make dust fly, just the thing we are told now it should not do.

SUBURBAN FEDERAL SAVINGS and LOAN ASSOCIATION

COVINGTON —:— KENTUCKY

Suburban Federal Savings and Loan Association, located at 1912 Madison Avenue, Covington, is beyond doubt one of the most influe ntial organizations in this section, offering the people excellent service in the line of Home Building and Saving, facilities and are enjoying splendid returns for their efforts.

At the Suburban Federal Savings and Loan Association will be found men who have made a careful study of local conditions in this community and are therefore familiar with every detail of this comprehensive service. Your estate may already be established or it may be in the making. Whatever the case may be, you are adding to it with wise financial investments or subtracting from it with interest and bonus on borrowed money to tide you over the rough spots in the road. They are offering you a secure investment that will protect you and yours from the deteriorating investment, an investment that assures a consistent gain to your personal estate, with a high rate of earnings. Another important factor, please do not overlook, the money invested with this association is loaned to local people to build or buy a home. Therefore, by placing your funds with this association you are helping to build a bigger and better community.

Remember, no matter how small the sum may be you wish to invest, that it will be handled at their office in Covington to your satisfaction and give you prompt service and returns on the investment as they have always stood ready to assist in every way possible in the upbuilding of the community.

We wish to compliment Suburban Federal Savings and Loan Association upon their success and recommend its service to all our readers.

HAEHNLE PROVISION CO.

— Their Meat Products Are Sold In Kentucky Only —

Haehnle Provision Co., located at 309 W. Twelfth St., Covington, all their products are high class and made under the most sanitary conditions and they offer the trade the best of service. An institution that has prospered under the direction of men who are thoroughly abreast of the times.

Thus this concern merits your consideration and the support both of the farmers and the public. While their products are on sale in the local stores they sell all over the state of Kentucky. Here at home the products are very popular and are endorsed by discriminating people. This however is a small part of their business as they ship to all parts of Kentucky where their products find a large and ready sale.

People should always demand their brands as they are a local product and of superior flavor. The grocers and meat dealers are always able to secure them as this firm makes rapid delivery.

This popular plant is one of the leading industries. They employ a number of people who are boosters. The success of the Haehnle Provision Co. has been marked and is the result of their high grade goods and the fact they have always asked fair prices and given the best of service.

We are pleased to compliment the Haehnle Provision Co., Covington, and to give them in this review the prominent position that their reliable policies have merited. We assure our readers that at this establishment they will receive the best of products.

BOONE-KENTON LUMBER CO.

ERLANGER —:— KENTUCKY

— Complete Line of Building Materials and Lumber —

This community is indeed fortunate in having such an up-to-date and pogressive firm that carries a complete line of lumber and building material. The material they furnish is guaranteed as to quality and adopted standards.

The lumber used in any building should be choice. You may be assured of maximum lumber values when you purchase your materials from The Boone-Kenton Lumber Company, located at 219 Crescent in Erlanger.

You will always find their immense stock complete, whether you require a few pieces or an enormous order. Take your lumber and building material needs to The Boone-Kenton Lumber Co.

They add in no little way to the progress and prosperity of the community. Thousands of dollars are brought in annually through this progressive business that would otherwise go to some other trade center. They employ many local men who would have to seek employment elsewhere.

It is not strange that their patronage is ever increasing. You may depend upon what they tell you about lumber and building material for they are absolutely reliable and dependable and an authority upon the subject.

Let them give you an estimate on your next lumber bill and they will assist you in securing the best at most reasonable prices. In making this business review we desire to direct your special attention to this concern as one of the distinctive factors of the industrial efficiency of this section.

KAYS LAUNDRY & CLEANING

—SERVING NORTHERN KENTUCKY —

Kays Laundry and Cleaning, Inc., located at 208-210 Greenup Street, in Covington is one of the most important factors in the community. They will return your clothing and linens clean, sweet smelling, sanatry and at the cost actuallyless than you would pay for work of a similiar character done in the home. You have saved your energy for more important tasks of the home.

The family washing service of this popular establishment will do more than cut in half the work of the household. You can have it rough dry that is flat pieces dried, with garments starched ready to iron; or the finished family wash everything ready to use.

For draperies, curtains, garments, rugs, etc., the Kays Laundry and Cleaning, Inc., offers a specialized service. And the most particular folks are usually the most enthusiastic over their resuts.

Their cleaning keeps tink tots clothes like new. Discounts the hard usage children give them and every germ is eliminated and all the cleverness of style is restored.

Its really surprising how the cleaning of this popular concern so completely rejuvenates your garments-replacing grime and soil with a crisp freshness that fairly speaks. There remains no odor no grases to catch the dirt. Send it to Kays Laundry and Cleaning, Inc.

We are glad to in this business review to compliment the Kays Laundry and Cleaning, Inc., in Covington upon the efficiency of its service and upon the leading position they occupy.

The Peoples Liberty Bank & Trust Co.

COVINGTON —:— KENTUCKY

The peoples-Liberty Bank and Trust Co., located at 6th and Madison Avenue, in Covington is under the direction of well known financiers who have guided this bank to substantial progress is evidenced by the large business it enjoys and its enviable reputation for safety of its patrons.

One of the institutions that gives stability to the financial and commercial interests of the country is this modern banking house. From the day that it first opened its doors to the people it has always been under the management of conservative yet progressive men. Those in charge are men of broad and liberal views in the matter of caring for their patron's needs and have carefully guarded the best interests of the depositors by demanding the fullest security and adhering to the cardinaly law of finance. This invariable policy has gained for this well known bank the greater confidence of the people of all the surrounding country and among its customers you will find some of the community's most prominent men and firms.

The trust department is a most accommodating feature of the institution and preforms all of the numerous duties incumbent upon the comprehensive service of this department. The are prepared to act as trustee, executor, guardian, or in any judiciary capacity whatever.

The individual cannot render the same service and satisfactory service of this character as can the trust company organized and equipped for the purpose because in such work it is responsible, expert, tireless and death less. It is never sick, incapocitated or away, it is always impartial and unprejudiced.

We wish to compliment the Peoples-Liberty Bank and Trust Co. in Covington, its officers and directors and direct the attention of all our readers to this strong financial institution.

BUSINESS REVIEW

Edited By J. E RUSSELL

STAFFORDSBURG

The Homemakers club met for its first session at the home of Mrs. George Klein on Thursday, Sept. 7th. The business meeting scheduled for the forenoon resulted in the election of the following officers: Mrs. W. E. Hanna, president; Mrs. D. Binder, vice president; Mrs. S. Marshall, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Bluch Rich, publicity chairman; Mrs. L. J. Rapp and Mrs. J. A. Keeney, project leaders. At noon a delicious luncheon of sandwiches, salad and cake was served. Following luncheon a report of the style trend meeting which was held recently at Coppins was given by Mrs. Klein and Mrs. Keeney. After a short talkfest we were dismissed to meet next month at the home of Mrs. S. Marshall.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ervin of Middletown, Ohio have been on a trip to the fair at New York and were breakfast guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hanna, Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Armstrong entertained Sunday for the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Binder, R. L. Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Hoffman, and Mr. and Mrs. David Gatewood.

The Young People's class had an enjoyable devotional preceding the lesson period at Sunday School. Won't you come?

Miss Ruth Keeney has returned from a few weeks stay at Mackinach, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Ballinger and son and Geo. Ballinger and Miss Nannie spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Maddox, who were entertaining for Mr. and Mrs. Russell Daugherty who were very recently married.

Mr. and Mrs. Lybran Richardson and children have spent sveral days with her mother Mrs. Jno. Klein, who has been quite ill, but who is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Folmer, Mrs. Folmer, Misses Helen Richardson and Hope Keeney with Mrs. Forest Popp attended the Indiana State Fair at Indianapolis, Tuesday.

We will hear our new pastor, Rev. Kidwell on Sunday, Sept. 17. Come out and lets greet him with a full house. This is encouraging to pastor and people. Come let us worship together. In our Sunday School lesson for Sept. 10th was brought out the fact that spiritual preparedness is more important than military preparedness.

Paul Keeney enjoyed a weekend in Eastern Kentucky.

BRACHT STATION

School in Kenton county opened Monday, Sept. 11th with a large attendance reported.

Mrs. Jesse Sebree and son Donald have been visiting friends and relatives in Virginia and other points for the past ten days.

The drowth was broken by the nice rain last week, which was very badly needed in this section.

Mrs. Geo. Monohan was in town shopping, Saturday.

Clarence Riley and wife and Mr. Riley's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson of Sherman, were in Covington, Tuesday, shopping.

We understand, but sorry to report, we have had some turkey thieves in our midst. Sorry we can't locate these raiders. Seems as though there could be some way that we could rid the community of these troublesome and evil people. Those who will not work and try to make their living in this manner is of no use to themselves or any one else. So why not let us get busy to catch these indolent, evil minded raiders.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Walton visited Mrs. Walton's mother at Paris, a few days last week.

E. F. Bales is the proud possessor of a new radio presented him by his son, Curtis Bales, of Covington.

Several from this vicinity attended the fair at Carthage, Ohio, and all report a nice time.

News is scarce—except War news. Let us not get too enthused over the war. The United States is not fighting and let us trust in the All Mighty that we don't, and try to help and save Democracy for the United States by keeping our emotions down and our intelligence up—for we can't afford another war.

BEAVER LICK

Rev. R. A. Johnson will conduct regular services at the Baptist church, Sunday, Sept. 17 at 2:30 p. m. You are invited.

Rev. R. M. Baldwin, who has been pastor of Hughes Chapel for the past three years, leaves this week for his new charge at Washington, Mason county. We regret very much losing Bro. Baldwin and family from the community, but join in welcoming Rev. Godbey and family.

School opened at New Haven on Monday, with a full attendance. There have been a number of changes in the faculty this year.

A number of our ladies are making plans to attend the annual meeting of Homemakers clubs at Florence, Monday of next week.

J. H. FEDDERS' SON

— COMPLETE PURINA and UBIKO FEEDS —

J. H. Fedder' Sons located at 16th and Russell in Covington is a reliable firm is one of the most universally known grain and feed dealers in this community. It is under the able management of a very efficient and experienced man.

They are able to furnish you with all kinds of pure seeds. In buying seeds here you are assured of maximum results in production as well as an improvement in the quality of your products.

Their complete line of Purina and Ubiko dairy feeds and supplies have proved to be a boom to many large stock feeders. Their poultry feed is beyond comparison for baby chicks just out of thee incubator and for laying hens. When in need of such feed call at J. H. Fedders' Sons in Covington.

They understand feeding and will gladly assist you in solving your problems. Don't hesitate to consult them for dependable information.

This establishment is among the most progressive institutions of this section. They are familiar with all phases of this business and are ever striving to serve the public to mutual advantage.

We take great pleasure in this Business Review in commending them upon their fair and honest business methods and direct our attention to this concern as one of the important features of the community's commercial efficiency.

THE YATES LUMBER CO., INC.

LATONIA —:— KENTUCKY

The Yates Lumber Co., located at Church and Daniels Streets in Latonia has become an important factor in the development of this section of the country. The guiding influence of this company has always been a determination to furnish the highest grade of building materials at a reasonable price, so that the extension and beautification of the community can progress rapidly.

Let them serve you with your next order of building material and you will get the good, permanent, well seasoned sort that builds for permanency, rather than increase costs that occur when the buildings have to be gone over when the structure settles.

There is no one establishment in this community that has greater influence for the beterment of the building indusry. Contractors and the public in genral have come to know that whatever they desire in the builders supply line can be secured from this firm, with a knowledge that will be of the best grade consistent with price.

The management extends to the people of this community a cordial invitation to call at their office and any information will be gladly given no matter whether you wish to buy at this time or not.

We are pleased in this edition to give commendable mention to the Yates Lumber Co., Inc., and assure the public that they will receive the best of service and any information that is desired will be given in a most courteous manner. It is to your advantage to transact business with them in the buider supply line.

Covington Wood Carving Co.

There is no company more worthy of extended mention in this review than Covington Wood Carving Co., located at 551 Pike Street in Covington, which is under the direction of a man thoroughly familiar with every feature of the business and has become one of the most important assets of the community.

This is the day and age when the public demands magnanimous service. Thoroughly familiar with the conditions and a wide experience in the wood carving business the management of this enterprising concern has been able to render a service in their line that is distinctly satisfactory. Prompt service at most reasonable price possible has been the guiding influence of their policies and it has brought them trade from all this section.

The management is a man of long and practical experience in this business and is considered an authority in all that pertains to the opration of a modern wood carving establishment. They are of the foremost business men of Covington and vicinity and have aided in the development of this community.

This establishment is not only a well equipped and expertly operated concern, but it is one of the leading industrial and commercial organizations of Covington, and renders a service that is necessary to the onward progress of the community.

In making this review of the onward progress of the section we compliment them on the manner in which the business of this institution in operated; upon the progerssive and public spirited policies.

T. W. SPINKS COMPANY

BUILDING MATERIALS and COAL

COVINGTON, KY. —:— ERLANGER, KY.

T. W. Spinks Co., located at 1512 Russell, in Covington and Dixie Highway at Erlanger. Plants are strictly modern and up-to-date in every particular and are equipped with the very latest modern machinery. The scientists that have given this matter careful study have decided what is more efficient and have adopted the machinery just as soon as it has received their approval. The building brick have no superior and vast quantities shipped to every point of the compass have met with commendation of the purchasers and have greatly aided in building up this section of the country.

In this section particularly industrial progress has been benefitted by them. There is nothing more important than the continued development of the building industry and their products aids in maintaining the volume of building and expansion in the city and surrounding territory. This is the prominent firm in this line being one of the firms that has been selected by the county officials to supply the greatst part of the brick for public building projects.

T. W. Spinks Co., in Covington and Erlanger, is under the direction of progressive business men who are thoroughly conversant with every ture of the business. They have been responsible for the tremendous strides to the front that this large concern has made and together with heir associates have always been a booster for the community. They have been ready and willing at all times to lend assistance to all propositions that promised aid to the development of the city and community. They sell paving and building brick and tile.

ST. ELIZABETH HOSPITAL

COVINGTON —:— KENTUCKY

St. Elizabeth Hospital, located at 21st and Eastern Avenue, Covington, is convenient for the people from all over this section of the country.

The very finest of equipment, careful nursing and the most able professional services are features of this hospital. Featu res general hospital service. Are prepared to take care of emergency cases.

This well known hospital occupies commodious quarters, is excellently appointed and the clinic and kitchen are most modernly equipped. The rooms are all well furnished and pleasant in every way. Cheerfulness and an air of hope are inspired by the furnishings which have been selected by the decorators with this idea in view.

They give all patients a thorough examination and during treatment they are cared for by nurses who are able, painstaking and follow the directions of the medical department.

They are always prepared to take care of urgent cases in the most rapid and efficient manner, but it is always best for those who are expecting to go to the hospital to make arrangements in advance. This insures a private room and many conveniences. The special department for emergency is always ready for any unforseen service.

As the purpose of this review edition is to give the outside world an adequate idea of our social, industrial, artistic and professional progress, we deem it quite appropriate to call the attention of the public to the efficiency and great work that is being carried on at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington.

THE MODEL LAUNDRY CO.

COVINGTON, KY. —:— CINCINNATI, OHIO

To have your laundry returned satisfactorily cleaned at the right price send it to the Model Laundry Co., located at 720 Madison Avenue in Covington, and general offices at 2364 Reading Road, and four branch offices in Cincinnati. This institution offers prompt and pleasing service to all kind of laundering. Give them a trail.

This popular laundry is one of the most modern and up-to-date establishments in this section of the country. Their work is guaranteed to give satisfaction. They are famous for the snowy luster of the linens they turn out.

They have installed a system of machinery that will turn out a great volume of excellent laundry work, at a price that will drive drudgery and worry out of the home. You may have you laundry taken care of on any service desired and one trial will convience you.

The Model Laundry Co., will return your cothes to you immaculate and you are thus relieved of the wash day drudgery.

Their service is prompt and unequaled. You may select any style of service to suit your budget, no matter how large or how small. Sending our clothing to the laundry is the simplest method of disposing of your laundry problems.

That The Model Laundry Co., is pleasing the people is shown by their ever increasing business. Housewives are learning that it does not pay to do their own laundry, that this laundry does your washing much cheaper than you can do it.

In this Business Review we wish to congratulate the people of this community upon having such a reliable, up-to-date establishment among them. We wish also to compliment the management upon their modern and upto-date service.

OHIO GRAVEL CO.

—Largest Sand and Gravel Distributors In This Section —

Did it ever occur to you why an architect or a construction engineer will always specify that the sand and gravel shall come from the plant of a reputable dealer in these communities? It is because each material that enters into good construction should be of a kind and quality that by test is proven to be the best. To the average person sand is sand and gravel is gravel, but it is of the utmost importance to a construction job of any kind to knew just what particular grade it is proper to use to insure the best result.

The Ohio Gravel Co., located at 5225 Eastman Avenue, Cincinnati, has gained an enviable reputation throughout the state as a reputable dealer in sand and gravel for every purpose The contractors and the public in general should exercise great care and use only the very best products, for while sand and gravel are not of major consequence as regards to cost, they become most important as a base for the project they enter into. These products may be likened unto the key stone of the arch, a small and apparently inconsequental thing in itself, but without which the structure is not complete.

Ohio Gravel Company has furnished vast quantities of its products to public and private enterprises throughout a large section of the country, stimulating and aiding in the progress of many of our communities. Their plant is equipped with every modern appliance for the economical and proper handling of their sand and gravel, and their business methods are of a high character. We wish them every success, for this is one of our most worthy and important institutions.

DR. GEORGE V. FLAIG

— OPTOMETRIC EYE SPECIALIST —

Dr. Geo. V. Flaig located in Covington ton Trust Bldg., 6 Street and Madison Avenue. Second floor at Covington, has had long experience as a specialist in correcting visional defects of the eye. Immediate attention to these delicate organs may save you much inconvenience and ense. His large patronage speaks for the quality of service.

Some of us inherit eyes subject to certain defects. Other of us have taken bad care of our eyes when we were children. Any inherited weakness or any mistratment of the eyes may cause us to need glasses. Because of the delicateness of th eyes no one but an expert should be allowed to examine and correct our vision. A mistake may mean a handicap for life in the way of extremely dfective sight.

Dr. Flaig's office is equipped to fit you perfectly with glasses. Back of his work is not only his reputation and experience but his personal guarantee. His glasses must give satisfaction.

If your eyes are causing you any trouble whatsoever, the wisest move is to see him immediately. Your trouble may be only slight and capable of being corrected at once with the proper glasses. Immediate attention of such matters may save you much expense and inconvenience.

If you have children it is a wise thing to have regular examination made of their eyes, along with a complete physical examination. Dr. George V. Flaig, has made a special study of the trouble affecting children's eyes, and he will be glad to give you the most expert advice on the matter.

This publication is glad to recommend this experienced optometrist to all its readers. He is a professional man of wide knowledge and experience, and a valued citizen in the community.

H. EILERMAN & SONS, Inc.

— CELEBRATING ITS 55th ANNIVERSARY —

H. Eilerman and Sons, Inc., located at Pike and Madison in Covington and 818 Monmouth in Newport.

Every purse and every taste is satisfactorily served in this store for men and boys.

H. Eilerman and Sons, Inc., are now celebrating their 55th Anniversary with a sale in every department of their stores. They handle only reliable and quality goods and offer an individual service that is a pleasing youth can here satisfy his desire

In their large and varied stock anyone can find his favorite cut and color combinations and still be assured of the most up-to-date styles in clothing. The descriminating youth can her satisfy his desire for distinction and personal performance at a price he feels he can afford to pay.

This dependable concern takes a just pride in being prepared to economically clothe the men. They not only carry a large and representative line of clothing for men and young men but are equally well prepared to supply your needs in hats. All quality goods, priced to sell rapidly and in seasonable styles and colorings. It has always been the custom at this popular clothing house to give the public up-to-date merchandise in every case.

The sales persons here will be found courteous and tireless in their efforts to serve you. Truly this is an ideal place to supply your needs in general haberdashery.

In this business review we are glad of the opportunity to commend H. Eilerman and Sons, Inc., in Covington and Newport, to the men and boys of this section and can assure them of the squarest kind of a square deal at this clothing store.

WITH THE REDS

Cincinnati:—The Reds have now returned home for their final stay at the old lot and are steeling themselves to fight off the assaults of their hostile National League rivals.

Tuesday the Reds were to have started a dangerous phase of their schedule that calls for twenty-three games in 17 days. The Brooklyn Dodgers were to inaugurate the season's climax with games Tuesday and Wednesday. On Thursday Bill Terry and his New York Giants, only club in the circuit to have an edge on the Reds for the season's play, will arrive for double-headers that day and Friday and a single game Saturday.

Successive double-headers with the Boston Bees will be played on September 17 and 18, and then the Philadelphia Phils will enter the Crosley arena for three single contests.

The Pittsburgh Pirates will battle the Reds in twin bills on September 22 and 23 and a single game on the 24th. The Sept. 22 game will be ladies' day. Then comes a blessed day of rest before the Reds tackle the St. Louis Cardinals, who have had their sights trained on the Redlegs all season, in a twin bill on September 26 and single games September 27 and 28. The September 27 game will be the last ladies' day of the season.

The Reds will end their season's play by meeting the Pittsburgh Pirates in Pittsburgh on September 29, 30, and October 1.

MORGANSVILLE

"Love your enemies." Loving our enemies is not hard when we realize they too are one of God's great plan. When we find fault with another person, we are in truth finding fault with God's great handiwork. Every diamond is crude until it is polished. So too, with a soul. It may seem crude in outward appearances, but there is a spark of divinity in every heart. Perhaps just a kind word or a smile may change the whole attitude of one who lacks in spiritual development. May these words help erase hatred and bring out the very finest.

Charles Otis Morgan has returned home after a pleasant visit with Independence relatives.

POPULAR CLRENDON ARK. GIRL MARRIED IN KENTUCKY

On Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Thos. H. Wallace and the Misses Wallace, Miss Irma de Weese Hill, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. S. T. Hill of Clarendon, became the bride of John Rhea Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Smith of, Memphis, Tenn., in the presence of the immediate family.

The Rev. S. T. Hill, father of the bride, officiated in the beautiful and impressive marriage service.

The home was beautifully decorated in green and white with an improvied altar of ferns and white clematis lighted with white tapehs, burning in the heirloom girandola.

The bride is the granddaughter of the late Thomas Henry Wallace and is well known in the social circles of Hopkinsville, Ky., and Clarkville, Tenn.

The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Smith of Memphis, Tenn., and Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Dabne, Mrs. Wade Hadley, the Misses Wena and Carrie Hadley, and Edmund and Dick Hadley of Clarksville, Tenn.

Rev. S. T. Hill is a former pastor of the Richwood Presbyterian church and he and his family have many friends in this section.

Devoted To the Best Interests of Boone, Kenton, Gallatin and Grant Counties—Kenton-Campbell Courier Consolidated With the Advertiser

Subscription $1.50 Per Year In Advance. WALTON, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1939 Volume 25, Number 47

MADDOX-DAUGHERTY

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Maddox of Independence, Ky., announce the the marriage of their daughter, Ruth Frances, to Mr. Russell R. Dougherty, Williamstown, Ky., on Friday, September 8th.

The wedding took place at the home of the groom at Williamstown, with the groom's brother, the Rev. Harry C. Dougherty, pastor of the Parkland Christian Church, Louisville, officiating.

The vows were exchanged, and the impressive double wedding ring ceremony read before an improvised altar of foliage and autumn flowers.

Mrs. Dougherty is a graduate of Independence High School, and of Curtis Commercial College, Covington.

Mr. Dougherty was graduated from Dry Ridge High School, and from Curtis Commercial College, and is now employed by the Westerfield Pharmacal Co., Dayton, O.

Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left on a wedding trip to St. Louis, Mo.

Pennington-Marsh

Miss Thelma Pennington and Mr. Ralph Marsh were united in the holy bonds of wedlock, Saturday afternoon, Sept. 16th, by the Rev. O. J. Alford, pastor of the Walton Baptist church. The attendants were Raymond Pennington and Miss Dora Trapp.

After the ceremony they motored to Dayton, Ohio for a short honeymoon.

Miss Pennington is the sister of Mr. Levi Pennington, and has made her home there for the past six years.

Mr. Marsh is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Marsh.

They will make their home with the groom's parents for a short while.

SATURDAY'S THE DAY! Yes, while in town Saturday is the time to call at the Advertiser office, pay your subscription and obtain a fine fountain pen and pencil set absolutely free. Saturday is the final day of the offer, so don't overlook this opportunity.

Truck-Auto Collide Four Men Hurt

Four men were injured Monday night when an automobile in which they were riding collided head-on with a truck, five miles south of here, near Huff's Place, on the Dixie Highway, Charles Conrad, Kentucky state highway patrolman, reported.

The men, none injured seriously, were taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital in Covington. The driver of the truck, Albert Denton, of Florence, was uninjured. The truck overturned after the crash and had traffic tied-up for nearly and hour. It was the property of the Huey Express of Florence.

The injured were Clyde McDonald, Cincinnati, the driver, cuts on hands and face and body bruises; Rufus McDaniel, Frew, Ky., cuts and bruises on the body; Arthur Kilburn, Dealblock, Ky., body bruises, and John Kilburn, also of Dealblock, head injuries.

Locals Show Well In State Croquet Tourney

Of approximately 75 teams entered in the StateCroquet Tournament held in connection with the State Fair, last week, D Hess Vest and Evan Hance, Walton, went to the semi-finals. They were defeated by Brown and Johnson, Louisville, but scored 31 points in the two games played. Brown and Johnson won the finals and held their opponents to 11 points in the three games of the 5-game finals, which makes the local talent rate pretty high.

Mr. Vest was elected a Director of the Kentucky State Croquet Ass'n.

A NIGHT BLOOMING CEREUS

Mrs. William Brittenhelm of South Main street, has a Night Blooming Cereus, which blossomed last week for the first time in five years. The flower is beautiful and one of the most fragrant of all flowers. Interesting in detail is the large, waxen-like, wide-open white blossom holding the "Babe in the Manger, The Star, The Crown, and The Cross," whence comes the common name, "The Sacred Lily."

The Night Blooming Cereus is a species of the cactus and is often more than five years old before it blooms. A bud puts forth but one blossom, opening after dusk and closing about midnight.

Receiving Orders For World Series Tickets

Cincinnati, September 19:— Because of the limited time between now and the start of the World's Series, it has become necessary for the Cincinnati Reds to start their preparations, nowithstanding that the National League pennant race has not been decided.

A special World's Series ticket office was opened at the Reds' headquarters in the Union Central Building, Tuesday and all orders for the Series will be handled there. Only mail orders will be accepted. All orders must be accompanied by cashier's check, certified check, or bank draft made payable to The Cincinnati Baseball Club Co. No cash, personal checks, or other forms of remittance will be accepted.

In announcing the plan to be followed, General Manager Warren C. Giles of the Reds stated that in the general mail sale not more than two tickets would be allotted to a purchaser, and that checks and orders not made out for the correct amount would not be recorded.

The World's Series will open in the Yankee Stadium on October 4. The National League home games will be played on October 7, 8, and 9. Tickets will be sold only for the entire three games scheduled at Cincinnati. Three tickets (one for each game) will be on a strip, for games 3, 4, and 5, and the prices will be $16.95 per strip for reserved seats, which includes federal and state taxes.

Box seats are priced at $20.40 per strip of three, but none will be available for the general public because the supply will have been exhausted by the allotments to the season box holders, players, visiting club, other baseball clubs, press and officials.

All applications must be received prior to September 28, and must be addressed as follows: World Series Department, Cincinnati Reds, P. O. Box 1078, Cincinnati, Ohio. The certified checks, money orders or bank drafts should be made out as follows: Cincinnati Baseball Club Co., in the amount of $16.95 for one set and $33.80 for two sets.

Patrons are requested not to ask for specific locations, as the demand for seats and the shortness of time will make it impossible to comply with such requests. Should the Reds win the pennant, tickets for the Cincinnati games will be sent by registered mail on or about October 2. Checks for all orders which will not be filled will be returned at approximately the same time. Should three games in Cincinnati be unnecessary, the price of ticket for game 5 will be refunded after the completion of the series. No orders will be asknowledged.

In the event it becomes mathematically impossible for the Reds to win the pennant, checks will be returned.

BOG & GENE MEET MARTZ, SUNDAY

Elmo Steffens pitched another victory for Bob & Gene, Sunday, by blanking Chalks 4 to 0. He retired 16 on strikes and allowed but three hits. Bob & Gene collected nine hits off Lefty Ampler, Chalk pitcher.

This leaves only three teams in the running, Bob & Gene, Greenline and Martz. Greenline drew the bye for this coming Sunday. Thus Bob & Gene will meet the Marta Cardinals at the Crescent Springs ball orchard. The game will be called at 3 p. m., fast time. Greenholtz or Arnzen will be on the mound for the Cardinals, and Steffens or Hoot Ryle will twirl for the home team, with Bob Denson catching.

Both teams will be fighting for keeps, as the winner will meet the Greenline nine in a 5-game series for the Amateur crown. The Bob & Gene team is composed of Boone county lads, and all local fans will be pulling for them to win Sunday's tilt.

Gen. Pershing declares the U. S. should increase its standing army.

Christian Church Revival Begins Oct. 2

A revival meeting will be held at the Walton Christian church, October 2 to 15. Rev. W. J. Clark, pastor of the Owenton Christian church, will be the evangelist and will be assisted by the regular pastor, Rev. J. M. Ervin.

Rev. Clark is well known in this section, having served as pastor of the Owenton Christian church for the past thirteen years. He is a graduate of Kentucky University and The College of the Bible, Lexington, Ky. Other pastorates held by Rev. Clark include Carrollton, Louisville, and Tampa, Fla. For a number of years he served with state and national organizations of the Disciples of Christ in the field of Religious Education and Evangelism. He has held revivals in Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Tennessee and Florida, resulting in more than five thousand additions.

The public is cordially invited to these services.

ENTERTAINS GARDEN DEPT. OF COVINGTON ART CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Cleek threw open their home near Walton, last Thursday afternoon, Sept. 14 for a tea in compliment of members of the garden department of the Covington Art Club. Mrs. John Bower, chairman of the department, held a brief business session and presented G. A. Richardson of Cincinnati, who gave an interesting talk on the planting of bulbs. In a contest concerning blue grass, red top and bent grass, Mrs. Cleek was awarded first prize, Mrs. John Rich, second, and Mrs. James C. Layne, third.

Advertiser's Big Premium Offer Ends Saturday, September 23rd

Final Days of Advertiser's Subscription Campaign Find Grand Rush On to Obtain the Beautiful Sets

With next Saturday, Sept. 23rd, set as the final day of the Advertiser's great subscription premium offer, there is quite a rush on the part of citizens from all parts of this section to take advantage of this offer and obtain the free gift. A great many have already come in and obtained sets. Indications are that many more will grasp the opportunity during the final days of this week.

Everybody Pleased

So well pleased have beeen the many who have viewed and examined the handsome display of sets at the Advertiser office that several have secured more than one set. This can be easily done by paying more than one year's subscription. A set is given with each $1.50 paid. Readers have the privilege of paying their own subscription for two or more years or paying for relatives and friends. In this way as many sets may be obtained as the need may be.

Advertiser Force Elated, Too

The Advertiser force is well pleased, also, with this splendid premium we have found it possible to award to our subscribers. Pleased not only because it is bringing in many needed subscriptions, but also because it is placing into the hands of many a gift that is so highly useful, attractive and durable and will give daily use about the home, in the school, around the office or store, everywhere writing equipment is needed. Never before have we been able to offer such a fine premium absolutely free and one that was so adapted to universal use.

Sets Ideal for School

Children and parents are finding these sets ideal for school requirements and that is one reason why so many of these premiums are moving out. Parents can make a substantial saving by getting these sets for their children. More than one set easily obtainable, simply by paying for additional subscriptions for yourself, relatives or friends.

Offer Expires Saturday

Like all good things, an offer of this kind must come to an end. This one expires next Saturday, September 23, a matter of only two or three days, but there is yet time for every reader to obtain one or more sets. Those who are unable to call at the office or have someone call, can mail their order in and if 5c additional is added for postage the set will be mailed to them or to any address specified.

Still Time for Distant Subscribers

All letters postmarked September 23 will be accepted, and so there is yet time for every Advertiser reader, even the most distant subscriber, to obtain a set or two. However, action must be taken immediately. Saturday is the final day.

Owen County Fair Offers $850 In Premiums

The sum of $850 in premiums will be offered this year to persons exhibiting in the tenth annual Owen County Fair to be held in Owenton Friday and Saturday, Sept. 29th and 30th.

All entries are open to the world except 4-H Club classes and pony ring which are restricted to Owen county. There will be exhibits for sheep, beef cattle, dairy cattle, draft horses, mules, saddle horses, poultry, turkeys, farm and garden crops, tobacco, flowers, needlework, culinary, arts and crafts.

For further information see your County Agents or write for a catalog.

S. M. Ward, incumbent Circuit Judge at Hazard, won contest suit over election.

ACP Holds Series Of Community Meetings

The Boone County Agricultural Conservation Program will hold a series of community meetings during the next two weeks to advise with farmers on ways of taking fullest advantage of the remaining $30,000 soil-building allowance that is unearned at the present time and must be earned before Oct. 31st.

September 26—Hebron, I. O. O. F. Hall, 7:30 p. m., slow time.

September 28 — Florence, School House, 8:00 p. m., fast time.

September 29—Petersburg, School House, 7:30 p. m., slow time.

September 30 — Verona, School House, 7:30 p. m., slow time.

October 4—New Haven, School House, 7:30 p. m., slow time.

October 5—Grant, School House, 7:30 p. m., slow time.

The County Agent and one or more ACP committeemen will be at each of these meetings to advise farmers how much of their allowance they have earned to date. Recommended methods of using limestone, phosphate and fall seedings will be discussed.

All ACP cooperators are urged to attend the meetings in their communities.

CCC Men Want Jobs In Private Industry

Walton CCC Camp, Sept. 15—Approximately thirty enrollees will be discharged from this Company on Sept. 25 due to the expiration of enrollment terms. In order to attempt to place these men in private industry a Placement Campaign has been set in motion with Lt. Robert L. Wehr, Company Commander, in charge, and Mr. William Leslie Cooper as Technical Adviser.

Practically all of the men to leave are from Northern Kentucky and chiefly from Newport, Covington, and Erlanger. Thus, it is assumed that the business men in this area will be in a position to aid these men. The enrollees are, for the large part, experinced, dependable, and industrious workmen.

Their occupational classifications and experiences are, in general, as follows: Truck drivers, carpenters, metal polishers and buffers, barbers, punch press operators, mechanics helpers, clerical workers, woodworkers, cooks, electrical workers, and farm and construction laborers.

If there are those interested in employing any of these men or who know of possible jobs, please write or phone Walton 104 and ask for Lt. Wehr or Mr. Cooper.

Hamilton Community Fair, October 6th

The Ninth Annual Hamilton Community Fair will be held Friday, October 6th, according to Reuben Asbury, chairman of the program committee. All committeemen and workers are busy making plans for the biggest and best fair on record.

Premium awards will be made for all classes of crops and home products. The school, the 4-H club, P. T. A. and other community organizations are planning special programs full of instruction and entertainment.

Hamilton community has made a splendid success in their annual community rally and home-coming day, and we join the people of the community in wishing their 1939 event will be the best held to date.

Do You Want Government Economy?

It cannot be too often repeated that we will have economy in government when the people want it—and not until then.

What this means is that economy must begin with the taxpayer. It means that we must turn thumbs down on public spending for spending's sake.

It means that there must be an end to spending the tax money contributed by all the people for purposes which effect only the favored few.

People who talk most bitterly about excessive government spending are often the first to whoop it up in favor of an appropriation for their town or state. And the result is the greatest peace-time debt in the history of this or any other nation, and a tax burden that is crushing industries, to the detriment of employment, productive investment, and economic progress.

The cost of government can be cut. The budget can be balanced, and a program looking to the reduction of the national debt can be put into effect, if thrifty citizens demand it. But we will first have to make up our minds to the fact that it is impossible to get something for nothing from government. That may not be pleasant medicine to take, but it is the only way that national bankruptcy and the eventual collapse of our free country can be prevented. Help won't come from spendthrift politicians.

"Widen the income tax base, require every citizen no matter how small his income to sweat blood every March in making out a return, take something, no matter how little, directly from the income earner, and you soon will have a large proportion of the people understanding in no uncertain way that they are taxpayers."—The News, Enid, Oklahoma.

The Source Of Jobs

It's about time that honest working people realized that the business-disruping policies of certain left-wing labor readers are directly and unequivocable opposed to the real interests of decent, ambitious labor, organized or unorganized.

Labor wants fair wages. It wants good working conditions. It wants security and a permanent job year in and year out. It wants a reasonable working week. And these understandable desires can only be fulfilled by stable, profit-making industry. A company which doesn't know whether the labor czars are going to let it operate next month or not, isn't a company which is in a position to shorten hours, to increase wages, or to improve conditions in its plant.

The lift-wing trouble-makers may deny it—but any man who thinks for himself will see that the basic interests of labor and management are one. Both must cooperate equitably if production is to be increased, and more and better jobs created. The radicals who revile business at every turn never made a job for a men yet—but they are successful in destroying tremendous numbers of jobs.

The typical American employer understands and appreciates the rights of the working people to organize, and to better themselves. He is as much interested as anyone in raising wages and shortening hours when possible—after all, an increased national income, distributed among all people, is the key to stimulated demands for the products of industry. He is willing to meet labor half-way in any legitimate undertaking. But he cannot meet the impossible demands of racketeering labor—and the honest laborer is the first to suffer.

There are definite signs that thinking labor, both within and without unions, is growing weary of left-wing domination. And representative labor has voluntarily spoken up in favor of changes in such unworkable pieces of legislation as the Wagner Act. It is this attitude of fairness and reason that will help labor go ahead—as against the business-destroying attitude which holds labor and everyone else back.

Rural Fire Prevention

The Insurance Department of the United States Chamber of Commerce recently pointed out the need for active, yearround fire prevention committees in all rural communities.

In urban areas, the work of fire prevention is adequately carried on by fire departments and other civic bureaus. In many rural sections, which have not established fire departments, work of this character is almost entirely lacking. And that is largely responsible for our disgraceful total of rural fires—fires which take a gigantic toll of life and property each year.

A good rural fire prevention committee should include members from each township, represe nting all rural interests. And the committee members must realize in advance that theirs is a vital and continuous work, in which there can be no letdown. Rural areas present special and highly dangerous fire hazards. Farm buildings are usually of an extremely flammable nature. Many farmers, because of ignorance, are careless in such matters as storing supplies and keeping dry fields cut. And in the average rural district, adequate fire fighting facilities either do not exist, or must be summoned from so great a distance that the damage is done before they can arrive.

There can be no more worthwhile work than fire preve ntion, whether in a little town or a great city. In this country, the direct loss by fire runs into the hundreds of millions each year, and the indirect loss undoubtedly brings the total to the billion mark. Organized fire prevention has many great accomplishments to its credit, but it can never achieve th egreatest results until there is concerted public interest and support. Now is the time to get together in the name of fire prevention—with deeds as well as words.

A LIVE WIRE BRIAR HOPPER

An Explanation! Why I am having my Briar Hopper stories reprinted: All but a few of my original stories were lost in the flood, and having a great many requests for the stories I am having them reprinted with the intention of putting them in book form with other interesting matter.—Will S. Norris.

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5582 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A story about briar hoppers. We were having a Sunday School contest in our Sunday School at College Hill, Cincinnati. One of the captains was a lady and I was helping her in the contest, which she and her side won. While the contest was being hard fought the lady captain charged her opponent with bringing some Kentucky mountaineer children into the school, who lived in the neighborhood, insinuating that the mountaineer children were not good enough for our Sunday School.

After she had fully expressed herself, I said to her, "My good lady do you know that I belong to that crowd? That I came from the hills of Kentucky, where I could see the mountains from my Kentucky home?"

The sweetest memories of my life are of getting up before dawn and watching the sun coming up over the mountains. Abraham Lincoln whose birthday we celebrate in February and one of our greatest Americans, was born poor in the hills of Kentucky. I could name scores of other great men who come from the hills of Kentucky. If they were alive today they would be called briar hoppers, of which true Kentuckians are not ashamed.

Last summer, I attended a picnic Highland Park in Dayton, Ohio, where thousands of ex-Kentuckians (briar hoppers) met. I was impressed with one speaker who said he had traveled in all parts and that he had found briar hoppers in all parts and he said he was greeted with a warm welcome, and in many places briar hopper clubs were organized.

In writing this story it is not my intention to throw any reflection on any other state of section in our United States, for every state and section has contributed its part toward furnishing its quota of good and great men and women to help make our country the best in the world to live in.

I sometimes hear reflections cast upon Kentucky for its illiteracy. They may not be as highly educated as some sections, but you can go to the hill country of Kentucky and meet the hill people and just try to outwit them in any kind of trade and you will find they will meet you 50-50.

When it comes to real hospitality they will come far above the average and nearly 100 percent than any people anywhere. Everyone should be proud of his native state and stand for it throwing no reflection on any other state or section.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

The stunning sense of disbelief that invaded the mind of the average American when the headlines screamed WAR as probable, in the long run, the best possible reaction. The European "war of nerves" has been going on for so long that many people in this country were beginning to conclude that it was going to be perpetual. Then, when the shocking blowoff finally came, all Americans found themselves suddenly faced with the painful necessity of adjusting themselves to a whole new world of values. And, from the point of view of the welfare of the United States(which ought to be the first consideration of all real Americans, it is a good idea to suspend judgments and decisions till a very careful and very general inventory fs taken.

Observers and the general public are agreed on one thing, at least: if we have the well-being of the American system at heart, we ought to "make haste slowly" in deciding where we stand and what problems we are going to face in the course of the next year or so.

As far as the European war is concerned, no one but a crystal gazer would try to hazard any predictions at the present moment. The free press of this country and its broadcasting facilities, one of the finest examples of the benef its arising from the system of private enterprise, can naturally be depended upon to give us the most truthful possible account of the news, as far as the truth can be sifted from the welter of distortion and downright lying that is usually characteristic of foreign government-controlled sources of "information."

Beyond that, the best advice for Americans at the present juncture is not to believe too much, not to emotionalize too much, and not to lose sight of domestic problems in the excitement of what is happening abroad.

That this last suggestion will set the tempo of our national thinking for a long time to come is a hopeful sign seen by observers here in the event that sane councels prevail. And one does not have to search far to find reasons why the United States should give very close attention at this time to domestic matters.

The most convincing reasons, without much doubt, are those advanced by industry. Businessmen, who have seen the atmosphere gradually clearing towards a point where plans for industrial expansion and the large-scale production of new jobs and more payrolls can be projected, don't want to see the nation's plans for a constructive future go up in smoke and flame. As a result, industry will be found in the forefront of the battle to tend to our domestic knitting and keep foreign wars foreign.

Of course wars or even rumors of wars are cues for those who react automatically to shout that businessmen would be glad to have a war and the wartime "prosperity" that is supposed to accompany the appearance of Mars on the scene. This reaction, though, now draws a hearty horse-laugh from those who have thought matters through to their logical conclusion.

The reasons businessmen don't want another war are hard-headed, realistic ones. The most convincing reason they are opposed to it lies in the simple fact that this country, and manufacturing with it, is still paying for the last war. We are paying for it in heavier taxes and in a higher degree og regulation; we paid for it in the economic dislocation that followed the Armistice, the effects of which are still being felt today. Industry found that whatever profits seemed to accrue from the last war were almost entirely fictitious in character, and that all that really happened to this country was the piling up of an immense deficit in terms of wasted lives and lost materials. With that in mind, this is a good time to put into print again the words of the Board of Directors of the National Association of Manufacturers, which only last April voiced industry's attitude towards war. This body, which represents the largest organization of industrial leaders in this country, said:

"The National Association of Manufacturers is unalterably opposed to war.

"This is the position of the manufacturers, both large and small, as represented by this Association. In the words of George Washington, they are opposed to any 'entangling alliances'.

"The devastation of modern war is all-embracing. It takes a withering toll of human and economic forces. Nn sensible person believes that profit can come out of the wreckage of human lives and economic dislocations.

"History has answered that question. Progress comes through peace, not war. Free nations have everything to lose in war. Free institutions are reared through peace and cooperation. Conflict destroys them.

"American industry wants peace. This purpose has been frequently and forcefully declared in the previous platforms adopted by the Congress of American Industry. American manufacturers pledge every effort to maintain peace.

"Happy homes and steady jobs, the ideal of every American, can be achieved only through the pursuits of peace.

"The republic is now at peace. May the God of Nations preserve us from the calamity of war."

WITH THE REDS

Cincinnati:—The Reds are now engaged in the most gruelling portion of their schedule, as the National League pennant chase approaches its climax.

Doc Prothro and his Phillies were to come to Cincinnati, Tuesday for three single games against the Reds, but the real fireworks is scheduled for Friday, when the Pittsburgh Pirates come in for five battles in three days. Successive doubleheaders Friday and Saturday, and a single game Sunday are on tap. Friday's game will also be a ladies' day attraction.

The St. Louis Cardinals, who have been clinging doggedly on the heels of the Reds all season, will arrive on September 26 for the final series of the Crosley Field season. The Reds and Cards will tangle in a double-header on Tuesday, Sept. 26, and in a ladies' day game on the 27th. Then on September 28 the two teams will meet in the last game of the year at the local lot. The Reds and Cards have clawed savagely at each other's throats all season, and as things stand now, each team has won nine games with two contests resulting in ties.

The Reds will close the season in Pittsburgh, where they are to meet the Pirates in single games on September 29, 30, and October 1.

Tickets for all remaining games at Crome are now on sale at the Henry Straus Cigar Store, Sixth and Walnut Streets.

MORGANSVILLE

"Let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not."

We best serve Christ by serving others. The noblest end of life is to live for the service of God, and everything in His service by which we can be a blessing to others.

Most deeply appreciated were the lovely articles in our behalf, and we prayerfully trust that many will come to our rescue at this trying time, and not "pass by on the other side."

Many hearts go out in heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Joseph Maddox of near Independence, in the recent passing of her brother Mr. Harris of near Alexandria. He was a noble christian character, and his courtesy and consideration were outstanding.

Grateful appreciation is extended to Mr. and Mrs. John Ware and Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Barberick for lovely tomatoes.

Ten Jefferson county farmers have potato crops for certification on plots totaling about 75 acres.

Film strips on latest methods of farming, as shown by Hart county men and women, are being made.

When WCKY affiliates with the Columbia network Sunday, the L. B. Wilson station will formally dedicate its 50,000 watt transmitter and celebrate the fact that it is now as powerful as any station in the entire United States.

Mayor James Garfield Stewart of Cincinnati has set aside the week of Sept. 24th by official proclamation as "WCKY 50,000 Watt Week". Festivities start Sunday with a coast-to-coast salute between 6 and 6:30 p. m., (E.S.T.) on the Columbia network with more than a hundred stations carrying the program honoring WCKY.

WCKY returns the salute Monday afternoon. A gala broadcast will originate on Cincinnati's historic Fountain Square and will be attended by many celebrities. L. B. Wilson cordially invites radio listeners in this vicinity to attend the dedication ceremonies on the Square, and to visit the 50,000-watt transmitter, shown above together with the gigantic 350 foot transmitting tower. The other pictures show Mr. Wilson and Mrs. Wilson, the former Jean Oliver of stage fame, who dedicated the WCKY transmitter with a bottle of Ohio River water on July 27th at quiet ceremonies attended only by staff members. Public dedication was postponed to the week of Sept. 24th coincident with the station's new network affiliation.

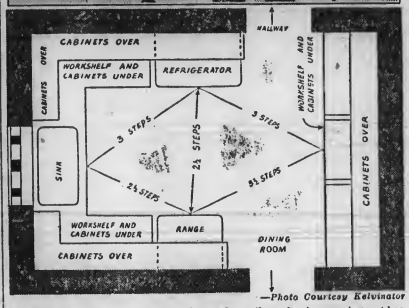
Science Slashes Kitchen Mileage

A KITCHEN that takes the housewife out of the kitchen—

Sounds a bit paradoxical, doesn't it? But that's exactly the purpose behind the arrangement of the ultra-modern kitchen of the air-conditioned home in the Town of Tomorrow at the New York World's Fair.

Scientifically planned and arranged, the kitchen — measuring 12 feet 4 inches long by 9 feet wide—was designed for "production line" cooking, which, as is the case with production line methods in the modern factory, saves needless steps and eliminates waste motion and resulting fatigue. "Production line" cooking reduces to an absolute minimum the amount of time the housewife has to spend in the kitchen.

According to engineers and home economists, who designed the kitchen of the World's Fair home and then equipped it with scientifically placed electric refrigerator, electric range, cupboards and built-in cabinets with work table tops, the arrangement results in a tremendous reduction of the number of steps the housewife has to take while carrying out her culinary duties.



Following the "production line" method, which in factories saves time and eliminates "back-tracking," the housewife using this kitchen cannot help but follow an efficient, planned route when preparing meals. She works around the kitchen in a counter-clockwise direction, starting at the electric refrigerator (where raw materials are stored); then proceeding to the sink (where materials are processed), and last arriving at the electric range (where the materials are finally prepared and from which they are served).

From the electric refrigerator to the sink, she has to take no more than three steps. She covers the distance from the sink to the electric range in only two and a half steps. And she has only to take two and a half steps from the electric range back to the refrigerator. From electric range to workshelf and cupboards at the opposite end of the kitchen, the distance is only slightly more than three steps and it's just three steps from the electric refrigerator to this point.

Further enhancing the efficiency of this modern kitchen is the new-type strip wiring at the junction of the walls and the table-high workshelves. At 6-inch intervals appear outlets, to which such electrical appliances as mixers, toasters and irons can be handily attached. This is a further step-saver, for the user of the kitchen can connect any electrical appliance at whatever point in the room she stands, without delay or getting mixed up in the cord.

Pedometer tests have shown that under old-fashioned conditions of work, where no heed was paid to convenient arrangement, the cook or housekeeper often traveled as much as five miles a day in carrying out her duties. Recently, a modern kitchen laboratory conducted an experiment in which a dessert was made in an awkwardly arranged kitchen and then in one that was "engineered" to save steps and motions. By proper routing, the operations were cut from 97 to 64 and the steps taken from 281 to 45—a notable difference, which means much in the course of a day's work.

Improving the Home Grounds to be Discussed at Farmers and Homemakers Education Exhibit

Landscape Specialist to Speak

Mr. A. L. Heger, Landscape Architect from Lakeside Park, South Ft. Mitchell, will address Kenton County farmers and homemakers at the Educational Exhibit at Independence Graded School auditorium on Thursday, Sept. 21, at 2:30 p. m.

Mr. Heger will explain how correct landscaping can be used to improve the farm home. Mr. Heger will illustrate his talk by exhibiting specimen samples of various kinds of shrubery suited for planting around the farm home.

Local Talent on Program

Farmers Busy Earning Soil Building Allowance

PRACTICES THAT CAN BE USED THIS FALL—

Bluegrass, 14 lbs. per acre, 1 unit.

Orchard Grass, 10 lbs. per acre, 1 unit.

Timothy, 8 lbs. per acre, ½ unit.

Korean or common lespedeza seeded alone (October 20 to October 31) 15-20 lbs. per acre, ½ unit.

Legume and grass mixtures at approved rate of seeding before October 31, 1939, 1 unit.

47% T. V. A. Phosphate, 100 lbs., 1 unit. (200 lbs. 47% phosphate is the maximum that can be used per acre for payment. Must be used on hay, grass and pasture land).

20% phosphate, 240 lbs. per acre, 1 unit. (Used on hay, grass and pasture land).

Poultry Pointers for September

By C. E. Harris, College of Agriculture, Extension Division, in Lexington, Ky.

The pullets should be brought in from the range and put into their winter home early in September. By moving them now they become accustomed to their new quarters before heavy production starts. The house should be cleaned thoroughly, new nesting material placed in the nests and clean litter put on the floor. If minor repairs are needed they should be made before the pullets are moved. Failure to strip a crack or replace a broken window pane may contribute to an outbreak of colds and roup. Overcrowding the pafing house is usually followed by colds, so do not put more pullets in the house than it will accommodate. The work has recently been on several farms where colds have developed in the pullet flock due to overcrowding in the laying quarters.

Exercise care in selecting the pullets and sell all slow growing unthrifty ones If the pullets show signs of being wormy, they should be given a worm pill, otherwise there is no need to worm them. Healthy pullets do not need medicines.

Examine the pullets carefully for lice because these pests can cause great damage. If lice are found, treat the pullets so that they will go into the laying house uninhabited. Any one of three methods may be used effectively to control lice. The dip method, hich is done by dipping each bird in lukewarm water to which one pound of sodium fluoride has been added to each 10 gallons. This should be done early on a warm day. The second way to treat the flock is to dust the sodium fluoride powder into the feathers under the vent, at the base of the neck and the fluff. The third treatment is to put a small amount of nicotine sulfate on the roost poles just before roosting time. Every bird must go on the roost if this method is to be effective and the treatment should be repeated at 10 day intervals until it has been done three times. The powder or nicotine treatment is probably the safer to use now because the dip method might cause colds to develop.

The paying mash and grain or grain mixture which is to be continued during the winter should be put before the flock now. This avoids making a change after production starts, which is usually accompanied by lower production All feeds selected should be chosen with the assurance that they will be readily available at all times.

The 1939-40 Poultry Calendar is now ready to be sent to your County Agent for distribution before October 1st, when the record should be started. This record is easy to keep and an accurate record on the flock will be a great help in determining what practices are profitable.

Social Security News

According to information recived by Frank B. Decker, Jr., Manager, Social Security Board field office, Covington, the report that the U. S. War Department has been using social security data has been greatly misinterpreted.

"The only data that the Social Security Board has given to the War Department is entirely of a general nature and in no way discloses any of the confidential information about individual holding social security numbers," Mr. Decker said.

"This data relates only to such matters as the age groups of holders of social security numbers and has for many months been available in the regular publications of the Social Security Board. Under no circumstances does the Social Security Board disclose the confidential information contained in its files, based on the applications which are filed when Social Security numbers are issued," Mr. Decker concluded.

Be Corseted for that 1940 Figure

THE "NEW 1940 FIGURE"—Lord & Taylor adaptation of the Mainbocher corset. At left is the short version for younger women who want the suggestion of the wasp waist in their wardrobe, while at the right is the revolutionary long corset which trims the waist with a high bust and rounded hip effect for the young matron.

WAR crises and zero-hours may have the universe 'on edge' but the world of fashion is concerned chiefly with the "hour glass" corset which holds the spotlight in the news just now.

Mainbocher focused the spotlight which started the ravishing, revolutionary trend. It was an edict from Paris, the corseted figure! Others joined forces with the famous designer. All fashion dictates point to the silhouette.

When WCKY affiliates with the Columbia network Sunday, the L. B. Wilson station will formally dedicate its 50,000 watt transmitter and celebrate the fact that it is now as powerful as any station in the entire United States.

Mayor James Garfield Stewart of Cincinnati has set aside the week of Sept. 24th by official proclamation as "WCKY 50,000 Watt Week". Festivities start Sunday with a coast-to-coast salute between 6 and 6:30 p. m., (E.S.T.) on the Columbia network with more than a hundred stations carrying the program honoring WCKY.

WCKY returns the salute Monday afternoon. A gala broadcast will originate on Cincinnati's historic Fountain Square and will be attended by many celebrities. L. B. Wilson cordially invites radio listeners in this vicinity to attend the dedication ceremonies on the Square, and to visit the 50,000-watt transmitter, shown above together with the gigantic 350 foot transmitting tower. The other pictures show Mr. Wilson and Mrs. Wilson, the former Jean Oliver of stage fame, who dedicated the WCKY transmitter with a bottle of Ohio River water on July 27th at quiet ceremonies attended only by staff members. Public dedication was postponed to the week of Sept. 24th coincident with the station's new network affiliation.

BUSINESS REVIEW

By J. E. RUSSELL

FIRST FEDERAL SAVINGS & LOAN ASS'N of COVINGTON

The First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Covington, located at 501 Main offers superior service to the public and this is evidenced by the fact that their business has been more active than ever before.

This is one of the institutions which has aided to, as great an extent as any other, in the upbuilding of the social and home life of the community.

It is an institution in which the people have every confidence, not only because the laws of the state and nation make it a safe association to do business with, but also because its affairs have always been in the hands of men of experience in the commercial and financial world; men who know the people and men whom the people know.

The object for which the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Covington was organized was to furnish a safe profitable place for the investment of its members and to use these investments to aid other members to build and own their own homes.

The plans of the association offer you an investment that will meet every requirement of the most exacting investor.

The wise policies of its management is evidenced by the fact that it has large assets. The safety of its methods is further evidenced by the fact that it loans exclusively on first mortgages.

This concern has helped many a man on the road to success by encouraging home building. The real citizen is the home owner. Go in and talk things over with them.

We take pleasure in this edition of pointing to First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Covington as one of the institutions that has been known as strong, safe, reliable and at the same time a progressive financial institution of this section, and as one of the vital factors in the continued development of the city in which it makes its home.

JOHN T. MURPHY

— TAX CONSULTANT —

John T. Murphy, located at 113 Park Place, Covington, is a great aid to the people in this section and offers the only complete service on income tax reports or anything connected with tax laws. A man that has been of service to many people and business houses, as his service includes anything that is connected with taxes, such as profit and loss in business on taxes, social security, old age insurance and income taxes.

The tax laws and problems of business men and individuals are something every man cannot acquaint himself with. Such service as John T. Murphy offers is greatly appreciated.

Mr. Murphy is thoroughly trained for all the work that the tax laws entail and has had much valuable experience along these lines. He is an expert and has made a study of all the various laws of taxes. He is thoroughly familiar with the different laws of the state, having helped in the drafting and writing of the present Kentucky state tax laws. He is also familiar with both property valuations and inheritant tax laws either State or Federal, having handled a large number of inheritant tax cases in the state of Kentucky and federal cases at Washington.

Mr. Murphy was a member of the State Senate from 1934-38 and the House of Representatives from 1916-20.

Every man should consult him about his income tax reports and many a headache will be saved. He has made a very complete study of the tax laws and the only person who is in a position, by reason of wide experience, to make recommendations along these lines.

KENNEY MOTOR CAR CO.

CADILLAC & LASALLE — GENERAL MOTORS TRUCKS

Kenney Motor Car Co., located at 25 East 5th Street, Covington, is one of the liveliest automobile firms in this part of the state and has prepared to take care of the demands of the purchaser with cars which prove the superiority of the "high grade used car." These cars will give many thousands of miles of service.

In the way of used automobiles they have an excellent line. These are not old automobiles, but cars that are in excellent condition and will give the buyers the best of service at reasonable price.

These cars are offered on the best terms possible. You do not need to have all cash as this firm is ready to take care of the account and you can be using the car while you are making payments. This is a great accommodation to the public and the excellent policy has met with great favor.

Kenney Motor Car Co. has many satisfied customers in all surrounding country who have learned real "motor car economy" through their service. They are pleased to give you any and all information about the cars they offer and they are men who know what they are talking about. Men upon whose word you can depend.

We take pleasure in this business review in directing your attention to the Kenney Motor Car Co., in Covington.

DEPENDABLE MOTORS, Inc.

— USED CARS —

Dependable Motors, Inc., located at 412 Madison Avenue, Covington, have a car to suit the price of every purchaser and willingly give demonstrations. Also have attractive purchase plan through which it is possible to purchase a car and pay for it as you enjoy it. Truly a most admirable firm, under the management of a prominent and well known business man.

Dependable Motors, Inc. is one of the liviest automobile firms in this part of the country, and is prepared to take care of purchasers with cars which prove the superiority of the high grade used car, over the so-called second hand automobile.

You do not need to have all cash, as this firm is ready to take care of the account and you can be using the car while you are making payments. This is a great accommodation to the public and the excellent policy has met with great favor. If you want an auto, go over and get a demonstration.

A feature of this establishment that makes this a safe place to buy a used car is the fact that every car has been put in first class shape and you can rest assured that it will be in the very best of condition.

We take pleasure in this business review in directing your attention to Dependable Motors, Inc., Covington.

LESLIE S. DEGLOW

T. J. McCORMACK, Assistant — ARCHITECTS

Leslie S. Deglow and his assistant, T. J. McCormack, have won for themselves an enviable reputation as artists in their chosen field of endeavor, and many buildings in this section stand as monuments to their ability.

Leslie S. Deglow and T. J. McCormack are important features in the life of the community and no matter what may be your needs in this line, when you call at their place, you will find them courteous and accommodating, efficient and capable. They are among the prominent business men of the community and worthy of extended mention in this review of our progress.

Different styles of architecture mark the eras of progress of all nations and history is depicted in the various changes that come about in the style of building.

Our American nation is a young nation, but a progressive one, and our imposing buildings stand as monuments to great American minds who have planned and engineered them.

No matter what you contemplate in the way of building, you look upon it as a lasting, permanent accomplishment, and you want to realize full value of every dollar invested. In order to do this you would consult with a reliable architect, who can advise as to plans, materials and construction.

We can recommend none in whom you may place greater confidence than you can in Leslie S. Deglow and T. J. McCormack, architects. We take pleasure in recommending their service to you—our readers.

SPARTA

Train Kills Negro

Wm. Barber, colored age 47, was killed Sunday morning by an L. & N. train on the company tracks near the depot. The legs were severed from the body and he had been cut in two pieces. He was found about 5:30 a. m. by some boys. Coroner Henry Gullion was called by Town Marshal Zebb Kinman, who held an inquest over the remains and rendered a verdict of accidental death. Earlier in the night Barbar had been drinking heartily and it is supposed he fell asleep on the track. He leaves 4 sons and an aged mother, "Aunt" Lou Todd, as she is known familiarly by her many white friends. The entire community, that she has served so long and well in many ways, wish to extend to her their heartfelt sympathy in her sad bereavemen.

A number of people called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Kemper, Sunday night to see their night blooming cereus in bloom. The flower had 15 blooms to open out this time and three weeks ago there were eight. These blooms represent the "Babe in the manger and the Star of Bethlehem," and have a sweet fragrance. They begin to open at dark and after midnight begin to close up.

NAPOLEON

Due to the fact that Dr. Polk and Stanley Caton of the University, could not be here on the 19th of this month, the Homemakers and Poultry meeting that was to be held at Mrs. R. P. Davis' was postponed until the 26th. It was an oversight that this was not in last week's news.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Dolly of Jacksonville, Fla., were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. McNeely.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rogers returned home here after a weeks visit with Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hendrix and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rogers at Sharonville, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Miller took their daughter Alberta to Dr. Applegate in Cincinnati, who is a head specialist, three times last week, she having an abscessed ear treated.

The W. M. U. of Ten Mile church met at the church on Wednesday afternoon. The program was very interesting and it is hoped that more members will be out the next time. The meetings are always the 2nd Wednesday in the month. Friday afternoon the W. M. U. will meet for their special prayer week. All members are urged to come.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest McNeely of Belleview, took supper and spent the night with Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Turley and daughter Monday. On Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Turley and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest McNeely took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Keffer and Miss Alice McNeely.

Mrs. Howard Miller spent Saturday with Mrs. Mattie Clements and Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Connely of Warsaw. We are very sorry to hear that Mrs. Clements has suffered a paralytic stroke.

Mrs. Charles Stahl, Mrs. W. R. Ewbank, Mrs. J. W. Ewbank and Miss Mary Turley attended the annual Homemakers meeting that was held at Florence.

Howard Miller attended the Producers banquet at the Brown Hotel on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs J. W. Lucas and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Shupert Lucas entertained relatives from Ludlow and Covington, Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Wallace were there also, and perhaps others, but we did not learn their names.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hendren, sons Charles and Carl Webber, Mr. and Mrs. James Ed Perry were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Spaulding and son.

Howard Hendren accompanied by Mrs. John Rider visited his wife, who is in the hospital, Friday. Saturday he visited her again, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Daisy Hendren and his sister Miss Mabel Hendren.

The Ten Mile Sunday School is planning to have a weiner roast on Saturday night, Sept. 29th. The place has not been decided upon definitely.

FLORENCE

Mrs. Mae First has returned to her home in Cincinnati, after several weeks visit with Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Floyd.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Allen and Carl Rouse attended the Carthage Fair on Friday.

The many friends of Mrs. Ida Smith regret to learn of her illness the past week.

Miss Stella Carpenter of Cincinnati, spent Sunday with the Carpenter family.

Miss Fanny Utz spent the weekend in Covington, the guest of her sister Miss Dell Utz.

Mrs. Lillie Conner of Cincinnati, spent Wednesday night with Miss Rebecca Hambrick.

Miss Alice Fae Snyder in Newport, guest of her grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cravens.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burris and son Eugene of Burlington were the dinner guests Sunday of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Snyder.

Mrs. Mary E. Rouse was surprised Sunday with her children and her grandchildren came in with well filled baskets and a six o'clock dinner was served. Those present were Dr. Elbert Rouse and wife, Virgil L. Rouse and wife, Layton Rouse and friend, all of Ludlow, Mr. and Mrs. Ottis Rouse, Mr. and Mrs. George Porter of Burlington, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rouse and daughter Alma, Mr. Mayfield of Ludlow and Mr. B. H. Floyd. A most enjoyable evening was spent together.

New National Trapshooting Champ Fires With Left-Hand And Keeps Right On Throttle Of Busy General Store

BRACHT STATION

All are rejoicing over the cooler weather.

We were sorry to learn of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Eads misfortune in having their house and all household goods lost by fire Saturday evening about dusk. We did learn the origin of the fire.

A. Feirrock is having his cisern replastered at his farm, The Maple Lawn, of this place.

E. F. Bales, wife and daughter Wanda spent Sunday with Mr. Bales' son, W. G. Bales of Erlanger.

Sorry to report John Elliott, who suffered a paralytic stroke Thursday night of last week, is very low and not expected, at this writing, to live.

Mrs. B. F. Elliott entertained relatives and friends of Georgetown, Sunday.

All the farmers in this and the surrounding communities have finished cutting tobacco and all their tobacco has about all cured nicely and everyone is talking a nice clean crop this year and hoping a fancy price for all the tobacco on this year's market.

Several of our friends and neighbors attended the State Fair in Louisville last week and report a lovely time and lots of nice livestock on exhibition—race horses, cattle and stock of all mention.

PETERSBURG

Mr. and Mrs. Jewell Hoffman and Mr. and Mrs. Walton spent Sunday in Cincinnati.

Wm. Cohlman of Lawrenceburg, was he dinner guest Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Howard.

TALKING FLASHLIGHT AT FAIR

Among strange things to be witnessed at the New York World's Fair is, a "talking flashlight," featured in "Previews of Progress," the science and research stage revue presented hourly in the General Motors Auditorium. Above, Ernest Foss, science commentator for the popular show, whispers into one end of the flashlight, focuses its beam on a loud speaker and immediately the auditorium resounds with voice. What happens is that Mr. Foss' whisper is transferred into light, carried over the light beam to a photo-electric cell, and then changed again into sound, greatly magnified.

HOG-KILLING

As I begin this articles, in November, it is hog-killing weather—brisk, cold air; clear skies; promise of several days of the same sort of temperature. However, it is not late enough in the season to kill more than one small hog to furnish fresh meat for the family. I must admit that I do not know how much the science and art of hog-killing has changed since my last contact with it. I do know that some neighborhoods have a central slaughtering place, but I would guess that the standardized festival of my childhood is much the same.

Sleeping was hardly necessary the night before this great annual event. We had spent the day before in making preparations: cutting sticks, putting up a scaffold, sharpening the knives, placing a barrel for scalding, gtting the big kettles ready, and building the heap of wood that was to form the fire, with several old bits of scrap iron on it. We got up, like the women in Proverbs, while it was yet dark and started our fire. Soon after an early breakfast the neighbors with whom we were swapping work came to help, often bringing their wives or daughters with them. Quite early in the morning, as soon as we felt the water was hot enough and the irons hotter still, the slaughter began. Killing the hogs and sticking them were arts that every farm boy and man knew. The sun would be still far toward the east when the scalding actually began.

We poured some of the hot water into the scalding barrel and then tsrew in some of the super-heated irons, causing a great sputtering and popping. It takes great skill to scald hogs properly. The skillful scalder, who is always represented in each neighborhood, tests the effectiveness of the water, a common way being to try the tail first; if the hair slips off well, then the hog is well scal ded. I recall how we sometimes made a poor scald and had to cut the hair off portions of the hogs rather than pull it out. People always apologized for meat that had hairs that had been cut. Scraping the scalded hog left a black deposit on our hands that only time would remove; soap, even home-made lye soap, was powerless with this blackness.

We hung the scraped hogs on our scaffold and proceeded to gut them. Then the bodies hung and chilled through and through wile we stopped for dinner. After dinner came the cutting-up process. The whole hog soon was divided into lard, sausage meat, spare ribs, backbones, heads, hams, shoulders, and middlings. I have seen great artistry displayed in cutting up the meat, artistry that was so common that no one realized that it WAS artistry. The small boys could be useful by storing the oints away until the salting down would take place, in the smokehouse after supper. The afternoon and much of the night, with often adjourned sessions the next day, were spent in grinding sausage and rendering lard. The neighbors usually departed after the meat was cut up, taking, as a matter of course, some backbones, ribs, livers, and hearts for their own use.

And on into the night turned the sausage grinder, a vicious machine that contained fearful knives and a heavy metal core. The modern food choppers had not then arrived. Rendering lard required the patience of Job or any other famous character; it was a fearful thing to burn the supply of lard. Sausage was sacked and later smoked in the smokehouse. Later still the joints that had been salted away were taken out and hung up to be cured. Now isn't all of this a fascinating art, one so common that we almost ignore it?

DELICIOUS DOUBLE DECKER

For light lunching these lazy Indian Summer days, why don't you serve quick and easy combination sandwich plates? They take just a short time to prepare and make mighty good main course eating. For lunch today try a chipped beef, bacon and tomato sandwich garnished with crisp little curls of celery, glossy brown ripe mission olives and a heaping mound of golden potato chips. It's simple when you do it so:

CHIPPED BEEF, BACON AND TOMATO SANDWICH

To prevent curling, notch edges of—12 slices bacon.
Separate—
1 small jar chipped beef.
Grill bacon and chipped beef together until crisp, having the beef placed in between the rows of bacon so the beef may broil in the bacon fat.
Toast on one side—
18 slices bread, ¼ inch thick.
Spread untoasted sides with a thin layer of—Butter
then with a very thin layer of—
Prepared brown or yellow mustard.
On each of the untoasted sides of 6 slices of bread, place two strips of bacon and enough chipped beef to cover. Top with slices of toast, placing the untoasted sides down.
Slice—
2 tomatoes.
Arrange a layer of sliced tomatoes and a leaf of lettuce on each, then top with third slices of toast. Cut diagonally and serve. (Serves 6.)

SNAPPY SUPPER SANDWICH

HOT OPEN CHEESE SANDWICH

Trim crusts from thick slices of—Bread.
Arrange on top of bread slices of—
American cheese.
Spread over cheese a layer of—
Chili sauce.
Cover with slices of uncooked—
Bacon.
Broil very slowly until cheese is melted and the bacon crisp. Serve immediately. Garnish with fresh cucumber pickle and ripe mission olives.

Note: Cut bacon longer than sandwich to allow for shrinkage in cooking. Also notch edges of bacon with sharp knife before cooking to prevent curling.

OLD-FASHIONED FARE

With this lusty snappy supper sandwich, plan to serve a stout substantial cole slaw salad toned up with slices of fresh cucumber pickle. You're sure to savor the fine home-span flavor of these country style pickles. They taste just like the bread and butter pickles your own grandmother used to keep in a big iron stone crock on the white-washed shelf under her cellar stairs. Chopped in this cole slaw salad they surely add a world of fine flavor:

CABBAGE AND CUCUMBER PICKLE SALAD

Combine and mix thoroughly—
3 cups shredded cabbage
1 green pepper, shredded
½ cup (10 slices) fresh cucumber pickle, chopped
1 tablespoon grated onion
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons mayonnaise.
Arrange in cups of crisp lettuce and sprinkle with paprika. (Serves 6.)

AMONG COUNTY AGENTS

More extensive use of cover crops than in any previous year is reported by County Agent John Bach, Magoffin county.

With capons selling at 2 to 4 cents higher this year than turkeys did last year, Nelson county farmers are doubling their profits.

Demonstrations of how to vaccinate dairy cattle against blackleg were held in Jessamine county.

L. M. Henderson of Green county has seeded 60 acres to Italian rye grass for winter cover crop and pasture.

Wayne county farmers built five new tobacco barns with ridge ventilators while several old barns were remodeled.

Two hundred and twenty-five Grayson county men and women attended the annual poultry meeting.

A strawberry tour in Crittenden county last minth showed better plants than usual.

Discovery of several new marl beds in Butler county has increased use of marl in recent months.

COME IN TODAY and pick out your free premium of a useful and beautiful fountain pen and pencil set the Advertiser is giving away absolutely free. The offer expires Saturday of this week. Better hurry!

Myers Reunion

The beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Myers was the scene of a happy reunion of the Myers family Sunday, Sept. 17th. In attendance were Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Johnson, Mrs. Belle Powers, Mrs. Bess Conrad of Walton, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Conrad, son and daughter, James and Mayme of Dry Ridge, Mr. and Mrs. John Fitzgerald of Louisville, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Myers and children, Richard and Barbara, and Ed Robinan of Cincinnati, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Elliott of Somerset, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Myers and daughter Joycelyn of Florence, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Cotton of Jonesville, Mrs. Lulu Myers, Misses Maud, Edna and Naomi Myers, Harry Myers, Norma Jane Myers, James Myers, Ray Myers, Mrs. Ida Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Wayman Myers, Mr. and Mrs. John Scule daughter Mary Emily, Mrs. Chester McBee and daughter Margie, Miss Frances Miller, all of Covington, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Renaker, Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Powers of Verona.

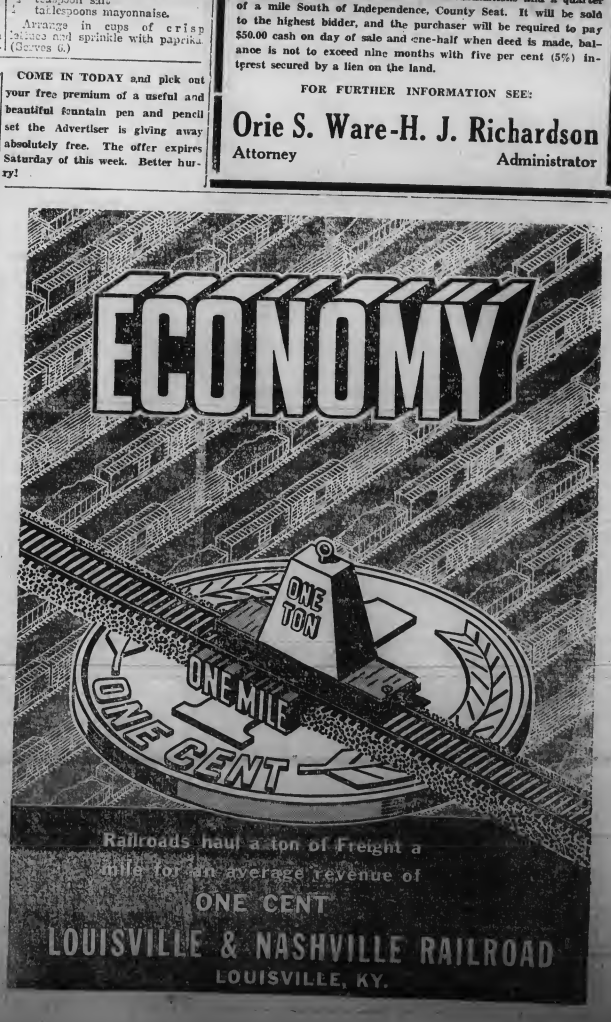
A most bountiful lunch was served and the afternoon was spent in pleasant conversation, the playing of games and singing of hymns.

The pleasure of all present was enhanced by the genial hospitality of the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Myers, aided by their son Vernon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Myers gave a family reunion last Sunday to their friends.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Worthington, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kinman, Harm English, George English and Floyd Chapman all attended the State Fair last Wednesday in Louisville.

We were blessed with a good rain last Saturday, which was appreciated greatly.



Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Worthington have sold their farm on the Verona and Crittenden road to Mr. and Mrs. Bert Powell of Walton.

The Ky. State workmen are giving the finishing touches to the road leading to Glencoe, Route 16. When finished it will be a splendid road, with a great deal of travel.

The farmers report they have tobacco cured enough to strip, and it has a good bright color.

Former Pastor Goes To Vanderbilt University

(Communicated)

Rev. W. C. France resigned his pastorate at Stuart, Fla., the first of August, and after taking a much needed rest, for a few weeks, will enter Vanderbilt University Theological Department, the latter part of September.

Rev. France will be remembered as a much admired and highly appreciated pastor of Richwood Presbyterian church, prior to Rev. Russell Cross' call here. Mr. France's service here was of short duration, due, (after deep consideration, and advice of the Louisville Theological faculty) to a call to the Stuart church; also, to a broken down condition of his wife's health.

He was beloved, not only in St... and surrounding communities, but was frequently called across state, and elsewhere, in response to a call —a request for a book review or a lecture.

He not only filled his own church on Sunday, but was invited frequently to fill the Methodist and Baptist pulpits in Stuart, and during Easter "Holy Week," in the Episcopal church. He undoubtedly bore the stamp, "Wherever called, be not wanting there."

After spending a week or more with friends in Tennessee and several weeks in Canada, where he left Mrs. France, Mr. France and his son William, Jr., were ten-day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Emery Willson of Crittenden. To the regret of many of his friends, he was ill during most of his visit here. However, Rev. France had the pleasure of giving Richwood church one of his grand sermons, Sept. 3rd.

EAGLE TUNNEL

Mrs. John Rider and Howard Hendren visited Mrs. Hendren at St. Elizabeth Hospital one day last week. Glad to report Mrs. Hendren improving.

Mr. and Mrs. John Courtney and daughter were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ashby Collins of near Elliston.

Mr. and Mrs. Temp Courtney and family of Warsaw Heights, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wallace and family of Boone county spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wallace and family.

FRANCISVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Riddle spent Saturday in Covington, shopping.

The many friends of Mrs. Ida Brown regret to learn of her serious illness.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Arnold entertained a number of relatives on Sunday.

Mrs. C. S. Riddle spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Emma Kilgour.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rainey of Covington, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Arnold.

Mrs. Dell Graves spent Wednesday in Crescent Springs with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Eubanks.

Mrs. Edgar Graves entertained a number of the Hebron Homemakers at her home Thursday afternoon.

John Utzinger and daughter Miss Hellena of Rising Sun, Ind. attended the Baptist Association Wednesday which was held at the Bullittsburg church.

Mrs. Mary Humphry, who is a patient in Behesda Hospital, Cincinnati, is recuperating slowly from an operation. Her many friends here wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Whitaker and son Alvin Earl had for their guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ryle of Burlington, Mrs. Cordie Cox and son William and Bernard Cox of Petersburg.

Mrs. R. L. Day returned home on Sunday after a weeks visit with Mrs. Cordie Cox of Petersburg.

Mrs. Joe Aylor and little daughter Joe Ann have returned from St. Elizabeth Hospital, to their home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Estes of California, a former resident of this county, are visiting friends and relatives in this community.

Wilford Baxter of Harrison, O., and Miss Margie Willard of Hamilton, O., called on his aunt, Miss Minnie Baxter Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Cordie Cox and son W. M. Cox and Bernard Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ryle, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Whitaker and son Alvin Earl called on Charles Beall and Minnie Baxter, Sunday afternoon.

Miss Alice Eggleston, Geo. Humphry, Jr., Franklin Ryle and wife were called Saturday to Bethesda Hospital to the bedside of her sister Mrs. Mary Humphry, who is very low.

The new additions to Sun Run Baptist church were baptised in the Ohio river at the home of Mrs. Emma Green on Sunday afternoon by the pastor, Rev. Leo Drake.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Botts of Hebron called on Mrs. Ida Brown on Sunday afternoon, who is seriously ill at her home.

Alvin Earl Whitaker is going to Christ Hospital, Cincinnati, Monday to have his tonsils removed.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Aylor of Florence, were the Thursday evening guests of Chas. Beall and Minnie Baxter.

The many friends and relatives here were sorry to hear of the death of Miss Della Smith, who passed away at her home in Saylor Park, Sunday, Sept. 9. She was intered in the Francesville cemetery on Tuesday afternoon. Deepest sympathy is extended to her sister, Mrs. Smith.

(Communicated)

Lewis Rodgers Hall, son of William and Martha Hall was born near Milton, Ky., Jan. 19, 1852, and departed this life Sept. 8, 1939.

He was united in wedlock to Miss Jennie Miller in 1876. To this union were born nine children, five sons and four daughters. His wife, two sons Thrasher and Sidney Brown, and one daughter Marian Agnes preceded him to the great beyond.

During his last illness he bore his suffering with Christian fortitude. He stated that the way was clear and that he was ready to pass through the valley and the shadow of death.

He united with the Milton Methodist church in early youth and later became a member of the Oakland Baptist church, in 1932. He transferred his membership to the Warsaw Baptist church and was a member of said church until his death.

There remains to mourn his departure three sons, John, Will and Louis Hall; three daughters, Mrs. Julia Winters of Glencoe, Mrs. Stella Day of Paris, Ill., and Mrs. Mae Rider of Patriot, Ind.; twenty-one grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren, many other relatives and a host of friends.

The funeral was held in the Oakland Baptist church, Sunday, Sept. 10th, in charge of Rev. I. S. Pineur. Wm. Smith, Floyd Montgomery and J. A. Lee. Interment was in Oakland cemetery with Vernon Kemper and Robert Marshall in charge.

Auto output last week gained 50 per cent. on week before.

$267,000 Allotment For REA Project

The Washington office announced recently that the Boone-Kenton-Campbell county REA project consisting of 225.2 miles of line along with about 45 miles of other lines, had been approved for a $267,000.00 allotment. The entire project was approved as an extension to the already organized Association with headquarters at Owenton and as originally organized and now functioning under the name of the Owen County Rural Electrification Association. The local project was combined with the already existing association as a matter in increased efficiency resulting in a lower overhead operating expense per unit.

The long expected announcement of the Washington office came at a time when a large number of Boone county people were beginning to get discouraged over prospects for securing the allotment. Signup committeemen and leading citizens of the county have recently been holding a series of meetings and writing letters urging that the project be approved at an early date. The favorable announcement of the Washington office was received with rejoicing by all workers.

The exact date on which line construction will begin is not known at the present time. Contractors for the wholesale purchase of electricity must be completed, the location of the substation and the staking of the exact location of poles must be made first. All of this will take time but the people are assured that they will now receive electricity. It is reported that after the preliminary steps are completed five miles of line per day can be constructed.

Farmers are advised not to begin the wiring of their houses and buildings until after exact location of the poles has been made.

OFFICERS NAMED IN GIRL RESERVE CLUB

The newly organized Girl Reserve of Walton-Verona High School has elected the following officers for the year: President Mary DeMoisey; vice president, Evelyn Coffman; secretary, Rosellen Chapman; treasurer, Ella Mae Chambers; pianist, Majorie Conrad; chorister, Wanda Conrad. The sponsors will be Mrs. R. E. Brugh and Miss Kathryn Scott.

Mrs. Barbara Ransler Dies In Greenville, O.

Mrs. Barbara Ransler, widow of the late George W. Ransler, passed away Sunday, September 24th at Greenville, Ohio. Until ill health, she was a resident of Walton, where she was an active worker in the Christian church.

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock from the Chambers & Grubbs Funeral Home, conducted by Rev. J. M. Ervin, pastor of the Walton Christian church. Burial was in Walton cemetery.

The pallbearers were C. W. Ransler, George William Brittenhelm, I. H. Reed, George Snyder and Walter Kidwell.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Bryce Metcalfe of Greenville, Ohio; one brother, William Brittenhelm of Walton; one granddaughter, Mrs. Mabel Albright of Greenville; and one grandson, Bryce Metcalfe, Jr., of Chicago, Illinois, besides other relatives and a host of friends.

Chambers & Grubbs had charge of the funeral arrangements.

R. D. Martin

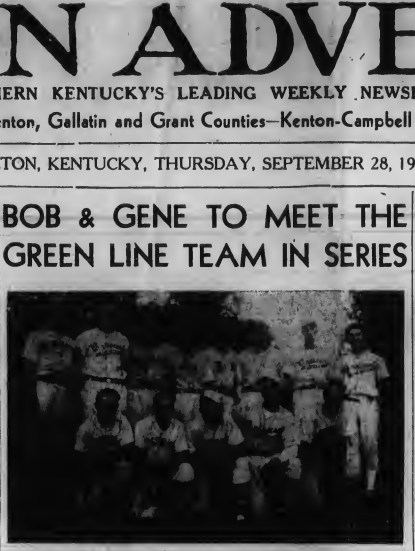
R. D. Martin, age 39, of Independence, was killed while on duty as a brakeman for the C. & O. Railroad, September 22nd at Vanceburg, Ky.

He was born in Harrison county and was a member of the Independence Christian church.

Funeral services were held Sept. 25th from the Christian church, with the pastor, Rev. Ben Burns, in charge. Burial was in Independence cemetery.

The pallbearers were C. E. Shaw, W. H. Gibson, W. J. Foster, Harris Mires and M. Graves.

Mr. Martin is survived by his widow, Mrs. Flora Davis Martin; one son, Roy Martin, Jr.; two sisters, Mrs. Cecil Stephens of Independence, and Mrs. Tom Lunsford of Covington, besides other relatives and friends.



Chambers & Grubbs had charge of the funeral arrangements.

PURCHASES FEED MILLS

BOB & GENE TO MEET THE GREEN LINE TEAM IN SERIES

Members of the Bob and Gene baseball team, front row, reading from left to right are: Sebree, 1. f.; W. Rogers, 3 b.; R. Bradburn, s. s.; Kirkpatrick, 1 b.; R. Ryle, pitcher. Second row, left to right: Bob Eades, manager, Mahan, r. f.; Denniston, catcher, W. Bradburn, 2b; Stephens, c. f.; D. Williamson, c. f.; H. Rogers, c. f.; and Steffin, pitcher.

The Bob and Gene baseball team, Boone county's representative in the Campbell county base ball league, will go into the final series play-off with Green Line of Campbell county, by virtue of their 8 to 4 victory over Martz Cardinals last Sunday. The series opener will be played at the Crescent Springs park Sunday, October 1.

Bob and Gene played their best game of the year last Sunday when they overcome the strong Martz team. Behind the five hit pitching of "Mo" Steffin, restauranteer curve ball artist, the local team was never in trouble. He fanned 11 Martz hitters, having little trouble with any except "Dutch" Relbling, center fielder who gathered three hits.

Leading the local team offensive were Boyd Mahan, who got four for four, and Sebree who out a long home run with two on and also a single. Sebree and Mahan also made outstanding catches for their team. The entire Bob and Gene infield also played bang-up defensive ball.

At the opening series game Sunday Judge Jos. Goodenough will present the two teams. Many other Kenton, Campbell and Boone notables will be present to open the series.

OPTOMETRISTS ELECT OFFICERS

Albert Gerhard

(Communicated)

Albert Gerhard, age 38, died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gerhard of Walton, Route 1, Saturday morning, Sept. 16, 1939, after an illness extending over four years. He was a patient in St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington, for some time, and later was removed to Christ Hospital, where he remained for one year. During that time he underwent a major operation, and medical treatment. Afterwards he was removed to the home of his parents where he had been an invalid, gradually growing weaker until his death.

Although he had been ill for four long years, he bore his suffering without complaint. He was cheerful at all times and was ready and willing to answer his Master's call.

Albert Gerhard was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gerhard and was born in Bracken county, on Nov. 22, 1901.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gerhard and family moved to Walton in 1918. Albert spent some time on the farm with his parents, then decided to work for the railroad. At the time he was stricken with the fatal illness, he owned and operated a grocery store in Latonia.

Mr. Gerhard was united in marriage to Miss Corrine Hogan in 1924 and to this union a daughter, Ruth, was born.

Albert Gerhard was a good citizen, a dutiful son, devoted husband and a loving father, and he will be greatly missed in the years to come.

He is survived by his wife, Corrine Gerhard, and daughter, Ruth; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gerhard of Walton; two sisters, Mrs. Edith Dorsey of Walton, and Mrs. Margaret Speagle of Erlanger, besides numerous other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held Monday a the St. Cecilia church in Independence, with interment following in St. Mary's cemetery.

FIRE DEPARTMENT CALLED

Friday morning about 11:30 the Walton Fire Department was called upon to extinguish a grass and brush fire on a lot in the rear of Miss Corinne Moore's home on South Main street. An attempt had been made to burn the grass from the lot, but it got beyond control and the fire engine was called. The flames were drowned in a short time and no damage was done.

Homemakers Study 'The Modern Kitchen'

"How to save steps in the kitchen by convenient arrangement of large equipment" was the subject of the homemaker's lesson for the project leaders held September 26 in the office of the Home Demonstration Agent. The lesson was given by Miss Ida C. Hagman, Specialist in Home Improvement from the University of Kentucky, assisted by Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent.

Many practical hints were given by Miss Hagman and great interest was shown. The actual distance one travels in preparing an ordinary meal was measured and the saving of labor which better arrangement could make was discussed. The last part of the meeting was spent in a real kitchen where a study was made with suggestions of changes in arrangements which could be made. The project consists of six lessons.

In addition to the project leaders, the presidents of the clubs were also invited. The project leaders for next year, 1939-40, are:

Bullittsville, Mrs. Lola Ernst, Mrs. Helena Aylor and Mrs. Marge Mastin.

Constance, Mrs. Elmo Peeno.

Walton, Mrs. Alan Gaines and Mrs. Rod P. Hughes.

Insectory Is Planned By Fruit Growers

Fruit growers of Boone, Kenton and Campbell counties are making plans for the securing of a State Insectory for Northern Kentucky.

The purpose of the insectory will be to collect data on the dates codling moths, scab spores and other fruit diseases are getting ready to appear and advise growers in time to apply protective sprays. Growers in the past have found it practically impossible to follow a regular outlined schedule and secure disease and insect control with definite regularity. Season variations alter the dates diseases regularly appear.

A meeting to discuss plans for the insectory will be held on October 25, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent in Boone County.

Fruit growers who are interested in plans for the insectory and in the securing of the valuable information that will result from its establishment should contact their County Agent's office.

GALLATIN COUNTY GIRLS WIN AT LEXINGTON AND KENTUCKY STATE FAIR

Jean and Eloise Ewbank both won first premiums on their dresses at the recent Lexington District Fair; also both won first premiums in the style review in which there were entries from 53 Kentucky counties. They won first premiums on their dresses at the Kentucky State Fair.

Prices and The War

One immediate result of the outbreak of war in Europe has been a sharp and sudden rise in the wholesale prices of many basic commodities. After current stocks in the hands of retailers are exhausted, the increased cost must be felt by the consumer.

It is the government's hope to prevent price-profiteering. But, as any economist can tell you, prices must inevitably rise substantially in many fields, even though profiteering is eliminated. This is perfectly natural, on the basis of supply and demand. Nations at war present an almost insatiable appetite for a long list of commodities — grains, dairy products, metals, etc. When consumption takes a great and immediate jump, the sources of supply are strained and price rises follow.

The current situation makes it all the more important to prevent artificial and avoidable increases in prices, both wholesale and retail. As a specific case in point, those various existing "anti-consumer" laws which encourage price-fixing, discourage honest competition, and attempt to hamper the efficient distributor in order to aid the inefficient, may be cited. To an extent never before true, laws of this character menace the millions of hard-pressed American families, to whom making both ends meet is a difficult problem.

In other words, let real, unhampered competition do all it can to hold prices to fair and natural levels, for the benefit of the consumer.

Keep Your Head

Rarely in our history has it been necessary for Americans to keep their heads as it is today.

The most ghastly of all tragedies has engulfed Europe. It is the burning hope of the vast majority of our people that we may escape the holocaust of destruction. We have not forgotten the World war. It sowed the seeds for the years of social discontent and depression that followed. We have not forgotten that thousands of American lives and untold billions in American wealth and resources were sacrificed. Only history will eventually reveal what good, if any, came from that war.

The President has said that as long as it remains within his power, there shall be no "blackout of peace" in this nation. In that he echoes the minds and hearts of all of us. But the mere wish is not enough. Hysteria, passion, fanaticism, mistaken idealism—these things can be the producers of ruin and horror. American neutrality is dependent upon America keeping its head.

No one knows when the war will end, or who will be the "victor." But certainly there is justified fear that all that is best in Europe may be lost to that continent for many years after hostilities have stopped. War means that the arts of peace must be ruthlessly dropped in order that the arts of death and destruction may be advanced. The preservation of liberties which have been won through centuries, are threatened in a warring world.

Boys Will Not Be Trained As Soldiers

The Civilian Conservation Corps promptly denied one of the early war rumors that military training would be introduced in CCC camps, and that the Civilian Conservation Corps would become a recruiting agency for the Army and Navy. According to Director Robert Fechner there will be no such use of the CCC boys unless Congress enacts special legislation to that effect. That is unlikely!

Newspaper Advertising Foremost

Despite the appearance of other advertising media, the newspaper remains the most productive channel whereby industry can reach the buying public—and industry is fully aware of that fact.

A recent survey well illustrates the sustained popularity of newspapers among advertisers. The survey was made by four national associations serving chain stores, and covered 138 representative systems operating more than 33,000 stores, coast-to-coast, and having annual sales well in excess of $3,000,000,000.

During the typical year covered by the survey, these companies spent more than $55,000,000 for advertising, an average of $1,754 per store. Almost 58 per cent of the money was spent with newspapers. A little less than 10 per ceent was spent on handbills and similar printed matter, much of which was produced in local newspaper plants. Only 4.30 per cent was spent for radio, with the balance made up of expenditures on miscellaneous media.

Breaking the figures down, it was found that drug chains spent 82.24 per cent of their advertising dollar with newspapers, grocery chains spent 56.53 per cent and general merchandise and variety chains spent 51.35 per cent.

That is a testimonial to the character of the American press. No institution holds a higher place in the esteem of the American people. This is particularly true of the newspapers serving the smaller towns of the country, which are read from "cover to cover" by their subscribers—news, locals, advertisements and all.

They Want To Go To War

Recruiting stations of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps in Washington are receiving a great many applications of Americans of military age who wish to join the service. Contrary to predictions there has been a constant stream of World War veterans calling at the National Capital headquarters to say that they are willing to serve "if we can get in."

The recruiting stations in the Capital did not have to wait many days after President Roosevelt issued his order to raise the strength of the Army and Navy to a new peacetime high before it was able to say that there would be plenty of enlistments to provide for the one hundred thousand extra men that would be added to the military units.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5582 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Our Columbus, Ind. saddle horse friends were so well pleased with their purchases at Falmouth, Ky., that they insisted on us making another trip to Madison county, Ky., to see another lot of Madison county's best saddle horses. We drove the Dixie Highway route by the way of Lexington into Richmond, crossing the Kentucky river at Clay's Ferry, at which place we pointed out where a farmer's ox fell out of the pasture over the river cliff and broke his neck.

While the cliffs are high and picturesque, they furnish as fine a scenery as can be found anywhere. Our chauffeur, an overseas man, said he did not see the necessity of going across the ocean for beautiful scenery, when the United States and Kentucky have as grand scenery as Switzerland or any country. It is worth your time and gasoline to visit the beautiful scenery of the Kentucky river.

After our mission of going over the beautiful blue grass pastures of Madison county, looking at the fine saddle horses, I insisted on our Indiana friends driving to Richmond, my boyhood town and county seat, which I love to visit, and where one of the hardest battles of the Civil War was fought, part of it in the Richmond cemetery, where the scars of the bullets show on the monuments as plain as the day they were made.

A rebel soldier told a story after he came back alive that a monument served his purpose better in life than it could do after his death, for he stood behind the monument to shield himself from the Yank's bullets.

As we drove down Main street, I showed them one of Richmond's best business corners, and told them a true story about a merchant that spent his business life on this corner. When he was a young man, he got the Horace Greely western fever, made a prospective trip through the west. Not pleased, he came back to Richmond.

He said his reason for coming back to Richmond, was, he decided that the U. S. A. is the best country in the world, Kentucky the best state in the U. S. A., Madison the best county in Kentucky, Richmond the best town in the county, and his corner the best in Richmond, where he spent the remainder of his days.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

The President has declared this country of ours to be in a state of "limited emergency" as a result of the war clouds and the thunder of the big guns on the far side of the Atlantic. And for a number of reasons it's important to define that phrase between the quotation marks for it's a new term to Washington lawyers and statesmen, and to those of other nations also.

Washington observers assume that the President, by adding that word "limited" to the usual form of the declaration, was seeking to direct attention to the fact that we shouldn't let events in the other hemisphere completely destroy our own American sense of proportion, our own American way of life. For no one who has viewed the frequently unpleasant happenings that make up the history of the world since 1918 can fail to realize that the greatest enemies or democracy are war and the threat of war. These have all too often provided an opening wedge for setting up a planned economy, which, once insituted, is seldom abandoned even with the return of peaceful times.

Therein lies the most powerful of reasons why we ought not to yield to what the psychologists call "war psychosis'—'which simply is a kind of group mental disease by which people believe that our getting mixed up in the war is inevitable, and that everything this country does and thinks in the future ought to pay homage to that fear.

Neither the administration, nor industry, nor any other group in this country, is as yet willing to accept such a line of reasoning. It is only too clear that acceptance of the premise that the Europeon war octopus is sure to get us can only, no matter what happens, work to the worst possible interest of our system of representative democracy and private enterprise.

The argument against letting ourselves be victimized by "war psycholsis" is an extremely practical one. At the root of it lies the knowledge that there is plenty of work to be done in this country, in putting our own house in order and achieving a return to sound prosperity, and that undue emphasis on legislative or administrative innovations under guise of necessary emergency measures will inevitbaly hobble this work.

Naturally, nothing that stands in the way of providing for national defense or strengthening the dikes of our neutrality can be countenanced for a moment. But our second line of defense in war, and our first line in peace, are our healthy American industries. These will be best prepared for any event, from "limited emergencies" right up and down the scale, if the present time is devoted to providing them with every possible encouragement to move ahead.

Washington thinking these days is following that tack more completely than it has in a long time. And many of those who disagree about everything else under the sun are now heard chorusing the cry that industry must be strengthened at this critical period in world affairs.

It is common knowledge to reporters that dependence on industry and its leaders increase in times of stress. This old axiom is being proved right now in the national capital, where government departments in which theorists once held sway are constantly being reinforced by practical men of affairs who won their supprs in business and possess a working knowledge of how to get things done quickly and well. Probably a baker's dozen or more of business leaders have been drafted by the government within the past month, either to fill important existing posts or to perform added chores made necessary by the new "limited emergency."

It's an old story to everyone but some of the fair haired boys in politics—and yet, somehow, it seems to surprise them, every time it happens, to find out that it takes men of action and practical business experience to get things done!

Getting Your Money's Worth—I

Though I know that circuses are still in existence, I realize that they are rapidly passing away. Probably in a few more reasons they will be as unusual as side saddles or riding skirts. The general plan of a circus has changed little within the memory of man; that is one reason why we always know what to expect. May I take you to the county seat a third of a century ago and let you look in on MY circus, the only full-sized one I never attended?

For weeks the barns and some of the stores had beenplastered with lurid show bills, representing animals that Noah probably left out of his collection; certainly they were not to be found in Barnum's. We children who planned to attend the circus bragged without shame of our being able to go; the other boys and girls changed the subject. Securely hidden in our pocketbooks were the necessary half dollars and dimes for the circus, the side shows, and the pink lemonade and souvenirs. Some of the older people had seen the great Barnum. This show still bore his name, in part, at least, a good drawing card for the younger generation.

Long before the sun was up, almost as if it were to be a hog-killing, we were up, almost afraid the events would be over before we got there. We bolted our breakfasts, hitched Old Mag to the family buggy, and were off on our adventure. The eleven miles seemed stretched out, longer thanusual. The old nag could not go much faster than a walk, because the road was rough and the hills were steep. Impatiently we spent nearly three hours on the way, arriving at nine o'clock, according to the entry in my diary that night. The circus was unloading then, with the usual fringe of small boys in the way. We stood around and watched the miracle performed, the erecting of the large tent. The only disillusionment resulted from the language the bosses used in directing the work. Naturally we supposed that the whole group were in the show business wholly for the fun of it and could hardly understand why any one should use harsh, offensive words to such happy white and colored men. A few of the larger animals: five camels, one zebra, and four elephants, were staked out in the old field where the tent was to be put up, just beyond the hurry and bustle of the work. These queer animals were eating their hay philosophically and probably wondering sleepily what the excitement was about.

But let my old boyish diary tell some things. "At about 11:00 a. m. came the street parade, which was long and spectacular." (You see, I had profited by reading the garnish advertisements in the county paper and also on the barns.) "Shortly after noon I went into the animal tent and into a side show . . . . Among the things I saw in this side show I believe the negro minstrels were the best. There was a sword-swallowing that was excellent. Among other things were, a tattooed man, a Gypsy fortune teller, snake charmer, Turkish dancing girls, and several more." (The plain truth is that I got ashamed at this juncture in recording the day and did not tell how risque some of the okes were and even more so the dancing; to have confessed, even to the diary, that there was a serpent in this paradise would have been to doubt whether it was quite the proper thing for a youngster to enter.)

Most grass mixtures seeded in Laurel count yhad Italian rye grass in them, according to County Agent Phillip Grimwood.

Joe T. Claybrooke of Mason county pushed his ton-litter to weigh 2,360 pounds.

OVER THE HURDLES

Curb Drunken Driving By Alcoholic Charts, Scientist Advocates

WITH every drinking motorist a potential murderer, the country is in crying need of rigid standards that would determine just how much liquor is safe and when and how much it takes to make driving unsafe. Once these standards are set, the responsibility will be placed squarely on the driver, allowing for no slip-ups by the law or bargaining by the culprit.

This is the contention of Dr. Howard W. Haggard, who, in the October issue of Good Housekeeping, advises that we look long and steadily at the system employed by the Scandinavian countries. There, a driver who has been in an accident and shows blood alcohol above 0.05 is legally considered to have been intoxicated. If the percentage is below 0.05 he is not charged with drunken driving. Thus, the 0.05 percent becomes a hard-and-fast dividing line that disregards individual drinking capacities.

There is one difficulty, Dr. Haggard points out; every driver can't take a blood test of himself. But this can be eliminated, he adds, by having a laboratory man draw up a table of the various drinks and timings showing how much and what one can drink and still be safe. Dr. Haggard calls this chart "The Drinking Driver's Alcoholic Speedometer." (See below).

A survey on the relation between alcohol and motor accidents was recently conducted in Evanston, Ill. It was found that 14 out of 100 drivers, involved in serious accidents, had over 0.15 percent alcohol in their blood. Further statistics showed that half of Evanston drivers involved in personal-injury accidents had been drinking. Out of 1750 drivers questioned on the road, twelve out of every hundred had been drinking. Five out of that twelve were over the 0.05 percent mark.

It is up to the community to educate its citizens into making blood tests work efficiently — by setting 0.05 percent as the dividing line. It is the only practical way, Dr. Haggard says, to combine safety on the road and the desire to have a drink and drive a car.

"A Drinking Driver's Alcoholic Speedometer"*

(1) The basic amounts:

1 highball or 1 cocktail or 1 to 1½ qts. of beer	The concentration in the blood will reach its maximum in about 30 minutes at or below the level of 0.05 percent—sobriety.

(2) For each multiple of the basic amounts wait 2 full hours before driving:

2 highballs or 2 cocktails or 2 to 3 qts. of beer	The concentration in the blood will reach its maximum in about 1 hour. It will be above 0.05 percent but will fall to this level in 2 hours. Wait 2 hours.
3 highballs or 3 cocktails	Wait 4 hours.
4 highballs or 4 cocktails	Wait 6 hours.
5 highballs or 5 cocktails	Wait 8 hours.

* Based on an individual weighing 150 pounds. For those who weigh considerably less, the basic amounts should be proportionately lowered. If taken within 2 hours after a full meal, a 2-hr. wait is unnecessary for this amount. This statement does not apply to greater amounts.

"Give to the poor and thou shalt have treasure in Heaven." True happiness is to be found only in giving, and it is perfume that you cannot pour upon others, without getting a few drops on yourself. It matters not how long we live, but how.

Mr. C. O. Morgan has sufficiently recovered from injuries received in a fall, to attend to his work.

The glow of happiness lighted up the youthful face of Charles Otis Morgan, Sept. 16 on beholding lovely birthday gifts given in commemoration of his 10th birthday anniversary. Especially appreciated was the kind thoughtfulness of Miss Anne Morgan of Independence.

Warmest blessings are extended to Miss Helen Ransdell and Mr. Franklin Stansifer whose recent marriage is of interest to a host of friends.

We regret the removal of Mr. and and Mrs. J. W. Hargis from our midst, but wish them every success in their new home in Independence.

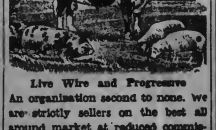
Happiness Perennial

WHO has not noticed the hardihood of certain plants which withstand the coldest winters and in the spring put forth buds and flowers? The cold does not injure them. And under the warm sunshine they respond to the call of spring!



True happiness is like that. It endures under unfavorable conditions, and springs up continually anew. Its extraordinary vitality is explained by the fact that it reflects the nature of God. "Happiness is spiritual; born of Truth and Love," writes Mary Baker Eddy on page 57 of the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." Even human happiness, in its highest sense, hints at the qualities of the divine. . . .

Happiness is as natural as sunlight. It needs no forcing. To possess it, we have only to look for it where it is—in the sunshine of Truth and Love. . . . The Psalmist sang (Psalms 103:20, 21): "Bless the Lord, ye his angels, that excel in strength, that do his commandments, hearkening unto the voice of his word. Bless ye the Lord, all ye his hosts; ye ministers of his, that do his pleasure." The greatest happiness is to know and do God's will, and everyone can have a share in this.

Mrs. Eddy writes (Science and Health, p. 298), "When the real is attained, which is announced by Science, joy is no longer a tremhier, nor is hope a cheat." One who has found happiness in Truth and Love does not fear that he will lose it. The darkest clouds of seeming sorrow pass, and joy appears when thought has in a measure discerned the limitless bliss of living in Soul, God. To contemplate the cloud of error affirm their presence makes them seem darker and more real. The writer had her first glimpse of happiness that is "no longer tremhier," that is independent of human relationships and circumstances, after an instantaneous healing of a serious disease. She was lifted in a few moments from agony to perfect comfort, and a sense of happiness now in her experience. She found herself repeating over and over, for days, these words: "The knowledge of God is happiness enough for me." And so it has proved during the succeeding years. Enduring satisfaction always follows the perception of spiritual bliss. . . .

Even though discordant voices of sense, seeming to be real and strong, may silence it for a time, harmony remains, for it alone is real, and discord is unreal. Those who have discerned the fact of immutable harmony have had a great burden lifted from their hearts. No longer do they have to try to be cheerful and assume an appearance of optimism. If hard experiences come and prospects are discouraging, or if sad memories persist, they patiently endure until the clouds lift, refusing to be cast down. To mourn for that which is unreal would be like groping one's way in the bright sunshine while keeping one's eyes closed. Divine Love, compassionate and tender, is ever ready to lead one safely through the seeming night of sorrow until he sees the light of reality.

A sense of sadness sometimes becomes habitual, so that the sufferer almost fears to be a normal, happy individual. Such a one will find that the moment he glimpses his unity with God, sorrow is seen to be abnormal, and happiness within his reach. "God's being is infinity, freedom, harmony, and boundless bliss" (ibid., p. 481). Self-pity dissolves as one meditates upon this great vision of reality. . . . —The Christian Science Monitor.

WITH THE REDS

Cincinnati:— The nerve-wracking National League race reaches its climax this week, as the St. Louis Cardinals, runners-up to the Reds all season long, were to come to Crosley Field in a final effort to overtake the league leaders. This promised to be the "series of the season," as the Cards have rallied all their Gas House Gang spirit.

The Reds and Cards were to battle in a twin bill Tuesday and in single games Wednesday and Thursday. Then the Reds will journey to Pittsburgh for single games Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. This series will bring to a close the league season.

The Reds closed their last stand against Eastern clubs by winning ten of the fourteen games, giving them a record of fifty-eight wins against only thirty reverese against the East for the reason. They split their season's series with the Giants and won 12 and lost 10 with Brooklyn, 16 and 6 with Boston, and 19 and 3 with Philadelphia. They have also completed their season's play against Chicago, winning 12 and dropping 10.

The World Series will open at Yankee Stadium, New York, on Wednesday, Oct. 4. In the event that the Reds win the pennant, the games in Cincinnati will be on October 7, 8, and 9. The club has stopped accepting orders for World Series tickets, however, because the demand has far exceeded the supply.

Social Security News

Changes in the Social Security Act, liberalizing and extending the old-age and survivors insurance program, in no way affect the status of individuals who are receiving or hope to get aid under the aid-age assistance program.

This statement was made today by Frank B. Decker, Jr., manager of the Social Security Board field office in Covington.

"Recently many persons have visited our office to inquire as to their status under the amended Social Security Act," Mr. Decker said.

"Some of these persons were of the opinion that the extension of old-age insurance to persons over age 65 now means that older citizens can claim monthly benefits under this program without having been employed on jobs covered by this system. This is not true.

"In order to qualify for monthly benefits after January 1, 1940, under this Federal insurance program, a person must have worked in employment covered by the old-age and survivors insurance system. Old-age assistance, on the other hand, is paid to persons only who have reached age 65 and are in need. The extension of the old-age insurance program in no way changes the principle that its monthly benefits are paid as a matter of right to those who have qualified for these payments through employment in jobs covered by this system."

Hydroponics Is Magic For Amateur Gardener

THIS happened in Manhattan, heart of New York City, where office and residential buildings tower mightily and nature's children, trees, shrubs and grass, are almost things of fantasy.

Well, right out in the court of the Good Housekeeping Magazine building, a barren piece of land, there's now growing a bumper crop of tomatoes, beans, pumpkins, morning-glories, herbs and moonflowers.

Magic? Not at all—it's hydroponics, the science of soilless gardening! As Gail Brown, mother of the garden, explains in the October issue of the magazine, hydroponics is the answer to the amateur gardener's prayer. Anyone who has access to air and sunlight, she says, can have a garden.

There are three methods of soilless gardening: sand culture, the subirrigation method and water culture. For practical reasons, Miss Brown decided to use only the first two. Sand culture, the easiest and cheapest method, is the filling of large clay pots with ordinary builder's sand, and feeding each pot about two cups of solution a day. The pots are occasionally flushed with clear water to prevent the solution from becoming too concentrated. Tomatoes, moonflowers and pumpkins have flourished beautifully.

The subirrigation necessitates the building of cypress boxes about 30 inches long, 18 inches wide, 8 inches deep (Miss Brown's measurements), and carefully joined so as to be watertight. These boxes are then mounted on trestles and filled with gravel or cinders. Next, a nipple is inserted at the bottom of each box. Then a small rubber hose is attached to another nipple inserted near the bottom of an ordinary pail, filled with solution. Twice a day the pail is elevated until the box is flooded. In only four weeks Miss Brown proudly saw beans twining around the sticks driven into the gravel. A few weeks later the beans were edible.

Gail Brown attending her magic culture garden.

While there are many ready-mixed solutions on the market, why not mix your own and get a bigger kick out of gardening? It's cheaper, too. Have your druggist mix:

Manganese sulphate	1 gram
Boric acid	1.5 grams
Copper sulphate	.5 grams
Zinc sulphate	.5 gram
Water	1 quart

Then mix one teaspoonful of ammonium iron citrate to a quart of water. Next, take 1½ teaspoonfuls calcium nitrate, 2 teaspoonfuls primary potassium, ½ teaspoonful phosphate (these are the major elements); dissolve each element separately and add to them enough water to make a gallon. All that remains is to add three teaspoonfuls of the druggist's mixture and one [illegible] of the iron solution.

Hollywood Challenged On Lack of Faith

WAKE up, Hollywood, you may have every reason to feel proud of your fifty-billion-dollar name, but you lack common sense in the way you make pictures. You have all the talent and money you need, the best writers and directors, but you have no faith—or courage. No faith in the individual man. You're afraid to let one person go ahead and do a job by himself. You reason that six men—by sheer weight of brain, even though they vary in talent, taste and style—can do a better job than one. That's where you err, and your "super-colossal" pictures are pretty good evidence of the fact.

Mary Hamman throws this challenge right in the faces of Hollywood executives, in the October issue of Good Housekeeping. "Things move so quickly in Hollywood that at times panic besets the executive," says Miss Hamman. "He howls for advisers, for panaceas, for more and more vice presidents, for supervisors, for investigators, and statisticians. Jittery about spending so many millions, he surrounds himself with myriads of assistants on the theory that there is safety in numbers."

As an example of what a talented man can do in Hollywood when let alone, Miss Hamman cites Leo McCarey, producer-director-author of "Love Affair," a smash hit. "If you want to get something done, sit down at your desk and do it," is his simple, workable doctrine. "Don't hire eight other men."

There it stands. Hollywood can go to town only when she takes the talents of her gifted people and lets them go ahead without restraint.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Conner and son expect to move Saturday to their pretty new home on Alta Vista Drive. This new home is strictly modern in every respect. Joe Richardson of Kenton county in the contractor.

LIME DEALERS DO BIG BUSINESS IN BOONE COUNTY

Boone county limestone pulverizers and dealers have developed a big business during the last two years, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. This past year the farmers used 8,348.8 tons of agricultural limestone under the Agricultural Conservation Program alone. A larger amount of this important agricultural fertilizer from present indications will be used this year.

The big increase in use of agricultural limestone has resulted from three factors: First, the increased productivity of the soil after treated with two or more tons per acre; second, the large quantities of agricultural limestone used, and the efficient machinery developed has enabled the operators to sell farmers at the lowest rate in history and probably cheaper than they may be able to supply stone during the next few years, and third, the $1.50 per ton paid for use of limestone under the Agricultural Conservation Program alowance.

The present drought has enabled many farmers to get out a supply of rock. Local pulverizer operators will crush this stone at rates varying around 75c per ton. Local dealers will deliver ready pulverized stone to the farm for $2.00 per ton. The present condition of the ground makes it an ideal time to spread the pulverized stone.

Local dealers have been receiving a rush of fall orders for immediate delivery. Farmers who expect to use agricultural limestone this year should contact their dealer immediately.

KEEP HER EYES YOUNG with Better Light for Better Sight

HOW I. E. S. LAMPS HELP EYES

Translucent glass bowl conceals bulb, filters out harmful glare, eliminates harsh contrasts of light and shadow. Specially designed shade intensifies downward light and spreads it over broad area. Ask for free trial.

They say you can tell a woman's age by her eyes. And if that's true the time to start keeping your daughter's eyes young is when she first starts using them for close seeing. For if there's anything that's destructive to beauty, it's the crow's-feet and wrinkles that come from squinting in poor light.

Begin by giving your child an I. E. S. Study Lamp for her study table. Have better light elsewhere in the house, too. Place an I. E. S. Floor Lamp beside your easy chair. See that lamp bulbs are the proper size and type for easy seeing; that bare bulbs are properly shaded. We'll be glad to help you with free light conditioning suggestions.

NEW NOTES ON SPECIAL DIET DISHES

Even the most rugged family has a member or two every now and then with some sort of illness. It may be only a sore throat or an upset tummy—or it might be something in the way of a major operation. But most of us, sooner or later, have some sort of difficulty that calls for a soft diet as part of the treatment. When that day comes, it's a great comfort and relief to be able to fall back on those fine flavored, superior strained foods that come in cans prepared specially for infant feeding and soft diets for both adults and children. These foods range all the way from soups and cereals to vegetables, meat products and desserts. They are all prepared from the choicest quality of ingredients, strained to a silken smooth consistency and packed with laboratory precision to retain the highest possible nutrient value of the food. They are completely free of seasonings and spices so they are adaptable to the most delicate and exacting diet. And when the patient begins to come around, and the doctor permits, you can tone up the tempo of the menu by adding other simple and savory foods to these fine flavored specialties. Here now are a variety of new and novel suggestions made by mixing strained foods with simple staples:

BEEF AND LIVER DRINK

Combine, mixing well—
⅓ 4½-oz. can strained tomatoes
⅓ 4½-oz. can strained beef and liver soup
⅓ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk.
Chill and serve. (1 large serving.)

SPINACH TIMBALES

Beat with fork—
1 egg.
Add, mixing thoroughly with fork—
2 4½-oz. cans strained spinach
1 tablespoon butter, melted
½ cup milk
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pure cider vinegar
¼ cup grated American cheese.
Pour into well buttered individual baking dishes. Set in pan of warm water, and bake in a slow even (325° F.) 40 to 45 minutes. Unmold, if desired. Serve hot. (Serves 4.)

Note: One 6½-oz. can chopped spinach may be used, using 2 eggs.

FRUIT MILK WHIP

Combine, stirring until sugar is dissolved—
2 cups milk
½ cup sugar.
Combine—
1 4½-oz. can strained apricots and applesauce*
1 tablespoon lemon juice
⅛ teaspoon salt.
Add slowly to milk mixture, stirring constantly. Pour into refrigerator tray and chill thoroughly. Before serving, beat with rotary egg beater.

*Strained prunes may be substituted in which case decrease lemon juice to 2 teaspoons. Strained pears and pineapple may be substituted decreasing sugar to ⅓ cup or adding 1 teaspoon lemon juice.

Note: In using strained apricots and apple sauce, the milk may appear very slightly curdled but the taste is not impaired.

APRICOT TAPIOCA CREAM

Combine in top of double boiler—
1 egg yolk
2 cups milk.
Add—
3 tablespoons minute tapioca
⅓ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt.
Cook over boiling water for 5 minutes after the scalding point is reached.
Remove from fire and add a small amount of this mixture to—
1 egg white, stiffly beaten. Blend thoroughly, then combine with tapioca remaining in pan.
Combine—
1 4½-oz. can strained apricots and apple sauce
1 tablespoon lemon juice
then beat into tapioca mixture, together with—⅛ teaspoon vanilla.

RICE CUSTARD

Scald—
2 cups milk
then stir in—
½ cup cooked rice.
Combine, beating well with fork—
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 4½-oz. can strained carrots or apricots and apple sauce or 1 5-oz. can strained prunes.
Add to rice and milk mixture. Turn into buttered baking dish or individual baking dishes. Set in pan of warm water. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) until firm, approximately 40 to 50 minutes. (Serves 8.)

Kentucky Politics

— By Tyler Munford —

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 27—If the Republican high command departs as far from custom in all of its strategy as it did in the selection of Robert H. Lucas as generalissimo of the G. O. P. organization forces, then Kentuckians are in for quite a show between now and Nov. 7.

Prior to the selection of Lucas neither of the major parties would have considered a manager other some good Republican of wide acquaintanes and continuous residence in the Commonwealth. This yet the G. O. P. brain trust chucked custom aside and went all the way to Washington to get talent for the November campaign.

At first glance such a move might be condemned as bad policy, but in view of the handling Republican nominees in Kentucky have been getting from local talent the inner circle perhaps took the position that any kind of new leadership would be an improvement over that of 1935 and 1938. At the best, the selection of Lucas is no compliment to the faithful who stayed "regular" in the face of 100,000 Democratic majorities in the State.

The Republican chairman is no novice in politics, and in a manner he is not entirely an outsider. Mr. Lucas is a native Kentuckian, and he retains his voting residence in Louisville, but since relinquishing his post with the Republican National Committee he has practiced law in Washington. Politically he is classed as affiliating with the Republican Old Guard.

Credited With Strategy To Defeat Norris

It was his ardent concern over keeping Republican membership in the United States Senate ultra conservative that brought him into the national political spotlight a few years ago when he was credited with the ill-fated strategy to unseat the distinguished Republican liberal, George Norris of Nebraska.

Alarmed over Norris' liberal conception of government, Lucas is generally given credit for the bright idea of running an obscure Nebraska groceryman by the same name in the Nebraska Republican senatorial primary. The strategy failed, Norris won, and Mr. Lucas got in the "dog house" with the liberal element of his party. So much so that he was the target of some rather caustic remarks from the lips of Norris colleagues on the Senate floor.

Mr. Lucas' latest venture of a political nature—one that also drew thespotlight—was his suit against Frank R. Kent, the Baltimore Sun's political commentator. Libel was charged as a result of some unkind comment by Mr. Kent. A jury fixed the damages at one cent.

Kentucky Not a Good G. O. P. Investment

Although his position in national ranks was not enhanced by the Norris implication, Mr. Lucas is not without potent connections in the Republican party.

His contact with the G. O. P. committee is perhaps the real reason for his being selected to direct the Republican campaign. Political observers here contend that the national bosses have shown no disposition to deplete the G. O. P. war chest by an orgy of good will spending in Kentucky this year. In other words, the boys who hold the purse strings are far from being sold on the idea that Kentucky this year is a good Republican investment. Lucas is supposed to be the salesman who can change their minds.

Miller Seen As Smart Appointment

With the appointment of Wilbur K. Miller, Owensboro attorney, as chairman of the speaker's bureau, Chairman Lyter Donaldson's working staff at Democratic State Campaign headquarters was complete. Chairman Donaldson had previously announced the appointments of Mrs. Robert Vaughn of Glasgow, as head of the women's division; Tyler Munford of Morganfield, as publicity director, and Eugene Mosley, Jr. of Louisville, as chairman of the Young Democrats organization.

The selection of Mr. Miller by Chairman Donaldson is regarded by political observers as an unusually fortunate one. Mr. Miller, for many years one of the leading attorneys in Western Kentucky and always active in Democratic party affairs, supported John Young Brown in his unsuccessful race for the gubernatorial nomination in the recent party primary. His appointment should do much to allay fears of many Brown supporters that they were not to receive recognition in the forthcoming campaign.

Mr. Miller has had previous experience in the post to which he was named. He served as chairman of the speaker's bureau in the 1936 campaign when Senator M. M. Logan made his first race for the United States Senate and began the series of party victories in Kentucky that has continued without interruption since that time. Mr. Miller has already actively begun his work in state headquarters.

FASHION PREVIEW

Cornelia Skinner Has A Bicycle for Sale

THE warning went out to Carole Lombard that she had better look to her laurels because a lady had just purchased a bicycle and was going to pedal like fury each day until the lines of avoirdupois dropped off gently, leaving a figure as striking and slender as the famous screen star.

But, it turned out, Carole had nothing to fear. Her would-be rival, Cornelia Otis Skinner, soon gave up bicycling as a bad and exceedingly painful job. To begin with, Miss Skinner relates in the October issue of Good Housekeeping, the bicycle was a second-hand affair, "so heavy and uncompromising that riding it was like pedaling along on a Victorian funeral bench." Better off in the Smithsonian Institute, she says.

The worst disillusionment Miss Skinner suffered about the "beloved old pastime" was the number of things that could hurt. She bemoans the fact that, what with painless dentistry and all other advances in science, no one has invented painless pedals. And seat trouble! A delicate subject to talk about, perhaps, but Miss Skinner says right out loud she definitely encountered seat trouble.

After a short tussle with the machine, Miss Skinner arrived at the conclusion that the chief benefit from bicycling was in giving the world, not herself, a good time. Her young son tipped off a buddy, in exchange for a batch of funny sheets, that his mother was going to ride and to come over and watch the fun.

"Lady's bicycle for sale—cheap!"

NEWS FROM THE KENTUCKY UNEMPLOYMENT COMMISSION

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 26— Kentucky workers who have filed claims for unemployment insurance at itinrant points of the Kentucky Employment Service will, after October 1, be required to report only once every two weeks rather than each week as has heretofore been required, it has been announced by V. B. Barnes, executive director, of the state Commission.

This will not apply to workers who filed claims at offices of the Employment Service which are maintained upon a full-time basis, Barnes explained, and such workers will be required to report regularly each week as in the past.

Barnes explained the Commission maintains local offices in thirteen cities strategically located throughout the state and in addition, maintains full-time service in six other cities

The remainder of the state is serviced by itinerant representatives working from local offices or headquarter points who visit each county seat in the state once a week to accept claims for Unemployment Insurance.

The Commission has found, Barnes said, that many claimants, especially in counties of large area, have found it difficult to secure transportation from their homes to the county seat in order to file their claim, and that by requiring reports on a bi-weekly basis, not only would theclaimants be benefitted but the expense of the Commission in maintaining this itinerant service would be halved.

The Kentucky job insurance law requires regular reports by claimants during the time they are receiving benefits. The claimant is required to certify he has been totally unemployed, to register for employment, and to be physically able and available for work.

With girlish inquisitiveness, members of Girl Scout Troop No. 41 holding weekly meetings in a Cincinnati church asked their scout-leaders to arrange an educational tour to know their community better. Using all means of conveyance from autos to railroads the girls made a 46-mile "get acquainted" tour of Greater Cincinnati. Like hundreds of other civic, fraternal and school groups they visited the new bottling plant of The Coca-Cola Bottling Works Company, one of the Queen City's show-places and a model for the industry. On a plant tour from "stem to stern" they saw all processes and operations conducted in a healthful, spotlessly clean environment, causing one awed scout-girl to remark: "Is it always this clean here? Assured by the guide that such was the inviolate rule, the little miss declared: "It sure is nice and clean out here."

WE'RE GOING QUILTY

Phoebe Edwards, well-known quilt designer, to contribute series of articles to The News Tribune.

Few of the varied interests of modern homemakers offer such fascination as the making of a quilt.

This old art, so popular in the days of our grandmothers, has had a sweeping revival of interest. Everywhere today, women are making lovely quilts both for their own use as distinctive bedroom accessories, and as heirlooms to be passed down to future generations as examples of their handiwork.

Alert to this interest, we seek to serve it—and YOU—with reproductions of old and modern quilt patterns, which you can make into your very own quilts. Beginning next week we will publish one outstanding quilt design each week, together with a descriptive editorial on its origin, background, history and possibilities as a pleasing decorative accessory for modern homes.

We believe you will like this feature. Watch for it each week in this column.

The quilt illustrated is "Snowbound", an original and cheerful design for a pieced quilt in white and two shades of blue. Patterns for Phoebe Edwards designs will be available at the newspaper office for ten cents each.

Kenton Farm News

Cooperation Makes Successful Educational Exhibit

The success of the Farm and Home Educational Exhibit held at the Independence Graded School Auditorium, Thursday, September 21, made possible by the cooperation of the following organizations, their members and other cooperators.

The Kenton County Homemakers, leaders and members under the direction of Miss Zelma E. Byerly, Home Demonstration Agent, of the following clubs: Piner, Oak Island, Nicholson-Atwood, Beech Grove, Independence, Oak Ridge, Saffordsburg, Ryland, Spring Lake, Forest Hills, Winston Hill, Bromley, Dixie, Erlanger Crescent Springs and Ft. Mitchell.

Kenton County Farm Bureau, through John P. Schumacher, president, W. Haden Ware, secretary-manager, the directors and members from the various sections of the county.

The County Agricultural Agent and Assistant Agent, Maurice K Williams, the Agricultural Conservation Association and the Agronomy Department.

Beautifying the Farm Home

Mr. A. L. Heger, Landscape Architect, Dixie View Nursery, Dixie Highway and Ft. Mitchell, explained how to properly landscape the home grounds. He displayed sample shrubs suited to Kenton county. He also made blackboard sketches showing the methods of planting trees and shrubs about the home grounds.

Homemakers Feature Home Improvement at Exhibit

The Kenton County Homemakers, under the direction of Miss Zelma E. Byerly, featured home improvement projects: furniture upholstering, slip covers, rug making. The child care project was also studied. An interesting display of hobbies was also a feature of the Homemakers section.

The winner in the Homemakers Special Canning Exhibit will be awarded a trip to the Farm and Home Week at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, in January, 1940 This is in connection with the State canning contest conducted annually.

Keep Farms Green, Featured In the Farm Section

Charts were used in the farm section to illustrate the need for keeping land covered and keeping Kenton County farms green. Abundant green pastures, grass and hay lands is made possible through the right use of ground limestone, phosphate and seeding of legumes and grass in mixtures.

On the educational charts it was shown that over twenty times as much soil is eroded from lands in cultivation compared with land in sod or grass.

More plant food and fertility is lost through soil erosion than is removed by the crop. On hilly land it is more important to keep the soil covered most of the time.

Cover Crops Vital

Cover crops need to be seeded early to make growth before freezing weather. Much soil is lost during the winter months when the soil is left bare.

Auto Club Says Safety Solution Lies In Respect For The Law

Joseph R. Gardner, President of the Cincinnati Automobile Club and member of the Executive Committee of the American Automobile Association in appealing to all motorists to reduce accidents by more careful driving said "Until the automobile driver respects the law the accident rate will increase."

Investigation of accidents in Cincinnati and in rural areas served by the Cincinnati Automobile Club revealed that when Cincinnati reduced its speed limitation and began strict enforcement the number of serious or fatal accidents reduced. "Slower driving produces less casualties. President Gardner pointed out. While there are fewer accidents in the rural districts the rate of serious or fatal accidents is higher in proportion to the automotive population. This is due to excessive speed.

Speeders in rural sections are both city folks and rural dwellers. Neither is perfect. Both must be made through education, fear of injury, fear of a monetary loss because of damages or fear of the law, to drive within the law, keeping the car under control at all times.

Members of the Cincinnati Automobile Club living in rural districts or any automobile driver going into Cincinnati are warned that the city is strictly enforcing its speed regulations Unless a highway is marked "35 miles per hour" the motorist must reduce his speed to twenty miles an hour or twenty-five miles per hour, depending upon the signs and the neighborhood Signs have been erected on the outskirts of the city reciting the regulations. The Cincinnati Automobile Club urges all motorists to obey them. You can join the automobile club in this district, a self regulatory group dealing in local highway, taxation, safety and other problems.

A UNIQUE RESORT

A health resort affording the quiet of almost rural environment, yet in close proximity to a great medical center, is something almost unique. Such is the North Shore Health Resort at Winnetka, Ill., on Lake Michigan, near Chicago, described as "one of the most attractively located sanitariums in the world."

In 40 years of operation it has become increasingly popular, especially among patients from the South, who suffer during oppressive summer heat.

The institution has enlarged its scope in recent years, so that it is now a completely equipped sanitarium offering treatment for a variety of illnesses. Its location near the great medical centers of Chicago has made it possible for the institution to keep abreast with new methods of diagnosis and treatment. Visitors returning this autumn after a period of treatment report that an extensive program of redecorating and refurnishing has just been completed and that new equipment has been added in readiness for the popular fall season.

The North Short Health Resort is one of the oldest and best known resorts of its kind in the middle west. Its baths, massage treatments, the beautiful walks along the North Shore, and other exercise provide a healthful rest at this time of the year.

Fall guests are largely Southerners who go north to enjoy the fresh breezes off Lake Michigan and to sleep in the cool invigorating night air.

The "Beautiful Chrysler for 1940". This picture shows the Royal 6-passenger sedan, destined to be one of the most popular models in the line. This car has a wheelbase of 122½ inches, 3½ inches more than the corresponding model of 1939, and 108 horsepower, as against 100 horsepower in 1939.

Rear view of the "Beautiful Chrysler for 1940", 6-passenger sedan. Note the completely redesigned rear lines, ending with a stone deflector. The rear window has been increased 15 percent in size, and is made of curved plate glass.

The Chrysler Royal coupe, notable for its graceful lines and exceptional roominess. Coupes come in three and six passenger body styles. In the Windsor New Yorker models a six-passenger convertible coupe is available

The instrument panel of the 1940 Chrysler Royal is a combination of beauty and utility. Light colored plastics are used to fine effect.

Completely redesigned and restyled, the Chrysler line for 1940 represents what the company considers its outstanding achievement in beauty. It is, in fact, an entirely new line with beauty so definitely the motif that in all its advertising and sales promotion efforts the company refers to the cars as the "Beautiful Chryslers for 1940". Along with its improved appearance, the car has been bettered mechanically in many respects. The result is that it has an improved performance, added comfort, greater safety and superlative riding qualities to match its eye appeal.

Six models, comprising a total of 26 body styles, are offered. These are designated as the Royal, Windsor, Traveler, New Yorker, Saratoga and Crown Imperial.

The Royal is offered in the Three-passenger coupe, Six-passenger coupe, Six-passenger Victoria, Six-passenger sedan, Eight-passenger sedan and Eight-passenger sedan-limousine. The Windsor has all these body styles, plus a Six-passenger convertible coupe. Body styles in the Traveler are the Three-passenger coupe, Six-passenger coupe, Six-passenger Victoria, and Six-passenger sedan. In the New Yorker all these may be had plus a Six-passenger convertible coupe. The Saratoga comes in but one body style, a Six-passenger sport formal, with combination leather and cloth trim. The Crown Imperial, corresponding to last year's Custom Imperial, lists a Six-passenger sedan, Eight-passenger sedan and Eight-passenger sedan-limousine.

Chrysler's "Cruise and Climb" transmission (overdrive) is offered as extra equipment at added cost in all models save the Royal and Traveler and is standard in the Crown Imperial. The famous Fluid Drive, introduced with such marked success last year in the Custom Imperial and later made available in the Imperial models, is offered in the New Yorker and Saratoga as extra equipment at added cost and is standard in the Crown Imperial. In all cases where Fluid Drive is used, overdrive is essential.

All models are similar in appearance, differing only in size and the quality and variety of trim and equipment.

The front end has been simplified and made more beautiful by a thoroughly modernistic treatment. The hood is longer than those of the 1939 cars. The radiator grille, with horizontal rustless steel moldings, gives the car massive but at the same time thoroughly artistic appearance.

The rear-end graceful, distinctive lines are entirely new, ending in a stone deflector or bumper panel that cleans up the appearance of this part of the car. The tail lights have been raised for additional protection and the rear window in the sedans is an undivided sheet of curved plate glass, for greater vision and the avoidance of reflections. The cars can be had either with or without running boards, as preferred, at no extra cost.

The wheelbase of the Royal and Windsor has been increased 3½ inches, now measuring 122½ inches. Three and a half inches also have been added to the wheelbase of the Traveler, New Yorker and Saratoga, bringing it up to 128½ inches. In the Crown sedan the wheelbase is now 145½ inches, an increase of 1½ inches over last year.

This increased wheelbase naturally helps the riding qualities of the car but an even more important advance in this respect is the improved weight distribution. The rear axle has been moved back 7½ inches and the engine advanced 4 inches in relation to the front wheels. This increases the "cradled" area between the axles in which the passengers ride, where, obviously, they are less affected by the jolts and jars incident to road irregularities.

Both front and rear seat have been widened, giving the cars actually greater seat width than most of the famous Airflows, which set new standards in this respect. Leg room has been increased three inches in the rear compartment.

Another Airflow feature is the use of full width doors to the rear compartment. The rear edge of these doors drops in a straight line, instead of having the usual "dog's leg" design. This means that entrance and exit are facilitated and that women do not risk soiling or mussing their costumes in the doorways. It also permits the rear door windowglass to be lowered completely out of sight. Rubber seals have been placed around all doors, to keep out drafts and dust.

Interiors have been restyled and made more beautiful, comfortable and convenient. Pillow-type Air Foam cushions, made of spun rubber, are used to supplement the conventional wire cushion springs.

The instrument panel has been improved in design with a wider use of plastics, safety signals are incorporated in the speedometer and all gauges. These gauges show a warning in case of low fuel supply, low oil pressure, high temperature of cooling water or excessive discharge on the ammeter.

Steering has been improved, through changes in the steering geometry and through the fact that the increased percentage of weight in the front end of the car naturally inclines it to keep going in a straight line.

Power plants have been improved for the complete line. Horsepower in the Royal and Windsor has been increased from 100 to 108. With premium fuel, the horsepower is raised to 110, and with a special aluminum head, to 115. This is developed at 3600 r.p.m. by an engine of 3⅛ bore and 4½ inches stroke, with 6.5 to 1 compression ratio. The piston displacement is 241.5 cubic inches. A new high-lift camshaft contributes to increased power and performance.

The engines in the Traveler, New Yorker, Saratoga and Crown Imperial are of 3⅛ inch bore, 4⅜ inches stroke and 6.8 to 1 compression ratio, with a piston displacement of 323.5 cubic inches. They develop 135 horsepower at 3400 r.p.m. In the Crown Imperial an aluminum head is standard, giving 137 horsepower.

The Superfinished aluminum alloy pistons of all engines are given a tin plating that resists scuffing and contributes to long life. This is a new development in the 1940 models. Each piston has four rings.

Practically all working engine parts and some chassis parts are Superfinished. By this exclusive process, developed by Chrysler, bearing surfaces of virtually perfect smoothness are achieved. By means of these Superfinished parts, Chrysler engines maintain their original close tolerances a much longer time and are insured of long wear and efficient operation. The "breaking-in" period is reduced to a minimum.

KENTUCKY DEMOCRATS TO OPEN CAMPAIGN AT MT. STERLING, SATURDAY

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 26—Kentucky Democrats will formally open their campaign at Mt. Sterling, on Saturday, October 7, J. Lyter Donaldson, state party campaign chairman, announced today after a series of conferences with party leaders and various members of the Democratic state ticket.

Keen Johnson, Richmond editor, the party's nominee for Governor, in an address at the rally is expected to definitely outline the issues upon which the party will carry its fight for re-election to the voters of Kentucky. All members of the state ticket will be on the speaker's rostrum and introduced to the audience.

With the announcement of the selection of Sherman Goodpaster of Owingsville and Frankfort, as chairman of the finance committee of the state organization, also made today, Chairman Donaldson has completed the selection of the executive heads of his campaign organization.

Nine members of the committee, one from each congressional district in the state, will serve as members of the finance committee. Selection of the committee members will be announced in a few days Chairman Donaldson said.

Selection of Mt. Sterling as the place for the opening of the party's campaign drive was influenced to a great extent, Chairman Donaldson said, due to the city's accessibility to many of the congressional districts.

Its location makes it possible for delegates to attend the rally from the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth and Ninth Congressional areas and is also not an unreasonable distance from both the Third and Fourth Congressional districts.

A local committee will make all arrangements for the Mt. Sterling rally, details of which will be announced later. Chairman Donaldson expressed the hope that it would be possible for U. S. Senator Alben W. Barkley and Mills M. Logan and the eight Democratic members of the congressional delegation to attend. Governor A. B. "Happy" Chandler will be present and will participate in the program.

Walton School News

— By Evelyn Phillips —

On September 5, 1939 the Walton-Verona High school reopened for what we hope will be a prosperous year. So far, everyone has showed a great interest in his school work and is cooperating magnificiently. This year there are twenty-six pupils enrolled from Verona. There are nine seniors this year, a number which was exceeded last year by four. We have had a new teacher added to our faculty, Miss Nannie Lee Roberts, who is taking Miss Mary Walker Flowers' place in teaching the second grade. We are sure all of her pupils like her, although they hated to lose Miss Flowers. Everyone should cooperate with the faculty and school board in trying to make this a bigger and better school year than ever before.

The officers for the Junior and Senior classes for the school year of 1939-40 are as follows:

Junior Class— President, Evelyn Coffman; Vice President, Jack Roberts; Secretary, Evelyn Phillips; Treasurer, Johnny Gault.

Senior Class— President, Charles Ransler; Vice President, Marjorie Conrad; Secretary, Esther Sizemore; Treasurer, Estelle Riley.

It has been customary for the pupils of the Junior and Senior class to take a trip to Mammoth Cave every other year. This year the task of making enough money to take this trip has fallen on this class. The class is going to sell soft drinks, candy and popcorn at the ball games; they are also going to give picture shows during the year in order to raise this money. This class solicits the help and cooperation of the communities of Walton and Verona in helping them raise enough money to take this trip.

BOONE COUNTY HOMEMAKERS WIN HONORS AT STATE FAIR

Boone County Homemaker's Exhibit won third place at the State Fair in Louisville, last week. A cash award of $10.00 accompanied the ribbon.

The exhibit consisted of a stool with seat of Hong Kong hand-caned by a Homemaker, looper clip knitting bag, pocketbook and rug, homemade hand lottion, pigskin gloves, wooden bowls, painted pottery, homemade toilet soap, wood carving seed buttons, dress protector, hat standard and laundry bag.

Judge complimented the exhibit very highly on workmanship, economy and practicability.

PURCHASES HEREFORD CATTLE HERD

Sam B. Sleet, leading farmer in Beaver community, purchased on Monday of this week eight fine Hereford cows and calves from Aubrey Finn, Hereford breeder of Burlington, Route 2, on Woolper Creek.

Mr. Sleet states that the use of lime and phosphate under the Agricultural Conservation Program has increased the production of pasture and hay crops on his farm to the point to where it is necessary to make the addition of beef cattle as a part of his farm enterprise.

STATUTES REVISER TO SPEAK BEFORE ATTORNEYS

Mr. and Mrs. Oakley Henry were in Cincinnati, Tuesday to see his mother Mrs. Lue Hopper who is in a hospital there.

WPA announced that hereafter every person on work-relief must certify his need every 6 months.

Gen. von Fritsch, one time commander-in-chief of the German army, died in battle near Warsaw.

Hitler's Mother Schooled Him in Greatness

ADOLF HITLER, the man whose shadow darkens all Europe today, inherited from his mother and father those traits that make him what he is: a ruthless plunderer, a self-appointed Messiah to lead Germany back to greatness.

From his mother, Klara Poelzl, who ran away from home at fifteen and came back a broken and defeated woman ten years later, Hitler inherited his "mission" in life and the will to achieve it. Klara coddled her son, fawned on him, coached him in greatness, sought to hide his physical weakness (he was a puny child) with an outergrowth of demi-God arrogance, says Jerry Allen in an article, "Directors of Destiny," in the October Good Housekeeping.

Alois Hitler, twenty-three years his wife's senior, despised his son for his weakness. He was tall and powerful and a drinking man, and he never missed a chance to beat and torment Adolf. From his father Hitler learned what fear and hatred and what force can do.

"He was terrified of his father, hated him for the beatings he received himself and for those his mother suffered," writes Allen. "Yet he saw that the ability to give those beatings, pure force, makes a man boss, even in his own home. And he has never forgotten that in boss rule it is force that counts."

Hitler was a poor student, he couldn't concentrate on his studies. He failed in everything but drawing and gymnasium. Klara made excuses that the schools were at fault. She transferred him from one to another, with no improvement. But in Adolf's aptitude for drawing, she envisioned him a great artist. All artists, she said, were "moonstruck." Adolf was different from other boys, in her estimation.

Only once did Klara waver in her belief that Hitler was destined for greatness. That was when he was expelled from school for smoking. Terrified that he might follow in his father's footsteps—"a man who drank too much, ate too much, smoked too much"—she worked on him with such hawk-like attention that soon he was able to resist every temptation. As a result, Hitler grew up without any close friends, without a girl of his own (his mother was the substitute), without a full life. He grew up a loafer. He loved the soft life.

Greatness His Fetish.

Hitler was fourteen when his father died. Five years later his mother followed. Although she was suffering from cancer, it was the shock of Adolf's failure to pass the entrance examinations at the Art Academy in Vienna, that killed her. She left a proud, penniless youth who didn't know how and didn't want to work.

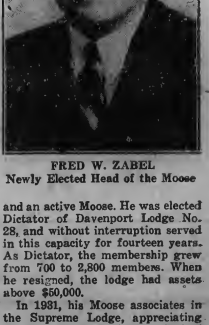
"Ever since then," Allen says, "Hitler has been trying to justify his mother's faith in him."

Moose Names Its First Governor

Fraternity After Fifty Years Abandons Title of "Dictator"

On August 21, at Philadelphia, Pa., during the Fifty-first Annual International Convention of the Supreme Lodge of the World, Loyal Order of Moose, Fred W. Zabel, of Davenport, Iowa, was unanimously elected Supreme Governor, the highest elective office in the gift of the Fraternity. His term of office began September 1.

Like so many men who have built enviable reputations for themselves, in politics, business, or the professions, Fred W. Zabel was born on a farm. There, he spent the early part of his life.



Mr. Zabel's birthplace was Scott County, Iowa. After leaving the public schools he entered St. Mary's College, Kansas. He began his banking career in McCausland, Iowa, as bookkeeper in the local bank. At the close of a year he was invited by the Durant Savings Bank, Durant, Iowa, to become Assistant Cashier, a position which he held for five years. Promotion again followed. In 1918, he accepted the position of Assistant Cashier at the Union Savings Bank & Trust Company, Davenport. A year later he became Cashier of the same institution, and soon was promoted to the Vice Presidency. (The Union Savings Bank was one of the largest financial institutions in the Middle West, with total assets of $28,000,000 and Zabel was credited with being the youngest Cashier of an institution of this size in the Middle West.)

A Conservative Banker

During 1933, '34, and '35, he was with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the State Superintendent of Banking. In 1936, he resigned to accept a position as Iowa representative of Brown, Harriman & Company, New York, one of the oldest and largest investment banking houses in the country. In 1937, he became associated with the firm of Murdoch, Dearth & White, one of the leading investment banking houses in Iowa. Today he is Vice President of the Merchants National Bank of Aurora, Illinois, which office he assumed August 1, 1939. During his entire banking career, Fred W. Zabel has been regarded as a conservative banker, and has devoted years to the study and analysis of high-grade securities.

But the profession of banking did not engross the whole attention of this public-spirited citizen of Iowa. He became Director of Davenport's Chamber of Commerce, a charter member and Director of the Kiwanis Club, and Secretary-Treasurer of the Civic Welfare Organization of Davenport.

He has ever been an ardent fraternalist, as witness: He is a Thirty-second Degree Mason, a Shriner, and an active Moose. He was elected Dictator of Davenport Lodge No. 28, and without interruption served in this capacity for fourteen years. As Dictator, the membership grew from 700 to 2,800 members. When he resigned, the lodge had assets above $50,000.

FRED W. ZABEL
Newly Elected Head of the Moose

In 1931, his Moose associates in the Supreme Lodge, appreciating the magnificent service that he had given to their Fraternity, unanimously elected him a member of the Supreme Council, and at the Cleveland Convention, 1937, Supreme Prelate, and member of the Publications Board. Further honors came to him at the close of the Convention in June, 1938, when he was unanimously elected Supreme Vice Dictator, and in 1939, when he became Supreme Governor.

He is affable in approach, urbane in manner and speech, and deeply sincere in all his relations with his fellow men.

Mr. Zabel is married and has two children—James and Joan.

Cecil Davis Wed To Jessie Rivard

A wedding of interest to many in this section, and which only recently has become generally known, was that of Mr. Cecil Davis to Miss Jessie Rivard at Lexington, Sept. 16th by the Rev. Gray.

Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple left for Florida, where they spent two weeks touring the state.

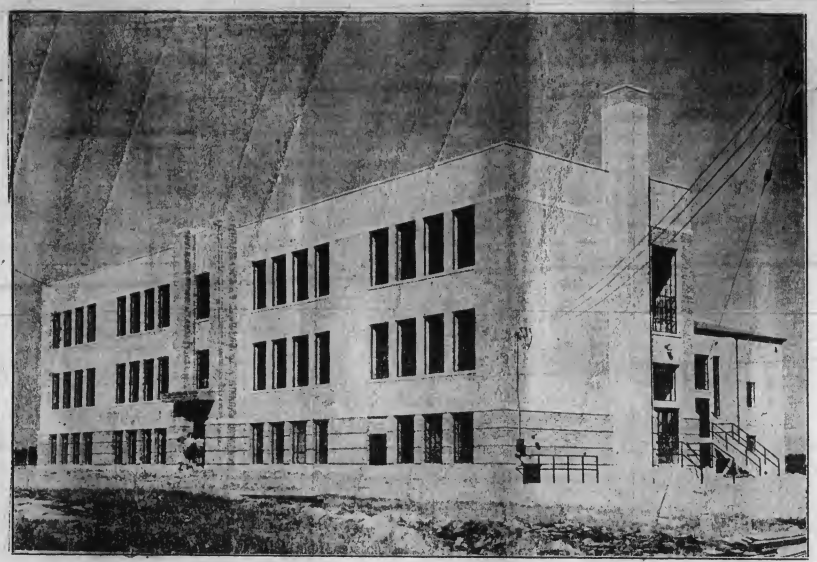
Upon their return to Walton last week, they rented one of the apartments over the Post office, and are now housekeeping there.

Mrs. Davis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Rivard of near Richwood. She was graduated from the New Haven high school and later attended Eastern Teachers college at Richmond.

Mr. Davis moved to Walton some years ago with his parents from Georgetown. Since coming here he has been active in various businesses and at present is head of the Davis Chevrolet on North Main street. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claud Davis of Covington.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis' many friends join us in wishing them happiness and prosperity throughout life.

Youth Struck by Auto Saturday



Eugene Roberts, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Roberts was struck by an automobile driven by a Mr. Hicks of near Verona, in the down-town section of Walton, Saturday morning. He was taken to the office of Dr. R. E. Ryle where it was found he had sustained a broken collar bone, as well as bruises. He is recovering nicely, and is able to be out some.

4-H DAIRY DEMONSTRATORS ARE AWARDED MEDALS

Awards of special gold medals have been approved for the county winning 4-H team in the National 4-H dairy production demonstration contest, according to word received at the county agent's office. Members of the winning Boone county team are Billy Graves and Carvin Goodridge of Hebron.

Their demonstration was on Production and Handling of Clean Milk and they were coached by H. B. Drake, Assistant County Agent.

BURLINGTON'S NEW SCHOOL OPENED SEPTEMBER, 25th

The new Burlington elementary and high school was opened Sept. 25th, and classes are now being held in this beautiful structure. The building, erected as a cost of $82,000 contains ten classrooms, combination auditorium and gymnasium, with large playroom, and cafeteria and kitchen in the basement.

The school is a part of the County system and was erected with aid of the Federal Government, the latter paying 45 per cent of the cost and Boone county the remaining 55 per cent.

Geo. P. Nicholson & Son, Walton, were the general contractors. These contractors are well known in Northern Kentucky, especially in the construction of schools. Some of the finest in this section having been erected by this firm. Abner Foster of Covington, was the architect.

The Post Office Department has selected October 1 to 7 to be National Letter Writing Week. This is to assist the patrons to write letters that they have been putting off. Won't you write those letters which you have been putting off so long.

LEBANON CHURCH CEMETERY TO BE CLEANED OCT. 11

All who are interested in the Lebanon Church cemetery, are asked to be at the church on October 11th for the purpose of cleaning the cemetery. At the same time, the ladies are going to clean the church. You are asked to bring your lunch and enjoy the day.

Women's Clubs To Meet Here Oct. 17th

The 23rd annual meeting of the Fifth District Federation of Women's Clubs will be held in the James Theater, Walton, on Tuesday, October 17, with the Walton Woman's Literary Club as hostess.

District Governor, Mrs. John L. Shepard of Covington, will preside. Mrs. T. C. Carroll of Shepherdsville, president of Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, will be present.

Mrs. John L. Vest, who is general chairman of arrangements for this meeting, has named the following committee: Reception, Mrs. Sam B. Sleet, Mrs. C. W. Ransler, Mrs. B. W. Franks, Mrs. J. C. Bedinger, Mrs. W. O. Rouse; luncheon, Mrs. J. R. Conrad, Mrs. C. Scott Chambers, Mrs. Barnette Franks, Miss Emma Jane Miller, Mrs. Sam Sleet, Mrs. R. G. Moore; decorations, Mrs. Lula Huey, Mrs. D. Hess Vest, Mrs. W. W. Rouse, Mrs. E. E. Fry; pages, Mrs. R. P. Hughes, Mrs. J. M. Ervin, Mrs. Clayton Jones, Mrs. A. H. Gaines, Mrs. H. F. Mann; music, Mrs. Ollyis Wills and Mrs. J. L. Hamilton. Lunch will be served by the ladies of the Christian and Methodist Churches.

Class Officers At Eastern Named

Walton and Boone county took first place among officers chosen by the Sophomore class of Eastern Teachers College, Richmond. Elmore Ryle of Burlington was selected as president, and from Walton, Homer Lee Osborn and Jean "Foxy" DeMoisey, were named vice president and treasurer, respectively. Miss Mary F. Orme of Mt. Olivet is secretary, and their sponsor is Dr. Emerson Jenkins.

Other class officers and sponsors are:

Young Dems To Give Dance, Saturday Nite

The Young Men's Democratic club of Boone County are to give a dance at Bill Deters Club House, at the end of the Fort Mitchill car line, on Saturday night, Oct. 7th.

Eulpa Hodges' Orchestra will provide the music, and a floor show is to be featured.

Tickets for this affair may be obtained by contacting any member of the club.

CLARA HARTMAN

Miss Clara Hartman, aged 61 years, passed away Wednesday night at St. Elizabeth Hospital, after a long illness. The remains were removed to the Taliaferro Funeral Home for preparation.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Fred Hebbler, Locust street, Erlanger, with whom she made her home, four brothers, George and William Hartman of Erlanger, Ernest Hartman of Walton, and Albert Hartman of Covington.

Funeral services were from the Taliaferro Funeral Home, Monday at 6:30 a. m. with requiem high mass at St. Henry Church at 9 a. m., with interment following in St. Mary's cemetery.

The pallbearers were her four brothers and Walter Ramler and John Hartman, nephews.

MRS. J. TALIAFERRO

Mrs. John Taliaferro of Walton, Rout 1, passed away Sunday morning at 7:00 o'clock at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two brothers, Harry Donnelly of Covington, and Charles Donnelly of St. Louis, Mo.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at 9:00 a. m. from St. Mary's Cathedral, Covington, with burial in the St. Mary's cemetery.

Those from Walton who attended the funeral were D. L. Lasley, C. Scott Chambers, John Fagan and Mr. and Mrs. [illegible]

100% A. C. P. Soil Building Allowance

Boone County farmers are working toward earning 100% of their 1939 ACP soil-building allowance goal, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

Fall seedings of grasses due to the drought has delayed many farmers but there has been marked increases in orders for limestone and phosphate. Conditions have been ideal for the spreading of both these important soil fertilizers.

The use of both limestone and phosphate has shown marked increase during the past three years of the Agricultural Conservation Program. Limestone use has increased from 3,104 tons in 1936 to 6,213 tons in 1937 to 8,349 tons in 1938. Phosphate use has increased from 66.2 tons in 1936 to 525 tons in 1937 to 792.9 tons in 1938, based on 20% analysis.

Both limstone and phosphate has given farmers splendid results and profitable increases in pasture and hay crop production. The increase in yield has been accompanied by more uniform stands of grasses and clovers that live longer, grow faster and produce more palatable livestock feeds. Results being secured by farmers correspond with closely supervised experimental work which shows that it cost three times as much to produce livestock on fields that are no limed and phosphated as it does on fields that are treated.

Boone county farmers are urged to take full advantage of the opportunities under the A. C. Program to secure both of these two important fertilizers. ACP cooperators have until this Saturday, Oct. 7th, to order 47% superphosphate through the County Office and until October 31st to spread limestone. Credit for securing both of these fertilizers is available through the County Office.

Arrested For Driving Without Operator's License

James Watson of 1024 West 4th street, Covington, was arrested on September 27th, at Florence, for driving a car without operator's license, by Highway Patrolman Conrad.

He was tried before County Judge N. E. Riddell on Friday and was assessed the costs, $9.50. According to Patrolman Conrad, future offenders will receive the full penalty, which will amount to $50.00.

Recruiting Station In Walton This Week

A Recruiting Party from the 10th Infantry, Fort Thomas, Ky., arrived here Monday and established headquarters at the Walton Police Station, and will be here throughout the week. The main purpose of this party is to enlist young men in the Regular United States Army and for service with the 10th Infantry and Medical Corps at Fort Thomas, Kentucky. However, they will enlist young men for many other branches of the Army and for other stations in the United States, as well as for foreign service in Hawaii, Panama, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands.

Colonel Arthur R. Underwood, Commanding Officer, Fort Thomas, Ky., desires to secure enlistments for Fort Thomas, Ky., as far as possible from young men from Northern and Central Kentucky, Southern Ohio and Indiana.

Fort Thomas is one of the oldest reservations in the United States. It is located on the Ohio River in Northern Kentucky, four miles from Cincinnati and three miles from Newport and Covington, Ky.

The Army affords young men many opportunities. Schools are conducted at Fort Thomas each year in Radio, Motor Mechanics, Clerical, etc. Young men interested may attend one of the many service schools.

The Tenth Infantry boasts one of the finest bands in the Army or elsewhere. The man who plays a band instrument and enlists in the Army has a chance to further his musical education at no expense. Technical Schools in the Army train recruits for quick promotion in the Army and prepare them for better jobs when their enlistment expires.

The United States Army is a sports loving institution. Recruits are given every opportunity to join company and regimental teams in baseball, basketball and bowling. Boxing is also a favorite sport of many soldiers. Some of the best fighters in the world have been developed in the Army.

Men accepted for enlistment by the recruiting party while here will be sent to Fort Thomas for their physical examination and enlistment if accepted. Transportation to and from Fort Thomas will be paid by the Government. All men under 21 years of age must have the consent of their parents to enlist. They also must have two references as to character from two reputable citizens that have known them for a considerable length of time. Men enlisted must be between the ages of 18 and 35 years of age.

All young men desiring information regarding the Army are welcomed by the Recruiting Sergeant located at the Walton Police Station, on North Main street, near the L. & N crossing. Master Sergeant William H. Biggerstaff, who made arrangements for the Recruiting Party in Walton, stated that Sergeant Scott of Fort Thomas, 10th Infantry would be in charge of the station.

According to Lt. Scott, Recruiting Sergeants will be in all near-by towns to receive enlistments. All men having discharges from CCC camps may enlist in the Army, if they so desire.

J. B. O'NEAL PASSES 83rd MILESTONE, MONDAY

Monday, October 2nd, J. B. O'Neal one of Walton's highly respected citizens, celebrated his 83rd birthday anniversary. However, the real celebration was held on Sunday at the home of his sister, Mrs. John Hanlon at Ghent.

Those who enjoyed this happy occasion and partook of the sumptuous dinner were Mr. and Mrs. J. B. O'Neal and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Percival and two daughters of Walton, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. O'Neal and Mr. and Mrs. Ed O'Neal of Carrollton, T. M. O'Neal of St. Matthews, and the Hanlons.

The O'Neal brothers average age is almost 79 years. Ed will be 82 in December, Will, 80 on Oct. 5th and Tom, 70 in November, and all are in the best of health.

Congress Assumes Responsibility

A special session of Congress finds the National Capital again active with the peaceful good old summertime left behind, and the Federal Government united in the opinion that the United States must keep out of the European war.

As the session opens there is stiff tension, for while "Neutrality" is a word that has been on all lips for the past few weeks no one knows how to make it fit a nation whose rulers and citizens are mostly unneutral.

The question of keeping the embargo on arms and munitions, or repealing that provision of the neutrality act, is but a part of the responsibility of Congress to the nation. Snap judgment and opinion ought to give way to a full examination and determination of policies that will be best for the country, and which will lessen the danger of our own citizens being drawn into the war. But, will it? The best men of the United States think differently about these questions. If "best men" do their "best thinking" that will be the best they can do.

The duty of every citizen to obtain an understanding of the issues that are involved can be easily fulfilled by following the discussions in the United States Senate, and by listening to broad-minded men who submit reasonable facts and opinions, and cut out all prejudiced and dogmatic doctrines—oer the radio.

We think we aren't going to get into war, but we thought that in November, 1916, and changed our minds and declared war the following April. Will we go crazy again?

The President has performed the constitutional obligations of his office by calling Congress in special session, and by submitting his recommendations for a changed foreign policy. That is his constitutional duty.

Congress has reached the point where it must assume the full responsibility of the war situation. It can agree, or disagree, with the President. War, or peace, is a tremendous responsibility. No matter what happens that may bring blame, or praise, Congress has the Constitutional authority, and the responsibility, in its hands. Congress has plenty of time to decide, wisely. It should be wise enough not to go too fast.—by J. E. Jones

Prices Lift

A big change is making itself felt in the economic situation. It started with sugar and food, about the time that it broke out in stocks, bonds and securieties. Now the printer, the paper man, the merchant, the tailor, and lots of others, have joined the procession that is lifting prices on necessities. That is one of the things that we learned all about in the last war, when everybody was intent on getting what they could, out of it.

—:o:—

Taken For Granted

The most significant thing about the agricultural marketing cooperative movement is that today it is taken for granted by thinking farmers.

Not so long ago marketing coorperation was still in the expertimental stage. It had yet to prove itself. Now there is no question of experiment and millions of farm families regard cooperation as a matter of course.

This is a logical development. For marketing cooperation has proved, beyond argument, that it is not only successful but essential. A single producer, dealing with a middleman, for instance, is inevitably at a disadvantage—he takes what is offered or goes without a central organization staffed by first-rate executives, he can dicker and bargain on an equal basis and get a fair price.

There have been many great developments in the age-long history of agriculture and cooperative marketing deserves a place with the greatest of them.

—:o:—

Power Production vs. Flood Control

Representative Will M. Whittington of Mississippi stated a fact which should be commonly understood, when he recently said. "Generally, reservoirs for power and flood control are incompatible. An empty reservoir is necessary to detain flood waters. A full reservoir is necessary to develop power."

That simple truth exposes much of the bunk behind the government's so-called flood control program. It will be remembered that when the government was forced to defend in court the constitutionality of certain of its power-producing projects, such as the TVA, it did so on the ground that the projects' principal work was to aid in flood control and similar normal governmental undertakings, and that power production was purely a "by product." That argument may be legally valid—but from any practical standpoint, it is about as completely fallacious as anything could be. You don't have to be an engineer to realize that a dam which is full of water, and so able to produce power, will be worse than useless as a reservoir in case of flood.

All of this illustrates the conscienceless tactics of the "power politicians." They seem to work on the Hitlerian thesis that anything, no matter how untrue, unfair or vicious, is legitimate so long as it brings them nearer the ends they desire. They want to see the power industry socialized, as a first step in the general socialization of private enterprise. No more unwarranted attack has ever been made on a basic industry, representing the savings of hundreds of thousands of people—and no program is more inimical to the preservation of freedom as we know it.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5582 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

I know a man who will argue with you all day and part of the night that the world is flat. He should know better for he was raised in the hills where there are ups and downs on the face of this old earth. Unfortunately he has never been to the seashore and seen the mighty ships sail on the mighty deep and finally go out of range of any telescope or spy glass.

This reminds me of a discussion which came up at a teacher's institute about the location of the center of the earth. It was discussed from every angle and viewpoint by learned teachers and professors.

Finally a little unassuming principal of the Winton Place School, north of Spring Grove Cemetery, Cincinnati, gave his viewpoint, saying, he lived next door to the school house, in a plain frame house, which was his home and that it was the center of the world to him.

If every mother or father, boy or girl, could put forth make effort to make home the center of the world, how much happier all families would be. It is too bad that it seems that the home has lost so much of its old time attraction and so many are going away from what should be real happiness in search of all kinds of imaginary pleasures.

Which reminds us of the gold rush to Alaska. Seekers of gold passed over what later proved to be the greatest gold field. They traveled 175 to 200 miles and went through all kinds of sacrifices and hard ships to find gold, some returning disheartened and discouraged, making their way as best they could to the ships and back to the states where they discovered the greatest treasure at the mouth of the Yukon River. How true it is that many who are leaving home and sometimes go too far away, coming back, like the prodigal son, all ragged and torn.

In this busy life when home surroundings and home ties are cast aside, it is about as hard to locate the real trouble, whether it is the parents or the children, as it was for the professors and the learned teachers to locate the center of the earth. I can only give my experience of home. My father made home attractive to me. He was my pal. He kept me home by playing innocent games with me, gave me due consideration in all my boyish plans and ideals. In fact we were like buddies and brothers. We went to Sunday School and church together. He would take me to the circus because he was like a boy and enjoyed the circus too.

When my father died I lost my pal. This old world has never been the same to me.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

"Brain Trust" is not defined in the dictionary. Nor is there any such classification in the Washington telephone directory, although several well known names might be under that heading.

The phrase is simply one coined by the Washington correspondents. It is meant to describe a small group of "thinkers" and "planners" who immodesty rate their mental batting average at about 1000% plus when it comes to the question of how the U. S. A. should be run.

Their handiwork has been evident in the planned economy of the past several years, but now the correspondents have been told that the Brain Trusters are being shunted aside in this time of "limited emergency." In their stead, the correspondents are told, older heads are being called upon to plan the nation's course under the new conditions.

What puzzles the correspondents however, is this: The Brain Trust is, in fact, still existent and apparently will continue to function as heretofore. The only thing they are being left out of is the administrative planning incidental to national defense and international affairs. How is the Brain Trust planning going to jibe with the planning of the emergency planners? Is there going to be a headon collision between the theories of these two groups?

The correspondents are well aware of the Brain Trust's brand of planning, to wit: plowed under crops, and other methods of "planned scarcity" intended to raise prices. And the apparent objective of the other group is to see that the U. S. has abundant materials, both for home consumption and sale to any and all outsiders who want to buy, and to fight down increasing prices!

Even before it happens, the sideliners are calling it an "unavoidable collision at the intersection of Planning boulevard and Preparedness avenue."

As Congress assembled for it's special session, the definitions of a "limited emergency" were many. One wag even interpreted the present condition as an improvement. He reasoned: "We have had an 'emergency' since 1933, but now we have only a 'limited emergency'. That is an improvement."

Many at the Capitol have expressed some fear that the turn of European events might tend to bog down interest in domestic problems. For instance, some returned to Washington with the belief that the country would lost interest now in the question of amending the National Labor Relations Act, and correcting other one-sided laws too hurriedly written in previous Congresses.

But those with such fears no longer entertain them. They reason now that new interest in these problems will be generated because of their vital connection with the safety of our own country. The investigation of the National Labor Relations Board and amendment of the labor act, for example, now become more important because industrial peace will be necessary if any expanded national defense program is to be carried out.

One factor that has helped to change the fear outlook to one of optimism is the new interest being shown in the work of the House Committee investigating un-American activities (the Dies Committee). Persons who at first paid only passing attention to the exposures of that committee are now very much alarmed over the borings-from-within.

Getting Your Money's Worth—II

Though the Turkish dancing girls and the negro minstrels were dismissed with a few lines, I felt safe in recording the various animals, as if I were taking the census. Besides the zebra, the camels, and the elephant staked out in the broomsedge field, there were the following: three llamas, two wild boars, two nylgaus (I had a hard time with that word), a dog-faced babboon, a gnu, about a dozen monkeys, a black bock, two fallow deer, five or more kangaroos (apparently some were hiding out), eight or ten lions, four leopards, a Bengal tiger, a panther, a hippopotamus ("the largest in captivity"), and two antelopes. For a boy who had been used only to the few domestic animals of the farm and who had never been twenty miles from home, that was a view of animated naure, I can tell you. We stood in silence before the cages and stared at the huge mouth of the hippopotamus, the human-like antics of the monkeys, and the queer babies of the kangaroos.

When eyes could stare no longer, we went into the big tent. There we saw so many things that my diary breaks down into short, quick sentanoss, as if I were panting for breath as I wrote: "There were trained dogs galore. Many agile and beautiful horses performed in the two rings. Several troupes of acrobats performed on the stage, while there were a good many trapeze performers. There were some excellent horse racing around through the middle of the tent, sometimes driving eight at a time . . . There was some excellent bicycle racing on the platform. Some twenty clowns made smiles increase in the vast audience of seemingly 4000."

And there my diary stopped, apparently because I had run out of breath and out of adjectives as well, not mention "theres." I failed to say what the clowns did, but I still remember that one had a trained pig and that another one, dressed as a women, walked along as the crowd was assembling and caught hold of the arms of men who were decorously escorting their wives into the tent.

All too soon the show was over. Sixty cents had been transferred from my pockets into the coffers of the circus, besides some ten other cents that I spent up town on pink lemonade. The final act, to advertise the following performance, was a monkey fire company, which dashed in with a great ringing of bells and put out a fire that was consuming a pasteboard house. Through this extra attraction was "only a dime, ten cents," I felt that I had been extravaltant enough. Besides, the eleven miles were beckoning, and a heavy cloud was rising in the west.

After we had driven half the distance home, "it seemed that the windows of the heavens were opened from the amount of rain that fell." (I had been to Sunday School and knew my Bible, even for a diary entry.) Several times along the way ome I was afraid that this electricl display was a divine warning to us for having been so frivolous as to go to a circus. When the lights in the windows of home could be seen, the sheepest feeling vanished, never to reappear again. 'And then to bed' as Pepys would say, to dream about the rare and unusal things we had seen. And for days we repeated the stale jokes and tried some of the acrobats' tricks. We had been to a circus, and all of life and experience could not take away the memory of it!

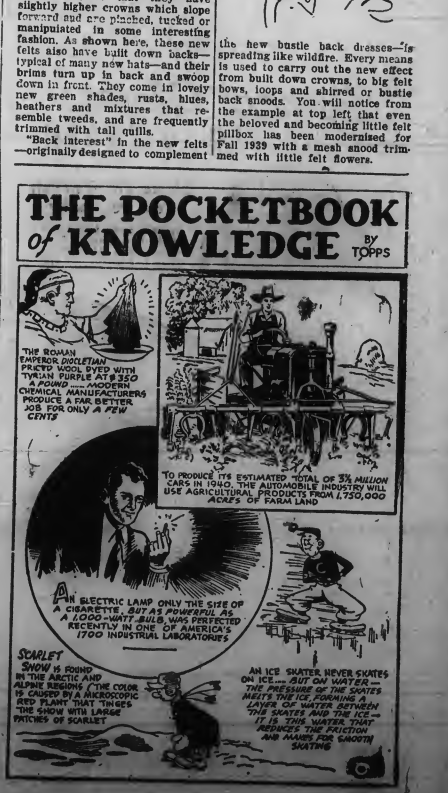
Classic Felts For Fall

are comfortable and becoming

EVERY young girl adores the new felt pork pies and casuals they're showing for Fall because the styles are so becoming, the colors so gay and the felts so soft and comfortable. These classics stay firmly put, too, and don't blow off in a stiff breeze. Another nice thing about them is that they pack into a weekend case easily and hold their shapes well.

You will note from the accompanying sketch at top that young men wear pork pies too. As a matter of fact, smart young couples wearing twin hats like this promise to be a new campus vogue this Fall. For what young girl doesn't love to flatter her beau by wearing a hat just like his.



News in the classic casual felts for country wear, campus, and with town suits, is that they have slightly higher crowns which slope forward and are pinched, tucked or manipulated in some interesting fashion. As shown here, these new felts also have built down backs—typical of many new hats—and their brims turn up in back and swoop down in front. They come in lovely new green shades, rusts, blues, heathers and mixtures that resemble tweeds, and are frequently trimmed with tail quills.

"Back interest" in the new felts—originally designed to complement the new bustle back dresses—is spreading like wildfire. Every means is used to carry out the new effect from built down crowns, to big felt bows, loops and shirred or bustle back snoods. You will notice from the example at top left that even the beloved and becoming little felt pillbox has been modernized for Fall 1939 with a mesh snood trimmed with little felt flowers.

Prince Charming Rossi Avoids Marriage Hook

A MAN who has millions, looks and youth, and still likes to play around with death, must be quite a character. If anything, it's unfair to the women of the world, for this Dream Prince (what else can he be called, with the above qualities?) prefers to remain a single entity. That is, unmarried.

He is Count Teofoli Rossi di Montelera, better known as Count Rossi. Two kingdoms are his: the speedboat and Vermouth. Vermouth, it should be pointed out, is not some far-off island or mythical country but a liquid which, when mixed with gin, produces that spirited drink known as a Martini.

The count is literally a man of the world, Inez Callaway Robb points out in the November Cosmopolitan. He is the Cosmopolite of the month.) As head of the world's largest vermouth firm, Martini and Rossi of Turin, Italy, he travels a minimum of 25,000 miles annually. Turin, Paris, London, Rio de Janeiro, Hollywood, New York, are his homes. He knows them all, the people, their languages, their customs. He's a globe-trotter, he's only 36, and he loves life.

Thrills and tussles with death come in for a big share, ironically enough, of this love of life. A bobsled run in the Andes, skiing in the perilous Rockies, auto-racing in Europe, not to mention his speedboat activities wherever there's a body of water, are the things that supply a fascinating pick-me-up to Rossi. In 1938, he captured all the major American and European speedboat titles, the first racer to chalk up a grand slam.

"Rossi is as alive as a charged wire," says Miss Robb. "Put him in the same pond with a batch of electric eels and it will be the eels, not Rossi, who'll be shortcircuited. He can give us cards and spades in that

Rumor has it that Rossi's annual income is in the neighborhood of $2,000,000. This may be an exaggeration, but the fact stands that he pays the highest bachelor tax in Italy.

What a catch! But listen to what he has to say about marriage: "I don't claim immunity from matrimony. Should I settle down I am sure it would be with a girl from my own country. American girls are charming, bright, intelligent, good sports . . . but we (a girl from his land) would have a better chance to understand each other."

Social Security News

Editor's Note:

This is the second set of questions and answers about changes which have been made in the Federal Social Security Act. Additional questions will appear in later editions of this newspaper. Answers to individual inquiries may be had by writing to Frank B. Decker, Jr., manager of the Social Security Board field office in Covington.

Question—In general, what are the effects of the amendments on the old-age insurance provisions of the Social Security Act?

Answer—They expand the system for payment of benefits to individual workers into an insurance system for the protection of both the worker and his family.

Question—How is this done?

Answer—By providing for the earlier payment of benefits; for the payment of more liberal benefits to those now nearing the retirement age, 65; for extension of supplementary benefits to wives and dependent children; and for monthly benefits to survivors.

Question—Is there a change in the tax rate which was included in the original old-age insurance program?

Answer—Yes. the tax rate remains at one percent for the next three years, starting January 1, 1940. The employee will contribute one percent of his wages covered under the old-age insurance system and the employer will be taxed a like amount.

Question—When do monthly benefits begin under the old-age insurance plan as now amended?

Answer—Bnefits are payable beginning January 1, 1940. The original Act provided for the beginning of these payments in 1942.

Question—To whom will monthly benefits be paid?

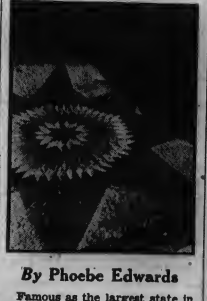
Answer—The amendments have broadened the plan to take into consideration the security of the family unit. In addition to benefits paid the retired worker the law now provides monthly supplementary benefits for his wife, if she is 65, and for his dependent children under 18.

Question—What other survivor benefits are provided?

Answer—There are now monthly survivors' benefits for aged widows; dependent children, widows with such children in their care; and for dependent parents of workers who die.

Question—Are there estimates of the number of persons who will receive benefits under the new provisions for old-age and survivors' insurance, starting in 1940?

Answer—There is an estimate, and of course it is only an estimate; that approximately 912,000 persons may be on the benefit rolls by the end of 1940. This assumes there will be about 485,000 primary old-age insurance beneficiaries, that is persons 65 or older who are fully insured in their own right; some 125,000 wives and 20,000 widows over 65 years old; 78,000 young widows with dependent children; and 10,000 dependent parents.



Another set of questions will appear in an early issue of this paper.

FROM TEXAS COMES DESIGN FOR THIS QUILT

By Phoebe Edwards

Famous as the largest state in the Union, Texas has also supplied inspiration for one of the loveliest of quilts which you are bound to find attractive for use in your favorite bedroom. This quilt will inevitably provoke excited "Oh's" and "Ah's" of your guests, not only because of the striking nature of its Lone Star motif, but because it has a character all its own, and rich coloring that harmonizes perfectly with modern color schemes. The Lone Star design has been a perennial favorite since the early days of quilt making, and while the piecing is simple it must be done with accuracy. Eight whole sections joined make up the complete star.

You may obtain this distinctive Lone Star quilt pattern for 10c by calling at this newspaper office.

MORGANSVILLE

"He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly, but he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully." Now is the time of sowing, then will be the harvest and even in this life we reap rich blessing for "the liberal soul shall be made fat." Although the one to whom all of the silver and the gold belong also the cattle upon a thousand hills begins to accept little gifts given in His name to relieve the oppressed. May we seek grace to embrace it while we have opportunity, thereby laying up treasure in Heaven.

KENTUCKY 4-H DAIRY TEAM TO WORLD'S FAIR

DEMONSTRATING how to teach dairy calves good table manners, the boys above won Kentucky honors in competition at the state fair with other county teams in the national 4-H dairy production demonstration contest and qualified to enter the finals at the National Dairy Show, Golden Gate Exposition, San Francisco, October 21-25. The boys are Charles E. Hampton, 16, and Joseph E. Porter, 17, both of Rockfield, who represent Warren county. They were coached by Ray C. Hopper, county agent. * * * The contest is being conducted by the extension service for the third year to encourage clubsters to learn and practice good dairy methods and demonstrate them to others. The boys stated that dairying is a chief source of income in their county and it was more economical to raise calves than buy cows. They made a row of small stanchions and said this was the best arrangement to teach calves to drink from a pail. Costs and pointers on calf rations were given. * * * The team receives all-expense trips to San Francisco through the Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation which provides $250 and $100 scholarships respectively to each member of the first and second placing teams among Southern states.

Exciting Gifts by Air From Far Away Lands

The sample case-refrigerator with gift suggestions from distant lands, which can be obtained through Lord & Taylor's exclusive Air Shopping Service.

IT'S now a simple task to order orchids from Colombia, Kangaroo Tail Soup from Australia, and Smoked Oysters in Oil from Shanghai. Or, if you prefer delicacies from points on this continent, there are Cheshire Cheeses from Montreal, Shrimp from New Orleans, Jumbo King Crabs from Seattle, Papaya Melons from Texas!

Whatever it is you need to satisfy any sort of a whim, you can order anything from anywhere, it's all part of an exclusive air shopping service which has just been inaugurated by Lord & Taylor, large New York department store.

This innovation will be a boon to Christmas and holiday shoppers, too. In fact, the new, fast, inexpensive features of the service will afford an opportunity to give an unusual gift in a most unusual manner.

For instance, the gay, young blade, who ordinarily charges Dad for the orchids from a Park Avenue florist at $5.00 a clip for his holiday "dates"—can secure by air one of the rare blooms from Colombia for only fifty cents more than the Park Avenue people charge—and what's more, the transparent box containing the flower will arrive with the official airline stamps plus a log which gives the time and place of departure and arrival (flying time in transit 22 hours and 12 minutes). All of which will raise his standing with his best gal.

The unique Air Shopping Service, which is an exclusive feature of this Fifth Avenue store, is quite unlike anything done before. With the cooperation of all the major airlines, it is only a matter of from one to three days to secure some unusual delicacy from the Bahamas, South America, and other parts of the world. Strangely enough the things obtainable from the distant lands are reasonably priced, gift boxes range from $2.50 to $5.50 plus a fifty cent delivery charge in all cases of separate addresses.

Poll Shows 10,000,000 Voters To Decide F.D.R.'s Chances

IF the name of Franklin D. Roosevelt goes up as a candidate for a third term, a comparatively small number of the voters, 10,000,000, will decide the outcome. That is to say, of the 45,000,000 voters of the nation, three-fourths have already made up their minds to vote either for or against him regardless of who the Republican candidate may be; and the sentiment of this three-fourths is half for and half against a third term.

This is the finding of the American Institute of Public Opinion, as expressed by its director, Dr. George Gallup, in the November Cosmopolitan. Who are these 10,000,000, the undecided class? Dr. Gallup says they are the middle-aged, middle income group. They're anywhere from 30 to 49 years old and earn up to $45 a week, "people who on the one hand are not sufficiently poor to side with the overwhelmingly pro-Roosevelt lower third, nor on the other hand sufficiently well-to-do to side with the conservative, predominantly anti-Roosevelt voters in the upper income level."

Pres. Roosevelt

One factor that might help elect President Roosevelt, if he should run again, is the war; for the survey shows that more than 60 percent believe a third-term presidency would be desirable under that condition. Dr. Gallup mentions men who might make the White House: Thomas E. Dewey continues to be the Republican choice, and right behind him comes Senator Vandenberg of Michigan; on the Democrat side Vice-President Garner is second to Roosevelt, followed by Paul V. McNutt, the new Federal Security Administrator. The prospects of Vandenberg and McNutt are brighter than ever today, Dr. Gallup says.

Skating away from politics, the survey picks up the subject of war and the place of America in it. At the present time 16 percent want us to go after Hitler, and 6 percent want a war with Japan. Before Munich, the militant figure against Germany was only 5 percent. But after Hitler's second Czech coup this spring, the barometer rose sharply to its present point. Curiously enough, Dr. Gallup points out, the war-minded are not confined to any one age or income group. It's a pretty even distribution of the old and young and well-off and poor who are itching for a fight. The rest of the population, the 80 or 90 percent, desire two things: peace and assistance to England and France. Whether these two desires are contradictory is a moot question, which Congress is bound to answer.

Kentucky Politics

— By Tyler Munford —

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 4—President Roosevelt is having a good year in Kentucky's political arena. Without lifting a finger or pulling a string the President received the laudits of both major candidates in the Democratic gubernatorial primary along with their pledge to go along with his friends in organizing the 1940 national convention. At Lexington, Saturday the Republican nominee for Governor, Judge King Swope, was careful to stay far away from criticism of the White House. In fact, he made no mention of the President or the New Deal.

In the case of Judge Swope silence does not necessarily give consent. Absence of criticism of the Roosevelt administration by the Republican nominee can be charged to political strategy rather than to any change of heart on the part of the Lexington jurist.

Four years ago when he was a candidate for the same office he assailed the President from every stump. The result of that contest was not encouraging either to Swope or to his party. So, in an attempt to profit by the errors of 1935, the G. O. P. nominee this year is employing the strategy of attacking the Democratic state administration and ignoring the Democratic national administration.

Swope Policy Has Merit, But May Re-act

Observers here agree that the Swope policy has merit, but they also point out the difficulty he will experience in disassociating himself from the old guard Republican group.

One handicap here is his state campaign manager, Robert H. (Fetters) Lucas, who until a short time ago was executive director of the Republican National Committee and who is listed as one of the most ardent of Old Guard Republican leaders. Lucas is an outspoken anti-New Dealer, and he does not interest himself in Republicans who even so much as lean toward liberalism.

There also arises the question as to whether Judge Swope by failing to attack the Roosevelt regime can arouse interest among old line Kentucky Republicans. There are thousands of "regular" Republicans who believe that Governor Chandler has done a good job at Frankfort. So the effect of the Swope attack on the state administration is doubtful. There "regulars" might be disappointed and unimpressed should the G. O. P. nominee continue his non-aggression policy against the Democratic national administration, and without their enthusiastic and active support the Swope ship is likely to encounter a storm as violent as that which swamped it by a 95,000 margin in 1935.

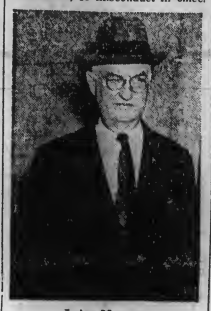
Brown Leaders Backing Party Nominees

The Democratic party is lacking nothing in unity this year. Evidence of harmony is coming from various sections of the state. In western Kentucky Barrett Withers, Dixon, and W. C. Broadbent, Cadiz, both staunch supporters of the Brown primary candidacy, have assured party leaders of their wholehearted support of the ticket this November. Both are former members of the state road commission, and are powerful in party ranks in the sections where they reside.

From Lexington comes the report that the Brown leaders there are taking an important part in campaign efforts in behalf of Keen Johnson and the entire ticket. These Fayette county leaders are Sheriff Ernest Thompson, Waller Rodes, Joe Smith, Harry B. Miller, William White, the Lexington city manager, and others.

Former Governor Ruby Laffoon, who backed Brown in the primary, has already announced his support of Keen Johnson and the party's ticket, and is actively at work in Hopkins county. Thomas S. Rhea, the Russellville Gray Fox and chief strategist for the Brown candidacy, has made no public statement, but reports indicate that Logan county, the Rhea stronghold, will be united in its support of the ticket.

Wilbur K. Miller, Owensboro attorney and a Brown primary supporter, is in charge of the speakers' bureau at State Headquarters, and Lawrence Hager, publisher of the Owensboro Messenger and a Brown primary supporter, has assured Chairman Donaldson of his active and enthusiastic co-operation. Many others of the opposition to Keen Johnson in the primary have been to State Headquarters to declare their allegiance to the party.



World Series to Affect Speech Broadcast

The opening of the World Series at Cincinnati, Saturday will necessitate a rebroadcast of the Johnson speech at Mt. Sterling. Radio time was not available for the broadcast of the speech at the time of its delivery, but it will be recorded and rebroadcast the same afternoon from 5 to 6 p. m. Sure as they are of winning, Demo strategists are unwilling to compete with the baseball game, particularly with interest in the "Reds" at a high pitch all over the state.

K. W. Williams, Johnson county, has conducted a "clean range demonstration" with 250 pullets, with notable results.

Judge Manton Traded Justice for Cash

IT was early in 1939. Attorney General Frank Murphy had just taken office. On his desk lay a memorandum from the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The dynamite-packed piece of paper accused the tenth highest ranking Federal Judge in America, Martin T. Manton, of misconduct in office.

Judge Manton

Five months later, in a crowded New York courtroom, Judge Manton was heard to exclaim passionately: "A judge has been struck down with what amounts to a death sentence!" He was a prisoner at the bar; he had just been found guilty of conspiracy to sell justice. Two years in jail, a fine of $10,000 was his sentence.

The bizarre circumstances behind the conviction are traced by J. Edgar Hoover, FBI head, and Courtney Ryley Cooper in the November Cosmopolitan. The article is entitled, significantly enough, "Freeing Our Courts from Peddlers of Corruption." The story begins, according to the testimony in 1935 when John L. Lotsch, then chairman of the board of the Fort Greene National Bank of Brooklyn, met ex-millionaire playboy William J. Fallon, who said he was the confidential representative of Judge Manton. The judge needed a loan, Fallon said; and if it came through, the judge might arrange for a favorable decision in a patent appeal case in which Lotsch was interested.

Manton and Lotsch soon met, the latter testified, and the judge secured two loans totaling $25,000. As a result, Lotsch said, he was told by Fallon (who received $5,000) he could write his own opinion in the patent suit. He won the case. Lotsch further told the court that, for $10,000 in cash, paid in two installments, the judge had promised him he would have another judge, since resigned, dismiss a bribery charge against him. An amazing chain of loans obtained by the judge came to light as the trial progressed. This desperation for money was shocking in view of the fact that Manton had a fortune of $3,000,000 in 1931.

"This nation-wide scrutiny of justice at the instance of Attorney General Murphy is designed to bring about a stronger faith in our courts, a lasting freedom from stultifying influences and wider protection for the great body of honorable judges who have given their lives to integrity in office," say the authors.

Kenton Farm News

T. V. A. 47% Phosphate

The farmers who have ordered Goverment T. V. A. 47% phosphate must use same by October 31, 1939, in order to receive credit on their soil building allowance under the Agricultural Conservation Program 200 Pounds per acre the limit—

According to the regulations 200 pounds of 47% phosphate per acre is the maximum amount that can be applied for payment. Under the regulations it must be used on hay, meadow, or pasture land. CAUTION A penalty is involved if Goverment phosphate is used on small grains of any kind.

During the month of October is a good time to apply this phosphate on hay, grass or pasture land in order to improve the sod on the land before winter sets in.

Sources of Limestone—

According to a recent survey the following lime pulverizing operators can apply ground limestone to farms who desire to purchase same or if limestone is available arrangements can be made with these persons to crush limestone for use in earn-1939: R. W. Auton, Fiskburg section, Wm. Dance, Eades Road, Bracht Section; Fred Neihoff, Oak Island section; John Barlow, Visalia Hill section; Chas. Kraft, Route 2, Ludlow; C. J. Eubanks, Crescent Springs; T. W. Spinks Company, Erlanger.

The following practices can also be used in earning soil building allowances: seeding bluegrass, orchard grass, timothy, red top, Korean or common lespedeza (after Oct. 15), yellow sweet clover in the hull, legume and grass mixtures at approved raté of seeding. The above seeding practices can be used in addition to the use of lime and phosphate for earning soil building allowances.

Local Sweet Clover Seed—

A number of Kenton county farmers have saved sweet clover seed in the hull which can be used for fall or winter seeding.

Still Time to Use Cover Crops

Now that a good rain has been had over most of the county farmers can seed their wheat, rye and barley cover crops in addition to fall grasses. Because of the extreme drouth during August and September very little seeding was carried cut but most farmers are making plans to rush their cover crop seeding in order to get the ground covered before winter sets in.

Cover Crops Take the Soil

According to Wm. C. Johnstone, Field Agent in Agronomy, cover crops will, (1) reduce erosion and leaching, (2) provide cheap feed and (3) improve soils.

According to Mr. Johnstone, "the failure to use cover crops in Kentucky has been the major factor contributing to the loss of soil and plant food. It is estimated that this loss in Kentucky exceeds 35 million dollars' annually. It is further estimated that over 1,000,000 acres of land in this state, or one-fifth of the cultivated land, have been so badly eroded as to render them unfit for farming, and another million acres are rapidly reaching that point.

"Cover crops not only prevent erosion but experiments conducted at the Kentucky Experiment Station show that they also reduce the loss of plant food by leaching. The loss of nitrogen, one of the most expensive plant foods, was over 25 times greater on unprotected soil than where a cover crop occupied the land during the winter.

"It has been estimated that it requires hundreds of years for nature to produce one inch of soil from parent rock. This amount is sometimes lost in one year by leaving the land uncovered thru the winter. It is to prevent erosion that cover crops are of greatest importance. The slogan used by paint manufacturers, "When you save the surface, you save all" applies very forcibly to soil. Cover crops save the surface soil from being washed away."

Mr. Hitler: Stalin Always Liquidates His 'Friends'

SOME months ago the Soviet Ambassador in London, Ivan Maisky, said: "We are not sentimentalists like you. We are thinking only of Russia, not of humanity."

The barbaric truth of this statement was shockingly realized by the recent mating of Red Russia and Brown Germany. The marriage, of course, was one of convenience; but it was Josef Stalin, not Hitler, who was the seducer. For years Stalin had cast flirtatious eyes at Hitler, the one man in Europe he feared: had he not achieved power by the simple process of playing up to his enemies and then liquidating them in a moment of weakness? It's the old Stalin game.

Josef Stalin

"Stalin is striking for world-power—deliberately, patiently, unscrupulously, as has always been his technique of success," writes Eugene Lyons, Moscow correspondent for six years and first reporter to interview Stalin, in the November Cosmopolitan. "He plays with the vision of a Russian empire rather than a Utopian inter-nation (the ideal of the Russia of 1919). Its capital must be Moscow; its character must be Muscovite."

The entente with the Third Reich was Stalin's greatest step in the direction of world domination, according to Lyons. Vulture-like he can stand by watching Europe kill itself off, then step in for the pickings. A long war is his great desire: there will be no strength left to resist him.

In lusting for power, in their disdain of human life, Hitler and Mussolini are but mild imitations of the Russian strong-man. Stalin has no counterpart: whereas the other dictators think of conquering thousands, he counts his victims in millions. It is a known fact that one of the Soviet concentration camps has more prisoners than all the Nazi camps put together. And, as a former Red Army officer says, "Not in four and a half years of World War did the officer corps of any army sustain such losses as the Soviet armed forces did in recent purges."

America must become aware, warns Lyons, that no nation is interested in making the world safe for anything, whether it be democracy, Fascism, or Communism. Self-interest, and that alone, is the motivating force of a nation's behavior. Pacts are but scraps of paper. Honor is dead. Guns and brute force have supplanted ideologies.

BRACHT STATION

The 'Vital Vanderbilts' America's First Family

FOR more than a hundred years, through five generations, the name of Vanderbilt has held down first place among American families. The "Vital Vanderbilts" they have always been called, the appellation going back to a day in 1810 when young Cornelius Vanderbilt (Commodore "Corneel") borrowed $100 from his mother for a boat, subsequently rolling that sum up into a fortune of $105,000,000.

"The story of the Vanderbilts is the story of the women they have married," writes Cholly Knickerbocker, dean of New York society columnists, in his biography of the family in the November Cosmopolitan. "The original Vanderbilt strain was stolid, uninspired. Its vitality was tenacious and cautious. It might be likened to a strong, gnarled, healthy root growing underground . . . never flourishing as a tree until a more daring and exuberant stock was grafted upon it."

The first graft occurred in 1787, when Cornelius van der Bilt, a plodding, hard-working farmer, married Phebe Hand, a shrewd, daring, independent-thinking girl of English stock. Out of this union came "Corneel." There was a bond, an affinity between mother and child, and later, whenever an important decision faced him, he turned to her for guidance before striking out. She was his spirit, his light, his lucky star. She stayed with him, in memory, until his death in 1876.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney

Alfred G. Vanderbilt

Certain family characteristics, have predominated through the years. Chief of these, says Knickerbocker, is the Vanderbilt love of speed: Alfred Gwynne, turfman; Harold S., yachtsman; "Sonny" Whitney, polo enthusiast, and Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, vice-president of Pan American Airways. Until the present generation the Vanderbilts took little interest in politics; but the recent election of William Henry Vanderbilt as governor of Rhode Island seems to herald a departure from that policy. The governor's mother, who is now Mrs. Paul Fitz Simons, stumped vigorously for Hoover in 1932. She looks upon her son's political aspirations with favorable eyes.

The Vanderbilts have had their quarrels; they have fought over wills; there have been divorces, suicides, elopements, annulments . . . but welded together they stand as the greatest American dynasty.

In Scott county, winter and spring meetings with tomato growers have been scheduled, to discuss marketing, disease control, etc.

Story of Aniseikonia Related by Sufferer

A NEW word, Aniseikonia, has been coined by medical men, a word meaning unequal imagery, that which causes people to see objects bigger with one eye than the other, and often see them of a different shape with each eye.

The late Doctor John Martin Wheeler, the great eye specialist who operated on the King of Siam, stated before his death that he regarded Aniseikonia as perhaps the most important addition to the knowledge of the eye in the past fifty years. Today, thousands are being cured of headaches, eye-aches, nervousness and other mental and bodily pains by this epoch-making discovery.

A sufferer for thirty years, Albert E. Wiggam, tells for the first time, in the November Cosmopolitan, the dramatic story of Aniseikonia. Discovery of the disease and a cure for it was made, not by a doctor or an eye specialist, surprisingly enough, but by an artist. It was in 1910 that a young Boston lawyer, Adelbert Ames, Jr., closed his office and took up painting. In some way Ames, who had a scientific turn of mind, saw a direct relationship between art and the pictures received by the brain from the lenses of the human eye. He experimented with lenses, eyeglasses, cameras, seeking to find the difference between the camera of the eye and the photographic camera.

After the war, in which Ames served in the aviation corps, he went to Dartmouth College to continue his experiments. He was trying to construct a lens which, when put into a camera, would produce the same effects of distance, depth, size and location of objects and general perspective that the human eye does in its camera. He discovered that the pictures carried to the brain are different in both size and shape in many people; and he also discovered how to measure these size and shape differences. The first discovery was Aniseikonia; the second was its cure. Spectacles could now be fitted to balance these differences.

The fame of the Dartmouth Eye Institute and its work on Aniseikonia is spreading rapidly among eye specialists in this and foreign countries. Already clinics have been established in New York, Boston, St. Louis and Baltimore.

Topping Them All at the New York Fair

Massed Parachute Jump Thrills Midway Visitors

AT 10:30 each evening, Commander James H. Strong gives the signal and at that moment all eleven of his gally-colored, giant parachutes, each with its two passengers, starts the 250-foot ascent for the thrilling massed parachute jump that is a nightly feature of the Amusement Area. Thousands of spectators crowd around regularly to watch this unusual sight, and bet on which chute will reach the bottom first, as there is a slight variation in the rate of descent, due to wind and weather conditions and the weight of the passengers.

To the trained eye of Commander Strong, Annapolis graduate and inventor of this sensational ride which is one of the big hits of the New York World's Fair, the sight of the swimming parachutes has an element of the truly foreboding in it. For the World of Tomorrow may well display mass parachute jumps of a far grimmer nature than those of the Midway.

"Modern warfare certainly will provide an opportunity for effective use of the parachute for surprise attacks behind enemy lines by whole regiments of armed men," predicted Commander Strong today. "In fact, the Germans have already demonstrated the value of this type of fighting in Poland, where they transported over a thousand men long distances by plane, unloaded them in chutes, and reorganized them on the ground as a mobile fighting unit within eight minutes after they reached the earth!"

"The Russians have also been going in for mass parachute training in a big way. Don't under any circumstances underestimate the value of the parachute under the new conditions of modern warfare," the Commander concluded.

HYBRID CORN VARIETY RESULT DEMONSTRATION MEETINGS HELD LAST WEEK

Three hybrid corn variety result demonstration meetings were held last Tuesday, at the farms of Richard Schwenke of near Hamilton, Harold Crigler of near Hebron and Charles Riley of Hebron, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

Check plots were harvested and weighed in two of these demonstrations. Results of the check plot yields based on Reid's Yellow Dent as 100% are as follows:

Plot No. 1—Richard Schwenke, Reid's Yellow Dent, 100%.
Indiana 820 — 153.3%
U. S. No. 13 — 136.7%
Ky. No. 72 — 125.3%
Ky. No. 69 — 120.0%
Pride of Saline — 114.7%
U. S. No. 44 — 92.1%
Schwenke's — 117.3%

Plot No. 2—Harold Crigler, Reid's Yellow Dent, 100%.
Pride of Saline — 127.5%
U. S. No. 13 — 126.2%
Indiana 820 — 122.5%
Ky. No. 69 — 121.2%
Indiana 845 — 117.5%
Ky. 72 — 115.9%
U. S. No. 44 — 107.5%

Due to the limited number of check plots and variations, these results should not be taken as conclusive as to which hybrids are the highest in yield. Demonstration meetings in which more elaborate check plots were conducted will be held on the farms of Charles Riley of Hebron and L. R. Vice of Woolper, on Wednesday, Oct. 12. These plots involve varieties of hybrids and open-pollenated corn.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK, OCT. 8-14

I wish to call your attention to Fire Prevention Week to be observed throughout the State of Kentucky, from October 8th to October 14th, and make a few recommendations to prevent fires. Through the efforts of Stock Insurance Companies, State Associations, and Local Aegnts, the loss of both fire and life have been reduced about 40% since 1922. This is a great work and there's no reason why we can't accomplish greater results if we'll carry out the following methods:

(Signed) ORVILLE NOEL,
Chairman of District 5 of the Kentucky Association Insurance Agents, which comprises Boone, Kenton, and Campbell Counties.

Fire may mean death in your family or destruction of your home. To be safe—

PUT lighted matches and smokes out before you throw them away. Keep matches where small children cannot reach them. Never smoke in the garage, barn, or attic, nor in bed.

REMOVE rubbish, waste papers and all unnecessary combustible materials. Provide metal ash and trash cans. Burn rubbish only in a safely covered brick or metal incinerator. Watch the fire.

EXAMINE all stoves, furnaces, and smoke pipes to make sure they are safe and well away from woodwork or other burnable materials. Have needed repairs made at once.

VALUE the advice of your fire chief who says that many fires are caused by dirty or defective chimneys. Have the chimney cleaned regularly, and have all defects repaired.

ESCAPE the danger of flammable liquid fires and explosions by no gasoline in the house. Do dry cleaning with safe liquids or send the work to the cleaner. Never start fires with kerosene.

NOTIFY the electric company of electrical trouble and the gas company of gas leaks. Replace "blown" fuses with new ones—not pennies. Avoid homemade wiring jobs. Don't look for gas leaks with a match.

TEACH everyone in the family to be careful of fire, to watch stoves, fire-places, electric irons and all other possible fire causes, and every day to remove old rags, papers and other rubbish.

FIREPROOF your home as far as possible by fire-safe roofing, fire stopping in hollow walls and partitions to stop the spread of flame, and a non-combustible basement ceiling.

INQUIRE of your fire chief, when buying a fire extinguisher, to be sure of getting the right kind. Don't hesitate to ask your fireman whenever you have questions on fire prevention.

REMEMBER always where the nearest fire alarm box is and how to send an alarm. If telephoning, be sure the address is clearly understood. Use a neighbor's phone rather than one in the burning building.

EXPLAIN to everyone in the house what to do in case of fire, how to put out fire in clothing by wrapping in a rug or blanket, what to do when grease catches fire in the kitchen.

SAVE life and property from needless destruction by fire by keeping the principles of fire prevention always in mind and never taking a chance with fire.

It is approximately 186,000,000 miles to the Sun and back again.

66 men flew non-stop across the Atlantic Ocean before Lindbergh. Sir John Alcock and Sir A. Whitton-Brown flew from Newfoundland to Ireland, in 1919. Later the same year, the English dirigible "R-34," with 31 men aboard, crossed from Scotland to America and returned. In 1924, the German "ZR-3" flew from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst, N. J., with a crew of 33 men—totaling 66 men, who flew the Atlantic before Lindbergh, and making Lindbergh the 67th man!

DAVIS REUNION

The 20th annual reunion of the Davis family was held on Sunday, October 1st at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis at Mount Auburn. While the day was a little cool, the long table was spread in the large yard and as all gathered around the table, G. M. Davis, in a touching manner, graced the table. The five brothers and sisters of this once large family was united again on this day. Among the many who enjoyed this gathering of relatives and friends, we gather the following names:

Mr. and Mrs. Al Nutting and daughter Jean, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stuntebeck, Mr. and Mrs. Walker Lancaster of Indian Lake, Ohio; Henry Graner, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Schadler and daughters Ruth and Dorothy, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Marshall and son Davis, John Paul Parker, Misses Anna Belle Ballard and Cecil Mae Stephens, Bennett Latimer, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lutche and son, Mr. and Mrs. Ashel Parker, Mrs. Ida Chalfaut, Mrs. Mary Arnold and daughter Angie, Mrs. E. L. Barrett, Mrs. Rosa Collins and daughter Frances, Stanley Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Benson and children Doris Jean, Mabel Lee and Roselyn, G. M. Davis, Eddie Ormes, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Davis, Lytle Vallandingham, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schubert, Mr. and Mrs. J. William Cummins and children, Jimmy, Mabel, Charlie, Tommy and Dorothy, Miss Mary Ruth Fields, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Clark and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pryor, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Desmond Davis and daughter Eka Kay, Mrs.

CARD OF THANKS

We want to take this opportunity to thank our neighbors and friends for their many kind deeds, shown us in the loss of our home and all we had, by fire recently.

The community gathered at the Baptist church in Crittenden, where clothes, furniture, bed clothing, and groceries of all kinds, as well as a nice purse of money, were given us. Hays B. Collins of Bracht furnished us a home in which to live.

We are truly grateful for such loyal friends.

Mr. and Mrs. BEN EADS.

WELCH TO SPEAK AT HAMILTON FAIR, FRIDAY

Earl Welch, field agent in Engineering, College of Agricultural, will speak at the Hamilton Community Fair on this Friday, October 6th at the Hamilton School, on the Rural Electrification Program in Kentucky, how it has developed and what to expect in Boone county.

Mr. Welch helped develop the organization and educational features of the REA program in the state and will bring REA patrons many valuable pointers in completing their plans for REA electric installation.

Hamilton community is looking forward to the biggest and best fair in the 9 years this community event has been held.

Mary Morris, Mrs. Minnie Schroeder and daughter Jean, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Guerrea and daughter Vena Mae, W. W. Davis and son Keith Mrs. Georgia Calbert and children Billy and Phoebe, and others who failed to register.

The afternoon was spent in renewing friendships and enjoyable music.

We might well be thankful to the Almighty that there has not been a death in this large family in the past year.

All departed at a late hour, feeling that the day had been well spent, and with the hope that all would be present when we meet in 1940.—H. W. Davis.

Senator Chandler--Governor Johnson

Monday, Kentucky had a new Governor and a new United States Senator. Gov. A. B. "Happy" Candler resigned his office and Lieut. Gov. Keen Johnson automatically became the Chief Executive.

After the formal resignation of Chandler, Johnson was sworn in by Chief Justice Alex Ratliff of the Court of Appeals. Johnson's first act as Governor was the appointment of Chandler to the United States Senate to succeed the late Mills M. Logan, who died last week in Washington, following a heart attack.

Edwin C. Dawson of New Haven, president pro tem. of the Senate now becomes Lieutenant Governor and will serve as Governor in case Johnson leaves the state.

The Chandler term as Governor expires December 12th, and should Johnson, who is now a candidate for Governor in the November election, be elected, he would be the first Kentucky Governor to succeed himself in 36 years.

Chandler will serve as Logan's successor until the 1940 election, at which time some one will be elected to fill the unexpired Logan term, which would have ended in January, 1943.

The Fidelis class of the Walton Baptist church will meet at the church Friday for an all-day quilting. All members are urged to attend and each one is asked to bring a covered dish.

4-LANE HIGHWAY FROM FLORENCE TO RICHWOOD

It was learned here Wednesday that the State Highway Department of Kentucky had officially approved a project to build a four-lane highway from Florence to Richwood in 1940.

Preparatory work on the project from Richwood to Devon has been completed. That is, blue prints of the survey and deeds of the right-of-way are in the hands of county officials and work could begin at any time.

From Devon to Florence there is still some question as to the exact route of the highway. Three surveys have been made as possible routes through Florence, but as yet none have been officially chosen, but this is expected to be made known in a short time.

This project is quite an achievement for Boone county, and local workers, including John L. Vest, as well as County Judge N. E. Riddell and others, are elated over the assurance of this highway.

With the completion of this project in 1940; 1941 and 1942 will be devoted to the widening of Route 25 from Walton to Williamstown, and ultimately on to Lexington and South.

Sectional P. T. A. Conference Here

The Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers will hold a Sectional Conference at the Walton-Verona school, Walton, on Tuesday, October 24th at 1 p. m.

Miss Frances Hays, Washington, D. C., field worker for the Ky. Congress will be the guest speaker. Miss Hays is former Education Secretary of the National Congress of P. T. A. and taught in the Teachers College in Emporia, Kansas and Bellingham, Washington. She was later a trained social worker gaining experience which has given her an invaluable understanding in interpreting home, community and school problems. Miss Hays says, "The P. T. A., because of its membership and essential relationship to Educators, has the greatest possibilities in improving the citizenship of this democracy." Her topic for the Walton meeting will be, "A Strong Foundation."

Mrs. C. A. Schroetter of Covington, state president; Mrs. Frank Vosmer of Covington, state parliamentarian; Mr. Walter F. Coop, superintendent of Walton-Verona schools; Mr. J. A. Caywood, superintendent of the Kenton County schools, and Mrs. W. W. Rouse, president of the Mothers Club of Walton, will also be on the program.

All patrons of the schools of Walton and surrounding towns who are interested in the schools of their community and the parent-teacher organization are urged to attend.—Publicity Chairman.

Literary Club Meets At Verona

The members of the Walton Woman's Literary Club held their Oct. meeting last Wednesday afternoon in the home of the club president, Mrs. John Myers, of Verona.

Mrs. Pearl R. Johnson read an interesting paper on "Kentucky," naming places of interest in different parts of the state. Response to roll call was an answer to "Why Do You Like Kentucky?" Plans were discussed for the meeting of the Fifth District Federation of Women's Clubs which is to be held in the James Theatre, Walton, Tuesday, October 11th. Luncheon will be served by the ladies of the Walton Christian and Methodist churches. Following the business session a social hour was enjoyed.

The hostess served a salad course to the following guests and members: Mrs. O. K. Powers, Mrs. W. T. Renaker, Mrs. Harry Chapman, Mrs. E. B. Wallace, Mrs. J. H. Talley, Mrs. Olivia Wills, Mrs. John L. Vest, Mrs. D. Hess Vest, Mrs. Sam B. Sleet, Miss Emma Jane Miller, Mrs. J. E. McCabe, Mrs. Clayton Jones, Mrs. Pearl R. Johnson, Mrs. Lula Huey, Mrs. J. L. Hamilton, Mrs. Ora Fry, Mrs. Barnett W. Franks, Mrs. J. M. Ervin, Mrs. J. R. Conrad and Mrs. C. Scott Chambers.

MRS. ANNA MADDEN

Mrs. Anna Mooney Madden, 85, passed away Sunday at her home on Independence, Route 1. She was the widow of Jeremiah Madden.

She is survived by one son, Joseph Madden of Fostoria, Ohio; three daughters, Mrs. Henry Boberg of Independence, Mrs. John Bloemer and Mrs. Mary Schreck of Covington; 33 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held this (Thursday) morning from the Linnemann funeral home, Covington, at 8 a. m. Requiem high mass will be intoned at 9 a. m. at St. Cecelia church, Independence. Burial in St. Cecelia cemetery.

Revival Attracks Fine Audiences

The revival at the Walton Christian church is being well attended by the people of this community. The evangelist, Rev. W. J. Clarke, of Owenton, has won for himself a place in the hearts of all who have had the privilege of hearing his messages.

Sermon topics for the remaining days of the revival will be as follows: Thursday, "Pilate Asks A Question"; Friday, "Is Your Name In The Book"; Saturday, "The Great Salvation"; Sunday, 11:00 a. m., "Life's True Measure and Purpose," and at 7:00 p. m., "The Man Against the Sky."

On Sunday morning at the Sunday School hour Rev. Clarke will conduct a special meeting for men, to which all of the men of the community are especially invited.

The public is cordially invited to attend all of the remaining services. Fine christian fellowship, great gospel preaching, and inspiring song services await you at the Christian Church.

RAULEIGH SEBREE

Rauleigh Sebree, 67, of Los Angeles, Calif., passed away suddenly September 23rd from heat prostration. He was born in Boone county, was unmarried, and was a member of the Big Bone Baptist church. He had resided in the west for 41 years.

Funeral services were held at the Big Bone Baptist church on Monday, October 2nd, in charge of Rev. Roy Johnson, pastor of the church. Interment was in the Big Bone cemetery.

He is survived by two brothers, one sister, and a number of other relatives.

Chambers & Grubbs had charge of the funeral arrangements.

To Paint Water Tank; Water To Be Cut Off

The Trustees of the Town of Walton announced Tuesday they had contracted to have the water tank painted, inside and out. This will necessitate cutting off the water supply while this work is being done.

Beginning today (Thursday, Oct. 12th) water will be available for the following hours: 8 a. m. to 9 a. m.; 12 noon to 1 p. m., and 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. This will allow water customers to secure ample water supply. Please fix the above hours in your mind, and procure your water accordingly.

Unsolved Problems in the Americas

Broken treaties, violation of frontiers, lack of respect for the pledged word, despoilation of human and property rights, are the evils in Europe which have been responsible for many wars during the past one hundred years and have culminated finally in the first and second World Wars.

There is common agreement in our Nation that if this hemisphere is to achieve a lasting peace, if the very foundations of civilization are to be preserved and if cultural and economic ties between the Americas are to be strengthened, that the mistakes of Europe must be avoided. Temporary measures taken at the Panama Conference to meet the threat of disaster which might come as a result of the European catastrophe will not serve the interests of our society unless they are thoroughly grounded on fundamental principles of respect for these very things which Europe has so lightly disregarded.

The fact is generally admitted that we have permitted to arise on this continent the beginning of what, unless checked, may eventually develop into a situation similar to that over which Europe has been suffering for generations. Property and human rights have been violated by Mexico and Bolivia in contravention of international law and decent practices among sovereign states. If we continue to stand idly by without making effective protest against the despoilations carried out by these governments against the lawfully acquired rights of citizens of the United States it is inevitable that the fever will spread to other countries.

If the Panama Conference leaves behind it a program that will bring about thorough and complete repudiation of the actions taken by Mexico and Bolivia, thus paving the way for a prompt and just solution of the problems created by those governments, a long step forward in the peace and solidarity of this continent will have been achieved. Certainly this would be of far more value than re-declaring our "solidarity," which completely ignores the unsolved problems created by Mexico and Bolivia.

A Doctor Gallup of the Homemakers

After all, the proo fof the pudding is still in the eating. If you have a new article for the home, the best way to find out how housewives are going to like it is by letting some of them try it. A food, a time-and-labor saving gadget, a beverage, a household help of any kind—what Mrs. Dooley tells Mrs. Hennessey over the backfence will undoubtedly be the verdict of America's homemaker.

In Toledo, Ohio, a young man named Reginald Leister has taken this idea and built an organization of more than one thousand housewives around it. Membership in this great jury of women extends from coast-to-coast and from lakes to gulf. It includes grandmothers, matrons and young brides—women with college training in home economics and women who cook by rule of thumb—farm women, town women, city women—women who can afford every luxury and women who must watch every penny of their budgets. The entrance requirement is the desire to try something new—the compensation is being first in the community to try it.

Each member returns a questionnaire on the product she has just tried; and if the majority of these are negative, it is a stop-look-and-listen warning to the manufacturer who has retained Mr. Leister to find out. Country-wide testing investigations are not new; but manufacturers seem to be welcoming this opportunity to secure an unbiased report on the products they are considering bringing forth. We can see many benefits from the application of this idea—to manufacturers, to storekeepers, to housewives, and naturally, to Mr. Leister.

How About the Third Term?

When former Governor Landon asked President Roosevelt whether he would run for a third term, Mr. Roosevelt declined to answer.

A good many persons have accused the President of using the World War situation to elevate his personal popularity. But very few people attribute such ulterior qualities to our President. However, a great many people agree with Landon that in order to divide politics and war that the President should state his position with reference to a third term.

Different newspaper polls indicate that the President has not lost very much in personal popularity, but some of the same polls indicate a lack of confidence, and do not want to leave important decisions about foreign affairs to the President's individual judgment. That is one of the issues that is creating a very great difference in the ranks of the President's party in and out of Congress. The indications are that Congress expects to keep a very tight reign on the Administration.

The general belief prevails in Washington that the country will stay out of the war.

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5582 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

I wish you could have been with me at a real family reunion at College Hill, Madison county, Ky., in an ideal grove with an attendance of six hundred people, relatives and friends, the largest reunion in central Kentucky. Relatives were there from different counties in Kentucky and other states as far away as California. This being the fifth annual reunion since it has become a permanent organization. This causes the promoters to expect the next generations to continue.

They had a nice program in the forenoon. If you could have seen the table, 150 feet long, loaded and ladened with good eats, you would have said there is no depression or want. Plenty to eat in College Hill country and they know how to feed people and show them all courtesis and every hospitality possible.

You may consider this personal and partial. I am thankful I was brought up in this community when I was a boy and for the influence it had on me and my life. This and other reasons is why I take such great interest in the reunions and I want to commemorate the influence of our parents and grandparents who have gone to the Great Beyond.

Friends, relatives and school-mates are putting forth their best efforts to try to help the present and coming generations. This is real life and service and it should be our greatest aim and goal not to lay so much stress on material things but more on spiritual things and better ideals.

After dinner they held a memorial service in memory of the friends and relatives who had gone to the Great Beyond since the first reunion. We had splendid addresses by two lawyer friends and one of the best sermons the writer has ever heard by the Rev. J. A. McClintock of Richmond, who has been given a life-time job as the preacher of the Norris-Hisle reunion. It would have done you good to hear the congregational singing of old time hymns, the kind that never wear out and the people love to sing so well.

If you want to have a real good time go back to your old country community where you spent your boy and girlhood days and meet your old friends and schoolmates. You will get more real pleasure in that visit than you can get at any seashore, summer resort, fishing camp or vacation grounds. Try it. I cannot imagine one thing greater and that will be when we meet our relatives and friends in that final great reunion of the Great Beyond.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

With Congress back in session, Washington seems like its real self again. All the expected worry of Senators and Representatives about public opinion at home and about their own special re-election problems was suddenly cut short with the coming of European war, and the call to come back to the nation's capital to consider new neutrality legislation.

So the country's lawmakers packed as much public opinion as they had been able to collect into their minds, and started off to Washington to consider the problems that war generated.

But though Washington in its surface appearances has a familiar look about it, there is a difference under the surface that observers are quick to detect. Washington these days has to face realities, and face them right away. There is none of the time for deliberate theorizing, for trial and error lawmaking, that characterized other sessions of Congress.

In short, there is a need to see that all departments in the government and all groups in this country give their immediate attention to getting things shipshape, and that right soon.

As long as the lawmakers, the statesmen, and the politicians suddenly found themselves faced with the necessity of viewing things practically, one of the first matters they came face to face with that of national defense. And some of them found to their surprise for the first time that national defense involves much more than having a two-ocean navy, or an adequate army, or plans fitting all emergencies drafted by a brainy general staff. Some of the habitues of Washington were abruptly faced with the fact that there is another line of defense in this country of ours which is just as important as those already mentioned, and that line of defense is called Industry.

For in peace or war it is industry which provides the real muscles and sinews that keep the action going. In peace, the lawmakers don't have to worry about that fact. But in times when trouble is brewing, it becomes a very real matter to them.

It was only natural, then, when it became apparent that industry had to be depended upon in this "limited emergency," that the question asked in Washington had a nervous quaver in it:

"Is Industry prepared for national defense?"

The answer was amazing to some, and comforting to all. For industry in this country has for a number of years now been pursuing a program which, in peace or war, is the best kind of prepartion for sound national preparedness. For healthy industries at home both increase our chances of staying out of war and aid in the work of national defense that now must go on.

While all eyes on Capitol Hill were being turned on the industrial scene to see what was taking place there, the opportunity also arose to examine American industry's whole attitude towards war. If anyone misinterpreted the fact that industry was contributing to an adequate national defense to mean that business men wanted war, they were last week quickly disabused of the idea. Industry has extremely practical reasons for not wanting to see this country involved in another world conflict, and last week its spokesmen made industry's position plain. The National Association of Manufacturers, for instance, which represents large and small business throughout the country, pointed out that war's aftermath was crushing depression from which business was the principal sufferer, and then went on to say:

"The United States can stay out of war.

"Emotionalism can betray us into war.

"A public will to peace, coupled with wise public policies and affirmative action to this end by our government will keep us out of war. A fatalistic attitude that war is inevitable for us in absurd. It presupposes that America cannot conduct itself intelligently to preserve peace and its own interests.

"Europe's problems do affect us, but our domestic problems still must come first.

"If yesterday industry was the only source of prosperity and reemployment, today it is as well the keystone of preparedness and peace. Under any conditions, America must depend on a smoothly functioning, efficient industrial system.

"Manufacturers will not relax their efforts to achieve and maintain sound improvement in our domestic economy.

"Industry opposes profiteering—the utilization of war psychology to boost prices for the purpose of making excessive profits.

"As manufacturers we recognize it to be our responsibility and moral obligation to conduct our businesses so that the prices of the products we produce and sell are related equitably to production costs.

"We pledge our energetic support to this policy.

"The N. A. M. calls upon all its members to exercise vigilance against any price or profit policies not justified by actual cost and anticipated cost of replacement.

"Months ago this Association said: 'No sensible person believes that profit can come out of the wreckage of human life and economic dislocation.'

"The use of this crisis as an excuse either to extort unjustifiable profits or to pursue partisan political objectives is not only indefensible and dangerous, but reprehensible morally. Nor should pleas of 'emergency' be utilized as an excuse for reaching objectives which the American people would not otherwise sanction.

"The present situation calls for agreement on common objectives, but the democratic process of consultation and criticism must never be abandoned. Otherwise, we shall be following in the footsteps of those who believe in government by coercion.

"In a world distraught by force the best way to preserve representative democracy is to practice it."

Washington and the country at large has, in these difficult times, an unusual chance and an unusual need to look at industry with new eyes. And what Washington, at least, saw with those new eyes indicated that possibly in the future, and in more peaceful times it would do well, for the good of the country, to place more confidence in industry.

SOME INSTITUTIONS THAT MAY NOT PASS

So many institutions have passed within the memory of the present generation that one finds himself wondering whether there may be some that will not follow the others into the Limbo of Forgotten Things. I am not enough of a prophet to say just which clothes, or customs, or words, even, may outlast our time; it is never safe to be sure about these things. Though there are words in our daily speech that were already ancient a thousand years ago, some of the words that were equally good then have been dead and forgotten, except by linguists, for more than half that time. But surely there are institutions that are innate, that "neither time, nor rain, nor the north wind, nor the innumerable series of years" can wholly destroy, with proper apologies to Horace's famous ode.

One of these institutions is boyhood. The outward circumstances may and will change, of course. Many boys of my acquaintance do not know about bodies and hickory shirts and cottonnade and jeans; none of them know the agonies of wearing home-knit yarn socks and the equal agonies of "pulling off barefooted" the next spring after the feet have become tender in these same yarn stockings. But, rather oddly, I can see little difference between boys like mine and boys that I once knew. Fear of the dark, whistling to keep up one's courage, loud talk to hide one's genuine cowardice, unthoughted and unplanned cruelty to each other, neglect of hands and face and ears—these are just as real in the twentieth century as in the first, and they will probably be equally true in the ninety-first. And I hope they will be, for I would hate to see the race deteriorate.

Eating is another institution that is hardly likely to pass away, let us hope. Fancy foods allure us, but there is still a love in all the younger and more uncivilized members of our race for green apples and sweet things and eating between meals. You can dress up a chicken, let us say, until it is aesthetic as a dish, but basically it is no better for the digestion than one cooked in the most primitive way. Canned goods are handy and now indispensible, but raw foods and plenty of them are still good for our primitive digestive tract. It is possible that concentrated foods may increase in number, but something will have to be done with our digestive system before we can live on such things except in emergencies.

Personally I do not fear that the home will cease to be an institution. I have read too many things along the way to believe that any amount of nationalizing can or will ever destroy the home. All sorts of foods and even dangerous tyrannical acts of dictators have threatened the home, but newer and saner generations that succeed such outbursts return to the sanctity and beauty of home life. Incidentally, I hope that John Dewey and other faddists in education will go down in defeat. I have lived long enough to be quite sure that their fads will cool off wonderfully after the faddists who introduced them are dead. When the child becomes the head af the household, when the home itself is a great concentration camp where the children are fed rations like prize show animals, when the human heart no longer desires a shrine "be it ever so humble," that it can call its own— but why imagine the impossible?

Concord Grape Jelly

NO "SOUR GRAPES" for homemakers who use the short-boil jelly recipes!

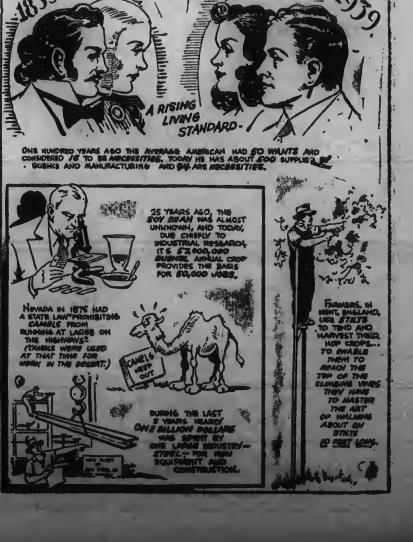
With these foolproof directions, there's never a chance of failure—for they were specially developed for fully ripe Concords. You'll have eleven glasses of perfect jelly ready for the paraffin just fifteen minutes after preparing the fruit—and the spread has that extra delicious flavor of sun-ripened grapes just picked from the vine.

Better make several batches while the fruit is ripe and plentiful. Here's the recipe, to be followed exactly:

RIPE CONCORD GRAPE JELLY
(Makes about 11 medium glasses)
4 cups juice
7½ cups sugar
½ bottle fruit pectin

To prepare juice, stem about 3 pounds fully ripe grapes and crush thoroughly. Add ½ cup water, bring to a boil, cover, and simmer 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice.

Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix.



Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute.

A squad of patrolmen in Boston, in response to a report of "shocking nudity," rushed out and found Bruce Bugbee Dorr, aged 11 months, taking a sun bath.

A REMARKABLE HOME

In Council Bluffs, Iowa, is located one of the most remarkable institutions of our nation. This institution is the Christian Home Orphanage, founded 57 years ago this next December.

This Home for nearly 57 years, has given continuous service in behalf of homeless and destitute children. During these long years, the doors of the Home have never been closed, day or night. This Home has been a refuge for thousands of little children from all parts of the country. These children have been tenderly cared for, trained and educated and placed in fine private families, and in very way they have been given the opportunity to grow up into outstanding Christian men and women.

The Christian Home Orphanage, during all these years, has been carried on and built up to its present great size, by the free-will offerings of good people from all sections of the country.

The Christian Home offers to everyone, everywhere, the opportunity to co-operate in the greatest of all works in the training and education of homeless and orphan children. If all would co-operate by giving as they could afford, the financial burdens of the Home would be well met. We ask that every reader of this article mail to the Christian Home Orphanage at Council Bluffs, Iowa, a donation for the Thanksgiving offering, in keeping with the blessings God has given you. We know that you will be blest by so doing, and that you will have a more enjoyable Thanksgiving day yourself in the realization that you are one of a great company of friends throughout the United States who are giving of their means to enable the Christian Home to give love and Christian training to homeless boys and girls.

Please send all contributions to the Christian Home Orphanage, Council Bluffs, Iowa. The same will be duly asknowledged and chedited in the official publication of the Institution, a copy of which will be mailed to you.

Deliciously Different Chocolate Cookies

THE problem of what to give the kiddies coming home from school, or to serve the Bridge Club the next time it's your turn to entertain, can be solved by a batch of these delicious cookies.

They're "Toll House Cookies" because Ruth Wakefield of New England's famous Toll House Inn originated them. These cookies are sure to delight your Bridge Club and the family too, they're new and different. Crisp, tender, golden brown cookies, and when you bite in to one—surprise! There's a rich bit of semi-sweet chocolate and a taste of walnut in that bite, and the next and the next. A perfect flavor combination!

Toll House Cookies are as much fun to make as they are to serve.

Toll House Cookies

½ cup brown sugar
½ cup white sugar
½ cup butter or other shortening
1 egg
1½ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons hot water
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 economy size bar semi-sweet chocolate (7 oz.)
½ cup chopped walnuts

Important:—Cut each small square of semi-sweet chocolate into four pieces. Cream butter or other shortening and add sugars and beaten egg. Dissolve soda in the hot water and mix alternately with the flour sifted with the salt. Lastly add the chopped nuts and the pieces of semi-sweet chocolate. Flavor with the vanilla and drop by half teaspoons on a greased cookie sheet. Bake 10 to 12 minutes in a 375° F. oven. Makes 50 cookies.

It's The Record That Counts

During the past 4 years of Democratic rule at Frankfort the state general fund and road fund debt has been reduced from

$29,482,064.68 to $9,012,356.49

THIS REPRESENTS A TOTAL DEBT REDUCTION FROM DECEMBER 1, 1935 to JUNE 30, 1939 (the end of the present fiscal year) OF $20,469,708.20

The General Fund debt, represented by outstanding warrants against the Treasury, was reduced from $22,185,599.23 to $6,965,156.84.

Despite the huge debt reduction program, more money has been paid out by the State for chools, old age pensions, charitable and penal institutions and other agencies than at any time in the history of the Commonwealth.

19 Coach Special Goes to Opening at Mt. Sterling

A 19 coach special train sponsored by the Louisville Democratic organization made the trip to Mt. Sterling, Saturday. Heading the Louisville group were Mayor Joseph Scholtz, Chairman Tome Burke and Congressman Emmett O'Neal. The Louisville delegation was given a big hand by the crowd when it arrived, an hour behind schedule.

Donaldson Stages Real Power Show for Opening

J. Lyter Donaldson, generalissimo of the Democratic campaign, staged a power show unrivaled in the history of the party Saturday at Mt. Sterling, and the more than 10,000 Kentuckians present responded with lusty cheers for Kentucky's new "Big Three"—Johnson, Barkley and Chandler.

The leadership gathered on the speakers' platform constituted political power seldom witnessed in any state. Aside from the candidates there was the Kentucky Democratic congressional delegation flanked by Senator Barkley, Lieut. Gov. Johnson, Governor Chandler, Louisville's Mayor Joseph Scholtz, Tom Burke, chairman of the Jefferson County Democratic organization and other state and district leaders.

Brief, Simple Ceremony Marks Frankfort Change

In a brief, simple ceremony in the reception room at the Capitol, Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock Governor Chandler resigned as chief executive of the Commonwealth, and Lieut. Gov. Keen Johnson took the oath for the unexpired term. The new Governor immediately issued an order naming Chandler to the United States Senate to fill out the unexpired term of the late M. M. Logan.

Kentucky's new Junior Senator accompanied by Mrs. Chandler and several intimate friends left Frankfort late Monday for Washington, where Tuesday he was given the oath by Vice President John M. Garner.

Governor Johnson has not announced whether he and his family will move immediately to the mansion at Frankfort.

Walter Mulby, secretary to Governor Chandler, will occupy the same position in the Chandler office at Washington.

Campaign Tactics Call For Fewer Speeches

Governor Johnson has introduced a new technique in his campaigning for the November election. First schedules for his speaking tour disclosed he will not indulge in three speeches-a-day as had been the practice of many gubernatorial candidates in the past.

Instead, Wilbur K. Miller of Owensboro, chairman of the speakers' bureau for the Democratic State campaign committee, has prepared an itinerary for Governor Johnson that for the most part calls for him to make but one speech a day and never more than two.

The schedule has been so arranged that Governor Johnson in traveling from city to city where he has speaking engagements can stop in county seats enroute and informally meet party leaders and voters in many counties. This innovation in campaign tactics by Democratic leaders is hoped will eliminate much of the hardship and fatigue that harrasses a party nominee for high office in Kentucky during the strenuous campaign months.

Dawson Becomes Lieutenant Governor

When Keen Johnson became the Governor Monday through resignation of Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler to take a seat in the United States Senate, Senator Edwin C. Dawson, Democrat, of New Haven, Nelson county, by virtue of his office as president-pro-tem of the state senate, became lieutenant governor.

Senator Dawson, or Lieut. Gov. Dawson, will serve in this capacity until the office is filled at the regular November election and regular inauguration ceremonies are held early in December.

TRUE GUITAR FACTS

— By Ralph Hodges —

The guitar, one of the oldest and the most popular of all musical instruments played today, is being featured the world over. Such artists as Segovia and Gomez, the most popular radio instrumentalists at the present time, play the guitar. Great composers a century ago nearly all played the instrument. Many of the great symphony's contain prominent parts for guitar.

Ralph Hodges, proprietor of Northern Kentucky's only music store, 5 West Pike street, Covington, announces a special display of $3,000 worth of fine custom built string instruments for two days, Friday and Saturday, October 13 and 14. This display will be presented by the Regal Co., makers of fine wood instruments for 75 years, and will be the largest display of string instruments ever to be presented in Covington. The public is invited to see the latest in string instruments.

What a Needle and Thread can tell you about

YOUR LIGHTING

TRY THIS SIMPLE TEST

Take a needle and thread and sit down as you'd sit to read . . . in your easy chair, for example. Then try to thread the needle. If you have difficulty . . . if you have to hold the needle close to the light, then you'd better look into "light conditioning."

FOR EASIER SEEING--DO THESE TWO THINGS

1. Place an I. E. S. Better Sight Lamp beside every chair that's used for reading or sewing. These lamps are complete better sight units . . . they give you proper light for easier seeing, comfort and safety.

2. Fill empty sockets and replace blackened bulbs with new bulbs in sight-saving sizes—at least 100 to 150 watts for single socket lamps; two 60's for two socket lamps and three 40's for three socket lamps.

Evelyn Reed

Evelyn Agnes Reed was born Aug. 23, 1918 and departed this life Oct. 2, 1939, being 21 years, 1 month and 9 days of age. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Reed and leaves to mourn her going, her devoted mother, father, and one brother Kenneth Reed, one grandmother Mrs. Eva Poland, one aunt Mrs. Ruby Cook and two uncles Lawrence Poland of Cleveland, Ohio and Lonnie Poland, a number of cousins and a host of relatives and friends.

Evelyn was a member of Eagle Hill Baptist church, having joined at the age of 16. She was baptised by Rev. Dan Taylor, with a number of other candidates for baptism at night, with the moonlight on the water. She also was a Sunbeam leader and president of the Y. W. A. girls of Glenco Baptist church for some time.

She was also a member of the D. of A. council No. 50 of Latonia. Evalyn won friends wherever she went. She was loving and kind, always at home wherever she went. She had the dreaded disease of sugar diabetis, from which she had suffered since childhood, and had been denied many things of life because of this disease, but she bore her suffering patiently until she died. She was seriously ill for over a week and lay in a coma for three days, but always in consciousness. She said she was ready to go and would rather die than suffer longer with this dreaded disease—if it was God's will to take her.

She has many friends and loved ones in Glencoe and many in Covington who will mourn her passing. No one except God knows how deeply grieved her family are, although they know God's will was best.

Mr. and Mrs. Brent Slaughter and son Charles were the dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Lon Slaughter and son.

Misses Vivian and Lillian Stewart were the Saturday night guests of Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Stewart and Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Stewart were also the Sunday guests of the Stewarts.

Mrs. Hugh Adkins was the Sunday evening guest of Mrs. Roy Adkins and family.

Opal Ayres and Roy Adkins were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brock.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Brock and family were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Stamper.

Mr. and Mrs. Eual Snell and sons and Mrs. C. Furnish were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Headley Maddox and father, Mr. Maddox.

Avery Furnish spent Sunday with William B. Shirley.

Misses Willie Belle Coates and Imogene Price made a long trip on their bicycles, from the other side of Napoleon to Poplar Grove to see Willie Belle's father, Mr. and Mrs. Bub Coates, and her grandmother, Belle Coates.

GIVE THE BRIDE A QUILT FOR HER WEDDING GIFT

By Phoebe Edwards

Happy the bride the sun shines on—and happy the bride-to-be who has a quilt as delicately charming as this one tucked away among the exciting treasures in her hope chest. You will find no gift more acceptable, nor one which speaks so eloquently, yet so simply, of the deep affection which you hold for your daughter. Make her a quilt for the bedroom of her first home, whether it is to be a typical honeymoon cottage or a small apartment. She will treasure it not alone for its inherent beauty, but for the fact that it is to be a product of your own hands and heart—something she can cling to through the years. The charm of this beautiful and unusual Iris quilt lies in the natural treatment of the design. Finished, it is a veritable garden of bloom in actual Iris colors, an adornment for any bedroom. The empty white half blocks at the bottom of the quilt afford an excellent opportunity for signing the quilt with your name and the date of its making. Such a gesture adds both sentimental and intrinsic value which constantly grows through the years.

The pattern for the quilt may be obtained for 10c by calling at the newspaper office.

LOSS OF LIFE IS ONLY A PART OF AUTO TOLL

THE serious effects of motor accidents cannot be gauged by casualties alone, horrifying as these are, J. C. Furnas reports in an article entitled, "Daily Occurrence," in the August issue of Good Housekeeping Magazine. Furnas traces the disastrous aftereffects of a collision between two automobiles in the lives of participating persons who escaped with their lives. These include mental disorder, shock, poverty, increased tax burdens due to the dependency of victims' families, broken careers, curtailed love affairs, wrecked homes, fatherless families and all the depression and mental anguish on the part of relatives, which accompany the maiming of normal, healthy individuals.

"The cold statistics of motoring death rates have shown marked improvement in the last eighteen months. But it isn't statistics which get mashed and battered," Furnas states. "Human individuals, each with his personal relationship to dozens of other individuals, are the victims."

One of the most unfortunate things about accidents, Furnas goes on to say, is that they occur where everything has been done to prevent them. Intersections are marked. Stop signs are plainly set up at crossroads. Roadways are divided by glaring white lines. But drivers continue to approach intersections too fast and drivers on crossroads, instead of coming to a full stop at an intersection, merely drop into second gear. People will cross the glaring white line, swing out from behind other cars on hills and make the curve too wide when they turn. Drivers themselves must make the safety effort before it can be really accomplished.

All left at a late hour hoping to meet again soon.

BRACHT STATION

Rain, rain, when's it going to rain again?

Rain! rain! rain!

How beautiful the scenery of autumn,

And to hear the autumn winds calling,

Come little leaves, say the winds every day,

Come over the meadow with me and play—

Put on your dress of red and gold,

Summer is gone and the days will grow cold!

We are very glad to report that our friend and neighbor, Miss Ruth Colston, who underwent an operation, at last report is doing nicely and will soon be able to be at home with her friends.

Mr. Arnold of this place visited his sister over the weekend near Georgetown.

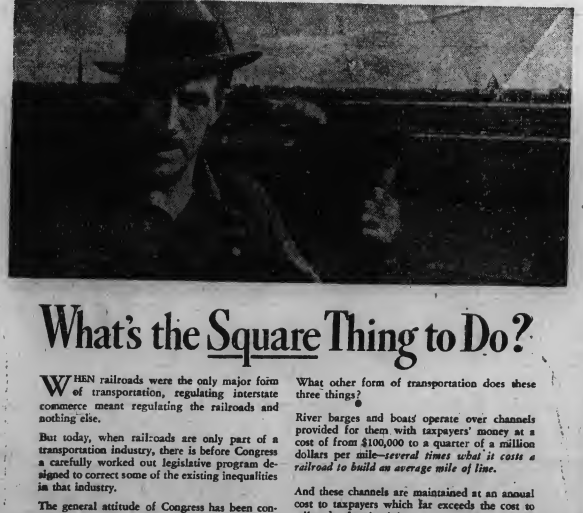
Millionth Visitor To Streamliners

As interested fair visitors look on, Mrs. William A. Both, Richmond Hill, L. I., is awarded a commemorative scroll as the millionth visitor to the streamlined railway cars at the Edward G. Budd Co. exhibit at the New York World's Fair. A housewife and mother of three, Mrs. Both will also receive a bronze plaque commemorating her visit. Col. G. A. Mix, Exhibit Manager, is making the presentation. The cars are of the same type as those to be used in the new fleet of streamline trains which will go into operation between New York and Florida in December.

Blackhead has appeared this season, where turkeys and chickens have been raised together for several years.

After playing a medley of Georgia tunes celebrating "Georgia Day," the World's Fair band in New York forgetfully struck up "Marching Through Georgia."



The Record, daily newspaper of Wyanet, Ill., appeared recently with one page blank except for an apologetic statement which read: "Don't laugh. We had a helluva time filling the other three pages."

A room containing a radio, magazines, flowers and a telephone has been set aside at the city prison at Columbus, Ohio, for confinement of traffic violators unable to pay their fines in cash.

What's the Square Thing to Do?

But today, when railroads are only part of a transportation industry, there is before Congress a carefully worked out legislative program designed to correct some of the existing inequalities in that industry.

The general attitude of Congress has been constructive. So has the general attitude of railroad employes. One of the nation's largest farm organizations has gone on record in favor of these laws.

The opposition has come largely from groups with special interests, who contend that the changes proposed would be unfair to other forms of transportation.

Now let's see about that:

What is unfair about asking a whole industry to abide by the same rules?

The railroads paid for the building of their own "superhighways" of steel—they pay out of their own pockets to maintain them—and they pay taxes on them.

What other form of transportation does these three things?

River barges and boats operate over channels provided for them with taxpayers' money at a cost of from $100,000 to a quarter of a million dollars per mile—several times what it costs a railroad to build an average mile of line.

And these channels are maintained at an annual cost to taxpayers which far exceeds the cost to railroads of maintaining an average mile of railroad. Barges and boats pay nothing for the use of these channels.

Commercial carriers on the highways do pay something toward the cost of the roads they use—but they use the same roads as 25,000,000 passenger cars whose owners pay most of the cost of building and maintaining the highways.

This is said not in criticism but as a fact which has a bearing on the competition the railroads are called on to meet.

So we come back to the basic question: Is it fair to ask part of an industry to work under rules which do not apply to all parts alike?

FOR 1940 OFFICERS A. C. P. ELECTION

The annual election of the Agricultural Conservation Association for Kenton county will be held in each of four districts on Thursday, October 19, 1939 at 7:45 p. m. for the purpose of electing delegates and alternates, community committee chairman, vice-chairman, third member and two alternate members to the community committee.

Each Producer to be Notified

Each producer will be notified of the place where the meeting will be held for his District.

Persons Eligible to Vote

According to instructions from the State A. C. P. Office the following information is given on eligibility for voters in the election:

Persons who have an interest in a farm as a landowner, tenant, or sharecropper, in the community for which this election is held and during the current year, have qualified for a loan, crop insurance policy, conservation payment, or grant of aid, in connection with programs administered by the Agricultural Conservation Association of this county, or intends to participate or cooperate in such program during the year 1940.

Qualifications for Officers

The qualifications for officers in the association will be explained at the meeting to be held in each of the four districts on Thursday, Oct. 19th, at 7:45 p. m., Eastern Standard Time.

College Recommends Health Examination

Up-to-the-minute health practice calls for a general physical examination at least once a year, according to courses in "Health of the Family" given in the home economics department of the Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The best way to treat disease is to prevent it, it is pointed out. Many diseases caught in their early stages can be cured rapidly. If tendencies toward certain illnesses are known, precautions often can be taken so that the disease never occurs.

The physical examination includes many things, according to the diagnosis of the family doctor. If after preliminary tests he finds something that needs looking into, he may ask for further tests for the protection of the patient.

The usual fairly-complete physical examination may include:

Tests of eyes, ears, nose and throat.

Tests of the action of lungs, heart and kidneys.

Hemoglobin tests and tests for blood pressure.

Tests of the teeth.

Tests of certain reflexes that indicate the health of the nervous system.

Tests to determine the patient's immunity to such diseases as typhoid, diphtheria, etc., and to determine the presence of bacteria in the body.

Occasionally some doctors also make tests of bone structure.

FALL FEAST FOR YOUR FAMILY

Here's a slick main course dish for one of those crisp fall days when you'd rather be outdoors than milling around over a meal in the kitchen—a big platterful of macaroni with ham and mushroom topping. It's one of those quick-trick recipes that take just a twirl of the can opener and a couple of minutes on the stove to turn out a triumph. To prepare:

MACARONI WITH HAM AND MUSHROOMS

Slice thinly—
½ lb. fresh mushrooms then sauté until tender in—
2 tablespoons butter.
Add—
1 cup finely diced boiled ham or tongue
1 small onion, scraped or finely diced.
Continue cooking until slightly brown.
Add, heating thoroughly—
1 medium (17 oz.) can cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese
Salt and pepper to taste.

Serve on platter and garnish with ripe mission olives. (Serves 4.)

SPICY SALAD SERVICE

With this macaroni menu you'll want to serve a big bowlful of crisp salad greens—a quick concoction that will set off the main course dish by contrast with its tart and spicy savor. So take a firm head of iceberg lettuce and cut the whole head into inch square cubes. Toss lightly into a lettuce-lined salad bowl, then glisten the leaves with this tasty tomato ketchup dressing:

ALL-PURPOSE FRENCH DRESSING

Combine—
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons tomato ketchup
2½ teaspoons powdered sugar.
Add alternately, beating well after each addition—
⅔ cup orange juice
⅓ cup lemon juice
⅓ cup salad oil
2 tablespoons pure olive oil

LARRUPY AND LADY-LIKE

To top off this feast, serve your family dainty, sunny-colored lady fingers or strips of sponge cake crowned with lavish spoonfuls of Uncooked Fruit Whip. Split two lady fingers for each serving and arrange halves on a lace paper doily centered on a dessert plate. Then prepare this fruity flavored frosting from a canful of ready-to-serve strained pears and pineapple. It's cool, quick and colorful:

UNCOOKED FRUIT WHIP

Whip—
½ cup whipping cream.
Combine, then fold into whipped cream—
¼ cup sugar
½ can strained pears and pineapple*
2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Serve over lady fingers, or sponge cake cut into strips.

*Strained prunes or strained apricots and apple sauce may be substituted, decreasing lemon juice to 1 teaspoon.

MORGANSVILLE

"Fear God and keep His commandments."

"To live in hearts we leave behind, is not to die." In the eventide of a beautiful life, nobly lived, Mrs. Carrie Lambert Rich passed peacefully on, September 28th, as the evening shadows deepened, to receive of her Maker the Crown of Life promised those who are ever faithful to His cause. She was the widow of Mr. J. Steve Rich, retired Rural Mail Carrier, who had recently preceded her in death. Funeral services Saturday afternoon were impressively conducted by Rev. O. E. Bradshaw of Louisville, assisted by Dr. J. M. Rogers of Ft. Thomas, folowed by burial in the Independence cemetery. At the conclusion of the services, through the courtesy of Mrs. G. C. Morgan and son Wally Lambert Morgan, we received two lovely baskets of fragrant blossoms, given by her devoted children and Miss Louise Rich, Brooklyn, N. Y., which also lent their rare beauty to her little church Sunday. Her christian life has been a radiant reflection of the sunshine of God's love, and her quiet devotion has been as seed sown in good soil, yielding a golden harvest in the lives of those who have known her. During her years of invalidism every effort put forth to restoration proved futile and her loved ones are comforted in the thought of a joyous reunion where there is happiness unmixed with sorrow, loss or disappointment.

JONESVILLE

Miss Glendola Stewart of God's Bible School spent the weekend with her father, Floyd Stewart, and family and attended the revival at the Methodist church.

Mrs. Laura Reynolds of Covington spent the weekend with relatives here.

Mrs. Vick Noel and Carl Noel of Owenton, and Will Greene of New Liberty were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Kemper, one day last week.

Friends here were sorry to hear of the death of Charlie Alexander, Jr. of Gratz, who died from injuries received in an automobile accident. Several from here attended the funeral, Sunday.

Mrs. Mollie Bonds is very ill at this writing. Her many friends hope for her recovery.

Miss Grace Baldwin of Owenton spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Kemper and family.

Mrs. Belle Calendar, who has been in Good Samaritan Hospital, Lexington, suffering from a broken hip was able to be brought home last week, but will have to remain in bed for several weeks yet.

Mrs. Lillie Breeden of Ludlow, visited her sister, Mrs. Pearl Kin, and family last weekend.

Social Security News

Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of questions and answers relative to the amended Social Security Act. Individual questions concerning this subject should be addressed to Frank B. Decker, Jr., manager of the Social Security Board field office in Covington, Ky.

Question—What is the effect of the new social security legislation on workers who are now 65 or who are approaching that age?

Answer—It is now possible for such persons to qualify for monthly old age insurance benefits starting January 1, 1940.

Question—As an example, a man working throughout 1937 reached 65 in January, 1938, and received a lump-sum money payment to which he was then entitled under the original plan of old age insurance. However, he continued to work at $75 a month. Can he now qualify for monthly benefits?

Answer—Yes. Wages earned on covered employment after December 31, 1936, and before a person becomes 65, now count toward monthly benefits, regardless of the payment of a lump sum. After January 1, 1939, employment after age 65 also counts toward benefits. Although the worker in this case would not get credit for the wages he earned during the year between his 65th birthday and January 1, 1939, he would still have enough wage credits to get a monthly benefit January 1, 1940, provided he retired.

Question—In case a man who has received a lump-sum payment qualifies for monthly benefits, what adjustment will be made with respect to the money he has already received?

Answer—The amount of the lump-sum payment will be deducted from his monthly benefits. This is a matter of regulation to be made by the Bureau of Old-Age Insurance of the Social Security Board.

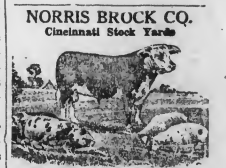
Question—A man earning $40 a month became 65 in April, 1938, and received a lump-sum payment. Then he stopped work. But if he goes back to work in January, 1940, can he get monthly benefits?

Answer—Yes. With the wage credits earned before he quit work in 1938 he will, if he goes back to work, have enough credits to get a monthly benefit before the end of 1940. But the lump sum he received in 1938 would be deducted from his monthly benefits.

Question—Must a worker over 65 retire in order to receive monthly benefits?

Answer—Yes. But under the revised law his 65th birthday does not necessarily end his participation in the insurance plan. He will continue to accumulate wage credits as long as he works in a job covered by the plan, no matter how old he is.

Question—May a person receiving the monthly benefits return to his job at any time?



Answer—He may, but he will not receive monthly payments for the months he works in employment covered by the plan and in which months he earns more than $15.00.

Refund Being Made On World's Series Tickets

Cincinnati:— Arrangements have been made by The Cincinnati Baseball Club Company for refunding money paid for tickets for the unplayed fifth game of the World Series. These tickets may be redeemed at The Central Trust Company and its branches and The Fifth Third Union Trust Company and its branches.

Out of town fans may redeem their tickets by writing to the WorldSeries Ticket Offices, Box 1078 Cincinnati, Ohio. This office is being kept open until all tickets for the fifth game are redeemed. Checks will be mailed all people sending in tickets, providing that the owner assumes full responsibility for the safe delivery of his tickets at that office. Fans are asked to be certain their full name and address is printed on a letter accompanying the tickets.

The total price (including tax) will be refunded. In all, $158,000.00 will be refunded.

4-H CLUB MEETINGS IN ALL COMMUNITIES

The 7th series of 4-H club meetings are being held in all communities this week and next, according to H. B. Drake, Assistant County Agent.

Each member will turn in his completed record book at this series of meetings in order to be eligible for an achievement certificate to be awarded in November.

Each year the county bankers association awards a trophy to the club scoring the highest number of points. A member wins 1,000 points for his club by completing his project. All club members will be striving to make their club the best, and eligible for this trophy by handing in their record books at this series of meetings.

The schedule of meetings yet to be held is as follows:

Petersburg, October 12, 8:30 a. m.
Burlington, October 16, 9:15 a. m.
Verona, October 16, 1:00 p. m.
Walton, October 16, 2:15 p. m.

A record of 155,408 long distance calls in day was set in New York.

R. E. A. Electricity In 110 Days, Claim

Boone County R. E. A. signers have a possibility of securing electricity in 110 days, according to Rev. Will Smith, chairman of the Boone County R. E. A. committee.

The big problem confronting signers at the present time is the wiring of houses. Three-fourths of the signers must have houses wired or under contract to be wired before electricity is turned into the lines. No house should be wired until it is tagged by the R. E. A. engineer.

Chester Roland, manager of the Owen County Association serving Boone, Kenton and Campbell counties met with committeemen at the Hamilton Community Fair on Oct. 6th. He stated that the contract for staking the line had been let to Roy W. Channaberry, Inc., Louisville, and that the contract for the construction of the line would be let October 13th. The contract calls for the construction of the line in 110 days from this date.

Roland advised that no house be wired until the engineer tags the house. This is the official designation that the house will be served. Signers may proceed to secure bids for wiring the houses, but hold up the work until the house is tagged. The R. E. A. makes no contracts for wiring as this work is done by private trade with the signers and the electrician. The only requirement is that the house wiring must pass inspection. Educational meetings on costs of wiring and kinds of fixtures will be held in the near future.

House wiring is probably the only thing that can hold up securing electricity at the earliest possible date. Signers should begin making plans for this important job.

CHRISTIAN REVIVAL CLOSED SUNDAY

The revival, which has been in progress for the past two weeks, closed at the Walton Christian church, Sunday evening.

Rev. W. J. Clarke, the evangelist, pastor of the Owenton Christian church, a great speaker, delivered some fine sermons during the revival—and they were heard by large numbers. Rev. Clarke was assisted by the regular pastor, Rev. J. M. Ervin. There were five additions to the church by letter.

P. T. A Conference At Beechwood

The Fall Conference of the Sixth District, Kentucky Branch of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers will be held on Friday, October 27th at the Beechwood School, Fort Mitchell, beginning at 10:30 a. m., EST. Mrs. A. H. Bates, president of the district will be the presiding officer. The morning will be turned over to the plans of the local presidents and the chairmen of the district. They are asked to limit their reports to one minute each.

W. P. King, Louisville, executive secretary of K. E. A. will speak during the morning session and Miss Frances S. Hays, Washington, will be the speaker in the afternoon.

Delegates and visitors are asked to make reservations with their local president, who in turn should notify Mrs. Wm. Eger, 13 Crittenden Road, Fort Wright, Covington, or with Mrs. George Smith, 3052 Grand Avenue, Newport, not later than Wednesday, October 25th.—Publicity Chairman.

3 NEW MEMBERS FOR ROTARIANS

Friday, October 13th, could have been termed as a lucky one for the Walton Rotary Club. For the first time since organization all members were present. Three new members were added, and Rev. W. J. Clarke was the guest speaker.

The new members were Clinton Cleek, Cecil Davis and Malcolm Simpson.

Rev. Clarke of Owenton, and a Rotarian, who has just completed a two week's revival at the Walton Christian church, gave a most interesting after-dinner talk on the European situation. He went back some 200 years to the birth of the various "isms" now predominating in Europe, as well as giving some interesting facts in the life of Stalin the "head man" in Russia.

Holly-Wood Varieties At James Theatre

The above picture is that of Della Lewis shown to stage and radio audiences as "Tildy, the Hill-Billy Belle of the radio team of Zeke and Tildy." She and Zeke will appear at the James Theatre in Walton, on Wednesday night, October 25th, together with Thayer Lewis, one of America's young and outstanding musicians. Some time ago he was written up by Mr. Ripley in his Believe It or Not, for performing a very difficult feat, playing the piano blindfolded, with boxing gloves on, and the piano covered up. Mr. Ripley, was amazed at the variety and number of musical instruments played by this artist, and made mention of it in his column.

Young Lewis is known on NBC network as the Lone Wrangler, with his one man band, and his sister Della is a dancer of note and has brought, straight from Hollywood, some of the latest tap steps. Then there is Madam Alberta, with her little wooden headed boy, Johnny McClusky, who happens to be Charlie McCarthy's cousin, to say nothing of that genial master of ceremony and star of magic, Harry Kay Lewis, himself. They will all be at the James Theatre with the Hollywood Varieties, to give you an evenings entertainment of mirth, magic, music, songs and dancing, and don't forget "Zeke and Tildy" in their side-splitting Hill-Billy numbers, fresh from the West coast, and on their way to the East coast.

We almost forgot to mention that Thayer Lewis owns and plays one of those wonderful Accordiannas, it alone is worth the price of admission, if you have never seen or heard it. This company of players are being presented this year by Lola E. Painter, a native Kentuckian, and well known show woman, having played throughout the South for a number of years with her own company, the Painter Popular Players. She speaks in glowing terms of the Holly-Wood Varieties.

MINISTER RESIGNS

Rev. J. M. Ervin, pastor of the Walton Christian church, tendered his resignation to this congregation Sunday evening, to become effective the first of December. Rev. Ervin has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Christian church at Versailles, Ky.

Rev. Ervin has been pastor at the local church for about five years. He and his wife, aside from being diligent workers in the church, have been quite active in civic affairs of the town and community. Mr. Ervin is a member of the Walton Rotary Club, and is also Scout Master of the Walton Troup.

Their many friends regret to learn of their leaving our town, but wish them prosperity and happiness in their new location.

ONE-ACT PLAYS AT SIMON-KENTON

The Simon Kenton P. T. A. will present two one-act comedies at the school Friday evening, October 20, at 8:00 p. m. Members of the faculty will appear in "Sauce for the Gander," while the parents will attempt to show, "Why Teachers Go Nuts." The fact that the losing group must treat the winning cast to a dinner has caused much good-natured rivalry in the organization. Admission will be 15c and 25c cents.—Publicity Chairman.

Baptist Church To Have Revival

O. A. Fields, evangelistic singer of Northern Kentucky, who has recently moved to Florence, will be the guest soloist during the coming revival at th Walton Baptist church beginning October 23rd.

Dr. E. C. Stevens of the Clifton Baptist church, Louisville, will be the evangelist. Evening services will be at 7:00 p. m. and the morning services will be at 10:00 a. m. The public is cordially invited to worship at this church, at any and all of these helpful services.

Rev. C. J. Alford is pastor of the Walton church.

Farmers Strive To Earn ACP Allowance

Boone County farmers are making a final drive to earn 100% of the 1939 soil-building allowance, according to H. H. Forkner, County Agent. The number of office calls by farmers checking their soil-building earnings to date showed a marked increase the past week. Limestone dealers are reporting their supplies practically exhausted and are being replenished by pulverizer operators working double shifts for night and day pulverizing.

Limestone and phosphate are proving popular with most farmers. Last year 307 farmers used lime and 396 used phosphate to improve the fertility of the soil.

Reseeding of old pastures and new seedings will reach record proportions this week or next, especially if favorable weather develops. Farmers can make 300% on their investment in seed alone on old pastures. Ten pounds of Korean costing 50c; 10 pounds of sweet clover costing 60c; or 10 pounds of timothy costing 60c—each pays $1.50 on the soil-building allowance.

The rates per acre for making new seedings run slightly higher but farmers can still make a good profit. The last of October is an ideal time to seed the new crop of seed of both Korean and Sweet Clover over both the old pasture and in new fields.

Despite a few unfavorable reports, large numbers of farmers have secured splendid results from fall seedings and this practice remains practically as safe as spring seedings with more favorable growth resulting next year from fall seedings. Crop insurance, through benefit payments are made through the program in either case and the farmer has little to lose provided he carries out his practices.

The use of assignments or loans has also interested a large number of farmers recently. Farmers are finding that for $1.00 interest on assignments they can pay cash for their seeds and make several dollars profit.

1939 will be a good year under the Agricultural Conservation Program according to the county office. Farmers being more familiar with the program are going to lose very little of their soil-building earning thru failure to carry out practices before October 31st, the closing date of the 1939 program.

D. OF A. PANCAKE SUPPER, THURSDAY

A pancake supper will be given by the Walton D. of A. lodge, Thursday evening, Oct. 19th, from 5:30 to 7:30. The supper will be held in the Edwards building, next door to Rouse's grocery, instead of the Masonic hall, as previously announced. The price of the supper is only 35 cents—and you get your fill of pancakes.

"MISS BLUE BONNET" AT VERONA, OCTOBER 27

A Wayne P. Sewell production, "Miss Sllie Bonnet" will be presented at the Verona school auditorium on Friday evening, October 27th. This production is sponsored by the Parent and Teachers Association. Remember the date and plan to attend.

SERVICES AT SALEM

Elder Buchinson will preach at Salem church on Sunday, October 22nd. It will be an all-day meeting and you and friends are invited to spend the day.

Will Speak At P. T. A. Sectional Meet

Miss Frances Hays, Washington, D. C. will be the principal speaker on Tuesday, October 24th at the Sectional Conference of the Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers to be held in the Walton-Verona High school, Walton. The meeting is to begin at 1 p. m., Eastern Standard Time.

The program as outlined by Mrs. C. A. Schroetter, Covington, president of the Ky. Congress of P. T. A. is as follows: Registration is to begin at 12:45 with the opening at 1 o'clock. The welcoming address will be given by Mrs. W. W. Rouse, president of the Mothers Club of the Walton school. This is to be followed by the reading of the Objects of the P. T. A. by Professor J. A. Caywood, superintendent of the Kenton County Schools. Miss Frances Hays will address the group on, "A Strong Foundation."

Group singing will then be enjoyed, this to be followed by a talk by Mrs. Frank Vosmer of Covington, state parliamentarian of the Ky. Congress, her topic being "Step by Step." Miss Hays will again address the group, this time discussing "Discovering Program Helps In Our Congress Publications." Group discussion will be led by Mrs. C. A. Schroetter, Mrs. Frank Vosmer, J. A. Caywood, and Walter F. Coop, superintendent of the Walton-Verona school.

The meeting is open to all who are interested in the school and the parent-teacher organization.—Publicity Chairman.

GRASS FIRE AT CRITTENDEN

A grass fire covering more than 100 acres on four adjoining farms at Crittenden, which threatened two farm houses, was extinguished Monday night by farmers and CCC boys after battling the blaze for nine hours.

The fire, believed to have been started by a spark from a train, began on the farm of J. T. Daly and spread to farms owned by Mrs. G. B. Webster, Claude Israel and the First State Bank of Dry Ridge.

A number of hay and straw stacks and wooden fences on the farms were destroyed. It is said about 75 farmers and 12 CCC youths fought the flames.

BOONE COUNTY GIRLS AT MIDWAY SCHOOL

Boone County girls attending the Kentucky Female Orphan school at Midway, are Carra Lee Huey, Nancy Huey and Wilma Huey of Burlington, and Rose Ann Youell and Bernecia Jane Youell of Walton.

There is one subscribed scholarship for Boone county, which, when it becomes available will be the C. Kenneth Balsly, wife of Mrs. Ida Balsly, beneficiaries, to be nominated by the Burlington Masonic Lodge.

P. T. A. TO MEET

The Walton Parent and Teacher Association will meet at the school on Friday afternoon, October 20th. All members are urged to be present as plans will be made for the coming Hallowe'en party, which will be held on the Thursday night following.

That Rubber Yardstick

A few weeks ago the Tennessee Valley Authority took over the electric properties of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation in Tennessee, thereby gaining a monopoly of the power business in that state. As a result, the state and local taxes paid by the private system, which amounted to $2,225,000 in the last year, were lost to the state, its counties, and its municipalities.

The Governor of Tennessee observed that this loss of taxes was of little significance, inasmuch as it would be offset by reduced costs for electricity. Commenting on that viewpoint, the Portland Oregonian observes: "It may be said that the Governor of Tennessee . . . would not have had the political temerity to approve tax exemption for the private company in consideration of corresponding rate reductions. The people of Tennessee may feel consoled for loss of taxes by lower rates now that the public becomes the owner of the system, but would never have been consoled by like action so long as the system was owned by the Commonwealth and Southern.

"Electric light and power service is no longer in the luxury class. Taxation of it falls pretty much upon the whole people. To exempt it from taxes would cause higher taxes to be levied principally upon realestate, now staggering under its load, or compel the adoption of some new form of taxation.

How does it profit an individual or a business if, under a policy of state socialism which endangers all industry, reduced rates on his electric bill are added to his tax bill? It will be recalled that some time ago the Commonwealth and Southern declared unequivocably that if it were given the same privileges and immunities enjoyed by the TVA, including tax freedom, it would cut TVA rates by a minimum of 25 per cent. No move was ever made to accept this offer, by the socialist-minded politicians. It looks as if the people of Tennessee, and those other areas where private electric companies have been absorbed by government agencies, will discover that they have gained nothing but a liability once a balance is struck—though the power experiments have cost the taxpayers hundreds of millions, and, infinitely more important, have immensely increased the authority of politicians over our American institutions.

Public Resentment the Only Curb

Since the World War, Great Britian's national debt increased only $2,000,000,000, up to the end of last year.

In the nine years since depression struck the United States, the national debt has increased more than $25,000,000,000.

In those two sets of figures you see illustrated the magnitude and gravity of our debt problem. No nation in the world has been so prodigal as we in spending what we have not earned. In no nation has the national debt—which means a mortgage against all that we have, and all that may be produced by our children—soared so rapidly or so high.

Worst of all, the debt problem grows more menacing every day. The national budget is almost as far out of balance now as it was early in the depression. In spite of the highest and greatest number of taxes in our national history, the Federal government continues to spend billions more than it receives in revenue each year.

It is obvious that we can expect no help from the politicians—they will spend and spend and spend as long as the voters acquiesce. The solution must come from public rebellion against wasteful spending. There must be an end to Federal competition with business and financing projects which are purely local and ten years ago would have been paid for with local money. There must be an end to grab-bag tactics by counties, municipalities, states. There must be an end to the insane delusion that we can get something for nothing.

Business-Killing Taxation Condemned

The Journal of Business of the University of Chicago recently published an 80-page supplement entitled "Anti-Chain Store Tax Legislation," by Maurice Lee, Assistant Professor of Economics at the Utah State College of Agriculture. Prof. Lee traces the history of the chain store tax, its regulatory effect, and other phases of the problem. In conclusion, he advocates that "all chain-store-taxing statutes of whatever type be repealed at the earliest possible moment."

He bases his thesis on the grounds that other Federal and state measures provide adequate control of chain activities; that the statutes constitute a threat against the general welfare; that there is no indication that society at large benefits from anti-chain taxation, although there is much evidence that the opposite result accrues; that the statutes are enacted to promote the interest of the inefficient at the expense of the efficient, and that it is probable that part of the tax burden is shifted to others.

Professor Lee has attacked the problem with academic logic. And his conclusions are identical in substance with those reached by millions of Americans. Farm groups, union labor groups, real estate organizations, consumer associations, and newspaper associations—time and again they have gone on record strongly condemning legislation which uses the weapon of class taxation to hamper any legitimate business; and which, as a consequence, strikes a blow at the welfare of consumer and producer.

Who wants the chain stores destroyed? A small group of highly vocal politicians.

Who wants honest competition to be maintained in merchandising? The American consumer!

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5582 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A real dog story. Before the days of automobiles and gasoline busses, Sam Hicks of Boone County, Ky., shipped from Erlanger, on the Southern Railroad, a pair of hunting dogs to Frank Harris at the Cincinnati Union Stock Yards, the dogs arrived and they were tired and in such a bad condition they had to be carried to the commission office of Mr. Harris and were placed near a stove, as they seemed to be chilled and cold. No one was able to solve the mystery.

I was bookkeeper for the firm Mr. Harris was connected with. Ciell Coleman, ex-auditor of Kentucky, then was a salesman. I had occasion to go to the city and Ciell agreed to take care of the office and dogs. Ciell took a comfortable seat, prepared for a nap and a quiet time. As I walked through the hotel lobby, I told different ones to go into our office and ask Ciell what was the matter with the dogs. I walked three squares to take a street car. Meeting a good many stock yard men, I told everyone to go to our office and desk Ciell what was the matter with the dogs, which gave him a very busy afternoon explaining.

About the time he thought he had explained to all the men in the stock yards, Mr. Sadler, President of the Stock Yards Bank, went to the office on important business. As he entered the door, Ciell jumped up in the middle of the floor with both hands up beginning to explain about the dogs, saying, "Sam Hicks shipped the dogs to Frank Harris; they were awful sick, and I don't know what's the matter with them, do you?"

Mr. Sadler was dumfounded at Ciell's actions, saying, "I do not know what is the matter with the dogs, and I do not know what is the matter with you."

The dogs died. The mystery was never solved. When I returned to the office, Ciell said, "I have had the doggiest time of my life." He wanted to shoot me on the spot.

IN HIS OWN BACKYARD

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

Headlines about Europe's war and America's neutrality fight have overshadowed one of the most important pieces of news to emanate from Washington in months—the forthcoming "pudge" of radicals from Government service.

Representative Martin Dies, Chairman of the House Committee investigating un-American activities, predicted the purge. He said that the Justice Department had prepared a list of some 2,800 radicals or sympathizers and that they would be dismissed.

What Dies did not say, however, was why he knew there would be a purge. There's an interesting story behind the story:

More than a year ago the Justice Department prepared its list. The list was submitted to various executive officials. Nobody was fired.

Recently the problem of radical influences within the Government has become more important. So a Senator, at the investigation of the Dies committee, gathered together all of the matrial he could get showing the background of one high official. And he took the information to another higher executive who had the power to dismiss the man in question and said:

"It seems to me that the situation now is such that this man should not be kept in government service."

The reply was to this effect: "I don't see how the situation now is any different than it was. He stays." And stay the radical has.

When this information got back to Capitol Hill, things began to happen. Dies committee investigators, who never had been able to obtain the Justice Department list of 2,800 suspects. Then they began to watch their own. First, they listed possible radicals, went to work compiling them. They even took the automobile license numbers of people who went to see them at night.

After gathering this kind of information, the investigators began to line up witnesses who could and would testify about the activities and beliefs of the suspected radicals.

To date, the Dies committee has compiled a list of something over 100 government radicals about whom at least three witnesses are available to testify. The list is being added to daily. When it reaches the neighborhood of 150, it will be submitted to executive officials who have authority to fire the suspects. If there are no discharges, the Dies Committee will hold open hearings, disclosing not only past records of the radicals but also some startling and very recent activities. Public opinion will do the rest.

When the purge begins, it will, of course, be popular with the public, for always in time of international stress Americans have turned away from experimentalism to fundamentalism. They have, in short, gone conservative. That feeling, which began to develop because of the domestic failure of recent experiments, was intensified when war started in Europe.

Polls showed a mounting public interest in business and industry as the mechanism through which recovery could be achieved. With the international situation what it is, and the nation confronted with the necessity for preparedness, those who follow public thinking in Washington are convinced that business and industry will be looked to more than ever.

The reason, of course, is common knowledge that a nation cannot wage a war without the help and resources of industry. It will be interesting, therefore, to determine what future tests of public opinion show the reaction to be to present trends.

The government had begun several attempts to give business some help in an effort to rout depression. With the war threat, it intensified these. Harry Hopkins was made Secretary of Commerce in an effort to revitalize that Department. The Stettinius War Resources Board was created to take advantage of the best assistance industry could give in planning for national defense. Business help itself has lately been recruited for government service.

These are straws in a wind that always blows in one direction when there are troublous national times. When balmy breezes blow in Washington, when there is a serene air of peace, ambitious youngsters in political circles lie back under the breadfruit tree and dream about billion-dollar spending programs without bothering much where the money is all going to come from. But when the war clouds gather, and practical problems have to be taken care of, then experienced businessmen are hastily called back into action and a state of grace.

It never fails. And it's beginning to afford a valuable clue to an observant public as to which side has its eye on the facts in the eternal debate between industry and business on the one side and the bright young theorizers on the other.

CORN—I

Benjamin Franklin bitterly opposed having the eagle as our nation's emblem; he said that the turkey was a much more suitable bird, something distinctive in the new world. Numerous humorists have made fun of this suggestion and have even attempted to show how the turkey would look on our national stationery or on our coins. Long association of the turkey with abundant feasts in the fall, especially at Thanksgiving, probably has robbed it of a dignity that it might very well have. But another distinctive American product has all the dignity and beauty of the objects adopted as emblems of other countries, as impressive as thistle or rose or fleur-de-lis or lotus. I refer, of course, to our maize or corn.

Corn is basically associated with the very plain people that we call the folk. It was introduced to the whites by the folk, the so-called savages of America, who yet, in spite of their savagery had tamed the turkey and the llama and had domesticated tobacco, beans, corn, white and sweet potatoes, and some two dozen other food plants. The various tribes had their legends as to the origin of this valuable grain, the most beautiful one being the elaborate story among the Chippewas that Longfellow has retold in Hiawatha. All traces of the wild plant that was the ancestor of corn had been lost before the discovery of America. Teosinte, the nearest living relative, is rather far removed from corn as we know it, except when there is a throw-back, and a small ear forms in the tassel.

Whole books could be written about the importance of corn in the early settling of America. Because it can be so easily raised and will grow with less refined cultivation than wheat or rye or barley, it lent whole American continent, except in the actual tropics and the far north, is its home. Besides, it is, unlike other grains, good in every stage. Roasting-ears, a name that is now usually a misnomer, furnish food that is palatable and digestible in the very heart of the summer season. Dried corn furnishes meal and stock food and hominy. Popcorn is a highly specialized form that may not be life-saving in many instances, but it has brought more than its share of happiness into the lives that would have otherwise been rather drab.

Every process of raising corn and preparing it for food has developed many customs that are picturesque and smack of the folk. The earliest American settlers, who lived along the coast, learned from the Indians to plant a dead fish in each hill of itself to use by the roving frontiersmen, who girdled a few trees, planted the corn, and raised fine ears among stumps and dead snags. Corn is good for man and beast and is so widely distributed that almost the corn to insure quick and strong growth. Whether planting corn in checks or hills has continued because of that or to facilitate plowing both ways I will leave to farm magazines or scholars. The most primitive natives of Central and South America, I read, still plant their corn in hills, often loosening the dirt only at those places, with crude grubbing hoes or crowbars.

Going Off to School? Then Take a Hint—

NEW vistas and new settings face thousands of girls in their teens who are off to boarding school or college for the first time this month. A stranger to everyone, certain to feel homesick, the new girl must get on and make friends as quickly as possible.

How can you get people who don't know you interested in you? Henrietta Ripperger asks in the October Good Housekeeping. Move one is to get yourself done up in a way so as to attract attention. Eyes will turn your way and people will want to know who the cute trick is. Be ultra-fussy about grooming, Miss Ripperger advises. Take time to dress. Look out for slip trouble.

Before leaving for school, it's wise to find out what's being worn on the campus. Be subtle about color. You're grown-up now, so forget navy blue and white sweaters and try maize, French blue, pearl gray—to go with skirts of prune, brown, or dark red. Something important to bring along is a bright, short, enormous necklace. It's the little touches that make you stand out.

Move two is getting off on the right foot. Don't, Miss Ripperger warns, bring mother along. You may as well start in from the beginning on your own. Mother means well, of course, but . . .

Don't force your opinions on a crowd you don't know very well. This doesn't mean be a clam, but a chatter-box is infinitely worse. And above everything, don't talk about your family. Dad may be the smartest man in the world to you, but that's what every girl thinks. Other don'ts on your "must" list are: Don't talk about the family wealth; all the men whose hearts you've broken; your old school where you were a big-shot, and don't look down your nose when sororities or fraternities are mentioned.

It's the most wonderful feeling in the world to have your friends say later on: "We were all crazy about you the minute we set eyes on you!"

How To Destroy The Grain Moth

Inquiries concerning the "weevil" in corn and small grains are now reaching the Agricultural Experiment Station. Weevil is a term often used loosely to include all stored-grain pests, but in all of these present cases it refers to the Angoumois grain moth. This insect is widely distributed and is present here in small numbers every year. In some years the population is unusually large due, perhaps, to a preceding mild winter and the presence of two-year old grain in the region.

The small buff-colored moths lay their eggs in grain in the field and in the case of wheat a high percentage of infestation may be built up if threshing is delayed until late September. After the wheat is threshed and stored the infestation is restricted to the surface grain.

If not already there, the infestation is brought into the corn crib with the newly harvested corn. There the insect breeds during the warm season. Under cool weather conditions, its activities are much reduced, and when exposed to extreme cold weather, the insects are killed.

The eggs which are laid on or near the grain hatch into minute white larvae that bore into the kernels of grain and begin to feed on the contents. When full grown, each larva eats out a channel to the outside of the seed, leaving a thin layer of seed coat intact. It then changes to a pupa and later the moth emerges, pushing aside the thin cover over the channel. The development from egg to adult may be completed in five weeks and there may be as many as six generations per year in this locality.

To prepare the crib or granary for the new crop, sweep it thoroughly and burn the sweepings. Do not brush them out on the ground. This debris contains insects which very soon may return to the storage bin. After sweeping, the floor should be scrubbed with an old broom using boiling lye water. Dissolve one pound of lye in one gallon of hot water and work this into the cracks and crevices of the floor. If there are flying moths, spray them with a good contact spray—one that is made with odorless, tasteless, water-white petroleum similar to that contained in commercial fly sprays for use in dwellings, and containing a small amount of pyrethrum extract.

A good portion of the corn grown in Kentucky is stored in slat cribs that cannot be fumigated. The grain moth frequently infects corn so stored, but little serious damage is done unless the corn is held over the summer following harvest. If storage of corn for more than one season is contemplated, the corn should be shelled before the end of the first year of storage, placed in tight bins, and fumigated.

When the bin or fumigating box has been prepared, figure the air space occupied by the grain to determine the amount of fumigant to be used. Under favorable conditions, one pound of commercial carbon disulfid will be sufficient for 100 cubic feet of space in the bin, or about one ounce per barrel.

The gas settles to bottom of the bin, therefore, apply the liquid by sprinkling the top of the grain mass or gunny sacks laid on the grain. A blanket, carpet or similar covering is thrown over the grain, and the fumigation allowed to go on for twenty-four hours. (If the grain is to be used for food, continue fumigation for forty-eight hours.) At the end of the fumigation period, ventilate thoroughly. This is especially important where grain is to be used for planting. If barrels are used for fumigation, burlap should be tied over the top and the barrel inverted for an hour or two to permit the gas to escape.

The best results with carbon disulfid will be obtained at temperatures of 75 degrees Fahrenheit to 90 degrees Fahrenheit. Do not attempt to fumigate when the temperature is below 60 degrees Fahrenheit.

When using carbon disulfid, due precaution should be taken in regard to fire. The gas is highly combustible and under certain conditions explosive, so fire in any form should be kept away from the fumigating operations.

THE CITIZENS OF THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 5:1-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.—Matthew 5:16.

Great and historic discourses are preserved with care and are read by succeeding generations with profit and interest even though they are recognized to be the utterances of weak and fallible men. The lesson before us presents what is "undoubtedly the greatest single discourse ever uttered by any teacher or statesman or philosopher in the whole history of the human race" (Smith). Take up your Bible and read the words of the text.

These verses are addressed to believers, to those who have actually taken Christ as king of their lives. These beatitudes are not a substitute for the gospel. They are not laws that the unbeliever can keep and thus be saved, for this would be utterly impossible for anyone to do, except the one who has been born again. Only he who knows and has called upon the power and grace of God in Christ can qualify to walk as a citizen of His kingdom.

I. The Christian's King (vv. 1, 2).

The words which fell from the blessed lips of the Lord Jesus on that day as He sat on the mountainside were not the powerless declarations of an earthly philosopher or statesman, but of the Son of God who had humbled Himself and become the Son of Man who was still the King of kings and the Lord of lords. If you have not given glad and free allegiance to Him, do it now and you will then be ready to go on and learn of the Christian's character and influence which may be your possession in Christ.

II. The Christian's Character (vv. 3-12).

The eight characteristics of the Christian here presented are worthy of extended individual attention, but we can offer only brief suggestions.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit" speaks of humility as a commendable quality. How contradictory the present-day philosophy which calls for self-assertion and self-reliance. But Jesus is not mistaken. The way into the kingdom of heaven is not that of assertive self-sufficiency.

"Blessed are they that mourn." The world does not believe that statement. It shuns the house of mourning. It tries without avail to philosophize away the fact of sorrow. The Christian, on the other hand, feels with his fellow man and thus receives a blessing.

"I walked a mile with Pleasure,
She chattered all the way;
But left me none the wiser
For all she had to say.

"I walked a mile with Sorrow,
And ne'er a word said she;
But, oh, the things I learned from her
When Sorrow walked with me."

"Blessed are the meek." Ah, yes, poverty of spirit comes when a man rightly sees himself, and has a sympathetic touch with sorrow. Then he "inherits the earth," because he truly comes to enjoy it as a place of service and Christian growth, and not because he has a deed to a single foot of its soil.

"Note that it is the hunger and thirst for righteousness, and not the possession of it, that is blessed" (Plummer). Self-satisfied people know nothing of the glory of having such a hunger and thirst filled by God.

Time fails us to speak of the Christian's spirit of mercy which invites divine mercy; that purity of heart and absolute cleanness of mind and sincerity of purpose which enable a man really to see God even in this impure world; that Christlike spirit which makes him a peacemaker in a fighting world—yes, that spirit which makes him like the Master in sweetly bearing unjustified persecution. These indeed are the marks of the man who follows Christ as King.

III. The Christian's Influence (vv. 13-16).

"Salt" and "light"! What pungent and powerful folk are the real followers of Christ!

Salt fights against rottenness, keeps things sweet and fresh. Dr. J. H. Jowett says, Christians "are to confront rottenness in politics; they are to meet it in the realm of business; they are to make for it in the field of sport; they are to be its enemies in the crowded streets of common intercourse; they are to defeat it in the quiet and sequestered ways of art and literature; everywhere they are to provide the antidote to corruption, and they are to overcome and destroy it."

Light has one function, namely, to illuminate. Wickedness and sin always love darkness, because their deeds are evil (read John 3:19-21). If Christ really dwells in us we cannot help but shed light about us wherever we go—a divine light which drives out the darkness of sin, of ignorance, of superstition, and replaces it with the sunlight of God.

Social Security News

The Social Security Board today announced it had recorded wages totaling $55,000,000,000 paid since January 1, 1937, to commercial and industrial workers covered by the old-age insurance provisions of the Social Security Act. The Board stated these wages would be used in determining the size of the monthly checks which will be sent to beneficiaries. Under the law benefit payments start in 1940.

The Board explained that this total represented more than 238,000,000 pay-roll items reported by employers —74,000,000 in 1937; 114,000,000, and approximately 50,000,000 in the first half of the present year. Estimates place the total for 1939 at approximately that for the preceding year.

Arthur J. Altmeyer, Chairman of the Board, stated that an increasing realization by both employers and employees of the significance of the workers' social-security account numbers has reduced the number of inaccurately reported wage items from 10 percent in 1937 to less than 2 percent during the first half of 1939. He added that of the 55-million-dollar wage total, the books show less than 1.4 percent not yet credited to the proper wage accounts.

The Chairman explained that one of the chief causes of these inaccuracies is the fact that employers' wage reports sometimes fail to show the social-security account number, as well as the name, of each employee. This makes it impossible for the Board to credit the reported account until the account number is obtained. This, he pointed out, is because there are thousands of workers who have identical names. But no two have the same number.

He said that an immediate allocation of the wage item to the proper account may also be delayed by (1) the inaccurate recording of a worker's account number on the employer's books, as for example, the transposition of figures; (2) the employees failure to see that his employer records his name with exactly the same spelling which he used when he applied for an account number; and (3) illegible recording of the worker's name on the wage and tax information report.

The Chairman said the Board's field force for months has been making direct contact with employers to obtain information that will enable the Board to transfer to the proper worker's accounts all items which it was not possible to indentify otherwise.

"It is not surprising," Mr. Altmeyer said, "that some errors crept into the employer's wage reports during the first year. Neither the employer nor his employee then realized that a mistake, particularly the omitting of the account number, might hold up the posting of the wage item involved. This situation has greatly improved, and we regard as almost negligible the number of wage items now reported inaccurately."

STOUT SUPPER SERVICE

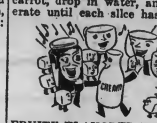
For fine feasting on a crisp fall day, prepare this quick and easy meal. A bowl of cream of pea soup topped with chunky bread cubes fried in butter—a fat double decker sandwich made of fluffy scrambled eggs, chips of dried beef and toast served under a tasty tomato sauce—and a big beautiful bowlful of fruity flavored Any Season Dessert. To make this stout supper sandwich, first make a rosy, ruddy colored tomato sauce by thickening a canful of cream of tomato soup and add shredded American cheese to give a rich and racy rarebit flavor to the dish, using the following proportions:

LUNCHEON RAREBIT SANDWICH

Melt—
2 tablespoons butter.
Add, then blend well—
4 tablespoons flour.
Cook until bubbling, then add—
1 medium (16 oz.) can cream of tomato soup. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened.
Add and continue heating until melted—
½ to 1 cup grated American cheese (sharp cheese).

Serve over sandwiches (below). Garnish with preserved sweet pickles and ripe mission olives placed on a little mound of watercress.

SANDWICH



For each sandwich have—
2 slices buttered toast.
Place between two slices toast—
Scrambled eggs.
Top with—
Dried beef, sautéed in butter.
Top with third slice of toast.

NOTES ON NIBBLING

For good nibbling with this succulent sandwich, prepare a relish dish of fine flavored fresh cucumber pickle slices, crisp celery curls and carrot flowers. To make the celery curls, take the leafy end of a stalk of celery and section the stem end in long thin slivers. Place in a dish of cold water and pop in the refrigerator to chill until each stalk has curled in cunning shapes. Carrot flowers are easily contrived by making a series of lengthwise cuts in the carrot about ⅛ inch deep every half an inch or so—then cut very sheer crosscut slices of carrot, drop in water, and refrigerate until each slice has crisped.

FRUITY FLAVORED FAVORITE

Any Season Dessert is just the kind to finish up a ladies' luncheon or to serve as a bridge dessert. Looks especially nice garnished with bits of cocoanut, candied fruit or candy shot. To prepare:

ANY SEASON DESSERT

Whip until stiff—
1 pint whipping cream.
Break up with a fork, then fold into whipped cream—
½ glass currant jelly.
Fold in—
2 dozen marshmallows, cut in eighths
1 cup pecans, chopped
2 cups diced peaches, fresh or canned.

Pour into a glass dish and chill in coldest part of refrigerator 3 to 4 hours. (Serves 10 to 12.)

Red Cross Warns Home Is More Dangerous Than Highway, Urges Check for Hazards

American Red Cross supplies householders and farmers with a check list of accident hazards in fight against large annual death toll. Hazards shown: top, left, mowers; harrows and other farm machinery, left in gear when making repairs, may result in grave injury to farmer. Top right: pointed shears in the hands of children are as dangerous as matches. Below right: most home accidents are due to falls, and scatter rugs on polished floors should be anchored by use of non-skid lining as shown.

HOME mishaps kill or injure many more persons than motor vehicles, yet the average householder faces traffic with misgiving and relaxes at home.

Each year hazards injure more than 100,000 persons engaged in farm work, yet the farmer fails to take safety precautions which the factory worker adopts as a matter of course.

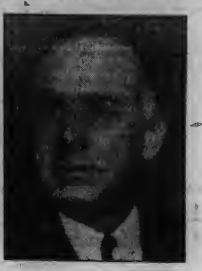
Together home and farm work accidents last year killed 35,400 adults and children and injured the staggering number of 4,750,000 persons.

To combat this annual accident scourge the American Red Cross launched a nation-wide program in 1935 to acquaint householders and farm workers with the hazards confident with their work and home life. This year more than 1900 Red Cross chapters are sponsoring this ask in the communities they serve.

On October 25 the annual Red Cross campaign will begin throughout the nation to assist householders to discover and eliminate hazards liable to cause accidents in the home. Members of the American Junior Red Cross and their schoolmates will distribute check lists to parents and assist in examining their own homes and in removing hazards. This Red Cross warning reaches more than 9,000,000 homes and farms each year.

The Red Cross stresses the need of removing hazards which may cause falls as this type of accident resulted in more than half of last year's home accident fatalities. Among child victims are poorly lighted stairs, loose railings, small rugs improperly anchored and children's toys left about. Burns and explosions caused the next heaviest loss of life. 5,500 were killed in 1938 by this type of accident and the Red Cross safety list points to the danger of scalding liquids in pots and pans left near the edge of the stove, matches left within reach of children, and fireplaces unguarded by proper screening. Other main causes of accidental death are mechanical suffocation, poison gases and firearms, Red Cross officials said.

Accident prevention is a part of the continuing Red Cross program directed against illness, death and disaster. All Red Cross services are supported by the people who join at the time of the annual Roll Call, this year from November 11-30.



Prominent Cincinnatians To Guide Red Cross Roll Call

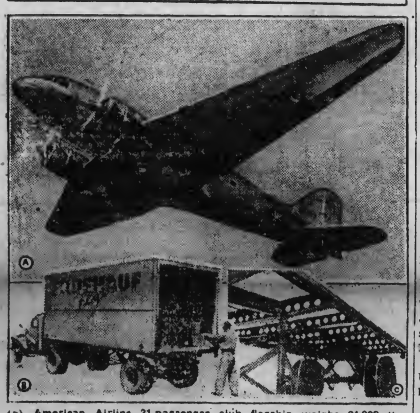
MRS. WALTER J. HERSCHEDE

JUSTIN A. ROLLMAN

W. MAXWELL FULLER



W. HOWARD COX

Prominent Cincinnatians are directing the 1939 American Red Cross Roll Call in behalf of the Cincinnati and Hamilton County Chapter. The house-to-house enrollment from November 11 to 30 will be preceded by solicitation by the Special Gifts Committee of those willing and able to make larger contributions than the one dollar individual fee. "Keep Your Red Cross Ready" is the enrollment slogan.

Shown top row, left to right are: John J. Rowe, chairman of the chapter; Mrs Walter J. Herschede, chairman of the House-to-House solicitation; Justin A. Rollman, chairman of the Special Gifts Division and bottom row, left, W. Maxwell Fuller, chairman of the city division to contact business, offices, and similar larger centers of employment, and right, W. Howard Cox, general chairman of the Roll Call.

TRAILERS RIVAL PLANES IN LIGHT-WEIGHT CONSTRUCTION

TRUCK designers look to the sky for inspiration, these days. Here is a new Fruehauf commercial trailer, known as the Flyer which breaks all marks for carrying capacity with light weight. The result is achieved by copying with great fidelity methods of construction used for airplanes. The new vehicle with its payload capacity of 12,000 pounds can be whirled around city streets with the deftness of a passenger car. It is designed for modern city pick up and delivery work. If it had a motor it could just about fly!

CONCORD

"Be not weary in well doing, for in due season you shall reap, if you faint not."

Bro. Snyder from the Louisville Baptist Orphans Home will preach Sunday morning. He will have some of the children with him. Come out and hear him—come at 10 o'clock for Sunday School.

Mrs. Clements of Warsaw, is very low and not expected to recover.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Rex of Ludlow, and little son spent the weekend here with her parents.

The W. M. S. met with Mrs. C. D. Hughes last Wednesday. The program was given by our president, Mrs. Althea Craft. All enjoyed the meeting and the day together.

Mrs. Higgins and Miss Addie Elliott and Bertha Chapman all visited at the C. D. Hughes home last week. Miss Elliott was our school teacher once and boarded at the Hughes home.

Don't forget the preaching services at Concord—Saturday night, and Sunday morning and evening.

A TRIBUTE TO EX-SENATOR LOGAN

When the proposition was up to request Senator Logan to resign for a better position so that Governor Chandler could be appointed Senator, Senator Logan was approached about the matter. His reply was, "No, my Kentucky constitutents elected me to represent them as Senator. It would be against my convictions and conscience to fail to represent them. I have to live with my conscience, which is more sacred to me than any promotion or gain."

I consider this the greatest sentiment and words uttered by anyone excepting Christ. If men and women in Church and State, from the highest to the lowest in all responsibilities of life would realize they can not get away from their conscience, and treat their fellow man right, what a great world of ours this would be to live in.—Will S. Norris, 5822 Belmont Ave., College Hill, Cincinnati, Ohio.

LEADERS TO STUDY "KITCHEN STEP-SAVERS"

Methods of saving steps in the kitchen will be discussed by Home Improvement Leaders next Tuesday, October 24th.

Twenty-eight leaders representing 14 Homemaker's Clubs of Boone county will meet at the Court House from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m., Central Standard Time. The newest methods of planning step-saving kitchens will be given by Miss Ida C. Hagman, Home Improvement Specialist, University of Kentucky.

The Step-Saving Kitchen is the second in a series of six lessons on modernizing the kitchen, according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent.

Mrs. Sam Sleet, County Home Improvement Chairman, will call for a report of local meetings held in October.

GRANT 4-H CLUB NEARS 100% COMPLETION OF PROJECTS

Twenty-three of the 26 members of the Grant True Blue 4-H club have completed their protects and handed in their record books, according to H. B. Drake, Assistant County Agent. The other two members indicate their books will be complete in the next few days. Keen competition for 100% completion is being displayed by the ten community clubs in the county.

Plans are being made to hold an achievement meeting at this and each of the clubs in the county within the next three weeks. Cards bearing the signature of the State Club Leader will be awarded each member successfully completing his protect. The cards will be marked, showing the number of years each member has been enrolled in a 4-H club.

W. M. U. TO MEET

The Woman's Missionary society of the Walton Baptist church will meet with Mrs. Charles Montgomery on Thursday, October 19th for an all-day meeting. A business session will be held at 11 o'clock, followed by lunch.

The program a 2 o'clock will be as follows: Topic for the month, "The Great Commission," and W. M. U. chief aims, "Tithes and Offerings." Hymn for the year, watenwords, Bible study, "God's Warning Against Covetousness," Rev. C. J. Alford; "The Great Commission and Giving" and "God's Financial Plan" Mrs. D. K. Johnson; "Some Stimulating Statistics," Mrs. C. J. Alford; Prayer; "What Tithes Could Do," Mrs. T. E. Fisher; "What Unpaid Tithes Are Doing," Mrs. B. W. Since the fair at Latonia has failed, it has been suggested by a number of prominent citizens of Boone, Kenton and Grant counties, that a fair association be established on the part of the three counties with the grounds in Boone county, in close proximity to both the railroads, the Cincinnati Southern and the L. & N. Accordingly an organization was effected at Walton., Tuesday, Nov. 5th to be known as the North Ky. Agricultural and Breeders Association. There were many stock breeders and persons present from the respective counties and all manifested great interest. The capital stock was fixed at $30,000 with shares at $50 each. After preliminary work, the association proceeded to locate the grounds with a mile track, between Richwood and Walton at the intersection of the Southern and L. & N. railroads. The price of the land was $115 per acre. Dr. O. P. Hogan of Dry Ridge was appointed as a committee to employ an engineer to survey and lay the track at once. The next meeting will be held in Walton, Tuesday, Dec. 10th. It is believed now that the fair is a positive success, and it should be one of the best and most prosperous in the in a very few years. R. O. Hughes of Richwood, is secretary of the association.

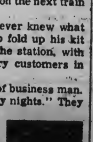
TRUTH about ADVERTISING



By CHARLES B. ROTH

FLY BY NIGHTS

WHENEVER Jeff Peters, the engaging hero in the book of O. Henry stories called "The Gentle Grafter," went into a new town and spread his samples of corn cure, ink remover, etc., out in front of him, he always took one precaution. He made note of how soon the next train left.

He had to. Jeff never knew what minute he'd have to fold up his kit and hot-foot it for the station, with policemen and angry customers in close pursuit.

He was that kind of business man. We call them "fly by nights." They still infest our cities and towns, but you never saw one of them advertise or build a lasting success.

Charles Roth

The man who advertises for your patronage shows that he has foresight and courage. He wants to establish goodwill and to remain in business, and the best way for him to do these things is to send down roots and advertise so that you may come to him whenever you need what he sells.

Jeff Peters stands for the furtive parasite, hanging around the fringe of respectable society, dashing in and taking whatever he can, giving nothing in return, ready to flee at any minute, always expecting to have to flee.

The manufacturer or merchant who advertises, however, serves notice that he has become a member of the community and society. He announces that he intends to be your business friend and to warrant your patronage.

And you buy from such a man with perfect assurance that you will always get your money's worth. And you do.

It's possible for you to go into some stores and find merchandise which glib salesmen assure you is "just as good."

The fact that even they use advertised items as the standard of comparison, is proof enough that they recognize the permanent power of the force we call advertising.

You as a consuming get more for your money if, in all your buying, you avoid the Jeff Peterses of business and select whatever you need from the stores of merchants who advertise and who sell advertised goods.

A business organization which wants to get the most for the money sets up standards by which to judge what is offered to it, and in Washington the government has an elaborate Bureau of Standards.

You can have your own Bureau of Standards, too. Just consult the advertising columns of your newspaper. They safeguard your purchasing-power, every day of every year.

Kentucky--Georgia Meet In Louisville

Whe the University of Kentucky football team lines up against the of Georgia, at DuPont Manual Stadium, October 21, in Louisville, it will be first time a football team from the University has played in Louisville in nearly eighteen years, it was revealed by Thomas A. Ballantine, alumnus of State, who is heading a committee, in coorperation with the Retail Merchants Association and the Louisville Board of Trade, in bringing the game to Louisville.

That the game will be a sell-out there seems to be little doubt and it was necessary Wednesday to adopt a "cash and carry" plan for intended spectators at the game, and all reservations not taken up by that date were released for general sale, and all general sale. This move is in line with the general policy of all college groups handling football tickets, it was explained. Tickets may be had, however, by mailing cash or money order to the Louis Appel Company or the Sutcliffe Company in Louisville.

In view of the Wildcats victory over Vanderbilt, the first in 43 years, it appears the Kentucky team will be the stronger of the two, but observers pointed that there's many a slip between games and injuries often spell the margin between victory and defeat.

Going collegiate in a big way, Louisville is preparing to do things in real style. On the Friday before the game there will be a series of afternoon teas for the women. These will be followed by a huge parade that night. Six or seven bands will be on hand for the occasion, including the 90-piece aggregation from Lexington; there will be fire trucks, a snake-dance up and down Fourth Street, a pep rally in Lincoln Park and a big illuminisstudent dance at the Madrid. Tickets for the dance are on sale at the Brown, Kentucky and Seelbach Hotels as well as Sutcliffe's and Appel's in Louisville.

Cooperating with alumni officials the Retail Merchants Association and the Board of Trade are sponsoring a gigantic window display contest. Virtually every store in the downtown section of the city will compete and valuable prizes are being offered the decorators of the winning windows.

The kick-off will be promptly at two o'clock, central standard time.

Kentucky Politics

— By Tyler Mumford —

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 16—Thirty minutes after Kentucky's new Junior Senator, A B. Chandler, stepped from a Chespeake and Ohio train at Washington Tuesday morning he had cast a vote against sending the Roosevelt administration's neutrality bill back to a committee.

Met at the train by Edward Jurney, Senate Sergeant-at-Arms, Chandler was rushed to the Senate chamber where he took the oath of office in time to join the forces of the New Deal in his first official vote.

The speed surrounding the Chandler induction as a member of the Senate is significant in that it throws considerable light on the political transfer that elevated Keen Johnson to the governor's chair and Chandler to the Senate in the brief period of a few days following the death of the late Mills M. Logan.

Political observers were divided in their opinion on whether the Democratic state administration should wait until after the November election to fill the vacancy. The controlling factor in the decision may be attributed to an urgent request from high New Deal officials that the vacancy be filled at once. This request undoubtedly was occasioned by the impending fight in Congress on the neutrality bill.

So "Happy" Chandler made his debut in the Senate last week with the blessings of the President, and it's not too far-fetched to assume that Keen Johnson knew that his new appointee would go to Washington as a friend instead of an enemy of the national administration.

What transpired at the Mansion conference that let to the Chandler appointment has never been made public, but a few days later at the Democratic state campaign opening "Happy" pledged himself to "uphold the hands of our great President and Senator Barkley, the party's majority leader."

And Chandler certainly kept the faith both on his first vote and in subsequent press statements.

Washington did not learn a lot about what transpired when Chandler, accompanied by his 1938 primary opponent, Senator Barkley, went to the White House for a conference with the President, but the news did get out that Roosevelt welcomed "Happy" into the fold, and that Senator Barkley was not at all displeased over the fast moving events that made his 1938 opponent his 1939 colleague. And stranger things have happened in politics than a close future alignment between the former Kentucky Governor and the Senate Majority leader.

Johnson Recalls Deal To Put Robison in Senate

King Swope, who is carrying the G. O. P. banner for the second time in as many state races, tried to make political capital out of the Johnson appointment of Chandler. Swope charged that it was political chicanery engaged in to thwart the will of the people.

Johnson countered with a review of the political incident of several years ago when former Governor Simpson and Congressman John M. Robison entered into a deal to have Senator Fred Sackett named ambassador to Germany in an effort to elevate Robison to the Senate. The plan went amiss when Robison lost to Senator Logan in the general election.

Actually, the appointment of Chandler appears to have met with general approval throughout the State, and politices associated with both of the old factions agree that the party's position was strengthened rather than weakened as a result of the appointment.

Patronage Matters Out Until After Election

There will be no consideration of patronage matters until after the November election, according to Wilmer G. Mason, political commentator for the Cincinnati Enquirer. "It immediately was made known, although not officially announced, that Johnson would not consider patronage matters until at least after the election and possibly not until after inauguration day'," Mason says.

Johnson Out-Drawing Swope in Mountains

In the Eastern Kentucky mountains, traditional Republican stronghold, newsmen report that Johnson is speaking to larger audiences than his Republican opponent.

Neither candidate is attempting an "iron man" speaking schedule. Johnson is making not more than two speeches a day, and these are usually cut to around 45 minutes, but the Democratic nominee is doing a lot of main street visiting in towns on the route to his speaking engagements.

Howard Marksberry, who has been in very poor health at his home on Park avenue, left last Tuesday for Zanesville, Ohio where he will enter a hospital for treatment. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

The many friends and relatives of George Marksberry, who has been confined to his home due to illness, will be pleased to know that he is greatly improved at this writing.

Mrs. Nancy Jane Conrad

The many friends and relatives here are sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. Nancy Jane Conrad, who passed away at St. Elizabeth Hoepital, on Tuesday. She had been ill for several months, but bore her suffering with Christian fortitude. She stated that the way was clear and that she was ready to pass through the Valley of the Shadow of Death. Her funeral was conducted at the Hopeful Lutheran church on Thursday afternoon with burial in Hopeful cemetery. She is survived by her husband, John Conrad; four sons, Ivan, Stanley, Ross and John Conrad, Jr.; one daughter, Mrs. HildaDolwick, and a number of grandchildren. Deepest sympathy is extended to the family from this community.

What's the Square Thing to Do?

WHEN railroads were the only major form of transportation, regulating interstate commerce meant regulating the railroads and nothing else.

But today, when railroads are only part of a transportation industry, there is before Congress a carefully worked out legislative program designed to correct some of the existing inequalities in that industry.

The general attitude of Congress has been constructive. So has the general attitude of railroad employes. One of the nation's largest farm organizations has gone on record in favor of these laws.

The opposition has come largely from groups with special interests, who contend that the changes proposed would be unfair to other forms of transportation.

Now let's see about that:

What is unfair about asking a whole industry to abide by the same rules?

The railroads paid for the building of their own "superhighways" of steel—they pay out of their own pockets to maintain them—and they pay taxes on them.

What other form of transportation does these three things?

River barges and boats operate over channels provided for them with taxpayers' money at a cost of from $100,000 to a quarter of a million dollars per mile—several times what it costs a railroad to build an average mile of line.

And these channels are maintained at an annual cost to taxpayers which far exceeds the cost to railroads of maintaining an average mile of railroad. Barges and boats pay nothing for the use of these channels.

Commercial carriers on the highways do pay something toward the cost of the roads they use —but they use the same roads as 25,000,000 passenger cars whose owners pay most of the cost of building and maintaining the highways.

This is said not in criticism but as a fact which has a bearing on the competition the railroads are called on to meet.

So we come back to the basic question: Is it fair to ask part of an industry to work under rules which do not apply to all parts alike?

$3,000 FOR TWO DUROC BOARS

If selling prices are any indication, there's plenty of confidence in the Duroc hog business right now. At least the Duroc breed secretary, B. R. Evans, reports two history-making Duroc transactions during the past month—one for $6,000 and the other for $1,000.

The $6,600 was laid down by Wolf River Ranch, Collierville, Tenn. for the entire Duroc herd of Dr. O. P. Bennett, Washington, Ill. This included the two well-known show and breeding boars, Grand Parade, 1939 Indiana grand champion, and Waveline, 1937 National grand champion at the cash price of $3,000—highest selling price to be made in any hog breed for a number of years. The balance of the $6,000 went for Dr Bennett's 30 sows with litters and the second prize fall boar at the 1939 Illinois State Fair.

The other significant Duroc transaction reported was the sale of Modernistic, second junior yearling at the 1939 Illinois State Fair and owned by Sherer & Scranton, Joy, Ill., to S. I. Kincaid & Son, Fairfield, Ill. for $1,000. This great boar is a son of Waveline and was the top selling Duroc spring boar, at $280, in the 1938 fall sale season.

New Haven School News

Parents and friends of New Haven are urged to attend its second General Assembly Friday, October 20th at 11:10 a. m. An interesting program is being prepared consisting of the following numbers:

Devotional: Scripture, Howard Stephenson; Reading on Prayer, Virgil Gulley; Duet, Dorothy Haley and Mary Waters.

One act play, "By Special Request," directed by Miss Sleet. The characters: Mrs. North, a nervous mother, Mary Smith; Thelma, her daughter, Catherine Gilpin; Johnny her son, Bobby Shields; Harold McMasters, Johnny's friend, Jimmie Day; Miss Cunningham, the school nurse, Ella Marie Judge.

The play is a comedy. You will sympathize with the efforts of the boys to escape saying declamations at school, but you will roar with laughter when the school nurse gives them a taste of their own medicine.

Come! Your presence will encourage us and we will entertain you, Friday, Oct. 20 at 11:10 a. m.

Hybrid Corn Meeting At Hebron, Oct. 12

Twenty-five different hybrid corn varieties grown in carefully planted plots on the farm of Charles Riley of Hebron, will be harvested, weighed and judged for quality in a result demonstration meeting on this Thursday, October 12th, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

The purpose of the demonstration is to find those varieties of hybrid corn that yield best under Boone county conditions. The harvesting of the corn will begin at 8:30 a. m., Central Time.

Mr. Riley, who is County Attorney, extends an invitation to everyone interested in this work to attend this meeting and, if possible, to assist in harvesting.

Fifteen hybrid varieties grown on the farm of L. R. Vice of near Woolper bridge on the commissary road, will be harvested immediately following the meeting at Mr. Riley's.

Insectary Committee To Meet October 25

Fruit growers of Boone, Kenton and Campbell counties will meet at the farm of Bert W. Scott of near Crescent Springs on Wednesday, October 25th to make plans for the location of an insectary.

The purpose of the insectary is to collect information as to the time injourious insects and diease are emerging and to advise fruit growers when and what to spray for control of these particular insects.

Growers of the cooperating counties must supply approximately $50 for the purchasing of necessary equipment before the insectary can be secured. At least fifty growers in the three counties will be interested in this service, making an average donation or membership fee of approximately $1.00 each.

The insectary will be available to growers for a number of years, once it is established and the necessary equipment is secured. The Extension Service of the College of Agriculture and the State Horticultural Society will cooperate in rendering service to the project after it is established.

FOUR GENERATION DRESS: Patti Dale Schrull, 3½ years old, is shown wearing her 84-year-old great grandmother's party dress. The original dress, purchased at Arnold Constable & Co., New York's oldest department store, for great grandmother Johnson in 1855, was made with basque and overdress of printed pongee with velvet trimming. In 1897 the dress was remade in Kate Greeneway style for Patti's grandmother (extreme right) who was then 6. In 1917 her mother (extreme left), then 4 years old, wore the dress, untrimmed, with a little jacket. Now little Patti wears the same dress, its colors undimmed and lovely as ever.

Anniversary Of Extension Work To Be Celebrated November 3rd

Boone county farm people will celebrate the 25th Anniversary of Agricultural and Home Economics Extension Work in the county with a banquet at Burlington's new school building on Friday evening, November 3rd, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

Boone is one of the 25 counties in Kentucky that has the honor of carrying on twenty-five years of extension work since the inauguration of the Federal Smith-Lever Act in 1914. There have been many changes in both extension and farm and home practices during the past 25 years. These practices will be reviewed briefly in the banquet program.

Invitations have been extended to all farm people to attend this celebration. The banquet dinner will be served by the Burlington P. T. A. at a cost of fifty cents per plate.

The committee in charge of plans consists of Mrs. George Kottmyer, Mrs. Sam B. Sleet, Mrs. Walter Ferguson, Mrs. Rod P. Hughes, E. J. Aylor, Mark Cook, H. E. White, John E. Crigler and A. B. Renaker. They will be assisted by the various agricultural and home economics clubs and leaders in the county.

The program is as follows:

Toastmaster, A. B. Renaker, Invocation, Rev. Will Smith; Special music; Community singing; Sketches of Extension progress and development from 1914 to 1939 will be given in the following order, 1914-1919, Edgar Riley; 1919-1924, Frank H. House; 1924-1929, E. J. Aylor; 1929-1934, Mark Cook; 1934-1939, John Crigler, Mrs. J. F. Cleek and Grant Maddox; Looking Ahead, T. Bryant; Music.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEETS

Circle two of the Walton Methodist Missionary society met Tuesday evening with Mrs. Bruce Wallace.

Those taking part in the program, which was a most interesting one, were Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. Roland Glenn, Mrs. C. O. Carlisle, Miss Emma Jane Miller, Mrs. Clifford Pruett, Mrs. Mary Stephenson, Mrs. Ray Jones, Mrs. Nancy Cooper, Mrs. Muriel Wines, Mrs. Sam Hudson, Mrs. J. H. Talley and Mrs. Scott Lancaster.

New Scout Master For Walton Troop

Even though Rev. J. M. Ervin has resigned as scout master of the Walton troop, activities will be carried on as usual. At the Gunpowder District meeting on October 17th, Lawrence Kendall was asked to take charge as Scout Master of Troop 99, Walton.

The troop is reorganizing for the new year in scouting, which began October 1st. All boys 12 years old and older are urged to join the scouts—for good clean fun and to learn of outdoor life. All parents and committee members are urged to visit the troop meetings which are held each Friday evening in the Walton Christian church at 7:00.

P. T. A. HALLOWEEN PARTY TUESDAY

The Walton P. T. A. will sponsor their annual Halloween party at the Walton gymnasium on Tuesday evening, October 31st. Prizes will be given to both children and adults. Sandwiches, soft drinks, ice cream, popcorn, and homemade candy will be on sale. There will be a fish pond for the kiddies.

The door will be opened at 6:30 p. m., and the admission will be 5c for those masked and 10c for those not masked. Everybody is welcome! Come, bring your friends, and boost the P. T. A.!

FOOD SHOW - COOKING SCHOOL IN COVINGTON

At the Kenton Tobacco Warehouse in Covington, the food show sponsored by the Northern Kentucky Independent Food dealers, which opened Monday, is attracting large crowds.

A cooking school is held each day at 1:30 p. m., with Mrs. Marsha Wheeler in charge. A free social is held every day at 3 o'clock.

The floor show entertainment is changed every evening. More than 60 booths are artistically decorated as well as the front of the warehouse. Sylvester Wagner is publicity director. See ad on page 8.

EWBANK SHEEP WIN AT N. J. STATE FAIR

The Ewbank Southdown sheep flock of Warsaw, returned home this week from Trenton, New Jersey where they won outstanding honors at the New Jersey State Fair, winning all seven "firsts" and both "champions" at this large Eastern State Fair.

The Ewbank Southdown flock competed against the strongest competition this year from the best flocks in the United States and Canada. During the past ten weeks they have won a total of 137 premiums at Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and New Jersey State Fairs, and other large fairs in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Musical Comedy At Verona, Friday

"Miss Blue Bonnett," (copyrighted by Wayne P. Sewell), a musical comedy to be given at the Verona school auditorium, Friday evening, October 27th, promises to be quite a hit.

Dr. and Mrs. Evans have an old maid daughter on their hands, whom they wish to marry off to Burton Hills, a famous singer. Mrs. Evans invites Miss Blue Bonnet (a psychologist) to visit them and help their daughter Magnolia catch Burton Hills. Miss Blue Bonnet comes and finds herself face to face with a distressing situation.

You'll enjoy this riotous comedy with its pretty girls, dancing in attractive costumes and singing catchy songs.

The cast includes the following: Bob Orr, Mattie Orr, Helen Chipman, Bob Gordon, Joe Rouse, Ann Baker, Mabel Kinman, Gertrude Brewster, Marie Chapman, Eva Mae Cleek, Bee Dizard, Sib Gordon, Ira Harris and "Hard Luck" McClure.

The curtain rises at 7:30 on the best show of the season Admission is 15 and 25 cents.

"Miss Blue Bonnet" is directed by Ann Baker and is sponsored by the Verona P. T. A. for benefit of the lunchroom.

P. T. A. TO HAVE GENERAL AUCTION

The Walton P. T. A. is sponsoring a general auction sale Saturday, November 4th at 1:00 p. m. If you have any article such as dishes, pictures, clothing, furniture, etc. that you would like to donate to this sale, please bring them to the Walton gym, or call Walton 137, 108, 161 or 167.

No Hunting Near CCC Camp, Asked

An urgent request that hunters refrain from hunting within rifle range of the CCC camp at Walton, was made today by Ward T. Darnell, camp superintendent.

Every possible precaution is being taken by the staff to protect CCC enrollees during the hunting season, but the cooperation of all hunters is needed, Mr. Darnell said. The camp superintendent pointed out that signs have been posted within one-half mile of the camp boundaries and work projects, and that enrollees have been supplied with colored head bands and head tassels to wear in hunting areas.

"There were no deaths of CCC enrollees caused by hunters last year, and we feel that the small number of accidents caused by hunting in previous years is due to the splendid cooperation given by the hunters themselves," Mr. Darnell said.

MASONS TO MEET

The Walton Masonic lodge will hold its regular monthly meeting, in the lodge room, Thursday evening, October 26 at 7:30 p. m. All members are urged to attend.

KEEP YOUR RED CROSS READY

THIS striking painting of a Red Cross nurse keeping the symbol of mercy flying is the keynote of the 1939 appeal for membership in the American Red Cross. Faced with the need for strengthening daily Red Cross services in 3,700 Chapters, and with its chartered obligation to aid in some measure in meeting the distress of the men, women and children refugees in war-torn countries across the sea, the Red Cross asks every man and woman in the nation, able to do so, to join as a member this year and support America's official voluntary relief agency.

The roll call for members will be held November 11 to 30—Join through your local Chapter. Help your Red Cross help others by becoming one of the millions who will add their names to the roll of mercy.

Basketball Season To Open Soon

The basketball season in Boone county is just around the corner. Schools in this county play no football, thus basketball is ushered in one or two months ahead of some of the larger schools.

Over at New Haven, Coach Ralph Maurer has been busy with his Tigers for some time. Twenty-three men reported for practice, and from this group he expects to have a first class aggregation, by the time the season gets well under way. He has only two men from last year's squad, but some husky lads are on hand for the replacement positions—and the Tigers are expected to offer plenty of opposition to other Boone County Conference teams. The Tiger schedule will be found on page eight.

Here at Walton, Coach Shields has been toiling with about twenty boys, whipping them in shape for the coming campaign. The Bearcats, like New Haven, have only two men left over from last season, DeShia McElroy and Charles Ransler.

The greatest handicap for this edition of the Cats will be size and possibly lack of experience. The boys are fast and know how to play basketball, but some of the big boys on opposing teams may cause them plenty of trouble.

The Bearcat schedule is a tough one, but Coach Shields, as well as the boys, are optomistic and the Blue and White will, no doubt, make a good showing.

FLORENCE MEN IN BALLET DANCE

Eight young men of Florence are to take parts as little "Butterflies" in a ballet included in "Oh Professor."

Don't miss the hilarious comedy, "Oh Professor" to be given Friday evening, October 27th at 8:00 p. m., Eastern Standard Time, in the High School gymnasium at Florence. This production is sponsored by the P. T. A. of the Florence [illegible]

C. W. PICKETT

Services for Clarence W. Pickett, 63, employee of the Kenton County Road Department, who was found dead in bed Monday at his home on Moffet Road, near Atwood, were held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the Swindler funeral home, Independence. Burial was in the Independence cemetery.

Dr. James P. Riffe, Kenton County Coroner, said Pickett was found by Amos Lawson, another county employee, when he called to take Pickett to work. Death was due to a heart attack.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Irene Pickett; two daughters, Miss Marjorie Pickett and Mrs. Virginia Meyers of Florence; two sons, Foster Pickett of Florence, and Trent Pickett of Erlanger; a brother, J. L. Pickett of Kenton county, and two sisters, Mrs. E. F. Wolfe of Erlanger and Miss Inez Pickett of Louisville.

FREE TURKEYS AT SHOE SHOP

The Quality Sample Shoe Shop of 627 and 805 Madison avenue, Covington, is planning to give away 4 turkeys, as has been their custom for several years, at Thanksgiving time.

Harry W. Hamilton Dies In Danville, Ky.

Dr. Harry W. Hamilton of Verona, passed away Sunday, Oct. 22 at Boyer Hospital, Danville, Ky. He, with his wife and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hamilton had gone to Danville that day to visit his nephew, Robert Hamilton, a student at Centre College. While there he was stricken with apoplexy and removed to the above hospital where he died a short time afterwards.

Dr. Hamilton was born at Verona on January 15, 1887. He graduated from the League Institute at Verona in 1904, and in 1908 was graduated from the Ohio Dental College. He then went to Chicago, where he practiced dentistry for 27 years. He was a member of the American Dental Association, and also the Chicago Dental Society. In May of this year he retired from his profession, and he and his wife returned to Verona, where they were making their home. Dr. Hamilton was well known in this section and had many warm friends, who were shocked and saddened to hear of his sudden demise.

He is survived by his wife, Edna B. Hamilton; one brother, J. L. Hamilton of Verona; two nephews, Fred H. Hamilton of Indianapolis, Ind., and Robert W. Hamilton of Danville.

Funeral services were conducted from the Hamilton Funeral Home at Verona, Tuesday, October 24th at 2 p. m., C.S.T. by the Rev. A. K. Johnson of Walton. Burial was in New Bethel Cemetery, Verona.

4-H Achievement Day To Be Broadcast

A broadcast of some of the highlights of the State and National 4-H Achievement Day will be heard over Station WHAS, Saturday, Nov. 4th from 12:00 to 12:30 p. m., according to H. B. Drake, Assistant County Agent.

Since this is the 25th Anniversary of Extension work, the program will be a brief review of some of the outstanding achievements in the 4-H program during the past 25 years.

Nine Boone county clubs are planning achievement meetings at an early date. The Hamilton club held their meeting in connection with their free fair. Meetings to be held are:

Verona, October 30, 1:00 p. m.
Burlington, Oct. 30, 9:15 a. m.
Walton, October 30, 2:15 p. m.
Grant, November 6, 8:15 a. m.
Florence, Nov. 6, 11:45 a. m.
New Haven, Nov. 6, 1:30 p. m.
Taylorsport, Nov. 6, 7:00 p. m.
Hebron, November 8, 9:50 a. m.

The date for the Petersburg meeting has not been arranged.

Each of these clubs is expecting 100% of their members to have completed projects at this time.

All members completing projects will be awarded achievement certificates by the County and State Club Department.

BAPTIST W. M. S. ENTERTAINED

556 Farmers Qualify For 1938 Honor Roll

Five hundred and sixty-six out of 1162 farmers cooperating under the 1938 Agricultural Conservation Program earned 100% of their soil-building allowances and qualified for last year's honor roll for farmers carrying out soil-building practices, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. This number is expected to be increased for 1939.

Goals for each farm are set up under the program. The goals in most instances are set up so that farmers carry out more soil-building practices than normally in order to qualify on the honor roll. Last year 307 of these farmers used limestone and 396 of these farmers used phosphate on soil-building practices.

Farmers have until next Wednesday, Nov. 1 to carry out sufficient soil-building practices to [illegible] for the 1939 honor roll. [illegible]

American Education Week—

"Hurry up, Mother and Daddy, or you will be late to school!"

Such scenes of children and parents flushed with excitement will be found in millions of American homes during the week of November 5 to 11, for that's American Education Week, and 10,000,000 Mothers and Dads will put on their best behavior and go to school.

During American Education Week parents will see their sons and daughters at work in the classroom, meet their children's teachers, and get a good idea of how their school is run. One of the main objectives of this custom is to increase public understanding and appreciation of the nation's schools by encouraging every parent to visit his child's school at least once annually.

Founded in 1921, American Education Week grew out of conditions revealed by the first World War draft. Twenty-five percent of the men examined in this country were found to be illiterate, and twenty-nine percent were physically unfit for the army. Wishing to help correct these conditions since illiterate and misfit persons aid the country no more in peace than in war, the American Legion started a campaign in conjunction with the National Education Association, the United States Office of Education, and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers to actively impress the value of education on the public. From this campaign grew the American Education Week, occuring annually during the week which includes Armistice Day.

A vital annual period of interpretation of education for the nation's schools, this Week is a time when American schools report to the people in concert. These activities, over a period of 17 years, have resulted in better schools. Observance of the event is usually accompanied by open house programs, entertainments by the schools, and meetings of civic and social clubs and church groups devoted to consideration of the schools.

Using the theme, "Education for the American Way of Life," daily topics dealing with the purposes of education in American democracy, education for self-realization, human relationships, economic efficiency, civic responsibility, and freedom, will be featured in most schools from Sunday till Saturday.

Youth of Today—

Out of the first World War came the Age of Youth's Disillusion, the era when bizarre behavior was smart. The twenties was the decade of the flapper, jazz, the cookey pusher and the drug store cowboy. Short skirts, prohibition drinking, late dates and automobile joy rides, caused Viewers with Alarm to shake their heads in the firm belief that the younger generation would come to no good.

A decade has passed since the post-war twenties. Another generation of youth is growing up, and it is entirely possible that the horror of another world-wide war is in its first stages.

If this possibility becomes reality, the time will come when all of us must pick up the pieces and examine the results of this war. But before that time it is interesting to look at the youth of today who will have to face them.

It is a reassuring picture. The youth of today is pretty level headed, pretty evenly balanced, and its excesses, whatever they may be, are certainly not the obvious and old fashioned vices that lead to damnation.

A recent survey of American youth showed alcohol to be the least important of its beverages. Tea, on the other hand, is among the most popular. It is not an uncommon sight to see a New York debutante enjoying herself in a night club with nothing stronger than a pot of hot tea. And the dances she likes best are the waltz and the polka. Youth of today lacks false modesty and has substituted in its place self-reliance and an appreciation of bodily health. Tennis and swimming followed by a piece of cake and a glass of milk or iced tea are much more important than a half dozen martinis and a headache before dinner.

Youth likes the movies. It thinks Tyrone Power is wonderful. It can still have fun with a bicycle or a pair of roller skates, and its boys and girls have a frankness which may be startling at first but evidences a forthrightness and self-assurance that was lacking in 1914.

No one can predict what the new few years will bring. The outlook is not a bright one. But is the problems to be faced at the end of this war are comparable at all with those of the last, let us thank God for the youth we have ready and waiting to face them.

1,000,000 Bureaucrats—

As the New York Times observes, "Though we have got used to the spectacle of enormous government spending and to some remarkable comparisons as a result, it is none the less rather startling to learn that on June 30, last, there were 920,310 civil employes on the Federal government's payroll—2,550 more even than at the World War peak of November 11, 1918."

This is one more reason why about 25 cents out of every dollar we earn goes directly or indirectly into the insatiable maw of government. Our entrance into the World War caused the number of government workers—entirely aside from those in the military forces—to be doubled. By 1923, the number of employs had dropped almost to the pre-war level. Then a slow rise set in, which became a fast rise in 1933. There were 583,000 government tax-eaters in 1934—and 719,400 in 1935. And where 824,259 workers lived at the expense of the rest of us in 1936, some 920,310 eat at a tax-supported table today.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5582 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

In these days when almost everyone is ready to criticize our officials I am reminded of the criticism Henry Clay, the great Kentucky statesman, had to meet when he was running for re-election to Congress. He had heard that one of his good friends and constitutents had told his neighbors that he would not vote for Mr. Clay any more, as he had not voted to suit him on certain issues. Mr. Clay made a special visit to see his friend. He had to go to the woods where he found the man squirrel hunting, with his favorite fun. After passing the usual pleasantries of the day, Mr. Clay said: "I understand you refuse to vote for me because I did not vote to suit you on certain measures in Congress." Mr. Voter said, "Yes sir, that is what I said." Mr. Clay said, "Let us reason this matter out. I see you have a good looking gun."

Mr. Voter said, "Yes sir, it is the best gun in this district or the state of Kentucky." Mr. Clay said, "Did your gun ever snap on you or fail to shoot?" Mr. Voter said, "Yes, I am sorry to say sometimes it fails." Mr. Clay, "Do you throw your gun away, or discard it for failure?"

"No sir, I think it is too good and valuable to throw t away for an occasional misfire. I recap it and give it another trial," said Mr. Voter. Mr. Clay, "I may have made a mistake in Congress, but I want you to treat me as you do your gun. Recap me by giving me your viewpoint and give me another trial to redeem myself." Mr. Voter, "I see your viewpoint and will forgive you for your mistake, and will be your friend from now on."

This man not only voted for Mr. Clay for Congress but voted three times for him for president. The same thing happened to Mr. Bryan, but they went down in defeat as two of the greatest men of their age, and were loyal to their friends and convictions to the end. Both of them are referred to as two of our greatest statesmen, as both of them served in Congress, and were called commoners.

IT'S ABOUT TIME!

NEWS ITEM: Communists to be ousted from Government jobs.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

Washington always tries to keep in season, and this is the season for football. Washington's backfield appropriately is using football tactics to confuse the opposition.

In politics as in football, certain maxims are accepted. One is: "Razzle-Dazzle in the backfield gets the other fellow's eye off the ball." Another is the old favorite: "A good offense is the best defense."

Just to show how the razzle-dazzle is working, here's a sample:

Benjamin Gitlow, former secretary, Earl Browder, present kingpin of the Communist party, and a number of other witnesses told the Dies committee that certain organizations were "fronts" for the Communists or outlets for radical propaganda. Among those enumerated was the American League for Peace and Democracy.

Now the League, without specifically denying these accusations, comes back with another. It accuses the Dies committee of using illegal methods to get its membership list.

But there are more important trick plays being tried than that. It happens that the United States is interested in what happens abroad. Through the newspapers, American citizens have their eyes on Europe. And while they are watching the other team line up, a couple of opposition ends and backs sneak off towards the side-lines and lie down on the ground. That trick may be old in football, but it's still good in politics.

And here's the way it's working now:

Congress has put aside everything for the special session but neutrality. That means that it is not worrying with other things which the public wants, like amendments to various experimental laws. Meanwhile, the boys who are out near the sidelines, like Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold, are trying the sneak play.

Arnold has made a number of speeches around the country advocating new and drastic laws which he would like to have. Ordinarily, his remarks would get newspaper publicity and reaction from thousands of newspaper readers. But now he goes on the inside pages, and the only people who know anything about his plans are the friendly ones to whom he talks.

At the same time, many, many things are being put into legislative shape for presentation to Congress and the nation as steps necessary for national defense. There is even talk about reviving the NRA on the ground that government controls must be set up to protect the nation.

Unless Americans are able to see through the razzle-dazzle, a lot of things are going to happen to them rather unexpectedly. With business improving, new steps could be taken toward balancing the budget and restoring financial sanity. But war news takes the front page, so few people know that Federal expenditures this year will set a new peacetime high—more than nine and a half billion dollars. That will mean an eighth consecutive year of deficits.

Another fast play contemplated by the boys on the wings is that of getting the present federal debt limit upped from $45 billion to some high astronomical figure. And of course they are hard at work on ways to raise more tax money for a paternalistic government.

The truth of the situation is that the planners were just about to be taken out of the game because the public was tiring of their tricks. The people wanted a little straight football for a change. But now Europe occupies public attention, the tricksters are still in the line-up, and they feel that they can put over what they want to.

The result will depend upon whether the razzle-dazzle trick of transferring American interest from domestic issues to European war is successful.

Rumors of hog cholera outbreaks caused Carroll county farmers to resort to vaccination.

News and Views on Air Personalities

BASEBALL history was made again recently when Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, high commissioner of the sport, officials of a broadcasting system and the Gillette Safety Razor Company, signed the contract which awards exclusive rights for broadcasting the 1939 World Series to the Boston firm. The price, though not stated, will be placed in the regular World Series pool to be shared by the players. In 1934, when the rights to broadcast were sold to a motor magnate, Judge Landis fixed the money at $100,000.

THE everlasting search for oddities may be marked by oddities. Take the experience of John Hix, whose Strange As It Seems show is aired every Thursday evening over CBS. Once driven to desperation in search for a rare oddity, Hix illustrated (for his newspaper feature) the story of a pigeon that, having lost its feathers in a hurricane, was unable to fly and purportedly got calloused feet in walking league upon league to its home loft. As a story, it was good; but as a fact, belated investigation showed it could not be substantiated. Now, Hix spares neither time, effort, nor money in double checking every oddity that comes to his attention.

MEREDITH WILLSON is commissioning ten of the nation's outstanding song-writers to compose ten original numbers because he's convinced that American popular composers have lacked the impetus, not the necessary ability, to write classical music. The original numbers will be introduced in Willson's weekly Concert Hall feature of the Good News of 1940 radio program, which resumes its weekly broadcast schedule on Thursday, September 7. Ferde Grofe, Peter De Rose, Dana Suesse, Vernon Duke and Morton Gould have already been asked to contribute one original classic each, with five other composers yet to be announced.

CORN—II

Some of the traditions associated with corn are passing away, especially in those areas where corn is grown on a large scale and cultivated by elaborate machinery. Husking bees of the old sort are passed but I rejoice to read every fall that a corn-husking contest is held here and there, even with a national championship as an inducement. The old husking bee was a social event, bringing together the neighbors, young and old, and spiced with cider and love-making. In spite of the scarcity of husking bees in our time, every one still knows the reward of finding a red ear. Schoolcraft, in his books on Indian life, found this custom traditional among the Indians in all parts of the country.

Home-made hominy is, like the old gray mare, hardly what is used to be. It is so much easier to buy hominy in cans that few people take the trouble to make it. It is also true that the old ash-hopper has fallen down. Home-made hominy may come to be unknown, the making of it one of the numerous lost arts. Last spring I stopped at the home of a friend of mine who still keeps a contact with the past. He took me out into his back yard and showed me a small ash-hopper that he had made especially to scure lye for hominy. I regretted that I could not stay with him long enough to see the grains soaked in the lye and then boiled for hours to perform the magic by which hard grains of corn become fluffy, snow-white hominy.

The old water mill has about disappeared, too; so that going to mill is a lost joy to boys and men in many parts of the country. In the mountain counties there remain a few of these ancient mills, picturesque enough to be enshrined in great art. Every time I travel into the mountains, I see some man or boy going to mill with a turn of corn laid across a horse, and forthwith I become jealous of him for being able to function in such a quaint and ancient custom. Several years ago I ran into a small water mill in Mississippi that had preserved the very flavor of the ancient times. I have since learned that this small mill, turned by the water that fell only four or five feet over a crude dam, had been "doing business at the same old stand," out in an almost unbroken pine forest, for nearly a hundred years. Just a small shed over the mill proper, a lever to life the water gate, the minimum of machinery, but it was the essence of the old water mill of song and story.

Since more than half of our population now live in towns and cities, a large portion of Americans may grow up without knowing the distinctions between plain corn hoecake and egg bread, between muffins and pan bread. It is doubtful whether a large number will ever know the flavor of potlicker and hoecake, served together. Corn meal has the strange quality of being excellent food, whether it is cooked in the most primitive way, with only water and salt added, or in the most home-economics-approved way.

Corn, how poetic is its every phase, from the planting in the spring to the harvest in the fall, from the juicy roasting ears to the cornbread or hominy!

TOBACCO KEEPS LEAD IN STATE'S CO-OP MARKETING

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 25—In dollar value and association membership the marketing of tobacco continues to be Kentucky's leading cooperative activity, according to John E. Brown, president of the Louisville Bank of Cooperatives.

Based on the most recent survey conducted by the Farm Credit Administration, Brown reports that more than 37,000 Kentucky tobacco planters elected to send their tobacco to market by the cooperative route. Their 32,000,000 pounds brought $8,500,000, slightly more than half the total business done by all cooperative associations in Kentucky during the year.

For second place in importance livestock holds a lead over dairying, with fruits and vegetables coming next.

Although marketing farm products constitutes about 99 percent of the cooperative activity in the state, Kentucky farmers have made progress in the cooperative purchasing of supplies used in producing their crops.

Twenty-three Fleming county farmers sowed vetch as a green manure crop. Others seeded Italian rye grass as a cover crop.

Social Security News

Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of questions and answers relative to the amended Social Security Act. Any one having questions concerning this subject should address them to Frank B. Decker, Jr., Manager of the Social Security Board field office in Covington, Ky.

Question— Do the amendments make any difference in the way monthly old-age insurance benefits are calculated?

Answer— Benefits will now be figured on the average monthly wage of a worker instead of the total wages he has earned.

Question Will there be any changes in the way employers make their tax returns?

Answer— No. Employers will continue to send to the collector of internal revenue their tax returns along with the detailed statement of the wages earned by each of their employees, and the Board's Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance will continue to record these earnings on the individual ledger sheets of the millions of workers for whom accounts are established.

Question— How is the "average monthly wage" determined?

Answer— An individual's total wages, in jobs covered by the system up to the quarter in which he died or became entitled to receive his retirement benefit, is divided by the total number of months from 1936 up to that quarter.

Question— What would be the average monthly wage of a man who will be 65 years old in January, 1947, if he has been steadily employed and has earned $1,200 a year for 10 years?

Answer— Forty quarters will have elapsed between Jan. 1, 1937 and the time this man reaches age 65 and retires. His wage for the 40 quarters total $12,000. His average monthly wage will be $12,000 divided by 120 months, or $100.

Question— What is the new formula for calculating monthly benefits?

Answer— The insured worker will receive as a basic benefit 40 percent of the first $50 of his average monthly earnings in covered employment, plus 10 percent of his average wage over $50 and up to $250 a month. He also will receive an additional 1 percent of his basic benefit for each year in which he has earned at least $200 in covered employment.

Question— As an example, suppose a man has been receiving an average monthly wage of $100 since the beginning of 1937 and chooses to retire when he reaches the age of 65 at the beginning of 1940. What would his monthly benefit amount to?

Answer—He would receive $25.75 a month—40 percent of $50, or $20; plus 10 percent of the remaining $50 or $5; plus 3 percent of the basic benefits of $25, or .75, making a total of $25.75.

Question— Suppose this man is married and his wife is at least 65 years of age?

Answer— In that case, his wife would be entitled to a benefit equal to one-half of her husband's benefit, or $12.87, making a total monthly payment to the old couple of $38.62.

Another set of questions and answers will appear in an early issue of this paper.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL

LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for October 29

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

BEVERAGE ALCOHOL AND SOCIAL PROGRESS

LESSON TEXT—Micah 2:9-11; Luke 21:29-31, 34-36; I Corinthians 6:9-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God?—I Corinthians 6:9.

"International Temperance Sunday—October 29, 1939." Let us join with people the world over in making our protest against the sale and use of intoxicating liquors. If every Christian would declare himself on this matter now, there would be a tremendous impact made on this universal problem and notice would be served on the liquor industry, on politicians, and on unbelieving mankind that Christianity intends to do something about it. We are far too docile and quiet on such matters, when we ought to speak up for God and for our country.

The lesson portions may seem a little unrelated, but study of them yields three important truths regarding the use of wine and strong drink.

I. Lovers of Wine and Strong Drink Destroy Their Nation (Mic. 2:9-11).

That statement may surprise some of our self-styled patriots who like to wave the flag and speak swelling words of devotion to our country and who at the same time love their intoxicating drinks. Micah rightly points out that his people had come to the place where they chose men to be prophets because they encouraged the people in the use of wine and strong drinks (v. 11). They must therefore expect the result which follows, namely, the destruction of the home and of the nation (vv. 9, 10).

We are all familiar with the claim that prohibition retarded the advancement of our nation and that its repeal would bring a return to higher moral standards, reduce crime, bring in prosperity, etc. The facts reveal that none of these have come true. Crime has increased by leaps and bounds under repeal, a situation so well known as to call for no proof. Moral standards have gone rapidly downward with the free use of liquor. If you don't believe that, ask a policeman what goes on in our taverns, or just keep your eyes half open and you can see for yourself.

Just now much is being made of the many jobs which are supposed to have been created by the liquor industry. What are the facts? The Christian Herald tells us, "A million dollars spent for furniture would employ 339 persons, spent for boots and shoes 336 persons, for home furnishings 191 persons, for booze just 95 persons." And remember that jobs making the stuff that destroys other jobs, are not worth having. The man who drinks is helping to destroy his nation.

II. Christians Do Not Drink, Because They Look for Christ's Return (Luke 21:29-31, 34-36).

If we are not "looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ" (Titus 2:13), we should consider whether any of the things mentioned in these verses have gained control in our lives: the cares of this life, surfeiting, or drunkenness. But why speak to Christians about that? Surely they do not use intoxicants. Sadly enough, some do. Taking advantage of the fact that the Bible speaks of temperance rather than of abstinence, they seek to justify an indulgence in these things, which they (and their neighbors) know is dishonoring to God and destructive of their testimony and usefulness in the community.

Christian, Jesus is coming again! He may come today! In fact, the fig tree (vv. 29, 30), which is the nation Israel, has long been shooting forth new branches and bearing green leaves. The indications are that Christ is coming soon. Are you ready to meet Him?

III. Drunkards and Other Sinners Need to be Saved (I Cor. 6:9-11).

Being drunk is not a joke, even though thoughtless people laugh and cartoonists and writers of jokes use such unfortunates as their stock in trade. Drunkenness is a foul and sinful thing, classed by the apostle Paul with the lowest of human vices. Review the list as it is given in verses 9 and 10 (and by the way, notice that covetousness is mentioned there too) and place drunkenness in its proper classification. Call it what it really is—sin, and then call on the One who can save from sin and then you will be washed from your sin, sanctified, and justified in the name of the Lord Jesus (v. 11). In Christ there is hope for the drunkard. A spiritual revival is the real answer to the liquor problem. Let us seek to promote it even as we at the same time give ourselves to an intelligent and constructive battle against this destructive force in the life of our nation.

THE USE OF ASSIGNMENT FORMS

Final date for filing form ACP-69 under the 1939 Agriculture Conservation Program is Oct. 31st.

According to the State Office farmers who desire to use the above assignment form in connection with carrying out their soil building practices this fall must do so not later than October 31.

The following is quoted from a letter received during the past week:

"No assignment of payments under the 1939 Agricultural Conservation Program will be recognized by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration unless Part I of Form ACP-69, on which such assignment is made, is executed and filed in the office of the County Agricultural Conservation Association on or before October 31, 1939."

Farmers who plan to use the assignment form in paying for agricultural limestone to use before the close of the Program year, October 31, 1939, should call with the assignee at the County Office to complete form ACP-69, according to regulations.

This procedure is only necessary where assignment of payments is made to pay for material such as lime or grass seed used in carrying out soil building practices to earn allowance under the 1939 Agricultural Conservation Program.

Protect Property By Needed Repairs

"Repairs to protect the property, to keep the house sound and weather-tight, come first," says Earl G. Welch, Extension Agricultural Engineer for the Kentucky College of Agriculture. "Then consider the repairs and improvements that are desirable and convenient but that can wait without injury to the building."

It is a good plan, says Mr. Welch, to make a systematic inspection of the home at least once a year.

In the first list of "urgent" needs, put the repairs that will stop deterioration. First, the roof. Are there any leaks? Any broken shingles? Flashing pulled loose? Sometimes a house settles a little. This may show around the chimney. Chinks must be filled up with mortar or roofing cement and flashing nailed tightly in place. On the outside walls, a few nails will tighten loose siding and prevent serious damage. Gutters and down-spouts will last longer if they are cleaned and painted.

Next, the foundations of the house Bricks may be loosened or timbers rotted. Repairs to the foundation are important and cannot be allowed to wait. Window frames can be made firm, solid, and rainproof. Outside steps are often weather-rotted but are easily repaired.

Outside painting is one of the maintenance jobs that give considerable weather protection as well as improvement in appearance. Wood trim on door frames, window frames, porch floors and roofs require painting. Interior improvements can go over until these essential repairs are taken care of.

KENTUCKY
DEMOCRATS
Let's Show The Nation
We are Proud of and Appreciate the Record of Achievement Made By Our STATE AND NATIONAL ADMINISTRATION

THE FORGOTTEN MAN during the last few years has come into his own, with the New Deal's Social Security program working in his behalf, WPA, PWA, the CCC, Old-Age Assistance and other agencies are DEMOCRATIC in origin and the Republican Party has never put forward anything to take their place, altho criticizing and seeking to curtail or eliminate these governmental relief organizations.

THE FARMER, through the Agricultural Adjustment programs, has been greatly aided, his income materially increased, in many instances his farm saved by the DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL ADMINISTRATION.

THE LABORING MAN has won recognition of his honorable contribution to the nation's welfare during the DEMOCRATIC administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt as never before. Hours and wages have been regulated for the benefit of the Laborer, Job Insurance has come about, the right to bargain with employers is guaranteed and Labor's cause greatly advanced.

BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY have been safeguarded and regulated by the DEMOCRATIC administration at Washington. Wall street has been regulated for the protection of small investors.

BANK DEPOSITS have been INSURED by the DEMOCRATIC national administration and essential industries have been aided by government loans during this DEMOCRATIC national administration.

KENTUCKY HAS MADE MORE PROGRESS during the last DEMOCRATIC STATE ADMINISTRATION than in the previous generation and a half. The State Debt of more than $28,000,000 has been reduced to $6,000,000 during the present STATE DEMOCRATIC ADMINISTRATION.

KENTUCKY HAS A BALANCED BUDGET and is living within her income, a great accomplishment of the present DEMOCRATIC STATE ADMINISTRATION, at a time when governmental units everywhere are staggering under huge debts and the people of other states and nations are heavily burdened by taxes.

KENTUCKY'S SCHOOL CHILDREN are receiving the highest per capita allotment in the history of the State under this DEMOCRATIC ADMINISTRATION.

COMPLETE REHABILITATION of the State's penal and charitable institutions has been undertaken under this DEMOCRATIC STATE ADMINISTRATION and Kentucky will rank first among the states in caring for her unfortunate citizens when this program is completed under another Democratic administration.

KENTUCKY HAS COME A LONG WAY forward under DEMOCRATIC administration in recent years. The progress thus begun should be continued and this can be guaranteed only by a continuation of DEMOCRATIC control of the State's affairs.

FAR FROM OFFERING SOMETHING BETTER than the accomplishments which have come ot the Nation and Kentucky under DEMOCRATIC ADMINISTRATIONS, the REPUBLICAN party, in State and Nation, has not presented any program for meeting the great needs and emergencies of the hour and has "ONLY A STARK AND NAKED POLITICAL APPETITE" as its excuse for asking political preference in Kentucky this year.

THE EYES OF THE NATION are upon Kentucky and the result of the election Tuesday, November 7th will have great influence upon the Presidential election in 1940.

CONCORD

"Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall be called the children of God."

Miss Nora Cole of Cincinnati, spent the weekend at Ross Chapman's and attended church at Concord.

Rev. Snyder, wife and son, and three children from the Louisville Baptist Orphans Home, were at church Sunday here. Rev. Snyder brought us a good message and the children quoted scripture, so much of it that we know they are taught in the right way. Miss Ella Roberts has taken a boy 13 years of age to care for, and we will have him in Sunday School each Sunday.

Mrs. R. M. Clements passed away Saturday afternoon at her daughter's, Mrs. J. W. Connley, in Warsaw. She was a good christian woman and a faithful member of the Concord church, where her funeral took place Monday at 1:30 o'clock. The bereaved ones have our sincere sympathy.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown were Sunday afternoon guests at Ross Chapman's.

Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Chapman, daughter Juanita and Mrs. Verle Webster visited Mrs. George Hughes on Sunday afternoon near Union. She is 85 years of age, but her health is very good.

Quite a number of relatives and friends gathered at the Allen Morris' home Sunday in honor of the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Morris, her son, and Jay Martin.

Miss Ella Roberts and Charlie Bolington entertained from church on Sunday, Rev. G. N. Smith and wife, Rev. Snyder, wife and son, and boys from The Orphans Home, Jas. Beach and family and Manford Craft and family.

Come out for Sunday School each Sunday at 10 o'clock.

(Delayed from last week)

Mr. and Mrs. D. R. DO YOU KNOW?—

—THAT KENTUCKY IS THE ONLY STATE IN THE UNION WHICH ASSESSES A WHISKY PRODUCTION TAX?

—THAT MILLIONS OF GALLONS OF WHISKY, WHICH SHOULD BE MADE IN KENTUCKY, ARE THEREFORE NOW BEING MADE IN INDIANA AND ILLINOIS?

—THAT THIS TAX IS THEREFORE KEEPING THOUSANDS OF KENTUCKY PEOPLE UNEMPLOYED, WHO WOULD OTHERWISE HAVE GOOD JOBS?

THE KENTUCKY PRODUCTION TAX IS UNSOUND BECAUSE IT DISCRIMINATES AGAINST OUR KENTUCKY INDUSTRY

Biggest Boy Star In Hollywood Is a Girl

FOR weeks David Butler, Hollywood director, sat at his desk agonizingly watching baby after baby toddle, crawl or be carried into his office. The babies cooed and cried; mothers beamed and scolded. Four hundred babies, four hundred mothers—the confusion, in Hollywood parlance, was terrific. Director Butler despaired; four hundred times he shook his head.

One morning, at the breakfast table, Mary Hamman relates in the November Good Housekeeping, Mr. Butler found beside his plate a batch of pictures. The pictures were all of one child. One look at them and the director jumped like a man possessed: "I've found him! I've got the kid! Where the Sam Hill did these pictures come from?" A frightened maid mumbled she had found the pictures under the morning milk. The search was on to locate the newfound star.

The pictures were of nine-months-old Sandra Lee Henville, known to the movie world today as just "Sandy." Sandy's father was a milkman who delivered milk to Mr. Butler's house and pride, nothing else, had prompted him to leave the pictures at the doorstep. He and Mrs. Henville had been reading about Universal's search for a baby boy to play an important part in East Side of Heaven with Bing Crosby. They knew Mr. Butler would be simply crazy about Sandra.

"SANDY"

Mr. Butler was crazy, all right, crazy with fear he wouldn't be able to track down the child. It finally dawned on him to call the milk company; the mystery was not cleared up until Mr. Henville returned from his route and found the whole plant in an uproar. A big movie director was looking for a baby. . . .

The next day Mrs. Henville and Sandra went to Universal to see Mr. Butler. Mrs. Henville was wearing a new hat, and her heart was beating fast, even though Grandma had said that no good would come of such carryings-on. Mr. Butler gave Sandra a quick once-over, smoke the air with his fist and shouted: "He's better than his pictures. He's tremendous. He's a find. What a scoop."

Then Mrs. Henville spoke. For a moment an awful silence filled the room. "He is a she," she said. Mr. Butler seemed stricken. But with magnificent fortitude he recovered quickly; a great idea was burning in his mind.

"It's no she," he shot back exultantly. "From now on it's a he. It's the best he Hollywood's ever had. Bigger than Coogan. Better than LeRoy."

Thus a star was born.

From Tree to Tree

Grove of rubber trees, which, when tipped, produces a milky, sap-like substance called latex.

To make the comfortable, streamlined Airtex Mattress, the liquid latex is beaten to a frothy, aerated foam; then poured into a mold, as shown above, and baked. At right, the finished mattress is removed from the mold, ready for covering with smart damask ticking.

MAN'S earliest home was the tree. And when he added security to strength, he came down out of the tree. Moreover as he learned to build things with which to add to his convenience, he continued to look upon the tree as "man's best friend."

He contrived shelter by combining branches over his head to shield him from the elements. He used other parts of the tree for his bed. Leaves and smaller branches became his mattress. Gradually, he encased the leaves and branches in wood to keep them intact and to add to his comfort.

We may safely call this act of his as the first known bed—a dugout place for safe resting as the name, 'bed' implies.

In the days of the Romans, the sleeping couches were stuffed with reeds, hay, wool, feathers. Man had had a taste of luxury and quickly demanded more of it. Small cushions of the same material were placed at the head and sometimes at the back. The ancient Germans covered themselves with skins. In the 15th century, pea shucks and straw replaced the reed and wool stuffings. Then came horsehair.

Came the 18th century and the feather pillows, or feather-beds became the "rage." One's gentility was based upon the number of feather beds one owned, and slept under. That also was the day of the tester and curtained bedsteads.

The days of our grandfathers brought cotton batting and coiled springs—the height of luxury and comfort. But all along man kept his eye to the tree, which was his first refuge.

Experimentation has brought about a new revolutionary thing in sleeping which is to be enjoyed by us and by our descendants. As a result of this experimenting by scientists, we'll be sleeping on air.

From a tree, a rubber tree, man has taken the milky sap, known as latex, to make a light, durable mattress which they call, "Airtex". Beating the sap to a froth, air is injected into it under pressure. Then it is baked and molded to fix the air bubbles, so the finished sleep-cushion is free-breathing and completely porous.

So from tree to tree, man has traveled to insure his sleep—which from the cost of scientific research will be a million dollars worth of

We presume that labor of all kinds is beginning to be plentiful again—which we are glad to know. Perhaps those seeking employment may be employed to help the wheels of industry turn that they may provide for themselves. The Pompadour - - - Be Victorian

WITH interest in Paris openings and Fall fashions reaching a new high, there's every prospect of an important bustle season ahead. And the first "accessory" to feel the influence of such fashion trend is the new Autumn "hair-do."

The return of the draped fullness and the nipped waists of Grandmother's day, has inspired an adaptation of the romantic and very feminine hair styles of the bustle era.

Lord & Taylor, popular New York department store, recommends the modified pompadour—upswept at the back of the head, as illustrated, with light curled puffs at the temples and forehead.

It's quite the thing, this pompadour, charming with its old fashioned simplicity, and perfect for the Mid-Victorian ruffles, which will sound out the fashion world, as it did in the days of Godey.

BIG LIVE STOCK SHOW PLANNED FOR CHICAGO

Chicago, Oct. 23—Predictions that all previous records for number of entries will be broken are made by the management of the International Live Stock Exposition for this year's show, which will be held at the Chicago Stock Yards, December 2nd to 9th.

According to B. H. Heide, secretary-manager of the exposition, the early entry is the heaviest it has ever been and more than the usual number of stockmen have made inquiries relative to listing exhibits.

More than $100,000 will be awarded to stockmen in cash prizes. The premiums will be spread over competition for 30 different breeds of cattle, horses, sheep and swine, which will total well over 12,000 head.

Entries for the purebred and individual fat stock classes of the exposition will be accepted until November 1st, and for the International Grain and Hay Show, the largest annual showing of corn, small grain, seeds and hay in the country, exhibits may be entered until November 20th.

Kentucky Politics

— By Tyler Munford —

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 25—The Democratic party in Kentucky was the recipient of two political breaks during the past week when the president of the American Federation of Labor endorsed the Keen Johnson candidacy, and the Kentucky Bankers Association adopted a resolution congratulating the people of Kentucky on the State's strong financial condition.

The Democratic gubernatorial nominee ran in the primary with the American Federation of Labor endorsement and that of its affiliate, the State A.F.L. The Green endorsement in which the A.F.L. president called "upon the officers, members and friends of the A.F.L. in Kentucky to rally to the support of Keen Johnson and to elect him Governor," while politically important to the Democrats, is actually the result of favorable legislation received by labor at the hands of the present Democratic administration.

The Kentucky Bankers Association resolution took cognizance of what many observers believe is the outstanding achievement of the Chandler administration—the reduction in the state debt.

In the 1935 senatorial primary and again this summer Kentucky voters heard a lot about the reduction in the state debt, and newspaper columnists have written thousands of words about it, but the bankers' association opinion is that of recognized experts on the question of finance.

The mere fact that the bankers' group is strictly non-political gives added prestige to this particular accomplishment. The resolution said, "We realize the excellent financial condition of the State of Kentucky with its comparatively small indebtedness. Its sound financial position is a strong foundation in a restless waring world and a matter of congratulations to our citizens."

Neutrality Bill Keeps Barkley and Chandler Away

Last summer one of the chief worries of the strategists of the opposition to Keen Johnson was the enforced absence of Senator Barkley at Washington. This fall Chairman Donaldson is finding himself confronted with the same problem.

Unless there is a quick vote on the Roosevelt neutrality bill in the Senate neither Barkley nor Chandler can return to Kentucky to take part in the campaign. Barkley as majority leader and Chandler as a strong supporter of the President's legislation are needed at Washington. Both want to return to take part in the speaking campaign, but their presence in the State will depend wholly on how fast the Senate disposes of the neutrality question.

Johnson Calls Swope's Hand; Offers to Quit Campaigning

Judge King Swope, the G.O.P. nominee, got his hand called sharply Saturday at Cynthiana when Gov. Keen Johnson challenged him "to stop making political speeches and return to his judicial work in Fayette County," promising that he would quit speaking, too, and return to official duties at Frankfort.

The Johnson proposal was in response to a Swope suggestion that the Democratic leader return to Frankfort and "start operating." Johnson pointed out that Judge Swope is an elected officer holding the position of Circuit Judge in the largest one-county court of continuous session in the State. "He has much work to do, he says that himself," Johnson said.

Such an arrangement would give the folk a rest from political speakings, but the probable result of the proposal will be no further reference to the subject by the Republican nominee.

Women Still Like Party Regularity

Leaving the party on occasions may be all right or some folks, but members of the Democratic State Women's Club have definite ideas about party regularity. When Tom Wallace, editor of The Louisville Times, spoke before the Democratic women in annual session last week at Frankfort and declared that at times he had voted for Republicans and "not regretted it," and warned the women against "bowing down to party images and idols," he wasn't booed out loud, but he unloosed a storm of protest from the women that could be heard around the state. A resolution directed at Wallace was prepared, but later withdrawn. These party-minded women are still talking about the incident, and if true that one's ears burn when one is being talked about, The Louisville Times editor can dispense with his ear muffs this winter.

Senators Reach Patronage Agreement at Washington

Kentucky's two United States Senators apparently are carrying into effect their Mt. Sterling appeasement. A Washington news service reports the two have reached "an agreeable understanding" on patronage matters affecting their State, which may be taken as further indication that these erstwhile rivals may be on the road to becoming political cronies, which, to say the least, would be a right powerful combination

Grass and hay supplies are credited with developing interest in beef cattle in Henderson county.

Purchase of about 100 registered rams is expected to result in an improved lamb crop in Anderson county.

J. W. Jones and Will Petrl, Hancock county farmers, have installed a 2,000-gallon stock dipping tank.

Applying limestone and growing for three years trebled corn yields for Newt Jackson in Knox county.

Approximately 4,000 acres of hybrid corn were grown in Logan county this year.

Quick War Relief Given by Red Cross

Shipwrecked U. S. Citizens, Wounded Poles, Refugees, Repatriates Aided

Washington.—The American Red Cross moved quickly at the onset of hostilities in Europe to organize relief for war sufferers and give aid to American citizens stranded in danger zones or rescued from sea-warfare catastrophe.

Red Cross officials pointed out that following contact of German-Polish forces on September 1, the organization made available medical relief for civilians and armies of Poland; provided aid for Americans repatriating from Europe as they landed in the United States ports; granted medical and maintenance assistance to American survivors of the "Athenia," first sea casualty of the war; gave financial aid to the American Hospital in Paris, France, and developed a comprehensive communications system to allay the fears of distraught relatives.

Norman H. Davis, chairman, cabled the International Red Cross Committee in Geneva on September 1 asking what relief would be needed from the American Red Cross. In a first step in consolidating Red Cross relief forces throughout the nation, 3,700 Red Cross chapters were authorized to begin producing refugee garments and to accept contributions for war relief.

A quick response from the Polish Red Cross to Chairman Davis' cable to the International Committee resulted in an American Red Cross appropriation of $50,000 for the purchase of 45 items of medicines, and for army blankets and a quantity of large hospital tents capable of housing 50 stretcher cases each.

A grant of $25,000 was also made to the American Hospital in Paris to evacuate American patients from the hospital and to purchase in the United States a 100 bed hospital unit for shipment to the American organization, it was said.

To meet needs which were thought likely to result from bombardment of rural villages and the passage of hostile armies, the Red Cross called upon 21 of its large city chapters to roll surgical dressings of a special new type for European warfare injuries. More than 500,000 yards of gauze were purchased and 40,000 pounds of cotton, enough to make 157,000 surgical dressings.

On September 2, the American Red Cross announced it was organizing to meet repatriating American citizens at seaport cities through chapter reception committees. Citizens without resources were given temporary shelter, and aided to resettle in their former homes or work.

Between September 5 and 7, the American Red Cross cabled $20,000 through the State Department, to help American survivors of the "Athenia," who had been taken into Irish and Scotch ports.

Red Cross chapters were instructed to accept funds for the purchase of supplies for impartial distribution and funds for purchase of supplies for a designated country to be expended through the Red Cross society of that nation.

"The Red Cross is not interested in the origins of the present conflict," Chairman Davis declared following his cabled offer of assistance to the International Red Cross Committee. "As a part of the great International Red Cross it is our duty to do what we can to aid the helpless civilians who will suffer during the hostilities."

TRUTH about ADVERTISING
By CHARLES B. ROTH

BUT IT'S JUST AS GOOD

YOU have had the experience, haven't you, of going into some stores and asking for an advertised brand of goods, only to have the clerk hand you another brand and inform you, "But it's just as good."

Sometimes, to your regret, you bought the "just as good" item but sometimes you walked out of the store and searched until you found the merchandise you had asked for in the first place. When you got it you were satisfied.

Charles Roth

You had confidence in the advertised goods, because you read in the honest pronouncements of the advertiser what you might expect his product to do for you. This gave you assurance. You bought because you had confidence.

But when that clerk palmed off something different on you, you had misgivings, you had doubts, you had fears, you had lack of confidence.

Maybe they were justified. Maybe they were not. It doesn't matter. The fact remains that advertising had invested the advertiser's goods with a confidence which made your buying a pleasant in place of a fearful duty.

Usually, but not always, these "just as good" goods are not as good—they are inferior and the merchant sells them because they carry more profit for him. He does his level best to get rid of them, because it is more to his advantage to do so than it is to yours.

Many stores pay their salesman a commission for selling unknown and unadvertised goods, because the salesman would not sell them without some special inducement.

It is much better for you as a consumer to put your reliance absolutely in advertised goods and in stores which advertise, and to patronize both exclusively.

When a man advertises his goods and tells frankly and publicly what they will do for you, he seeks your patronage on the basis of actual value.

It may be that some manufacturers or merchants can offer just as good value in unknown or unadvertised goods. But the chances are ten to one that they can't—because advertising not only increases the distribution of goods, but at the same time increases the production, so that advertised goods cost less to make; hence, gives more to the buyer.

In the long run you get more for your money when you buy advertised goods. You get more in actual value. And also get more in that intangible value, known as confidence.

And confidence is one of the chief satisfactions of life.

NAPOLEON

The 4-H club was delightfully entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Collins Friday night. Those present were County Agent, W. C. Straw, leader, Miss Mary Turley, assistant leader, Miss Victoria Rider, members, Imogene Peace, Dorcie, Alberta and Glenna Miller, Jean and Lucille Collins, Ralph C. Odor, Jimmie Rider, Duncan, Bernard Spaulding, visitors, Mrs. Howard Miller, Mrs. Roy Spaulding, Misses Ruby Webster, Lou Anna Wallace, Wilma Lee Noel, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alexander. A lot of fun was had as they were masked for Halloween. Apples and peanuts were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Ayers and children of Covington, called on Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Wallace awhile Saturday night.

This community was saddened to hear of the passing of Mrs. Mattie Clements. She formerly lived in this community and was loved by all who knew her. Sympathy is extended to the bereaved family.

Mrs. Jennie Pittman and Mrs. Helen Kendall took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Charles McNeely and supper with Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Turley on Monday.

The Homemakers met with Mrs. W. R. Turley and daughter Mary on Tuesday. Those present were Mrs. Sleet Allphin and little daughter, Mrs. Harry Allphin and mother, Mrs. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Whitson, Mrs. Ezra Beach, Mrs. Dewey Odor, Mrs. Howard Miller, Mrs. Tom Lindsay, Mrs. Joe Reffett, Mrs. Charles Alexander, Mrs. W. W. Hon, Mrs. Katie Gross, Mrs. R. T. McNeely, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Turley and daughter. The day was spent in quilting. The next meeting will be at Mrs. Charlie Stahl's.

Mrs. W. W. Spaulding was quite ill the first of the week, but is improved greatly at this writing.

Mrs. Daisy Hendren and daughter Mabel spent the weekend at the home of Mrs. W. B. Furnish, where they kept house for Mr. Furnish and family, including Mrs. Lillie Hon, while Mrs. Furnish was visiting among relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Spaulding, daughter Ruby, Misses Dorcie Miller and Louanna Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Spaulding, son Bernard, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alexander were dinner guests of Mrs. Bertha Kinman and daughters Tessaline and Vivian at Walton, Sunday. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Lafferty and Mrs. Ila Berryman of Covington, Jim Lafferty and Miss Fible Boaz and a couple of friends from Cincinnati. There was entertainment galore, while the table fairly groaned with good eats. It was resolved that these wonderful days together must happen more often.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Alexander are having a new house erected at the old home place.

Mrs. Jennie Pittman and Mrs. Stella Osborn spent Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Reffett.

Miss Ruby Webster spent Friday night with Miss Dorcie Miller.

A Halloween social will be given by Ten Mile Sunday School on Saturday night at the Odd Fellows hall and everyone is welcome. Come masked.

BEAVER LICK

The New Haven Homemakers held their regular monthly meeting at the New Haven school projection room on Friday of last week. About twenty-five ladies were present. A delicious lunch was enjoyed in the school cafeteria. A very interesting lesson on "Kitchen Arrangement" was given by the leader, Mrs. Sleet. The next meeting will be held on November 17th at the school.

The New Haven Parent Teachers Association is making elaborate plans for a Halloween party to be given at the school Tuesday night, October 31. Everyone is invited to come and enjoy the fun. There will be prizes given for the prettiest and the most comical costumes. Lots of good things to eat at a reasonable price. Admission 5 cents.

300-pound Philadelphia cop was told to reduce or lose his job.

Lewis Smith, Perry county, sold 1,500 bushels of apples and has 1,000 bushels in storage.

Simon Kenton High Make Plans To Observe American Education Week

During American Education Week November 6 - 11, patrons of the Simon Kenton school are especially urged to visit classes and to become better acquainted with the work of the school.

For its regular meeting on November 6, at 8:00 p. m., the Simon Kenton P. T. A. has also planned the following program in conjunction with that planned by the school for American Education Week:

Special music; Introduction, Jas. Gaskins; The Place of Religion in Our Democracy, Virginia Klein; Education for Self-Realization, Harold Soden; Education for Human Relationships, Joanne Ruppert; Education for Economic Efficiency, Verna Colclough; Education for Civic Responsibility, Harold Rector; Cultivating the Love of Learning, Elwood Jaeger; Education for Freedom, Minnie V. Daugherty; What the Kenton County School System is Doing to Educate for the American Way of Life, Foeman Rudd, Chairman of Kenton County Board of Education; Special music.

R. H. Carter of the Dixie Heights school will speak to patrons and pupils of the Simon Kenton school at 2:00 p. m., Wednesday, Nov. 8th on some phase of "Education for the American Way of Life." Immediately after Mr. Carter's talk all parents will be guests of the school at a tea sponsored by the Home Economics Department.

TOM'S SERVICE STATION ROBBED MONDAY NIGHT

Tom's Service Station, operated by Tom Neal, and located on South Main street, was entered some time Monday night and a quantity of automobile tires and cigarettes were stolen.

Entrance was gained by breaking a window glass on the south side of the building. The amount of the loss was not learned, but the tires were insured.

SEVERELY MASHES HAND TUESDAY

Tuesday afternoon Miss Emma Jane Miller of South Main street, caught her left hand in an electric wringer, and it was severely mashed. Dr. R. E. Ryle was called and it was necessary for him to take seven stitches in the thumb and hand.

Sparta Farmer Attacked By Fox

Sparta, Ky., Nov. 1, (Special)—Monday afternoon as Joe Riley, a farmer of Sparta neighborhood, was returning from work on the farm, he was attacked by a huge grey fox. The animal sprang directly upon him, snapping and tearing his clothing, but he finally managed to grab it by the neck and choke it. It was a beautifully marked animal of large size.

With the disappearance of the famous Kentucky fox hound, the country is fast becoming stocked with this animal. He comes forth from his cozy den into the open to seek food, unafraid of lurking foes, as the soft voiced hound trails him no more.

Fox hunting, once the sport of kings and most redblooded Kentuckians is passed. Its place is taken by basketball, softball and roadhouse activities. In other days huntsmen rode to the hounds under the leadership of some plantation owner, who challenged the descriptive ability of John Fox, Jr.

LARGE FURNITURE DISPLAY AT BELLONBY'S

The Bellonby Self Service Store at 112 Scott street, Covington, is increasing its display of furniture sufficiently to make this location the largest furniture store in Northern Kentucky.

The Bellonby men are all Kentuckians, known by many thousands of Northern Kentucky's citizens and they began business together 33 years ago.

This factory store has more than fifty model rooms carefully set up, showing how they may look in the home. This is said to be the largest model home display in the United States.

They also announce the manufacturing and retailing of an entirely new "pattented comfort chair" in the Bellonby line. These beautiful and universally useful chairs will be made and retailed from the Covington branch.

LIGHT BEARERS MEET AT VERONA

The "Light Bearers" Sunday School class of Verona, met at the home of Mrs. Lorena Myers, Wednesday, Oct. 25th for their regular monthly meeting. Twelve members were in of a former minister of the Hopedish luncheon was served at the noon hour.

A very interesting program was rendered in the afternoon by the following members: Scriptural reading, Mrs. Pearl Lamn; prayer, Mrs. Pattie Waller; article, "Adventures In Soul Winning," Mrs. Ura Roberts; poem, "Common Things," Mrs. Lucy Brewster; "The Four Lane Personal Service Highway," Mrs. Gertrude Brewster; poem, "The Life Clock," Mrs. Frances McCormick; poem, "Friend Who Just Stands By," and "Joy of Incompleteness," Mrs. Nell Hunt.

A short business session followed the program after which the class adjourned for the November meeting. The date of the next meeting has been changed from Wednesday, the 22nd, to Tuesday, the 21st.

"Eastern Club" To Meet Nov. 10th

Charles Allphin, President of the northern Kentucky Eastern Club has announced the annual banquet and election of officers of the club, November 10, 1939, at 12:15 at the Covington Y. M. C. A.

Miss Louise Prather, chairman of the entertainment committee has secured Dean W. C. Jones of Eastern Teachers College as speaker for the occasion. Edgar Arnett, Superintendent of Erlanger schools, and President of the Eastern Alumni association, will also be a guest speaker.

The election of officers will be handled by the nominating committee: Miss Virginia Jones of Elsmere school; Russell Bridges of Fort Thomas; Miss Nannie Lee Roberts of Walton; the secretary of the club, Miss Lillian Caldwell of the Mason school, and treasurer, Miss Ann Lee Hearn of Covington.

The banquet is held annually in connection with the northern Kentucky Educational Association meeting which will be held in Covington, Nov. 9-10-11.

Eastern Alumni prominent in this organization are as follows: Marshall Hurst, manual arts department, Newport schools. President; J. A. Caywood, Superintendent of the Kenton county schools, Secretary; Franklin Webster, Mason school, president of the social science department; Ival Black, Dixie Heights, secretary of the social science department, and Lillian Lowe, Covington, chairman of arts department.

ACHIEVEMENT MEETING OF 4-H CLUB

The achievement meeting of the Waltonian 4-H Club was held Oct. 30th at the Walton-Verona High school. Fourteen achievement cards were awarded. They were Laura Mae Whitson, Jean Pennington, Louise McCubbin, Louise McKenny, Helen Stamper, Bessie Jean Ford, Mildred King, Leon Pennington, Jimmie Pennington, Harold Vest, Russell Groger, James Leonard Whitson, David King and Ernest Sizemore.

The leaders, James Pennington and Mrs. Walter King, both received first-year leader pins.

The club members are all looking to a better year next year, and are sure that with the helpful aid of the leaders, the year will be prosperous.

LARGE CROWDS ATTEND REVIVAL

Large crowds have been in attendance at the revival, now in its final week at the Walton Baptist church. Dr. E. C. Stevens, the evangelist, has been delivering inspiring sermons, and O. A. Fields, guest soloist, is being enjoyed.

The meeting will come to a close on Friday evening of this week. The public is cordially invited to attend these remaining services.

Annual Red Cross Roll Call To Begin In Boone County, Nov. 11

"Faced with a growing demand for Red Cross assistance to the stricken populations of Europe's warring nations and a need for strengthening its domestic operations, the Boone County Chapter of the American Red Cross will embark November 11th on the greatest membership campaign since the World War," Rev. J. Russell Cross, Chairman of Boone County Red Cross Chapter declared yesterday.

The appeal, he said, will be carried by the 10,000 Chapters and branches of the organization located in virtually every community in the country.

The Red Cross is obligated by the Treaty of Geneva to assist in alleviating the sufferings of war. Our Chapters throughout the country already have started the production of garments for the needy civilian populations of belligerent countries, while a limited number of Chapters are now preparing hundreds of thousands of surgical dressings for use at the front.

"The success of Roll Call this year, will gauge the amount of assistance the American Red Cross can give the sick and injured of war, and the comfort that can be brought to refugees and other noncombatants fleeing the danger zones," Mr. Cross said.

During 1938, Mr. Cross said, 32,400 persons lost their lives as a result of automobile accidents. To help curb this alarming spectre of death on the highway, the Red Cross established, in 1938, its Highway Emergency First Aid Stations. After four years, he said, extensive campaigning and training of first aiders, 5,362 stations and mobile first aid units are in operation, standing ready to treat the injured and to save the dying. This newly-introduced service, he said, is being coupled with the 30-year-old First Aid program which combats all forms of accidental death. During the past year the two millionth First Aider was trained.

Mr. Cross has asked the following people to serve as Co-Chairmen of the Roll Call in their respective communities: Petersburg, A. L. Stephens and Mrs. Mary G. Berkshire; Belleview, Rev. Raymond Smith and Mrs. Wm. Rogers, Jr.; Burlington, Miss Nell Martin and Mrs. J. G. Smith; Hebron, Mrs. C. W. Riley and Mrs. J. C. Aylor; Bullittsville, Miss Lucy Lee Grant and Mrs. Albert Willis; Constance, R. V. Lents and Mrs. George W. Kottmyer; Florence, Mrs. L. T. Utz, Mrs. Wm. Marksberry, Mrs. Fannie Scott and Mrs. J. C. Layne.

Rabbit Hash, Mrs. W. J. Craig and Mrs. Minnie Stephens; Union, Mrs. Martha L. Huey, Miss Jane Bristow and Irvin Rouse; Richwood, Mrs. Robert Robinson and Mrs. J. F. Cleek; Beaver, Mrs. Sam Sleet and Mrs. Anna Cleek McCabe; Walton, Mrs. Alan Gaines, Mrs. Alleene Conner, Rev. C. J. Alford, Mrs. Lula Huey and Ben Doan; Verona, Mrs. J. L. Hamilton; Big Bone, Mrs. John Jones, Jr. and Mrs. Ora Presser; Gunpowder, Mrs. Emerson Smith.

Halloween Party Well Attended

The annual community Halloween party given by the P. T. A. of the Walton-Verona school at the gym. was well attended Tuesday evening.

A large number of kiddies, as well as adults, were masked and the usual pretty, grotesque and commical characters were seen. Prizes were awarded to both adults and children for the fanciest, the best character represented and the tackiest.

One of the best representations was that of a Kentucky thoroughbred, and it attracted a lot of attention, as well as win one of the prizes. Mrs. Rod Hughes and Mrs. Marvin Gaines comprised the horse and the jockey was Jack Hughes. We were unable to get the names of all who won prizes, but a few of the other winners were Mrs. Thelma Chipman, Jimmy Pruett, Virginia Struve and Lois Mayhugh.

The judges were Mrs. Harry Chapman, Charles Chambers and a Mr. Lea. Clifford Pruett was master of ceremonies.

Other attractions were a fish pond, candy booth, soft drink stand, pop corn, etc. A one-reel educational movie was shown to demonstrate the new projector recently purchased by the school.

VERONA HOME-MAKERS TO MEET

The November meeting of the Verona Homemakers club will be held Friday, the 3rd at the school house. It will be an all day session, starting at 10:30 a. m. All members are urged to be present. New members or guests are always welcome.

JOHN S. SURFACE DIES AT FLORENCE

Funeral services for John S. Surface, 80, vice president of the Florence Deposit Bank, who passed away last Friday night at his home in Florence, after an illness of several months, were held Monday at 2 p. m. at the Hopeful Lutheran church. Burial was in the Hopeful cemetery.

Don't Make Emergency Permanent

Dangerous precedents can be established in the name of emergency, when steps may be taken which can never be retraced.

Here in our own country we are not at war—but a "limited emergency" has been declared. Plans are being made for extending the powers of government in many directions, for the purpose of avodedly protecting our interests. It is essential, if democracy is to be preserved and we are to escape the blight of totalitarianism, that the people thoroughly understand the issues that confront them—and analyze them in a spirit of cool logic and not in a spirit of hysterical emotionalism.

No fiat power should ever be placed in the hands of a permanent government bureau or department. If emergency laws must be enacted, they should be administered by purely emergency bureaus, which will automatically dissolve when the emergency is over. Every conceivable protection must be established in advance to make certain that the temporary be stopped from becoming the permanent.

As General Johnson observed recently in a radio address, to give sweeping new powers to the permanent bureaus of government would amount to giving away liberty—and for keeps. Politics lusts always for more power. It never willingly returns a grant of authority, once it has experienced it. It would be a simple thing to socialize industry once we were stampeded into extending powers of permanent government departments, crushing opposition and dissent, and controlling the radio and press. This would bring totalitarianism home with a vengence.

Don't forget that not all the enemies of democracy are abroad—there are plenty of them within our own gates. When it is asked that Congress give the government a tighter check rein on liberty, the lawmakers should make haste exceedingly slowly.

$21,000 A Minute

Yes—life insurance justifies its name. Last year U. S. and Canadian life companies paid out over $3,000,000,000—and 62.91 per cent went to living policyholders, and only 37.09 per cent to beneficiaries. Every working day payments totaled $21,041 per minute.

So much for the statistics. Now think of those tremendous payments in terms of human happiness, contentment, and independence.

In the face of all political schemes for advancing human security, life insurance remains the soundest plan yet devised for meeting the varying needs of the individual.

Consumer Reaps Savings

We have apparently learned that there is no need to worry about sudden and sharp price rises because of the war. The acute fear that possessed many Americans when war first broke out in Europe, causing them to rush panic-stricked into stores to purchase abnormally large stocks of staples, soon subsided.

That is all to the good. There is not a single logical reason why prices in this country, so far as basic commodities are concerned, should zoom. Prices may go up—but the increases should take place slowly, gradually and naturally. And, of vital importance, the consumer is protected by the finest distribution system in the world.

The little towns of this country are served by stores which, from the standpoint of variety, service and price, can be found only in the great centers of population in other lands. The modern merchant, like the modern manufacturer, no longer seeks to charge all the traffic will bear. He works o nthe mass-production principle—a small unit profit and big turnover. He is continually striving to undersell and out-serve the merchant down the street.

The American system of free, open competition is responsible for this. When a chain store, for instance, puts into effect some new innovation, a progressive independent adopts and improves it. And when the independent gets a bright idea, the chain follows the lead. This is true of all kinds of stores—food, clothing, hardware, drug and so on.

The government, it is reported, is ready to crack down if and when profiteering rears its head. And the retailers of America, large and small, chain and independent, are working harder than ever before to hold the cost-of-living down—they know better than anyone else that high prices mean few sales. And the consumer reaps the savings.

Born of Necessity

The basic tenet of agricultural marketing cooperation is a simple one. It can be expressed thus: One man, standing alone, is powerless to prevent his exploitation by middlemen and other large groups; a thousand or ten thousand such men, standing together, can deal with the buyer on an equal footing.

The marketing cooperative movement was born of necessity. And its amazingly rapid growth during the past two decades has likewise been the product of necessity. The creation of the first farmer-owned, farmer-controlled marketing co-op market the first application of proven, modern business methods to the craft of agriculture.

The marketing cooperatives have not performed miracles. They have not been able to hold prices to fair levels in times of great depression. But they have succeeded in obtaining for their members a fairer share of the final selling price of their products—which is the acid test of their work.

A LIVE WIRE BRIAR HOPPER

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5582 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A true story of a Cincinnati boy who requested me not to use his name. He made a visit to Virginia and formed an acquaintance with a very congenial Virginia boy, whom he induced to come to Cincinnati and attend school. This boy joined the football team and in the first game met with an accident which rendered him unfit for school. He had to return home and was out of school for one year.

The Cincinnati boy had not joined the team. His mother said to him, "See what happened to your Virginia boy friend? I will ask you not to play football," and he promised not to do so.

The coach said to him, "You have the making of a good football player. We need you and we want you to join our team." He thought the boy would not hesitate after hearing what a good prospective player he was. The boy told the coach he could not join the team and play. The boy then told about his friend and of his promise to his mother. The coach took the boy to his teacher and told the teacher the circumstances and that he would like the teacher to insist on the boy joining the team and show his loyalty to his school.

The teacher instead of rebuking the boy when he learned the details of the story, praised him and said, "You will make a real man among men, your mother, family and school will be proud of. Do not let anything come between you and the loyalty to your promise. It means more than football or more than anything else."

And so the struggle to get him to play football went on, even his brothers and sisters trying to persaude him to play the game, all to no avail.

This reminds me of another good mother in Mount Airy, a suburb of Cincinnati. She had seven daughters and while she did not live to raise them, she lived long enough to start them right in life. While her rule might have appeared strict, it was that her girls had to be home before night, and if they weren't, she or some older person would be with them. With this good mother's advice and example, they all grew up to be good girls, married good husbands and made good wives and homes.

STONE BRUISES

Has the human race grown tougher, or have more of our generation put on shoes? Something is wrong, for I never hear now of stone bruises, fearful things that all boys and some girls of another time expected to have as a matter of course. My father was fond of telling how some older man who had moved to the county seat once remarked that no boy was worth killing if he had never had a stone bruise. One of the man's own sons heard the remark and went out at once and stamped on the sidewalk until he apparently was worth much, to judge by the size and ache of the bruise. Frankly, I do not know what a stone bruise is, but I know it can cause lots of trouble, even though it may be the badge of a regular fellow.

Some years ago doctors told us also that toe itch is athlete's foot. Back in the nineties no one ever heard of such a thing; toe itch was just toe itch, a disease that any person who went barefooted (and who didn't?) could expect to have. Now all sorts of disinfectants and other things are used to stop the dread athlete's foot; then all that was necessary was to tie a yarn string around the toe affected, with a bit of friedmeat grease added for good measure.

Flaming advertisements tell us all sorts of things to do for itching or offensive feet. What we used to do is still a good remedy: we soaked our feet in borax water, the very thing that doctors advise us to do today. An ignorant cobbler once told me a valuable secret: he said that the prespiration of the feet reacts on the shoe leather to form an acid that hurts the skin; borax neutralizes this acid. How simple, but how few people can reason it out so well!

Another ailment that I rarely hear of now is the stumping off of toenails. Again this maybe due to the prevalence of shoes, but it may imply also a greater care on the part of children than we once knew. People are always pointing with pride to something. Every genuine boy pointed with pride to the dirty rag that wrapped up a toe from which a nail had been stumped. It is amazing how easy it is to catch a toenail under something and rip it off. The pain is severe, but ordinary boys can stand it and have some energy left to boast about how little it hurt. My most vivid experience with toenails came when we were playing Hide and Seek once at a neighbor's. In order to reach "home," we had to run around a large house or through the passage, or "dog trot." I chose the latter way and failed to pick up my feet properly. That toe still looks somewhat like the fingers of people who fed the old-fashioned sausage mill not wisely but too well.

Nails are still mashed, especially since we have no many kinds of machinery. But there is small fun in hearing some grown man telling how he got his finger caught in a machine at the shop; men ought to know better. Besides, it is a little too late for them to live a whole lifetime of pride in the cuts and bruises they have received and borne nobly.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

A new dust storm is sweeping the nation—War Dust. When the cloud lifts and the rains come, the people who fail to keep the dust out of their eyes are likely to find some rather modernistic and startling structures erected under its cover.

Some Washington reporters, including this columnist have attempted to tell of the efforts that are being made to put through new schemes in the name of national defense. But developments of a surprising nature occur almost daily, only to be lost in the mass of war news.

It has just been learned, for instance, that serious efforts are being made to develop an AAA for manufacturers and their employees. This plan was conjured up by Mordecai Ezekiel, Agricultural Department economic adviser. It was introduced in Congress nearly two years ago by members of the so-called "liberal" bloc, including then-Representative Thomas R. Amlie of Wisconsin, whom the Senate declined to confirm as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The bill itself is not particularly startling in these days when rabbits don't even wait to be pulled out of the hat. It would simply let a Federal agency decide how many automobiles or socks or corsets shall be produced, tell each manufacturer how many he can make, and penalize those who turn out more or fewer.

Two things about the proposal are startling: The first is that it is being put forward now as a control which the government should have as a national defense measure. The old argument was that it would combat depression.

The second surprising thing is that although an almost identical plan has failed to solve agriculture's problems, the new scheme is proposed for the more complicated industrial field.

Even operating in the field of agriculture, the Agriculture Department has had to wait until a European War brought farm prices nearer to parity.

Now, though, the same scheme is being readied for the myriad of factory products. It is distressing even to think of the thousands of government inspectors who would be necessary to police the production of everything from watch springs to locomotives, and to be sure that the stipulated prices were charged for them.

Just one interesting sidelight is that the AAA attempts to fix the income for a farm and let those who work the farm divide it while the new proposal would require determination of wages paid to each employee in a factory.

Pump-priming may be on its way back too. Washington economists say that the recent upturn probably has been a little too rapid; that demand cannot yet keep up with production. Hence they look for a slump of unforeseeable extent next Spring.

When and if the slump comes, the once rejected "spend-lend" bill will be back with trimmings. The pump-primers are determined to get their way. They are talking now about how they can include the spend-lend idea in a bill appropriating money for the Army and Navy for they figure that the public, and Congress, will accept almost anything in the name of national defense.

Meanwhile, the Federal debt continues to climb.

Reporters here say the week's best Washington crack was not made by a National Capital reported but by Leonard Lyons, New York columnist. Lyons quoted an International Casino visitor as saying: "For two weeks now I've been at the White House, trying to get past Roosevelt, to see Corcoran."

JONESVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Everette Cammack and daughter Gene spent from Thursday until Sunday visiting her mother, Mrs. Miller, and other relatives at Perryville.

Friends and relatives here were shocked to hear of the death of the 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar O'Banion of near Holbrook, who was killed Tuesday morning when she was struck by a truck. She had just got out of her father's car and started to the Waldrop school. The driver of the truck said he did not see the child as she stepped in front of the truck.

Several from visiting churches attended the Sunday School Convention held here Sunday.

Bro. Ransdell showed the picture, "The Better Way" at the Baptist church on Saturday night to a large audience. Much of the picture was taken in the Ten Mile Association.

A great shock to our community was the sudden death of Earl Poland, Jr., who died early Saturday morning. Junior was apparently well Friday and attended school at Long Ridge, but took suddenly ill that night soon after coming home and lived only a few hours. The sorrowing family have the sympath of the entire community. The doctor pronounced his death due to appendicitis and other complications.

A large crowd attended the funeral of Mrs. Cassia Pettit of Folsom which was held at the Baptist church here Sunday afternoon. She was the mother of Mrs. Cora Elliott of this place.

Italian rye grass seeded in corn has done well in Casey county.

With 6,000 sheep insured, the Madison county sheep association paid all claims and had $555 left.

Northern Kentucky Fruit Growers Study Plans to Combat Codling Moth, Peach Curculio and Apple Diseases Such as Scab and Blotch

The following committee was elected at a meeting held at the farm of B. W. Scott, Wednesday, Oct. 25: Boone County, Frank Rouse, Burlington, D. C. Stephens, Burlington; Bracken County, Adam Kalo, Brooksville; Campbell County, Paul Fehr, Cold Springs; Kenton County, Robert Scott, Ludlow, Route 2, John P. Westerman, Ludlow, Route 2, and George Eubanks, Ludlow, Route 2.

The Fruit Committee is working with the Horticulture Department of the University in studying the possibility of setting up an insectary in northern Kentucky to help the fruit growers in their spray programs and fruit production problems. W. W. Magill and W. D. Armstrong addressed the fruit growers committee and explained how an insectary and the insectary service can be made available to fruit growers in northern Kentucky.

County agents from Boone, Campbell and Kenton county also attended the meeting with the fruit growers committee.

Dairy Heard Improvement Meeting Held at Independence

Dairymen from Boone, Campbell and Kenton counties met at the Independence Court House, Friday, Oct. 27 with James B. Smathers of the Dairy Department, College of Agriculture, for the purpose of organizing a dairy herd improvement association in northern Kentucky.

The following officers were elected at the meeting: A. J. Feldman, of Campbell county, President; H. L. Crigler, Boone county, Vice-president, and Grant Maddox, Boone county, Secretary-Treasurer.

Delegates from four counties were chosen on the dairy committee: Boone county, George Kerns; Campbell county, Henry Herringer; Kenton county, Joseph Kahmann, Jr.; Pendleton county, H. S. Bailey.

According to Mr. Smathers the Dairy Herd Improvement testing work will begin the first of Nov.

The purpose of the Association will be to assist dairymen in keeping herd records and to study dairy management problems of the dairymen who are members of the Association.

Charles Maddox, Joe Blau and Stanley Parker were chosen as the program committee to prepare the program for the next meeting.

Regular meetings will be held the second Tuesday of each month at the Independence Court House.

In order to become a Utopia Club member on must be 10 years old or over, and must carry some project such as poultry, sheep, dairy, swine etc.

4-H Achievement Radio Program on November 4, 1939

According to J. W. Whitehouse, State Leader Junior Club Work at Lexington, the State and National 4-H achievement day program will be broadcast over station WHAS in Louisville, and also over WCKY and WLW.

Because this year is the 25th anniversary of Extension Work in the United States the 4-H program will give a brief review of some of the outstanding achievements in 4-H club work in the last 25 years.

Club work dates back to 1909 in Kentucky. According to Mr. Whitehouse the first club organized in Kentucky was in the year 1909, but the club work got its real start when agricultural extension work became nation wide throught the Smith-Lever Law in 1914.

4-H club members, parents and leaders are urged to tune in on the radio program on Saturday, Nov. 4th and where possible, interesting meetings can be arranged if several club members meet to listen in on the program.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for November 5

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

RIGHTEOUSNESS IN THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 5:17-20, 38-45; 6:1-4.

GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect.—Matthew 5:48.

"Righteousness in the kingdom," the title of our lesson, properly relates its teaching to the kingdom of the Messiah which is to come on the earth, and to the condition which shall then prevail. At the same time we agree with Dr. James M. Gray that "it would be wrong to press this too far and to say that the Sermon on the Mount has no application whatever to the Christian church or the time in which we live, for God is the same through all dispensations and the underlying principles of His government never change."

Certainly it is true that if all of the men and all of the nations of the earth were on this Armistice Sunday true followers of Christ and ready to carry out the teachings of this lesson, there would no longer be any possibility of war. This means that the best peace propaganda is the sending of missionaries and teachers to all the earth to win men to Christ.

Our lesson should be studied and taught with great care lest we confuse morality with Christianity and make it appear that men are justified before God by their good works rather than by their faith in Christ.

I. Christ Fulfills the Law (5:17-20).

The law of God is eternal, never to be abrogated, never set aside. Christ Himself, although we might properly say that He was in reality the Law-giver and thus had power and authority over the law, indicated His purpose in coming to be that of giving the law its full meaning, not of destroying it. One could wish that those who profess to be His servants might have the same measure of regard for God's law. If they did, they obviously would not be so ready to ignore it, so quick to change it or explain it away, and far more ready to accept with their Master every "jot and tittle," that is, even the minutest detail of His Word.

Recognizing Christ as the fulfillment of the law should prepare one to manifest obedience to every moral precept through His grace and by His strength. Certainly it should not lead anyone to lawlessness or carelessness regarding details of the daily walk. Fellowship with the Saviour should be revealed in consistent living (v. 20).

II. Christ Explains the Law (5:38-45).

Look at verses 21 to 37. The spirit of murder is anger (vv. 21, 22). A lustful look is adultery (vv. 27-30), and it is better to be blind than to be guilty of it. Divorce is linked very plainly with adultery (vv. 31, 32). Swearing is forbidden (vv. 33-37). Thus Christ strips outward conformity to the law of its apparent virtue and reveals that with God it is the spirit that gives meaning to the act.

He goes on to make plain that God alone is wise enough to take vengeance, that we ought never to retaliate with evil for evil. Note that verse 39 probably refers to an insult rather than to physical violence; that in verse 40 it is a question of a difference of opinion in which the other man feels that he has a legal right to your coat; and that here, as in verses 41 and 42, it is not a matter of letting a wicked or scheming person defraud you of your rights or property, but rather of doing what is required of you in an ungrudging spirit and of being generous with others who are in need. In Christ we are to be like our heavenly Father and love our enemies (vv. 43-45).

III. Christ Illustrates the Law (6:1-4).

Possibly it would be more appropriate for us to say that Christ here illustrates the right and the wrong way of fulfilling the law. How very clear He makes it that the one who, while ostensibly doing the will of God, actually is seeking the recognition and glory of men has received his full reward, for men have applauded his act of generosity. The transaction is complete and God has nothing to do with it at all. On the other hand, the one who gives in the spirit of Christ, not wanting men to know of his faithful stewardship (v. 4), and in fact making no reckoning of it himself (v. 3), may be certain that he has a heavenly Father who takes careful account of the loving deeds of His children and who will reward him, both in this world and in the world to come.

Memories of Happy Days

Why is it that the memory of some days in the past, unmarked by any striking event, always come to us like the breath of spring? It may be that on those days, in reward for some forgotten act, God drew us close to Him, and that we absorbed something of His eternal peace and happiness.

First Lady Advises Brides

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt (center) recently addressed these young brides at a luncheon inaugurating the Good Housekeeping School for Brides. The group to whom Mrs. Roosevelt was introduced was made up of twenty-five young women married less than a year, carefully selected to form a cross-section of the nation. The basic purpose of the School is to learn how to avoid marital friction by examining once a month the specific problems of marriage which these girls are facing. No men will be allowed at any of the meetings, so the discussions will be completely frank and uninhibited. The first session will be reported in the December issue of the magazine.

TIPS ON TURKEY TIDBITS

After the big Thanksgiving Day feast, retire the left-over turkey tidbits to the refrigerator to rest up for a day or so. The family will savor every last bit of flavor if you spin out the servings for several days. Make each turkey menu seem something special by planning simple and savory ways to refurbish these remnants. Here now, is a tasty main course dish made by mixing the meat with fat green peas and a canful of spicy cooked spaghetti served in a superb tomato sauce, or macaroni done up in a rich cheese sauce. It's thrifty and nifty when you make it this easy way:

HOLIDAY SPAGHETTI CASSEROLE

Combine, mixing lightly—
1 cup diced cooked turkey or chicken
1 cup cooked peas
1 large (24 oz.) can cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce. Place in one large or individual casseroles.

Sprinkle with—
Rice flakes, finely crushed.

Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) 20 minutes, or until heated through. (Serves 4 to 5.)

Note: Cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese may be substituted for spaghetti.

OLD-FASHIONED FARE

Have you ever tried serving hominy as a side dish for supper? A heaping bowlful makes a grand substitute for potatoes or an excellent extra vegetable in a well balanced meal. These tender white puffles, so soft and succulent, have a mild flavor that blends well with all sorts of foods. But their real affinity is for ham—a rosily tender slice of country ham smoked over hickory sticks and fried a delicate golden brown. You ought to try that for supper sometime soon. And, if you'd like a flavorful casserole combination for a main course dish, add a canful of onion soup for a savory sauce and simmer in a so-so oven until these stout flavors are merged. I tell you, it makes mighty good eating when you prepare it this way:

HOMINY AND HAM

Cut into pieces for serving—
1 slice ham, ½ inch thick.

Drain—
1 can hominy. Place hominy and ham in alternate layers in baking dish or casserole, ending with layer of hominy.

Pour over top—
1 small (10 oz.) can onion soup.

Combine, then sprinkle over top—
1 cup soft bread crumbs
2 tablespoons butter, melted.

Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 1 hour or until ham is tender. (Serves 6.)

TIME-SAVING SPECIAL

If the holiday hustle-bustle crowds everyday dinners on your time schedule, plan quick-trick menus that will take just a short time to prepare and still make stout suppers for your folks. Rely on your staple shelf and realize the full value of those packaged foods tucked up there all ready for you to use. Here for instance, is a grand main course dish made by merging three of the very simplest foods on your emergency shelf—salty shreds of dried beef simmered in a creamy mushroom sauce with crunchy little nubbins of whole kernel corn added for heft and flavor. Takes just about five minutes to prepare when you follow these easy instructions:

CHIPPED BEEF WITH CORN

Drain, saving liquid—
1 No. 2 can whole kernel corn.

Flake—
1 2½-oz. jar chipped beef.

Place corn and beef in hot skillet with—
2 tablespoons butter. Cook, stirring until slightly brown and dry.

Sprinkle with—
3 tablespoons flour and continue browning.

Add—
1 small (10 oz.) can cream of mushroom soup
½ cup liquid from corn.

Continue cooking just long enough to form a rich thick gravy. Bake an additional amount of biscuits a few meals before, cut in halves, toast surface and serve the corn and beef over them.

NOW YOU CAN DO IT TOO!
Here is fascinating news that concerns YOUR entire future! News that now brings Success and Happiness right to YOUR doorstep!

Walter P. Chrysler: "Of great interest and value."
Wm. Wrigley, Jr.: "Thousands must have been waiting for something just like this."
Thomas A. Edison: "Extremely interesting and of great practical value."

Only something unusual could bring similar praise from thousands of America's leading men and women.

And something unusual HAS happened! — a book that concerns YOU and YOUR success and happiness.

It deals with the biggest problem you and all of us face: The problem of "getting along" with others, of making others like us, of influencing those with whom we come in contact in business, social and every-day life.

Why is this your most important problem? Because ONLY through OTHERS is it possible for any of us to succeed — to get what we want from life. Your difficulties of today — your setbacks and successes of the past — do you not find other people always at the root of them — friend, relative, employer, employee, associate, superior?

Successful men and women recognize this need of influencing others as their most important life problem.

John D. Rockefeller knew it when he said, "Ability to deal with human nature is a commodity for which I will pay more than for any other thing under the sun."

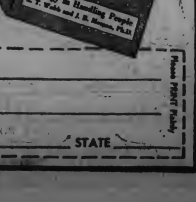
Andrew Carnegie knew it when he paid Charles Schwab a salary of a million dollars a year "not for what he knows about making steel but because he knows how to please and influence people."

And Schwab knew it: "Many of us think of salesmen as people traveling around with sample kits. Instead we are ALL salesmen, every day of our lives. We are selling our ideas, our plans, our energies, our enthusiasm, to those with whom we come in contact."

That famous, startling scientific report recognized it: "Even in very technical lines, only 15 per cent of one's financial success is due to one's technical knowledge, and 85 per cent is due to personality and ability to influence and lead others." (RE-READ THAT AMAZING STATEMENT! It is, in exact essence, the report of a long study by the Carnegie Institute of Technology!)

This all-important "knack" of influencing and swaying others was for centuries mysteriously called "personality," "magnetism," "charm." But modern science has been making breath-taking discoveries!

Our great psychology laboratories have found that successful people exercise their great influence over others through a definite set of psychological "laws" — simple but powerful rules which enable them to "handle" people in every step in life.



Mystery was entirely swept aside — the way was opened for all to master this tremendous power of influence over others — when Webb and Morgan gathered together these "laws," put them into a fascinating, easily-understood book, "Strategy in Handling People."

Now this book, which aroused such wholehearted enthusiasm from Chrysler, Edison, Wrigley and thousands of other successful people, is available to you — in its COMPLETE 240-page word-for-word form — at a price you can well afford!

No book like it has ever been written before. Fascinating as a detective story, it rips aside the curtain of mystery. Through dramatic incidents in the lives of over 200 successful people it explains exactly how they have used the art of "men" to gain personal power and success and how YOU can do it.

It tells how YOUR OWN every-day problems have been solved by the world's oldest men and women — how YOU can use their simple, powerful method to increase your influence over the people around you — to make all people like you — to charm and impress friends and strangers — to "handle" superiors and associates — to get loyalty and co-operation — to size up people — to master difficult personal and business situations — to move swiftly toward the success you want!

YOU CAN DO IT TOO! Mailing the coupon right now is your first move to a new life.

Publishing Methods Co.

Demands For Red Cross Services Prompt Greatest Roll Call in 20 Years

Half Million Workers Ready for Membership Drive

THE American Red Cross embarks on its greatest membership Roll Call in two decades November 11 when a half million volunteers working in virtually every community in the nation, will seek increased membership strength to meet growing demands for Red Cross services, Chairman Norman H. Davis has announced.

Increased membership support has been prompted by an urgent need for extending Red Cross services not only in this country, but as a result of appeals from Red Cross societies in war-stricken European nations, Mr. Davis said.

"Although the Red Cross must meet the cries from war-stricken Europe, we of America must not slacken our effort to reduce the peace-time forms of human suffering found in this country," Mr. Davis declared.

"The 5,700,000 American men and women who enrolled as members of the Red Cross last year enabled the organization to meet the needs of sufferers in 157 disasters during the year, as well as to train hundreds of thousands in First Aid, Life Saving and health education."

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

The first nine weeks of the present European war have seen a sensational rise in prices for the things most of us buy. A good many commodities have gone up as much as twenty per cent.

This rise in prices is not due to the scarcity of goods in the United States. The rise is caused by your fear and my fear that the normal production and distribution of goods in the United States will be disrupted.

But with our granaries bulging with wheat and corn; with our warehouses filled with cotton; with estimates of inspected dog slaughter for the next twelve months at 47,000,000 as compared with 40,000,000 for the preceding twelve months, it is difficult to forecast a violent upturn in prices.

Europe in this war need not depend on the United States for raw materials as she did in the last World War. This should cushion the shock of violent price rises in this country. Wise buying of sugar, canned goods, and such may help your budget some; but is you are buying recklessly and in large quantities, look out! You may wake up some morning to find prices have actually gone down because we are living in a land of plenty where rationing, and therefore higher prices, is unnecessary.

Pasture Improvement Tests Show Fertilizer Value

CHICAGO. — How Midwestern farmers can produce more meat and milk at lower cost by a well-managed pasture improvement program is described in a bulletin issued here.

Other important advantages resulting from such a program include conservation of the soil, control of erosion and increased fertility.

Immediate Results

"Practical tests on hundreds of Middle Western farms have established the value of pasture improvement through a program of fertilization," says the bulletin. "Because they cover the land, pasture crops utilize added plant food more completely than row crops. The return from the increased pasture growth is immediate when dairy and livestock products are marketed.

"Results of experiments in Ohio reveal that a dollar invested in fertilizer to improve rundown pasture land, may be expected to return from $3 to $6, depending upon management and the kind of livestock.

How Fertilizer Pays

"In Indiana, 81 pasture improvement demonstrations were undertaken this year in 40 different counties. The results from 26 such fertilization demonstrations in 1938 showed a 69 per cent increase where a complete fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potash was used. Where phosphorus alone was used, a gain of 36 per cent was recorded. For phosphorus and manure it was 48 per cent; for phosphorus and potash, 47 per cent.

Lush Pasture Promotes More Milk and Meat.

"E. N. Fergus, state agronomist of Kentucky, summarizing four years' results of fertilizing permanent pastures, states that each dollar expended for limestone and superphosphate produced an income of $5, measured in terms of the gain in weight of beef cattle.

"The amount and analysis of fertilizer to use, will depend on a number of factors. Agronomists at the state colleges or experiment stations are prepared to cooperate with farmers in providing recommendations covering the use of fertilizers on pasture crops in a rotation. For permanent pastures, farmers will find that a top dressing of a complete fertilizer this fall will pay for itself many times over in producing earlier and succulent grass for spring grazing as well as a more sturdy root system encouraging a heavier growth."

Young Eyes and Old.. need the sight-saving light of an
I.E.S. LAMP

THIS IS THE HEART OF THE I. E. S. LAMP
The white glass diffusing bowl in every I. E. S. lamp conceals the bulb, sifts out harmful glare and provides a flood of soft, evenly-distributed light. Result: true eye comfort.

I. E. S. Better Sight Lamps provide an abundance of soft, pleasing light that acts as a balm to tired eyes. Glare is eliminated by a white glass diffusing bowl which provides both downward and upward light. The downward light is intensified and spread in a broad circle by a wide shade with a specially-treated lining. The upward light goes to the ceiling and is reflected throughout the room, dispelling harsh shadows. Only I. E. S. Lamps carry the I. E. S. tag, certifying compliance with 54 rigid specifications of the Illuminating Engineering Society regarding lighting efficiency, mechanical construction and safety. Try an I. E. S. Lamp in your home and see for yourself how it aids your eyes.

Kentucky Politics

— By Tyler Munford —

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 1 —Keen Johnson entered the stretch run in Kentucky's gubernatorial race this week well in the van of King Swope, the Republican color bearer. Politics here see a certain victory for Johnson and the Democratic ticket at this late stage of the race, and apparently it is only a question of how many lengths the Demos will be out in front when the ballots are counted on November 7.

Although lacking the fire of the 1935 Chandler-Swope campaign, this year's contest picked up considerable rank and file enthusiasm during the past week, largely due to an intensive Democratic speaking campaign bolstered by mile-long motorcades in the rural sections.

The Democratic speakers corps was augmented this week with the addition of Senator Chandler, who arrived Sunday from Washington following senatorial approval of the arms embargo repeal; a piece of Roosevelt legislation Kentucky's new Senator supported.

Senator Barkley will not come to Kentucky until Saturday, but he will make a radio speech from Washington either Wednesday or Thursday night. His tentative Saturday schedule includes Ashland in the morning, Prestonsburg in the afternoon and Pikeville, Saturday nite The Senator will invade his home district, the First, Monday.

Johnson Meets Rhea Clan At Russellville

When Governor Johnson and his motorcade arrived at Russellville Friday morning he was greeted by an audience of some 2,000 citizens of the "Free State of Logan." The crowd was evidence of the handiwork of the Rhea clan, the Democratic nominee came through with the statement that no fences would be built around the "Free State" during his administration.

Governor Johnson was introduced by Sam Milan, one of the younger chieftains of the Rhea organization and Logan county's able member of the House. In the audience was Logan's smiling, soft-spoken Sheriff, Emerson Beaucham ("Doc" to you); affable John Whitaker, and the Old Gray Fox himself. After the speaking the Governor spied Mr. Rhea in the crowd, went to him and the two held a ten minute pow wow.

In our book Logan county is in the 4,000 majority class for election day.

Democratic Majority May Exceed 100,000

Some of the State's most astute analysts hold that the Democratic majority this year may well exceed the 100,000 mark, and based on "form" such a margin is not only possible but entirely probable.

Governor Chandler won by 95,000 in 1935 when there was everything else in the party except unity and harmony. In that race 1,017,000 votes were cast. This year the party is presenting its most solid front in a decade.

A further indication of a 100,000 plus majority was disclosed this week when the National Welfare Forum revealed returns from its almost complete poll. Using a similar plan to that employed by the Gallup poll thecurrent percentages in the Forum poll are as follows: Democrats, 55.62; Republicans, 39.59; Undecided 4.79.

Based on the 1935 vote the above percentages point a majority of 162,000 for the Democrats. In connection with this particular poll its accuracy was given a fair test in the Democratic primary when the same system came within one per cent of predicting the Johnson primary margin.

J. Lyter Donaldson, state campaign manager, who established him as a political handicapper of note inpredicting the primary vote, is confident of a Democratic margin in excess of 100,000. His figurs based on a registration and organization analysis add at least 25,000 to the above figure.

The hopelessness of the Republicans is made more apparent by a comparison of the total registration of both parties in the State. A compilation of these figures released by Democratic headquarters this week gives the following total registration for each major party: Democrats, 829,588; Republicans, 512,499, or a difference of 317,139 favoring the Democrats.

Swope May Lose Rabbit's Foot in Fayette

Over in Fayette County the Democratic organization has never been able to carry the county over Judge Swope either in his several races for circuit judge or in the 1935 race for Governor.

But this is a different year and a different situation, politicos here hold. They point to the recent Johnson appearance at Woodland Auditorium in Lexington, which was also the scene of the Swope state opening. The Johnson audience was larger and more enthusiastic.

Both Parties Looking to 1940 Election

Both the Democratic and Republican state organizations are pointing to 1940. The Demos figure they are "in" this year, and privately the GOP leaders are of the same opinion, but both organizations want to get Kentucky in shape for the 1940 presidential election. The Democratic chieftains are driving for another big majority because of the psychological effect that will carry over into next year. The Republicans believe a lessened Democratic majority this year would be helpful to the GOP not only in Kentucky but also in the nation where it would be pointed out as a trend away from Democratic rule.

Social Security News

Editor's Note: This is the fifth in a series of questions and answers relating to the amended Social Security Act. Questions on this subject will be answered direct if addressed to this newspaper or to Frank B. Decker, Jr., manager of the Social Security Board field office, Post Office Building, Covington.

Question—Is it possible for a man who became 65 before the social security amendments were adopted to qualify for monthly benefits under the new program of old-age and survivor's insurance?

Answer—Yes, it is. Take the case of a man who became 65 in January, 1938. During the preceding years he earned $100 a month. Since 1938 he has earned $75 a month. He plans to retire January 1, 1940.

Question—What would be the basis on which the monthly benefits of this individual would be figured?

Answer—On his average monthly wages. His wages amounted to $1,200 in 1937. His wages for 1938 are not counted, since there were earnings after age 65 and before 1939, when the amendments were adopted. His earnings will amount to $900 in 1939, making a total of $2,100 for the period during which his employment was covered. This is an average of about $80 a month.

Question—Now if this man retired on January 1, 1940, and filed a claim for benefits, what amount would he receive?

Answer—Between $20 and $25 a month. This is figured as follows: He will receive 40 percent of the first $50 of average monthly earnings plus 10 percent of the additional sum earned in this case. To this will be added an additional two percent of the total as the man was employed during two years.

Question—Will there be an additional benefit if he has a wife who is at least 65 years of age?

Answer—Yes, the wife's benefit will be half of that her husband receives. If his benefit is figured at $24 a month she will be entitled to $12 in addition, making a combined monthly payment of $36 in this case.

Question—In all cases the monthly benefits increase as the average wage and the number of years served in covered employment increases?

Answer—That is true. The maximum benefit is just the same as in the old schedule, namely $85 a month, for an individual who has served in employment covered by the old-age and survivors insurance program.

Question—When may claims for these benefits be filed?

Answer—That is now being determined. It will be in ample time to permit covered workers to receive all the benefits to which they are entitled under the enlarged social security program which goes into effect January 1, 1940.

Additional questions and answers will appear in next week's Advertiser.

Old Fashioned Herb Jellies For Us New Fashioned Cooks

THERE'S no doubt about it, grandmother's herb lore has completely captivated the modern cook. Once again marjoram, basil, and savory are household words . . . and even the most cautious homemaker adds a pinch of sage, thyme, or rosemary to the soup and stew.

But the most delicious evidence of our new enthusiasm is found on the jelly shelf—for all the charm of a fragrant herb garden can now be captured in delicate spreads. Sage jelly to serve with duck and turkey, savory jelly to dress up a plain pork roast — those are the things that set guests to talking and put your best friend in a clamor till you lend the recipes.

These directions are foolproof, require but a half-minute boil, you get four medium glasses from your three cups of sugar . . . and so fine are the flavors you'll want to make several batches to put away for Christmas gifts.

SAGE JELLY
(Makes about 4 medium glasses)

1 cup sage infusion
¼ cup vinegar
3 cups sugar
Coloring
½ bottle fruit pectin

Pour 1¼ cups boiling water over 2 tablespoons sage. Cover, let stand 15 minutes, strain to remove herbs. Measure infusion into 3-quart saucepan, adding water if necessary, to make 1 cup. Add vinegar and sugar, and mix.

Place over hottest fire and while mixture is coming to a boil, add coloring to give desired shade. Use coloring which fruit acids do not fade. As soon as mixture boils, add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute.

Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once.

SAVORY JELLY
(Makes about 4 medium glasses)

1 cup savory infusion
¼ cup vinegar
3 cups sugar
Coloring
½ bottle fruit pectin

Pour 1¼ cups boiling water over 2 tablespoons savory. Cover, let stand 15 minutes, strain to remove herbs.

Measure infusion into 3-quart saucepan, adding water if necessary, to make 1 cup. Add vinegar and sugar, and mix.

Place over hottest fire and while mixture is coming to a boil, add coloring to give desired shade. Use coloring which fruit acids do not fade. As soon as mixture boils, add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute.

Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

JUST WHAT IS GOOD WILL?

A FEW months ago, according to that beguiling writer, Bruce Barton, a large factory caught fire. It burned to the ground. Sirens shrieked. Crowds milled. Firemen fought the flames. Newspaper reporters scurried here and there after stories. Consternation reigned.

Amid all this confusion the most serene man in sight was the president of the factory, he who should have been the most excited. Alighting from his car, he strolled over to where that which he had spent years in building was becoming a total loss. He was calm, at ease, undisturbed.

Charles Roth

A newspaper man spied him, asked him why he was no more concerned. He explained that the loss was fully covered by insurance and that, besides, the most valuable asset of the business hadn't even been touched by the fire.

"To what asset do you refer, Mr. Burlingame?"

"Why, to our good will. We can build a new factory—now we'll have to. We can buy new machinery—better machinery than was in the old plant. As long as the good will of a business is intact, nothing else matters," he concluded.

He was right. The most important thing a business man has is the good will of his customers. Every business which has that is successful; every business which does not have it fails.

Good will is not a mysterious quality like genius. It is a simple, commonsense matter depending upon doing simple, commonsense things.

The first of these consists of giving good value and service, that the business may win and hold friends. The second consists of making the fact that the business is the kind which wins and holds friends known to its customers, by telling them of its ideals and its services and its merchandise.

This telling process is called advertising. Whenever a manufacturer or a merchant advertises in the newspaper he informs you that he is the kind of business man whom it would pay you to patronize. He makes public the fact that he wants good will and that he realizes the only way he can keep it is by living up to his promises.

You as a customer get more for your money when you patronize a concern with good will. Good will is proof that the concern has done something to warrant the friendship and confidence of its customers.

You see, good will doesn't just happen. It is created—by good goods, by good service, by good advertising.

MORGANSVILLE

"Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear Him, for He knoweth our frame. He remembereth that we are dust."

"Leaves have their time to fall, and flowers to wither at the North wind's breath and stars to set, but thou hast all seasons for thine own, Oh Death." Sorrow has again thrown her sable mantle over our family circle, thereby plunging many hearts into grief. The sudden, unexpected passing of Mr. Clarence Pickett, Sunday evening, Oct. 22, 1939 is attributed to an ailment of the heart. A little shadow passed over his placid face like that of a soft cloud upon the serene waters of the lake at sunset. His kindly considerate attitude endeared him to a wide circle, by whom his death is sincerely mourned. He was the beloved son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Pickett, of blessed memory. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Irene Pickett, two daughters, Mrs. Winfield Myers and Miss Marjorie Pickett of Florence, two sons, Trent Pickett of Erlanger, and Foster Lambert Pickett of Florence, three grandchildren, Dale and Nancy Gay Myers and Eldon Pickett, two sisters Mrs. Alice Wolfe, wife of Dr. E. F. Wolfe, prominent Kenton county physician, and Miss Inez Pickett of Louisville, one brother, J. Logan Pickett of Kenton, two nieces, Mrs. Loretta Richardson and Mrs. Margaret Settle, one grand-niece, Dorothy Parker Settle and a number of cousins. Rev. R. F. DeMoisey, pastor of the Florence Baptist church, officiated at the last rites Wednesday afternoon at Swindler Funeral Home, in the presence of a large concourse of kindred and friends, followed by interment in the Independence cemetery, and there amid a profusion of rarest blossoms he sweetly slumbers in the quietude of the hills. Especially beautiful was the basket of American Beauty roses given by the County Commissioners. Most deeply appreciated also were the warks of respect shown by Russell R. Rector, in closing his grocery, suspending business and adjournment of the grand jury during the funeral services. Serving as pallbearers were the following relatives: Dr. E. F. Wolfe, C. Otis Morgan, Trent Pickett, Foster Pickett, Robert L. Rich and Benjamin Harrison Rich.

Democrats Win By Landslide; Johnson's Majority May Be 100,000

A Democratic landslide that may reach unprecedented proportions for a Kentucky state race has swept Governor Keen Johnson, Richmond publisher, into a full four-year term in the office to which he ascended recently when Governor Chandler resigned to become a U. S. Senator.

From early returns indications were that Johnson's majority might be well over 100,000.

In addition to a Governor, Kentucky Democrats elected eight other state officers. To be elected also were 19 members of the Senate; an entire House of Representatives, 100 members; two Judges of the Court of Appeals; Circuit Judges; Commonwealth's Attorneys, and three Railroad Commissioners.

In Boone county the complete vote was as follows:

Governor, Johnson 2,000, Swope, 472; Lieut. Governor, Myers 1,895, Todd 431; Secretary of State, Hatcher 1,814, Trivett 419; Attorney General, Meredith 1,864, Tuggle 409; Auditor, Logan 1,857, Nicely 416; Treasurer, Shannon 1,853, Petot 407; Clerk Court of Appeals, O'Connell 1,856, Stewart 405; Superintendent Public Instruction, Brooker 1,853, Brown 425; Commissioner of Agriculture, May 1,896, Alexander 406; District Railroad Commissioner, McCarthy 1,853, Kipping 403.

In Walton the Johnson-Swope vote was: Precinct 1, Johnson 149, Swope 47; Precinct 2, Johnson 180, Swope 23.

The present Town Board of Trustees was elected without opposition. The votes each received was: Lusby 103; Conrad 104; Groger 103; Vallandingham 98, and Brakefield 97.

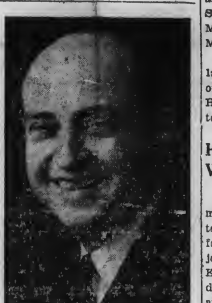
Kenton County Homemakers Meet

Two hundred twenty-five of the Kenton County Homemakers' Association have made luncheon reservations for the annual meeting of this organization which is to be held at the Simon Kenton High school at Independence, Friday, November 10th. Delegates from the following communities will attend: Piner, Oak Island, Atwood-Nicholson, Staffordsburg, Ryland, Oak Ridge, Independence, Beech Grove, Spring Lake, Forest Hills, Winston Hill, Fort Mitchell, Bromley, Dixie Heights, Erlanger, and Crescent Springs.

The high-light of the program will be a report of the meeting of the Associated Country Women of the World held in London, England, this year, to be given by Miss Myrtle Weidon, State Leader of Home Demonstration Agents, University of Kentucky. The talk is to be illustrated with colored films. Other guests will be Mrs. J. A. Stevens of Winchester, Director of the Blue Grass District Federation of Kentucky Homemakers, Miss Lulie Logan, Assistant State Leader Home Demonstration Agents, and Mrs. Sarah B. Holmes, Assistant Dean of Women, University of Kentucky.

Projects studied during the year will be reported in the form of an original skit, "Mrs. Poormanager vs. the Kenton County Homemakers' Association," arranged by Mrs. L. M. Gabriel and Mrs. John Vaughan.

Another feature of the program is a pageant "America the Melting Pot."



Chairmen of the various committees are: Luncheon, Mrs. Bluch Rich; Decorations, Mrs. Dan Markey; Program, Mrs. Lewis M. Gabriel; Music, Mrs. Ernest Smith; Registration, Mrs. Haden Ware, and Ushers, Mrs. C. M. Northcutt.

Mrs. C. D. Vaughan, president of the organization has charge of the meeting, assisted by Mrs. Raymond Eubanks, vice president, and Mrs. Malcolm Oliver, secretary, and Miss Zelma Byerly, Home Demonstration Agent for Kenton County.

DINNER FOR RED CROSS WORKERS FRI.

Rev. J. Russell Cross, Red Cross chairman of Boone County, announced Monday that the annual dinner for Red Cross precinct workers, will be held Friday night, Nov. 10th at 6 p. m., slow time, in Union, at the Presbyterian church rooms.

—Gov. Keen Johnson—

Man Killed When Car Overturns

W. E. Thomas, 60, of 505 Armory Avenue, Cincinnati, was killed late Sunday when his automobile he was driving toward Cincinnati on Route 25 left the road, overturned and crashed into an electric pole, one mile north of Richwood. With Thomas was his 14-year-old son, who was not injured.

As the machine overturned Mr. Thomas was thrown from it and crushed under the car as it crumpled against the pole. A wrecker from the Walton Garage and residents of the community lifted the car from the man's body.

Papers and checks found on the body led to identification at the funeral home of Chambers & Grubbs, where the body was brought. They then communicated with the Thomas family in Cincinnati.

According to James Bolington, Walton Deputy Marshal, Thomas had been to Lancaster, Ky., where he owned property, and was on his way home when the accident occurred.

The highway at the point where the accident occurred is comparatively straight and level, and the cause of the accident is not known.

The body was prepared for burial by Chambers & Grubbs and Tuesday the remains were taken to Lancaster for funeral services and burial.

VERONA HOMEMAKERS MEET

The Verona Homemakers met Friday, November 3rd at the school house for an all day meeting.

The major project "Kitchen Stepsavers" was led by Mrs. Omer Powers. Our Home Demonstration Agent, Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie, gave an interesting talk from her diary, while in England.

Those present were Mrs. Grace Brewster, Mrs. Robert Gordon, Mrs. Lena Harris, Mrs. Pearl Lamn, Mrs. Francis McCormick, Mrs. Lizzie Noel, Mrs. Powers, Mrs. Grace Renaker, Mrs. Lizzie Ryan, Mrs. Lillian Stephenson, Mrs. Charles Vest, Mrs. Maud Wilson, Miss Gillaspie and Miss Gladys Vest.

The next meeting will be on Dec. 1st, when tey will take up the study of making Christmas presents. All Homemakers and guests are urged to attend.

HOMEMAKERS OF WALTON TO MEET

The Walton Homemakers will meet with Mrs. H. F. Mann at Crittenden, on Friday, November 10th for an all day meeting. The subject for the day will be "Improved Kitchens." Mrs. Ora Fry is president, and Mrs. Anna Pearl Gaines and Mrs. Marie Hughes are project leaders.

A TIMELY REMINDER

Simon Kenton School Entered

Burglars forced entry into the Simon Kenton High school, near Independence, Tuesday night and, after damaging furniture and woodwork, left with more than $100 in cash and stamps.

Superintendent J. A. Caywood, whose office was also entered, said the intruders broke a catch on a rear window in order to enter. The money was taken from the office of R. C. Hinsdale, principal, who was unable to deposit it in the bank. Stamps were taken from Caywood's office.

Caywood said several bananas and a small quantity of candy was taken from the cafeteria. Filing cabinets were scratched and marked and the school library equipment was broken.

The robbery was first reported by Mrs. Ida Keeney, cafeteria manager. Fingerprints have been photographed and county police are investigating.

Pre-Christmas Dividend Club

Thirty-one merchants attended the special meeting of the Covington Retail Merchants Association at Linus Hand's Crescent Dairy Bar dining rooms, in Covington, Monday night.

Four new member firms, represented by the following, were introduced at the meeting: William J. Tillman of Tillman's Furniture & Appliance Store; Edward Love of the Union Store; Edward Geis of Geis HomeAppliance Co., and Carl Mando of the Dine-Schabell Furniture Co.

Plans were discussed for the launching of the Pre-Christmas Dividend Club feature promoting early Christmas shopping.

It was announced by President Francis Vehr that merchants have until November 15 to join the association and participate in the distribution of pre-Christmas dividend coupons. Merchants have been asked to consult their neighbor merchant or call Mrs. Hitch, secretary, at the Covington Chamber of Commerce.

Bearcats To Play Burlington, Saturday

The Walton-Verona Bearcats will inaugurate the 1939-40 basketball season on Saturday night with a Boone County Conference game, when they go to Burlington to meet the Tomcats. This game will also initiate the spacious new Burlington gym. which was recently completed.

The Bearcats have been in the conditioning stage for some time and Coach Shields believes the boys will be ready to go at top speed in this initial contest.

In a tune-up practice battle on Tuesday evening against an independent local team, the Bearcats were winners, 42 to 27.

Coach Shields will select his starting line-up for Saturday night's fray from the following cagers: DeSha McElroy, Charles Ransler, Paul Simpson, Stanley Lee McElroy, Jimmie Coyle and Rayburn Simpson.

The Tomcats have three men from last year's team and will, no doubt furnish the locals with plenty of opposition.

In addition to the varsity tussle, the second teams will also see action Saturday night. Plan now to see the new addition of the Cats and Cubs in action at this time.

In the afternoon the speakers will be Dr. DeWitt Morgan, Supt. of Indianapolis schools; Dr. Wilford Aiken of Ohio State University, and Mrs. Clifford.

Friday evening the four principal speakers will conduct a PANEL for the purpose of further discussion and conclusion of the main problem.

Notice Village Delivery Patrons Of Walton

The Post Office Department has notified the Walton office that it is necessary for the patrons to have the correct house numbers, as well as suitable mail boxes located conveniently upon their residence or business establishments. There has been a number of these communications sent out and the remainder will be completed and delivered this week.

According to Post Office Department regulations, these are to be erected within thirty days from the time you receive your notice, or the service is to be withdrawn until the numbers and receptacles have been provided.

The numbers are sent to you even though you do not have Village Carrier service, for your convenience, since most people like to have a house number for directory purposes. We will appreciate your co-operation in erecting these immediately, as it will aid in the correct delivery of your mail.

Local Banking Is A Local Job

Washington, D. C.—The banking act of 1935 placed the control over bank credit in the hands of the Federal Government. Bank examiners often exercised too broad authority and imposed in many cases severe restrictions upon the officers and directors of national banks. In many instances small business men have lost their credit because examiners assumed that they were smarter than the officers of the banks who knew all about the personal and business affairs of customers.

That is why some of the best authorities upon the subject have come to believe that rigid Federal control over the banks has been carried too far. It is very questionable whether the banking system has been made permanently secure notwithstanding the insurance of depositors. It has unnecessarily and wrongfully increased the difficulties of countless numbers of small business men throughout the country.

Everybody knows that the banking business has not always been successful in the past, and that was the excuse for running the banks through the wringer in 1933. After the juice had all been squeezed out of the banks the system was immersed in centralized control from Washington.

The existing centralized control is just about as full of holes as other Federalisms. The fact cannot be ignored that the human element is recognized, every time a bank selects its staff. The best business men and the best citizens are chosen to administer and safeguard the money and credit for the community.

The old-fashioned notion grows that local banking is a local job, and that while it is proper and correct to lay down definite laws and rules to carry it on, that there is not reason to think that the details of a community bank are better understood by officials in Washington than in the territory which the bank serves.—J. E. Jones.

Starve Germany

Former President Hoover concludes that the United States will not go to war with the Allies, because American troops will not be needed. The reason they will not be needed is because France and Britain, by cutting out wastes of war, will be able to reduce Germany and starve it to peace.

* * * *

Flaws In the Laws

Southern states continue their objections to standardized wages and hours, because those States produce more cheaply than the North—on account of climatic advantages.

There are many complaints, mostly from the South, about inequalities of railroad rates. The claim is that some sections of the country can be served by the railroads cheaper than other parts.

Those are visible flaws in the above laws. There is a growing demand in favor of patching-up the punctures and blowouts, in order that collective bargaining between employers and unions may become workable.

The National Labor Relations Administration has shown a very unreasonable attitude toward industries and its employers and employes. Nevertheless, nothing more than plain commonsense changes are needed in that Administration to make the law a valuable agency of the Government.

Undoubtedly some of the members of the Labor Board should be relieved from office, and replaced by able and fair-minded men who would hold the Board down to its practical and obvious duties—which are mostly of a judicial nature.

At present the Board is its own detective, its own investigator—and a very prejudiced one-sided organization.

The Wage-Hour Act is the most recent piece of legislation that has to do with matters referred to in this summary of conditions. Already it has its second Administrator. Some amendments are needed to make the Wage-Hour law more effective and useful.

Links of Progress

The national income per head of population was once about one-third of what it is today, taking into account the purchasing power of the dollar. That is the 19th century history. Railroads, sewing machines, the telegraph, reapers and harvesters had just made their appearances. The turret lathe, rotary printing presses safety pins came along. Women busily polished kerosene lamps. In later years the telephone, phonograph, electric lights, typewriters, and street cars knocked at the door of civilization and asked to come in. Automobiles and motion pictures came at the very turn of the century and the tractors and air-planes. Talking machines, radio, electric refrigeration, oil heat, air conditioning, television, and the Diesel engine arrived. New processes, new products, new discoveries and limitless possibilities ahead bring us down to date.

There is satisfaction in the knowledge that seventy per cent of all the world's motor vehicles are registered in the United States, and that there are more than 30 million of them now on the highways—three times as many as 20 years ago.

The automobile, petroleum, steel, electricity and their allied industries have created 12,500,000 more jobs than existed before their invention while taking up the displacements from the blacksmithing, harness-making and other jobs ended by the new inventions.

How many additional jobs will be created by the new industries to come from today's inventions is only a guess, but past experiences show there will be more than are lost by changing styles and techniques.

Isn't that progress?

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5582 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A story of ingratitude and gratitude. Did you ever help a fellow, stay with him through thick and thin, helping him 90 times out of a 100; sometimes 99 out of a 100, and then if you failed to do as he thought you should do one time, he would forget the 99 times, fall out with you, demeaning you, saying all kinds of hard things about you?

I knew of a man that another man picked up barefooted, putting him on his feet, giving him a good position and salary with the understanding that he would keep sober. If he failed to do this he would automatically discharge himself. He held good for quite a while, but went back to his old drinking habit, which discharged him.

He was called down by his benefactor. He wanted to fight, calling him all kind of names, not realizing he was hurting himself more than anyone else. He is now living on charity, one of the down and outers, caused by his own dissipation.

There are very few persons who haven't had this kind of experience, trying to help others. I do not say that all people are ungrateful. There should not be any. They will come to grief sooner or later.

This reminds me of a grateful man who was given good advice and was helped. He said to me, "I was about to give up and pass out, calling life a failure, but a good man gave me good advice, told me to read my Bible and go to a Higher Power, which I did on bended knee. Praying and reading my Bible, I got help and got a new hold on life." He said to me as his benefactor. "I want to thank you a million times over and over for helping to save my life, by giving me good advice. I am giving the flowers of gratitude while you are living, not waiting until you are dead."

Let us remember as we go through life that a single flower with a word of gratitude while living, is worth more than the most expensive basket of flowers given when our friends or benefactors are dead.

YEAH! MAN!

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

Armistice Day this year will be celebrated in peace only in America.

This announcement from the White House failed to receive the headlines accorded the latest bulletins from Europe.

But the story back of that announcement is one that has a strong appeal to every American home.

It means that America is at peace, that it intends to celebrate that peace, and that America has no intention of breaking that peace.

Such is not the case in Europe. In France and England this November 11, men will march. Flags will wave. Drums will rattle and bands will play. But this European military display will be in hope of a new Armistice yet to come. In America it will be for an Armistice already achieved.

This is significant in the light of the unpublished debate which is going on in the cloak rooms of the Capitol. More and more the off the record talk is to the effect that this is not America's war and that the only sure way by which America can become involved is for America to talk herself into war.

To some, at first, the thought of the United States talking itself into war, was ridiculous. But after some six weeks of war this statement provokes few laughs. It is now recognized by many in Washington as the most dangerous war factor with which the country must deal.

It comes about this way:

The average American is interested in his wife, his children, his home, his job, his town and his favorite hobby, whether that be the golf course, the fishing tackle or the like.

Mr. Average American also is honest. He pays his debts. He goes to church. He gives to charity and he sympathizes with those who have drawn a less favorable place in life than he.

This background completely disarms him mentally for an appreciation or understanding of the "power politics" of the restless millions of Europe. He attempts to understand the European in the way that he would analyze a new neighbor in the community and thereby he makes a mistake.

During the neutrality debate in the Senate figures were placed in the Congressional Record. They impressed more than one in the debonair Capital City. Here is what they revealed:

In the same 155 years of American independence, the British Empire has fought 54 wars, lasting a total of 102 years or has been at war with someone for 68 percent of the time that the United States has existed.

During this same period of 155 years the French have fought 53 wars. These lasted a total of 9½ years. In other words France has been fighting somebody 66 percent of the time that America was developing from an infant nation to the greatest and most prosperous nation in the history of the world.

And the man who compiled these figures pointed out that during a quarter of a century of this period England and France were fighting each other.

More than one agreed that this was the best evidence submitted to the Senate that war is chronic in Europe.

And military experts in Washington are snickering quietly at Americans who are worried over a possible Hitler victory. They point out that the crushing of the world's greatest Empire (the British) and the world's Empire No. 2 (the French) is accomplished more easily on paper or vocally than on the battlefield or the high seas.

To the Americans who are fearful of a Hitler-Stalin invasion in the event of a doubtful German-Russian victory they recall that Chinese parable that: He who crushes two giants is himself well crushed.

These same military experts laugh outright at those who are apprehensive of American safety in the event of the surrender of the British fleet. The reason for the laughter is, they say, that the British fleet will never surrender. They point out that at the end of the World War the Kaiser's High Seas Fleet surrendered between lines of British and American men of war—each line of warships being stronger than the fleet of ships being surrendered. And, at the time of the surrender there were two Allied ships, with guns, ready to open up at any moment upon any German ship which might show the slightest sign of fight.

Even though many more British warships are destroyed, and military experts say this will happen, Hitler and his Red ally will have no fleet able to enforce a surrender of the war dogs which fly the British flag.

Gridster Must Pass and Kick

Otherwise Ground Gaining Difficult, Says Star

CHICAGO (NNS).—Marshall Goldberg, Pittsburgh's All American back who has been unable to strike his stride in the National Professional Football League, has found out that unless you pass or kick, or do both, you don't gain much ground in pro football.

"I'm no passer or kicker and consequently when I am in the tailback spot the other team packs the defense and makes blocking for me doubly hard for the team. But I'm learning to pass and when I do, the other teams won't be able to guess so easily what I am going to do. I want to prove I can play pro football," he says.

Goldberg, who was All-American as a left halfback in his junior year at Pittsburgh, then switched over to become a blocking fullback and won the same honors as a senior, was an outstanding left-footed kicker in high school football. When he went to Pittsburgh the coaches attempted to teach him to kick right-footed and succeeded only in throwing his kicking style off altogether.

Marshall won the approbation of Jock Sutherland when he willingly sacrificed himself to do the blocking for Casciano last year and has shown a willingness to learn seldom found in such a widely-publicized footballer. His first appearances in pro football were marked by his weakness on pass defense, but he has more or less remedied that fault and is one of the best men in the league in the halfback berth.

CONFEDERATE REUNIONS

Within the last few years there has practically passed in Kentucky and farther south one of the most picturesque of all institutions, the gathering of the last remnants of the Southern armies for their annual reunion. When I was a boy, it seemed that the old soldiers were about as common as World War veterans are now; they were so common that one rarely thought about a time when they would not be. But their reunion always created as tir, whether it was only a local affair or a reunion of the whole South in some large city. From my earliest boyhood there were meetings in our county. Since I had a big voice and no fear, I often had to say a piece for the old boys. In that way I came to look forward to the annual event, for it gave me a chance to shine.

It was hard for us children to believe that any of those who got back alive were plain privates. So much honor was attached to one's being a captain or a lieutenant that the title was transferred to privates, just as in our time all preachers and most college professors, whatever their education, are called "Doctor." One of our neighbors was actually a lieutenant. Long after the war, when he entered politics, he was at once a captain. It was a disappointment to me when I discovered that the latter title was given locally but not by the C. S. A.

On the great day in question the old soldiers assembled in their frayed old uniforms, if they still owned them. The Stars and Bars flew in place of the Stars and Stripes. Some long-winded speaker, rarely a soldier, moved us to tears by his account of the heroism of the men who came back and of the still greater heroism of those who died. One almost regretted that his father or his uncle got back, for that argued a species of cowardice, which no real Confederate ever admitted having. At the conclusion of the speech the old fellows, with quavering voices, gave the famous "Rebel Yell." In spite of their advanced ages, the yell really had an effect on us all. We would probably not have been surprised at or have seen the unconscious humor in the fiery speech made somewhere in the South in which the orator said that at Judgment Day the Confederates would rise first, give the Rebel Yell, and take possession of Paradise.

A morbid curiosity seized all of us when we had a chance to talk to the ones who suffered wounds. For the twentieth time we asked just how the wound came to be, how long the sufferer was unconscious, how long it took him to get back on the firing line again. On reunion days we looked around at the men with missing arms and eyes and legs with a queer sort of pride that seems to be a part of everybody, never thinking, it seems, how guilty humanity as a whole was and is for these same wounds.

The people on the side lines got their share of the day. Some of the old fellows got beastly drunk and acted as if the war could be fought all over again at the drop of a hat. More often the mere visitors, younger men, did the honors of getting drunk and causing trouble. Refreshment stands did a big business, ice cream and soda pop being the things most bought.

But this rather picturesque gathering has gone or is so nearly gone that it has few other chapters. Brave or cowardly, the old soldier has become a past institution. We who had relatives in the number suffered pangs when the thinning line met last without our uncles or grandfathers. Sic transit gloria mundi.

Off Days Play Havoc With Minnesota Team

MINNEAPOLIS (NNS)—Bernie Bierman, coach of the Minnesota Gophers, does not like an open date on his schedule and he has reason for not liking that state of affairs because since he took over the coaching reins he has lost two and tied one in three games he wanted to win most of all.

In 1933 Minnesota had an off day on their schedule and the following Saturday a Michigan team played them to a 0-0 tie. In 1937 they had a layoff and then lost to Notre Dame, 7-6. Last year Northwestern upset the dope by beating them, 6-3.

Horses Play Big Part In Europe 'Blackouts'

PARIS (NNS)—The city, not the country, is becoming the domain of the horse in France and England these days.

When war brought nightly blackouts, the blackouts brought increased traffic tangles, increased accidents and fatalities. The French and English were not long in realizing that the use of horses instead of motorized vehicles would help solve the new blackout problems.

Horses, able to see almost as well as cats in the dark, now take care of a great share of the nocturnal activities here and in London. Wagons have increased to near pre-automobile proportions, and some people, who have to get around at night, are using saddle horses.

And up at the firing line, despite the motorized divisions, Old Dobbin is still handling his share of the load, too.

NEVER SAY DIE

LOS ANGELES (NNS)—Arnold "Jigger" Statz, ex-major leaguer and now Los Angeles' outfielder, recently completed his 21st season in organized baseball and is all set for two or three more.

Stay On Your Own Side Of Road, Avoid Accidents

Safe drivers observe all road signs and drive on their own side of the highway, A. E. Mittendorf, Vice President of the Cincinnati Automobile Club and Director of the American Automobile Association, told Trustees of the Cincinnati Automobile Club in urging that motorists show more respect for road signs and for each other.

"Any man or woman walking along a sidewalk or roadway remains on the right side—they pass each other on the right side—and they are courteous about it. Too many automobile drivers hug the center of the road, refusing to budge an inch to permit anyone to pass and when a motorist becomes infuriated with the treatment and tries to pass he might wind up in a ditch. The operators of truck fleets and buses have taught road courtesy to their drivers . . . but the individual automobile driver too often is a road hog."

Today, the Cincinnati Automobile Club with approximately 16,000 members, is the largest civic organization in the Ohio Valley, serving members in Northern Kentucky, Eastern Indiana and Southern Ohio. These divisions are self-governing, having their own officers, advisory board, important committees and have direct representation on the Board of Directors of the Cincinnati Automobile Club. Motorists may join the automobile club in the division in which they live, Vice President Mittendorf stated, urging all thoughtful automobile owners to join the club for its cooperative effort in road service, anti-tax legislation, highways, safety, and other services for the betterment of the motorist.

Poultry Pointers for November

At this time of the year, laying heens are paying hens, so the poultry managment program should be centered around those practices which will encourage better production. Good production is dependent upon a good feeding program, comfortable quarters and a sufficient supply of water.

Stanley Caton, Poultry Specialist from the College of Agriculture, at Lexington, recommends the following feeding program: (1) Must get hens and pullets to consume large amounts of a well balanced ration by keping the mash and grain before the flock at all times in self feeders or hoppers. The addition of a small amount of fresh mash each day will cause the hens to eat more. Provide at least one foot of hopper space for each four hens. Three self feeders four feet long and son constructed that the hens can eat from both sides is sufficient for 100 hens.

A simple mash mixture of three parts wheat shorts, one part ground yellow corn and one part meat scraps is satisfactory where hens are allowed free range, for half a day on land which has a supply of green feed on it. One pound of salt should be added to each 100 pounds of mash.

One hundred hens will drink about four or five gallons of water a day.

The hens house should be kept dry and free from drafts. Crowding on the roosts may be caused by drafts. It is desirable to have a deep litter of straw on the floor at all times.

Breckenridge county grass tests will include Italian rye grass, Canada bluegrass, meadow fescue, oats grass and brome grass.

Women Prefer Security Over Love, Marriage Questionnaire Shows

IN a questionnaire sent out by Gretta Palmer to one hundred ex-wives and one hundred ex-husbands to help determine why marriages go wrong, the most illuminating answer was that 45 of the 200 had gone into marriage with no firm intention of making it a success. In other words, marriage to them from the start was not the real thing but something of a trial balloon. They knew that if things went wrong they could always count on divorce as an escape. Divorce was their protection.

"Without love or even a deep fondness holding them together, husbands and wives are bound to quarrel, and without a firm determination to succeed in marriage at all costs—with never a thought of divorce—many are sure to let the first quarrel lead to the wreck of the home," writes Miss Palmer in the November Good Housekeeping, in an analysis of the questionnaire.

Of the 200 questioned, only a little more than half had married for love. And more startling is that most of these were men. Seventy-five percent of the women admitted they had married for other reasons. "Increased Prestige" and "Security" were checked far more often than "Love," "Children" or "Companionship."

A few months ago a questionnaire was sent out to one hundred Golden Wedding couples. Not one man or woman out of that entire group had married for "Security." All the women and almost all the men had married for "Love."

On the average the marriages of the 200 lasted only four and one half years. The longest was 12 years; the shortest, six months. It seems, therefore, that the fourth year is the most dangerous year. This is the year, as one answer puts it, when "trouble arises after the first glamour has worn off and before the habit of being married has had a chance to harden."

How much time elapsed between divorce and the second marriage was one of the questions asked by Miss Palmer. The majority answered that at least two years had elapsed before remarrying, and the average period was between three and four years. This is a sign that something other than another "love" had caused the break-up of their homes.

PUTTING GOD'S KINGDOM FIRST

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 6:19-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness. —Matthew 6:33.

Said the Robin to the Sparrow:
"I should really like to know
Why these anxious human beings
Rush about and worry so."

Said the Sparrow to the Robin:
"Friend, I think that it must be
That they have no Heavenly Father
Such as cares for you and me."
—Elizabeth Cheney.

Most men are rushing about madly. Worry presses them down. They wonder whether life is worthwhile, whether somewhere there is not relief from this nervous tension that is destroying mind and body. Well, there is relief and it consists of but one ingredient. Give God His proper place, the first place in your life, and "all these things" (Matt. 6:33) will take their rightful places. Seeking first the kingdom of God will settle every problem about money, about food and clothing, and about the future.

I. Money (vv. 19-24).

The word in our text is "treasures," and we know that it has a broader meaning than money, but since in our day men seem to translate all values into dollars, we feel free to use that word "money" to express our thoughts.

The treasure is something that one has placed somewhere in order to keep it for himself. It is not a thing gathered for the purpose of using it to serve others or to serve God, but something put away on the shelf to be kept for one's own enjoyment.

There are two places in which a man can lay up treasure, on earth or in heaven; but it is only as he hoards treasure on earth that he becomes selfish. That which he sends on to heaven by his devotion of life and in service to Christ, by his sacrificial giving to the cause of Christ, by his encouragement of those who are witnessing for Christ, all this is done for the glory of God and without hope of reward. How great will be the surprise of some when they come to heaven and find what they have thus laid up for eternity.

Laying up treasures on this earth, on the other hand, leads to covetousness, to enslavement to one's possessions (be they great or small), and to the evils that follow like a train in the wake of a love of money.

II. Food and Clothing (vv. 25-32).

Some who have no great desire to amass riches are nevertheless in constant anxiety about food and raiment for the morrow; in fact, it is true of some who have great riches that they live in fear lest next month or next year or ten years from now they may be in need.

What is the answer of the Lord Jesus? Consider the birds. They are not able to work nor are they able to pray, but God feeds them. Consider the glory of the flowers of the fields, for not even a king can dress himself in such beauty. "Are ye not much better than they?" (v. 26).

"As far as known, no bird ever tried to build more nests than its neighbors; no fox ever fretted because it had only one hole in which to hide; no squirrel ever died of anxiety lest he should not lay up enough nuts for two winters instead of one; and no dog ever lost any sleep over the fact that he did not have enough bones laid aside for his declining years" (Public Health Service).

Proper forethought is good and right for we are intelligent beings, but anxiety about our daily needs is always dishonoring to God.

III. The Future (vv. 33, 34).

Why will we fret ourselves about the future? It is in God's hands, and even if it were in our hands, what could we do about it? Even tomorrow, with its needs and its blessings, with its joy and its sorrows, is not yet here, and when it does come, there will be God's gracious provision for each passing hour.

Unsaved friend, will you not take the Lord Jesus Christ just now as your personal Saviour and let Him solve the problems of your life as you put the kingdom of God first? Christian friend, if you too have been bearing burdens which are not honoring to God, will you not tell Him just now, and put them down at the feet of the Lord Jesus? "Casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you" (I Pet. 5:7), which might properly be translated, "Casting all your worries (or distractions) on Him, for He worrieth about you."

Be Still Then and Know

Only in the sacredness of inward silence does the soul truly meet the secret, hiding God. The strength of resolve, which afterwards shapes life and mixes itself with action, is the fruit of those sacred, solitary moments when we meet God alone. —F. W. Robertson.

WALNUT LICK

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hughes entertained a few of the young married folks Saturday night. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. James Rhodes, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Lucas and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Chapman.

Mrs. Nina Whitson and son Jimmie were calling on Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Edrington, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Manford Craft and daughter Barbara Jean and Mrs. Emma Willeford spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Elzie Ross of Glencoe.

Miss Nina Jane Glacken spent Saturday night and Sunday with her sister Mrs. James Rhodes.

Some of the folks around here have been killing hogs the past few days, as the weather has been cool.

MORGANSVILLE

"The blood of Christ cleanseth from all sin."

Many hearts were overshadowed by sorrow to learn of the passing of Mr. J. Logan Pickett, 55, of Kenton, Saturday evening, Oct. 28th. Closely has he followed his brother in death. Less than a week having elapsed since he was summoned. As he descended the sunset slope, he had been in physical decline for an extended period, and despite every effort put forth to restoration and untiring ministrations of his devoted wife and loved ones, he sank peacefully into that dreamless slumber with the calm and sweet repose of eternal rest upon his brow and like the shadow of a passing cloud his spirit winged its homeward flight. In his youthful days he affiliated with our little local church transfering it later to Kenton Baptist church where he was a deacon and a prominent member. Mr. Pickett had a kindly and likeable personality and at all times was affable and his characteristics of friendliness and loyalty remain a blessing like the lingering softness of twilight after the sun has set. On Tuesday afternoon his pastor, Rev. Harold Lee Davis, conducted the last rites at the Kenton church. Mrs. Katherine Rowlette of Covington sweetly sang appropriate selections, accompanied by Miss Hilda Stephens, also of Covington. Following the funeral services interment took place in Independence cemetery near the spot where reposes the remains of his beloved parents, brother and boyhood chum, the late Mr. Grover Cleveland Morgan, of blessed memory. Serving as pallbearers were C. Otis Morgan, Harry Stephens, Trent Pickett, Mr. Deathrage, James E. Gray and Max Gray. Floral tributes were of surpassing beauty and especially beautiful was an elaborate remembrance from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of which he was a member. Prior to his retirement two years ago, he had served as L. & N. Railroad engineer for a number of years. Besides his wife, Mrs. Parker Baker Pickett, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Loretta Richards and Mrs. Margaret Settle, one dear little granddaughter, Miss Dorothy Parker Settle, two sisters, Mrs. Alice Wolfe, wife of Dr. E. F. Wolfe a widely known physician, and Miss Inez Pickett of Louisville, and a number of cousins.

Stalin Rose To Power By Ruthless Tactics, Lyons Maintains

JOSEF Stalin's rise to power, unlike that of his fellow dictators, Hitler and Mussolini, was by a shrewd manipulation of the political strings once he had them clutched in his strong, peasant fingers. The ability to arouse the masses by flattery is missing in Stalin. He is a poor orator; he employs no theatricals. Rather, he moves slowly, silently, cautiously ready to spring at the opportune moment. He knows that his power does not depend on the people Cruel, ruthless inner party politics is his forte.

"He gives a feeling of boundless power held in leash by an iron will," writes Eugene Lyons in the December Cosmopolitan. "There is about the man something deeply Oriental — infinately cautious, brooding; outwardly relaxed but tensed to spring inside. He is a recluse, an introvert. He has no friends, but only underlings; no political allies, but only scared flatterers."

Josef Stalin

Stalin is no mental giant; he knows it and is sensitive to the fact; even his thick coat of armor affords no protection. That is the reason he likes to surround himself with men of culture. He saw much of Maxim Gorki, the great novelist, before Gorki died, some say by poisoning. Stanislavsky, the founder of the Moscow Art Theatre, was another who was summoned often.

A characteristic that has helped shape Stalin's career perhaps more than any other is his passion for revenge. According to Lyons, Stalin has been quoted as saying that the sweetest thing in the world is to prepare a cruel revenge on an enemy —and go to sleep. In every purge in Russia the last few years the motive has been partly or wholly revenge. Hatred burns in his blood like volcanic fires.

On December 21st Stalin will be sixty years old. Russia will grovel at his feet on that day. Praise of Stalin is already mandatoory, says Lyons. His name is always printed in capital letters. A dozen cities, thousands of streets, squares, canals, railroads, rivers are named in his honor. He is Father, Leader, the Deity, the World Genius.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

HOBBY PICTURES

Any child hobby is full of picture chances. Adult hobbies, too. Picture them as they progress, step by step.

IF YOU have a son or daughter who is a budding hobbyist, picture the child's progress. A series of these pictures has delightful "story-telling" quality, and will increase in memory value as time passes.

Almost any hobby can be pictured. If your young daughter paints or draws, snap a progressive series of her at her sketch pad or easel. If the boy builds model planes, snap a series of him busy in his workshop fitting parts of the new model. Take pictures that show the progress of the job, from the first stick to the completed plane — and its trial flight!

First attempts at golf . . . first lessons in tennis or swimming. . . . any outdoor sport is full of these picture chances. Picture each stage, and you will treasure these snapshots later on.

Take special care with these pictures, to get just the effect you want. For example, in taking the picture above, a light yellow K-1 filter was used on the camera lens, to darken the blue water and sky and make the white clothing and boat sail "stand out." Fast film was used, and reflections from the water made a short exposure possible—1/50 second at f.11. The picture shows careful thought, and proves that the rule "think before you shoot" is worth observing—whether you are taking hobby snapshots or some other kind.

Hobbies grow and expand, and they should be represented in your picture-history of the family. Take plenty of pictures, showing each new phase and development of your son's or daughter's hobby—and begin taking them now, for tomorrow there will be new stages to picture, while today's opportunities will be past.

ALL IS READY FOR ROLL CALL OF RED CROSS IN STATE

Campaign to Enroll Every Adult as Member Probably Better Organized Than Any Previous Drive, With Chapters Over Kentucky Actively Aiding in Sign-Up

The 1939 Roll Call of the American Red Cross in Kentucky will get under way on Armistice Day, Nov. 11th, with the roll call workers probably more thoroughly organized and the chapters of the Red Cross themselves doing more to make certain the success of the campaign than ever before in the history of Red Cross rollcalls in the state.

District and county chairmen have been to it that their territories have been organized down to the precinct and school district. In most of the cities the campaign has been so planned that it is not believed a single person will be overlooked in the effort to enroll every adult in the 1939 rollcall. If any should be overlooked, however, they may enroll by calling at Red Cross headquarters in the county or by communicating with any of the workers.

There is a need also for men's clothing, women's heavy dresses and sweaters, soap, as well as medicines and food.

Record Number of Disasters Reported by Red Cross for Year

The American Red Cross gave emergency relief and rehabilitation aid to 130,000 sufferers of 157 disasters in the United States during the fiscal year ended June 30, according to a report submitted by DeWitt Smith, newly appointed director of the Red Cross disaster relief service.

Mr. Smith said the number of disaster operations exceeded that of any previous year, with cloudbursts, epidemics, fires, windstorms, snowslides, and other catastrophes striking in 43 states and the territory of Alaska. Red Cross disaster relief expenditures totaled $2,276,109 for the year.

"Since its founding in 1881 the Red Cross has aided victims of 2,495 disasters here and abroad, expending $148,000,000 for rescue, food, clothing, shelter, medical and nursing aid and the permanent rehabilitation of families unable to re-establish themselves," Mr. Smith said.

CHEMICAL SCIENCE REDUCES COST OF SOIL IMPROVEMENT

CHICAGO.—New developments in chemical science and improvements in process of manufacture have resulted in a decline since 1920 of 49 per cent in the prices farmers pay for commercial fertilizer.

At the same time the plant food content of the average ton of fertilizer has increased 33 per cent, according to a survey made public here.

"Farmers of the United States spent $192,000,000 for commercial fertilizer in 1938," says a bulletin. "Based on 1920 prices, the same amount of fertilizer would have cost

It Pays to Fertilize Oats.

$431,000,000 if new developments had not lowered production costs.

"These savings, passed on to fertilizer users, amounted to $239,000,000.

"The outlay for fertilizer represented an average of little more than $30 per farm in the United States last year. Yet records on the use of fertilizer on farms throughout the Middle West reveal that every dollar spent for fertilizer results in an average increased value of crops amounting to about three and a half dollars."

Steadily increasing efficiency in the production of fertilizer in the last twenty years, is indicated by the fact that production costs have been cut and fertilizer prices have been kept more closely in line with farm prices than practically any other commodity.

New formulas have been developed by manufacturers providing a greater percentage of plant food. Economies in transportation and distribution have been effected. The number of recommended analyses has been reduced through the cooperation of agronomists, state agricultural colleges and experimental stations with the manufacturers.

FOUR CLUBS SCORE 100% PROJECT COMPLETIONS

One hundred percent of the Agricultural projects in four of the ten community 4-H clubs have already been completed, according to H. B. Drake, Assistant County Agent. The first four clubs making this record are: Grant, Burlington, Petersburg and Verona. Achievement meetings have already been held in these communities and appropriate recognition given each member and leader. Certificates of accomplishment are awarded each member successfully completing one year of club work, certificates of achievement for two years, certificates of award for three years and certificates of distinction for four years completion. These cards are signed by the State Club Leader and the local County and Home Demonstration agents.

Certificates of honor are granted for five and six year completions with silver certificates for seven years and gold certificates for eight or more years of successful work. These certificates are signed by the above mentioned people in addition to the President of the University of Kentucky and the Dean of the College of Agriculture.

The six other clubs of the county are planning to attain 100% completion within the next few days.

GOLD CERTIFICATES AWARDED 4-H CLUB MEMBERS

Three Boone County 4-H Club members have been awarded gold certificates for outstanding club work, according to H. B. Drake, Assistant County Agent. Orville Conrad and Billy Graves of Hebron and Alma Frances Stephens of New Haven are the members receiving this honor.

FARMERS SHOULD SIGN ACP APPLICATIONS

Boone County farmers have done a splendid job in the 1939 Agricultural Conservation program, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Approximately 925 farmers have qualified for benefit payments and the applications for these payments are now ready to be signed at the county office in Burlington.

Sign-up days will be held in the local communities in the near future. Farmers should take advantage of the first community sign-up day or sign at the County Office before this time. Applications signed early will be in the first shipment leaving the County Office and these farmers should receive their payments earlier than those who sign later.

Coward Satirizes Society In First Published Fiction

AN omnibus of three short novels by Noel Coward, "The Wooden Madonna," "What Mad Pursuit?" and "The Kindness of Mrs. Radcliffe," the first fiction ever written by the famous playwright, is published in the December issue of Cosmopolitan magazine.

Biting, almost merciless satire is behind all three stories. Coward, with sharp, pungent strokes of the pen, draws the human curtain aside here, nakedly revealed, stands contemporary society.

Noel Coward

"The Wooden Madonna" deals with the European adventures of handsome Aubrey Dakers, a young writer, whose first play had captivated all London. Aubrey had decided on a little Continental jaunt to gather local color for a book of short stories, a book that would help develop in him "an easy flexible style." "Go away and take notes, watch people, travel, look at Somerset Maugham," his agent had advised. Aubrey did all this, and even went so far as to draw people into conversation to get their life stories. That was the real thing, the good experience. One night in the bar Aubrey got a victim. He was pudgy and middle-class and unexciting. Aubrey soon found out he was a bore. But the fellow was hard to shake; he stuck close by; Aubrey couldn't escape him. Then, when he had accomplished his point, the fellow suddenly relented. Aubrey could go now; he had been the perfect dupe. The fellow was a spy!

"What Mad Pursuit?" is almost a sociological treatise of Long Island society; the madcap lives the people lead; the merry round of parties from morning to night; the jealousy of the women; the sloppy goodnaturedness of the men. Evan Lorrimer, a celebrated English writer of 43, who is in the States for a lecture tour, is the leading character. Lorrimer, tortured by the confining atmosphere of New York, gladly accepts an invitation to spend a week-end in the country "where there isn't a thing to do except lie about and relax." The week-end turns out to be a nightmare. "One more drink," is the chant that keeps ringing in his ears. He can find no peace, no quiet, no corner to just "lie about." In desperation, to get away from this madness, for he feels he will die if he doesn't, he sneaks out the back window in the dead of night and starts walking back to the city.

"The Kindness of Mrs. Radcliffe" is the story of one day in the life of a "good" woman. Mrs. Radcliffe had "a disciplined mind, a disciplined body." Life to her was a serious business; there was no room for emotion or spontaneous laughter. She prided herself on her sane and healthy character; all that mattered was to be thought a kind and good woman in the eyes of God. She had no close friends; her husband, a sound-thinking man, was slightly afraid of his wife. He lacked spirit, a strange failing for a lawyer. Mrs. Radcliffe's daughter, married to a struggling artist, for which her mother never forgave her, had enough spirit for herself and her father. Her hour of triumph came when she told her mother what she thought of her. Even Mr. Radcliffe slammed the door that evening. It was a tragic day for Mrs. Radcliffe. She even began to fear she was toppling from her pedestal. But in the end prayer saved her.

Social Security News

Editor's Note: This is the sixth in a series of questions and answers relating to the amended social security program:

Question—What is meant by a "primary insurance benefit" under the old-age and survivors insurance program?

Question—What does the term "fully insured" mean, as used in the old-age insurance amendments?

Answer—In general a "fully insured" worker is one who has worked in covered employment for a period of time equal to half the time after 1936 (or his 21st birthday, if it is later) and before he reaches age 65 or dies. The minimum period necessary to be fully insured is six quarters in covered employment. After a worker has 40 quarters of coverage he is "fully insured" regardless of whether he is in covered employment thereafter.

Question—What benefits are payable with respect to a "fully insured" individual?

Answer—Any of the benefits available under the system, the benefits actually payable depending in a particular case on the circumstances.

Question—What are the circumstances under which payments can be made?

Answer—There are four. First, the worker may reach age 65 and retire, thereupon receiving his own monthly retirement benefit. Second, there are supplementary benefits for the aged wife or for dependent children of this worker. Third, there are survivors' monthly benefits, for an aged widow, a younger widow with dependent children in her care and the dependent children themselves; or if there is no widow or children entitled to benefits, there may be paid to dependent parents. Finally there is a lump-sum death benefit if there is no survivor entitled to monthly benefits.

Question—How are the supplementary benefits for aged wives and dependent children of an annuitant figured?

Answer—Each receives an amount equal to half the worker's own primary benefit.

Question— What amounts are paid to survivors?

Answer—A widow's benefit is equal to three-fourths of her husband's monthly benefit. For a dependent child or an aged dependent parents the monthly payment is one-half the amount to which the worker would have been entitled.

Individual questions concerning any phase of social security will be answered if addressed to this newspaper or to Frank B. Decker, Jr., manager, Social Security Board field office, 11 Post Office Building, Covington, Ky. Another series of questions and answers will appear in our next issue.

Radio's Gang Busters Return

HELPING the police in its constant war against the underworld, Gang Busters has just begun another season of crime crusading over the nationwide CBS network, on a new day and at a new time—Saturday, at 8:00 p.m., EST. Col. H. Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

SHALL I BUILD NOW?

Thousands of Americans are asking themselves, "Will I get the most for my money if I build my house (or my barn) now?"

The building industry, so completely paralyzed by the depression, finally came to life in 1936, largely because of government aid. But at the same time there was an abrupt jump in building material prices, and building labor was demanding higher wages. And all this in a year when residential building and the national wage income were much lower than normal! Is it any wonder the infant building boom collapsed in 1937?

Building costs did not collapse with the boom, but have gone higher till today they are within 4 or 5% of the all-time high. A recent investigation of the building industry by the Department of Justice has revealed cases where contractors, suppliers, trade associations and union officials have conspired to maintain high price levels—high price levels that affect every one of us.

Costs are high—but the modern devices now incorporated into a home may offset these high prices. By all means secure an honest and competent builder to do your work, if you don't, you may find that long before you pay off your twenty-five year building mortgage, your home not only will be out of date, but also will be worn out.

The fact that private building has lagged is proof that the American people won't buy when prices are high. This fact, plus Department of Justice investigation, is very likely to force prices down to a point where the Average Citizen may say, "I am now getting the most for my money." This trend has not yet started.

Kerr Retains Fateful Jinx

Tuss McLaughry Has Job Trying to Shake it

HAMILTON, N. Y. (NNS)—The jinx that Andy Kerr, Colgate coach, holds over Tuss McLaughry, Brown coach, still prevails.

The McLaughry-Kerr rivalry goes back to 1907 when Tuss was the star fullback on the Sharon, Pa., high school eleven and Kerr was coach at Pittsburgh Central High.

The two schools were arch-rivals, but from 1907 through 1919 the Kerr-coached team defeated the McLaughry-fullbacked team every year for four in a row.

In 1929 the rivalry was renewed, this time with both as coaches in their present positions. Kerr's Colgate team won in 1929 and for seven more years after that.

This year the series was resumed, and Brown was favorite to give McLaughry his first win against a Kerr-coached team. But the final score was Colgate 10—Brown 0

SMART SALAD SUGGESTIONS

Here's a neat tip for a short-cut supper salad—just line a big wooden bowl with shredded lettuce, then heap a mound of real old-fashioned fresh cucumber pickle slices in the heart of the crisp green bowl. You'll find this the tastiest salad ever, made with these pale jade slices of tender young cucumber flavored with an old-fashioned blend of piquant spices and fruity, aromatic vinegar. And it's a quick trick too, using the ready-to-serve kind that comes packed in the plump octagonal jar. Not even a salad dressing is necessary—all you have to do is pry up the lid—spoon out a bowlful—and serve. For another tasty trick, try adding chopped fresh cucumber pickles to a bowlful of cole slaw made of carrots and cabbage and shredded green pepper. These tart little pickle chips add just the right amount of zip and zing when you use them in the following proportions:

CABBAGE AND CUCUMBER PICKLE SALAD

Combine and mix thoroughly—

2 cups shredded cabbage
1 cup shredded carrots
⅔ cup (1 medium) chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
½ cup (12 slices) chopped fresh cucumber pickle
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons mayonnaise.

Serve in cups of lettuce and arrange on a salad platter or on individual salad plates. (Serves 6.)

FINE HOLIDAY FARE

Come the holidays, most folks like old-fashioned foods—crimson cranberry sauce, mince meat pie—things like that. Well, here now is a brand new way to serve these two old favorites—a cranberry mince meat pie that combines the best qualities of each. A bit of sweet, a bit of sour, melded together under the golden coffers of a flaky pie crust. You'll like the heady fragrance of mince meat and the light tart bite of the cranberries when you blend them in these proportions:

CRANBERRY MINCE PIE

Chop—

2 cups uncooked cranberries.

Add—

1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 lb. tin or jar mince meat.

Line 9-inch pan with—

Pastry. Fill with fruit mixture.

Arrange narrow strips of pastry across top of pie in lattice or criss-cross fashion. Cut off ends of strips so they extend ¼ inch from edge of the pan. Fold ends under lower crust and press edges firmly together. Bake in a hot oven (400° F.) 30 minutes.

SAVORY NEW STUFFING

How would you like to try dressing the holiday fowl with a brand new stuffing this year? A tender, tasty stuffing made of very dry bread cubes seasoned with salt, a dash of pepper and slivers of onion—then moistened with a canful of consommé in place of the usual butter and water mixture. It's the consommé that gives such a fine tasty flavor to this dressing—the full bodied flavor of golden consommé brewed from prime beef. Then for extra seasoning, add glossy ripe mission olives to the stuffing. These succulent little brown chunks have a rich nutty flavor, a fine meaty texture that adds a real luxury touch to the dressing. It's a luxury touch at budget prices, too, when you use the ripe mission olives that come packed, chock full, in thrifty tins:

CONSOMME AND RIPE OLIVE STUFFING

Remove seeds from—

2 dozen ripe mission olives.

Chop olives, then add—

4 cups very dry bread cubes (1 medium dry loaf)
1 cup consommé
1 teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon finely minced onion.

Mix well.

CHICAGO SHOW WILL STRESS FARM YOUTH

Chicago, Nov. 6—Of the 1,300,000 American farm boys and girls now actively engaged in 4-H Club work, 1400 will take part in the 18th National 4-H Club Congress at Chicago next month. They will come from 44 states, Canada and Hawaii.

The Congress will be held here at the same time as the International Live Stock Exposition, which will celebrate its 40th anniversary on December 2 to 9.

Most of the youths will come here on free all-expense trips, which they have won by exceptional accomplishment in 4-H projects and contest at County and State fairs held earlier in the season. The expense of providing their trips to Chicago will be shared by industrial and agricultural organizations which recognize the influence of 4-H work in the betterment of agriculture.

Home improvement and canning demonstrations, as well as exhibits on numerous phases of home-making activities, will be shown here by state champion 4-H girls. Their exhibits will be displayed in the 4-H Building, which is adjacent to the International Amphitheatre where the live stock show will be held Between 500 and 600 baby beeves, lambs and pigs will be exhibited at the International's junior stock show on the opening day of the exposition, Saturday, Dec. 2nd.

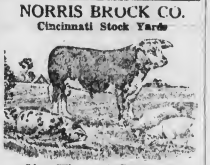
Embarrassing

When Acid Indigestion, Gas on Stomach or Heartburn make you feel uncomfortable or embarrass you, try Alka-Seltzer, which contains alkalizing buffers and so helps counteract the associated Excess Stomach Acidity.



But the relief of these minor stomach upsets is only a small part of what you can expect Alka-Seltzer to do for you. You will find it effective for Pain Relief in Headache, Neuralgia, Colds and Muscular Aches and Pains. It contains an analgesic, (sodium acetyl salicylate), made more prompt and effective in its pain-relieving action by alkaline buffer salts.

When hard work or strenuous exercise make you feel tired and dragged out, enjoy the refreshing effect of a glass of sparkling, tangy Alka-Seltzer.

Young Aviatrix Learned To Fly in Three Weeks

LESS than seven years ago, pretty, vivacious Jacqueline Cochran took her first flying lesson. Today she is rated the outstanding woman flier of the world — no small achievement at twenty-eight.

Success and fame are hers today, but her whole life had been one constant battle against hardships, relates Percy Waxman in the December Cosmopolitan, which selects the aviatrix as the Cosmopolite of the month. She was left an orphan when a baby and was raised by a family to whom she was not related. Like every other child, her first great desire was to join the circus as a bareback rider. But the day the circus left town Jackie slept through it all. That was when she was four.

It was in 1932 that she made up her mind to become a flier. In just three weeks of schooling she had mastered a plane and received a private pilot's license. "It wasn't anything wonderful, learning to fly in such a short time," Miss Cochran says modestly. "It was just a question of making up one's mind to do something and then doing it. I couldn't see any sense in puttering around."

On her first flight across the continent she got lost over the mountains between Rock Springs and Salt Lake City. The next thing she knew she was out of gas. Nothing daunted, Jackie made a forced landing on a desolate spot in the heart of the Rockies.

More heart-breaking episodes, countless disappointments until September, 1938, when, the only woman in the race, she won the Bendix Derby, from California to Cleveland in eight hours and ten minutes. First prize amounted to $12,500; then she continued on to Bendix, N. J., to set a new transcontinental record for women of ten hours and seven minutes. Conquest of the air at last; she had finally triumphed over the jinx that had seemed to pursue her since the day she took her first solo flight of any distance.

FRANCES DUDGEON

Miss Frances Belle Dudgeon, age 50 years, passed away last Friday, November 3rd at 4 p. m., following a stroke.

Funeral services were conducted from the Beaver Lick Baptist church Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, by her pastor, Rev. Roy Johnson, with burial following in Hughes Chapel cemetery.

She is survived by four sisters, Ann Dudgeon of Walton, Mrs. Edith Black, Mrs. Russell Sparks and Mrs. Ray Sparks; two brothers, Omer Dudgeon and James Dudgeon of Walton.

Chambers & Grubbs had charge of the funeral arrangements.

ALBERT ACKMAN

Albert Ackman, 60, a Spanish American War veteran, died suddenly in his home Friday evening, while seated in his chair reading the newspaper. His body was taken to the Chambers & Grubbs Funeral Home for preparation, and later removed to his home and laid in state there until Monday, then conveyed to the Independence Christian church, of which he was a member, where services were conducted at 2 p. m.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Remley Bird, with whom he resided, and Miss Alberta Ackman.

R. E. A. Line Staking Begins

The staking of the Boone County R. E. A. lines began on Monday of this week, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The staking crew locates the poles and tags the place where electric will connect with the houses.

Rev. Will Smith of Burlington, Route 1, has been appointed Boone County right-of-way man. He is working diligently in getting all the right-of-ways cleared so that the immediate construction of the line can begin and farm people will be served at the earliest possible date.

It is a most difficult job to get all right-of-ways cleared and to get the line constructed so that people may receive service. Everyone is urged to cooperate fully because delay maycause the line to be blocked for some time.

Cooperators are also advised to keep in close contact with the staking crew to see that poles are properly located and that the point of electricity coming in to the house is located conveniently to the farmer. All misunderstandings should be reported immediately to Mr. Smith.

REBECCA J. UTZ

Mrs. Rebecca Jane Utz, 76, passed away in her home one mile north of Burlington on Sunday evening at 10 o'clock, following an illness of two weeks.

Funeral services were conducted fro mthe home on Wednesday at 2 p. m., by Rev. James, her pastor. Burial was in the family cemetery.

She leaves one son, Robert Utz; two daughters, Mrs. Mary Blackburn and Mrs. Maud Ross; one grandson, all of Boone county, one brother, Johnson Rogers of Walton. She was a member of the Baptist church.

BURLEY TOBACCO SUPPLY AND PRICE

Agricultural Adjustment Administration

Burley tobacco prices are linked closely with supply. When supplies become excessive as in 1931-33, prices go down. When supply narrows as in 1936, prices climb. With supplies leveled off as in 1937 and 1938, prices smooth out. The present supply is near the largest in history. Production has exceeded consumption for the third consecutive year.

Mrs. Mart Benson Passes Friday

Mrs. Martha Benson, 77, passed away last Friday morning at her home on High street, after a lingering illness. Although she had been in failing health for some years, and finally suffering from paralysis, her demise came suddenly and was a great shock to her many relatives and friends.

Mrs. Benson, with her husband, had been a resident of Walton for many years. She was a member of the Walton Baptist church and was ever true to her religion, and was a devoted and faithful wife and mother.

She is survived by her husband, Mart Benson; one son, C. D. Benson, Boone County Clerk, of Burlington; one daughter, Mrs. J. A. Baird of Knoxville, Tenn., who had been at her mother's bedside for some time; one sister, Miss Julia Johnson; one brother, Ben Johnson; four grandchildren; three half brothers and two half sisters, and a number of nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were conducted at the Baptist church, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, in charge of the pastor, Rev. C. J. Alford, and assisted by Rev. Roy Johnson of Covington, a relative. A huge number were present to witness these last sad rites, and the floral offerings were many and beautiful. Interment was in Walton cemetery.

Chambers & Grubbs had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Explosion Follows Collision Of Trucks

A collision between a cattle truck and a truck loaded with blasting powder led to an explosion about 2:30 a. m. last Friday on the Dixie Highway at Devon.

The drivers, Lafayette Wells, Negro, Pineville, of the powder truck and Robert Carpenter, Danville, of the cattle truck, were uninjured.

The cattle truck, belinging to Ed Moore of Lexington, was headed north, and the powder truck, owned by the Delawars Powder Co., Pineville, was going south. After the collision the powder truck burst into flames as both drivers fled, followed by a terrific blas that set off a fire that swept nearby fields. Trees telephone poles and fences within a square mile area were consumed by the blaze.

According to reports, one of the cattle was killed during the explosion and the remainder were rounded up in fields near the scene of the accident. The cattle truck was only slightly damaged.

Volunteer fire departments from Florence and Elsmere aided in extinguishing the fire. Sheriff F. M. Walton and deputies were also called to the scene.

It was reported that houses within a five-mile range were shaken by the blast, and windows in nearby houses shattered.

J. F. CLEEK HOME BURNS SATURDAY

—Courtesy Cincinnati Enquirer

The above picture shows firemen battling blazes which destroyed this beautiful country home, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Cleek on the Richwood-Beaver Road on Saturday afternoon, with a loss estimated at $10,000, partly covered by insurance.

The fire is said to have started from a grate fire on the second floor. Mr. Cleek and others thought the blaze had been extinguished, but later it was found the house was ablaze between the wall partitions and between the ceiling and floor of the upper story. A bucket brigade was formed but proved unsuccessful, and the Walton Fire Department was called. By this time they arrived the flames were beyond control, and the structure was burned to the ground.

Part of the furnishings, including some valuable antiques, were removed from the house before the blaze gained such a headway. A crowd estimated at 300 was attracted to the blaze by the dense smoke.

Mrs. Cleek was in Danville at the time of the fire and did not learn of the disaster until nearing her home, when she saw the lone chimneys standing a sentries over the remains of her once pretty home. It goes without saying, that the shock was great. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Cleek sympathize with them in their great loss.

Bearcats Trim Burlington-Highlands

The 1939-40 debut of the Walton-Verona Bearcats, both abroad and at home, was a most successful one, having won their first two starts. Many thought that the loss of four regulars from last year's team would leave the Cats groggy and unable to gain their bearings until well along in the season. But such does not seem to be the case. The boys have presented a well rounded quintette and reserve strength is above par, especially at W-V where this strength is usually lacking. Of course, the boys will take a few on the chin, but we think they will make a favorable showing.

They opened the season at Burlington, Saturday night, and after an exciting rough and tumble battle were able to subdue the Tomcats 32 to 22. Cats who sparkled brightest on offense were Chuck Ransler and Ray Coyle, who bagged 11 points each. For Burlington, Porter and Gulley divided 12 points.

In the curtain-raiser, the local Cubs were nosed out by Burlington's reserves, 23 to 21. Mayhugh, with 8 points, was high scorer for the losers.

Tuesday night, the Blue and White opened the home season by being hosts to the Highland Blue Birds. The teams played on about even terms for some time, but finally the "home towners" took the lead and held it throughout the contest. The margin being six points at most stages. At the intermission, Walton-Verona was in front 18 to 12, and when the final gong sounded "our boys" lead 36 to 30.

Stanley Leg McElroy led the Bearcat offensive with 14 points, and "little brother" DeSha and Ransler tallied 9 markers each. For Highlands, Luecke rang up 11 points.

In the preliminary, the Cubs overwhelmed their opponents, the Highland seconds, 38 to 11, with Welsh tallying 12 times.

Florence Here Friday Night

The Bearcats will be trying to make it "three in a row" Friday night when they meet the Florence Knights in a Boone County Conference tilt at the local hardwood. Reports from Florence are that the Knights have one of their best fives this year, so the Cats will, no doubt, have an interesting evening. Both the first and second teams will play. The first game will be called at 7 o'clock, CST—we'll be looking for you!

Hunting Season Opens Nov. 24th

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 15.—Major James Brown, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, calls to the attention of all hunters the fact that the season on rabbits and bob white quail opens on November 24.

The hunter's attention is also called to the proclamation issued by Gov. Chandler more than a month ago setting aside NOVEMBER 30 as THANKSGIVING DAY. As the result of this proclamation the hunter will be able to enjoy that particular holiday in the fields in the pursuit of the rabbit or quail. President Roosevelt proclaimed November 23 as Thanksgiving day, but due to the confusion raised by this change, Gov. Chandler proclaimed the last Thursday in the month as the day on which to give thanks.

From reports received from every county in the state this is going to be the best hunting season Kentucky nimrods have enjoyed since the day Daniel Boone first gazed upon the land known to the Indians as the "Happy Hunting Ground."

SAM WATSON

The remains of Sam Watson, a former resident of Walton, were brought here for funeral services at the Chambers & Grubbs funeral home Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, with burial following in the Walton cemetery.

Rev. J. M. Ervin had charge of the funeral services. Songs were sung by Mrs. Olivia Wills and sister, Miss Kahryn Chandler, with Miss Marjorie Conrad at the piano.

Mr. Watson and family lived here several years ago. After his wife and son passed away, he moved to Indiana. He passed away Nov. 9th in Rushville, at the age of 77 years.

He was the brother of Hugh and John Watson and Mrs. Carrie Dyas and Mrs. Sallie Menefee of Calif. All have preceded him to the Great Beyond, but Mrs. Menefee.

Friends and relatives from out of town who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Orville Cliber and son and Mrs. Lizzie Webb of Rushville, Ind., Miss Blanche Dyas of Cincinnati, Harris Watson and mother, Mrs. Susie Watson, Jim Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maynor of Cincinnati, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Watson and Harry Spencer of Florence, Hiram and George English of Verona.

The Girl Reserves of the Walton-Verona High school will hold a Bakery sale on Saturday, Nov. 25th at the Laws Grocery, Walton. Everyone please try to come.

The Government is expected to seek a 10 percent reduction in corn in 1940.

Urged To Reduce Tobacco Acreage

The American tobacco grower is now faced with the largest amount of tobacco of all types on hand in the history of the nation, 3,786,500,000 pounds and this year's (1939) crop of 1,645,000,000, a new high for a single year's production. These figures have recently been released by the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Every tobacco grower will agree that supply and demand regulate the price he receives for any commodity and especially tobacco, as has been thoroughly demonstrated in the past, and especially when the price of burley tobacco was increased from 10½ cents per pound in 1933 to 35.7 cents per pound in 1936 by curtailing production of the 1934 and 1935 crops.

November 21, 1939 gives the tobacco grower an opportunity to use the same business principals that all successful businesses in the nation have used in the past, an opportunity to regulate production according to consumption—by voting quotas in the burley belt. If we continue to produce tobacco in excess of consumption it necessarily means a price below cost of production which in return means a continuation of depressed business and financial failure in the tobacco belt.

So, let's all, tobacco growers come out Tuesday, Nov. 21st and vote tobacco quotas for the 1940 crop and cease cut-throat competition, by overproduction which is guaranteed not to exist on account of the penalty of 10c perpound on all tobacco produced in 1940 above the acreage allotet to each grower.

—B. W. FRANKS.

METHODIST AID TO MEET

The Ladies' Aid society of the Walton Methodist church will meet Saturday, Nov. 18 at the home of Mrs. Mamie [illegible] an all day session.

Tobacco Growers To Vote Nov. 21

Burley tobacco growers over the entire burley belt will vote Tuesday, November 21st on tobacco quotas for the 1940 crop. If two-thirds of the growers vote in favor of quotas, farmers who do not exceed their acreage quotas can sell all the tobacco they produce. Those who exceed their acreage quotas will be limited to alloted acres, times the farm yield per acre set up for the farm. All additional pounds sold by growers exceeding allotments will be subject to a 10c per pound tax.

Boone county growers are reported to be strongly in favor of quotas in that the burley surplus has increased approximately 150 million pounds the past three years. Quotas under the 1940 program appeal to growers more than in any previous year in that those who cooperate can sell all tobacco produced, with no poundage limitations. Those who attempt to take advantage of cooperating growers will be subject to a 10c per pound tax on excess tobacco produced.

Growers should familiarize themselves with the 1940 tobacco quotas according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent, by attending one of the educational meetings being held. The schedule of the meetings follows:

Petersburg School, Tuesday, Nov. 14 at 7:00 p. m.
Grant School, Tuesday, Nov. 14 at 7:00 p. m.
Verona School, Wednesday, Nov. 15 at 7:00 p. m.

Free Pre-Christmas Awards Total $650.

Covington shoppers will share in 72 awards totaling $650 in cash through the Pre-Christmas Dividend Club sponsored by downtown Covington merchants. First prize is $250.

The plan was put in operation on Wednesday. Coupons will be given with purchases by participating stores. Climax of the affair will be a big celebration starting at 9:15 p. m., Dec. 15 on the Seventh Street Plaza at Madison avenue.

Tickets will not be given out with purchases after December 14th.

In addition to a $250 first prize, there will be a second prize of $100, third $50, fourth $25, fifth $15, five $10 prizes, 12 $5 prizes and 50 $2 prizes.

Covington merchants are preparing for a colorful and spirited holiday season. The huge success of the Pre-Christmas distribution last year prompted the merchants to again launch this promotion, raising the total awards to $650. Only members of the Covington Retail Merchants' Association are cooperating in the distribution and will display signs denoting their participation.

Members of the Pre-Christmas Dividend Club Committee are Max Rose, chairman; Joseph Luhn, William Macklin, Lee Saffel, Francis Vehr, Robert Clore, George Marsh, Bernie Ellerman, Joseph Kaplan and Edward Jansen.

L. M. "Popp" Simms, special representative of the Coca-Cola Bottling Works Company, arranged a presentation of the educational film "Future Business Men" before the public school at Mason, on Nov. 28 in the school auditorium. The film has been praised by civic and educational leaders of the nation.

R. E. A. Line Staked To Mud Lick

The R. E. A. line has been staked from the Grant county line to Mud Lick, according to Will Smith, right of way man for Boone county. The line from Grant county to Big Bone will be energized from the Grant county line and service in the south section of the county should be available in about sixty days.

The north section of Boone county, Kenton and Campbell counties will be energized from the sub-station located near Devon. Approximately 175 miles of line will be energized from this point.

A number of committeemen met with Chester Roland, Manager of the R. E. A. Association at Burlington, on Monday, Nov. 13th and made plans for the holding of educational meetings at Walton, Hamilton and Burlington during the early part of December. The costs of wiring, best types of wiring, equipment, and lighting fixtures will be discussed at the meeting. The exact place and time of these meetings will be announced later.

Mr. Roland advised those attending the meeting that a temporary hold-up in staking the line would begin on Tuesday of this week. This delay was due to a small technicality brought by the Washington office and that staking work would be continued in the next few days.

Experiments That Need Fixing

Washington, D. C.—For nearly three years the Administration and Congress have failed to agree upon questions of labor laws. The Wagner Act, National Labor Relations Board, Wage-Hour Act and other laws have been passed along lines recommended by the Administration. In each case it was clearly understood that those laws were "experimental," and that amendments would be made from time to time, as expected faults might turn up. But, as everyone knows, faults remained un-confessed in New Deal experiments.

The former "disposition" of the Government "to let things alone" no longer qualifies as a good alibi.

From the date of the open break between AFofL and the CIO, both groups have been very arbitrary, and it has seemed impossible for employers to come to understandings with the Lewis crowd. Compromises have usually been reached with the greatest difficulty. The trouble has been increased by failure of Administration officials to cooperate with the local peace officers and [illegible] bad strikes. As a result there were riots—and in the beginning sit-down strikes that seemed to threaten the very life of the unions and the industries, and collective bargaining.

The case of Harry Bridges, for instance, has been most disturbing in the affairs of leaders and large groups of workmen. Conditions among the seamen on both the East and West coasts have been disgraceful. The United States Department of Labor has not brought order out of chaos.

Is Bridges a Communist? That may be important in a political sense, but the real issue has very little to do with Bridges' political beliefs. He is a menace and should be treated as such.

The real problem has to do with rationalizing and enforcement of the laws and fair dealings between employers and employes. It is shooting entirely away from the mark when the rights of shipping interests have to wait the outcome of long investigations of non-essentials before they can even begin to settle fundamental differences.—J. E. Jones.

Third Term

Evidently President Roosevelt's family and best friends do not want him to run for a third term. Most of the voters of New York State likely share that hope and for once agree with the family and best friends.

* * * *

Brain Pabulum

The Government has found the light and power business important enough to get into it on a large scale in the Tennessee Valley and other parts of the United States, thus apparently assuming control like that exercised a few million years ago when the Lord commanded "let there be light"—and what do you know; "there was light."

The common lightning bug pioneered with tail-lights, and the heavens produced high-lights long before the recorded history of man. Candles and kerosene had their day, but the successful use of gas in Boston and New York was a triumph in lighting deluxe.

Torch-light processions were common in campaigns for William Jennings Bryan Although the incandescent lamp was invented by Edison in 1878 and the arc lamp by Brush the following year it took some time before they were accepted by a skeptical public, which viewed them as flashy, dangerous, and among the superflous notions of the Gay Nineties.

Theories regarding light half a century ago were as numerous as different kinds of religion.

Electric energy flashes the spoken word 'round the World and revolutionizes humanity. The supply in inexhaustible—all powerful. It can be controlled to the fraction of a candle power, or let loose in sufficient volume to flood the areas of the Great White Way and turn it into a blazing spectacle.

How To Make A Living

Public school attendance this Fall is practically 31 million pupils. A million and a half students are enrolled in universities and colleges. Almost 3 million pupils are in private and parochial schools, and another million and a half are enrolled in Federally aided schools or classes.

There is a logical connection between the above conditions and the fact that most pupils now in school are not expected to earn their livings at trades, or as laborers. No, they are in the white-collar class! There are so many of this latter kind that one cannot help but wonder how they expect to make a living. Illiteracy. In all but 9 states illiteracy in no case is over nine per cent, and in 31 states it is less than five per cent.

William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors, says that the youngsters of today are apt to find themselves "all dressed up with theoretical knowledge and no place to go." What they really need he thinks, is to devote several years of life in pursuits that will fit them into a working world. He is a competent authority because he came to America from Denmark when he was a young man, and went to work in shipyards, then a bicycle factory, and became a mechanic. All the time he devoted himself to mastering the language, and acquainting himself about public affairs.

Apparently his opinions and advice are valuable as Big Bill Knudsen is still "going places." He declares, "I am a mechanic and proud of it." That was his basic qualification. He picked his education, by the wayside—put it together with hand-work, and became a whaling big success in the matter of "how to make a living."

How Come?

The American public should not be alarmed by reports that our battleships and defenses are inadequate. The fact is that the United States Government has been building up its armamnt on the seas, in the skies, and on land, many years. As a result we are prepared to fight if we have to. "How come" all this scare stuff.

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5822 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio

This is a story of a man's generosity spelled with a little "g." During the Ohio River flood at Cincinnati in 1884, which reached the high point of 71¾ feet on February 14th, during which time everyone did his utmost to help the flood sufferers. During this period all the visiting theatrical folks and a great singer who at that time was singing in Cincinnati, gave a great concert for the benefit of the stricken Queen Citians in the Grand Opera House.

Among the artists was the great singer, Madame Neilson, singing at her best, "Give Me a Penny for the Poor." The great audience showered money into baskets which were passed among them, so impressive was her singing. That being Sunday afternoon, the following day the Chamber of Commerce made an appeal to its membership who gave freely. Among the members was a man who collected toll on Spring Grove Avenue. To show his generosity with a little "g" he said he would donate the toll receipts of the avenue. Spring Grove Avenue was covered with water from end to end, with no chance to travel over it only with skiffs and boats, and toll could not be collected, so the little "g" man did not have anything from that source to donate. Notwithstanding, he was a rich man. He would tell it with a great deal of pride that when itcame to helping the church he did the paying and his wife, Aunt Lizzie, who was a devout Christian woman, did the praying. The fact was that Aunt Lizzie did the paying and praying.

If the little "g" man did any praying, it was to himself. He thought he was fooling his fellowmen and God, but he fell short of the mark only by fooling himself, which is so easy for a man to do when he wants to shirk his duty toward his fellowmen and his church and God.

It is not for me to say whether he crossed the River of Death without paying his toll.

THE WITCH'S BREW

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

For hard and realistic descriptions of what something really means, it's usually a good idea to go to the dictionary or encyclopedia. The definitions contained therein may not be very poetic but they give a real picture of the hard facts.

Here's the definition of war contained in the encyclopedia:

"The act of war consists in the destruction of men's bodies and the work of their hands."

More and more, as reports from all over the world come pouring into Washington, experts are being made to realize the destructive effect of war, either directly or indirectly, to the "work of men's hands"—to the industry and enterprise that in time of peace are devoted to making the material life of people happier and more comfortable.

The first observation naturally made by economists on this subject is that war expenditures generally are not what is called "productive."

To put it another way, money that goes into an explosive shell does not produce anything. Instead, it destroys not only life but other things which also cost money.

A tractor, for example, is productive if it is used to plow and plant a farm. The food it produces goes to the general benefit. But if the tractor is covered with armor plate and turned into a tank, it becomes a destructive rather than a constructive weapon.

Thus the present war like all others is proving a serious drain upon every nation. It would appear that most Americans now realize that without, perhaps, having put it into those words. Certainly industry, as its attitude is reflected through the recent anti-war declaration of the National Association of Manufacturers would a lot rather sell plows than swords, for plows produce goods which a farmer can sell for money with which to buy more plows.

Confidential reports which have just reached Washington tell a tragic story about the cost of war to tiny, neutral Switzerland.

Perched high in the Alps and facing belligerent on two sides, the Swiss are well aware that their fertile plateau and valley lands offer one of the best strategic military routes around the Maginot Line and the Siegfried West Wall. To avoid offending any nation, and thus offering an excuse for invasion, they have made neutrality almost a religion.

They have carried this so far that when their President recently visited the frontier on an inspection tour he gave cigarettes to both the French and German soldiers posted on the border.

But the neufrality is an armed neutrality. The Swiss are determined to defend their land against any invader. Consequently, their craftsmen who are famed throughout the world for their ability to make delicate mechanical devices have been called to take up arms. That is where the tragic part of the story enters.

Reports seeping into Washington tell that it is costing Switzerland more than a million dollars a day to keep the workmen mobilized. That is a tremendous sum when one remembers that the Swiss government's expenditures for all purposes in 1938 were only $125,872,000. Maintaining her present army alone would cost nearly three times that much.

Even more important is that Switzerland's foreign trade is disappearing. In the one month of September, the Swiss lost 54 percent of their trade. So long as her men stay mobilized, Switzerland will have the terrifically increased cost to meet and reduced income to meet it.

Dies Committee sidelight: Publication of the names of government employees who belonged to the American League for Peace and Democracy, officially described as a "communist front organization" begins to bring results. Within 24 hours Roger Baldwin, President of another "liberal" group, the American Civil Liberties Union, resigned from the League.

Representative Dies won widespread commendation with his assertion that "to my way of thinking if Government employees belong to orgnizations dominated by foreign powers they ought to be exposed and the American public ought to know their names."

Some advisers to the Monopoly Committee are talking about getting another quarter of a million dollars from Congress to continue their investigation next year. Although the average reader might not know it, the Committee has been holding hearings almost daily for several weeks. Its "discoveries" have been so far from startling that newspapermen who have to sit through the sessions have begun to refer to it in conversation as the "monontony committee."

Another yardstick experiment has gone the way of the dodo. A cooperative clothing factory at Hightstown, N. J., financed by the Farm Security Administration, is being sold at auction to meet part of a $200,000 federal loan.

The Fidelity Literary Society

Fidelity was so far away from other centers of population that it had to provide its own entertainment, except, of course, for the rare circuses of tent shows that came along, there or to the county seat. Parent-teachers' associations were not in existence then, but what was a good like one grew up in our little community. Some of the active younger people, including the local teacher organized a literary society, which met around from house to house each week. We really had some programs, too. There was more than an average amount of talent in that neighborhood, and the society used it. Years afterwards I can truthfully say that I have never attended any community meeting that has been conducted any more smoothly and effectively. The leaders of this society are scattered now or dead, but I think that the neighborhood, now blessed with a good high school, ought to pay some kind of tribute to them, however late. I will assume that responsibility.

This society was for the drab winter months, when school was out and when social life, after Christmas, was likely to be at low ebb. Even the Sunday School was frozen out, and the circuit riders came only on pretty Sundays. In order to reach all parts of the community, we met at a different house each time. Chairs were in demand. We made benches by laying planks from chair to chair or from stovewood block to stovewood block, folding a quilt and placing it over the bench to make a comfortable seat. A big fire was built in the living room fireplace and another in the front room, with subsidiary fires in the kitchen or dining room. Most of the time all of them were needed, at last on one side, the one away from the fire.

The program started with quotations, every one giving one on an assigned subject. Some of the best maxims of the whole world were given, along with queer ones and some intended to be comic. On the night when "Music" was the subject of the quotations and the program, one comic fellow, the neighborhood mimic, gave that old classic:

"Music hath charms to soothe a savage,
Soften a rock, and split a cabbage."

Naturally, the quotations from the Bible were the ones most commonly heard.

Then followed speeches, debates, pantomimes, break-downs, songs, dialogues—everything that you could think of. It was for such an occasion that I learned to say "I Stole Them Breeches," a piece that records how a colored brother felt shabby in his old ragged pants and stole a better pair to be baptized in. Little fellows gave "Mary Had a Little Lamb," "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star," "Try, Try Again," and all the other favorites from the schoolroom. No child who could talk was too small to participate. I remember having a little boy in a dress give a speech, as we called it. Already his voice had reached auctioneer proportions, probably bigger than it is now. Sometimes the program ended with light refreshments of cake and pickle or popcorn. Thus did the neighborhood take care of itself, even though the big world knew and cared nothing about it. I cannot help regretting that Fidelities of our time too often depend on some outside attraction for entertainment, without developing their own talents.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for November 19

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

WARNINGS AND PROMISES

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 7:1-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—And as ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise.—Luke 6:31.

"How to Win Friends and Influence People" may be worthwhile to study, unless it is done from a purely selfish desire to be popular so that one may make more money and get on in the world. Everyone should desire to make more friends and better friends, and the Christian in making friends should make them for his Lord as well as for himself. Actually the best of the rules and suggestions offered on this subject are already an integral part of Christian conduct as revealed in the Word of God.

I. Avoid Judgment (vv. 1-5).

By not judging others censoriously we escape such judgment of ourselves both by God and by our fellow man. The admonition, "Judge not," obviously does not mean that we are not to exercise our God-given ability to discern between good and evil, nor does it mean that we are to stand silent in the presence of wrongdoing. Verse 6 in this very chapter calls for the use of judgment (see also I Thess. 5:21).

In all such judgment we are to avoid an unkind spirit and the hypocrisy described in verses 3 to 5. We are to be certain that our own lives are above reproach regarding that which we condemn (v. 5). The none too common exercise of correcting our own faults will serve a salutary twofold purpose of improving ourselves and of making us too busy to find fault with others.

II. Be Reverent (v. 6).

While we are not to judge others, we are not to go to the opposite extreme of being so lenient in our attitude that we permit ungodly men to profane and trample down sacred things. This does not mean, as some would have us believe, that we are not to present the gospel to the lowest of sinners; for example, to a drunkard. Only thus can such an individual be saved. But it does mean that in dealing with holy things we are not only to be reverent ourselves, but we are to be careful that we do not permit wicked men to misuse and to profane the holy things of God.

III. Pray in Faith (vv. 7-11).

Here is a straightforward promise from the lips of our Lord Himself, assuring us that prayer will be answered. It seems that He must have foreknown that some would feel that the promise was too good to be true, so He stated it in threefold form and repeated it twice. Why not believe it, act on it, and receive the answer?

Observe that there is to be importunity in prayer, we are to seek if we would find. "Our Lord does not guarantee to us anything at first asking. God does not open His treasury to a passing bugle-call or the tap of a careless hand which just touches the door and then passes on. Prayer is not a momentary wish or a transitory whim. It is the utterance of a confirmed and persistent and unwearying longing. If you want a prayer answered, you must go on praying" (J. G. Greenhough).

We have included the so-called Golden Rule under this section because the word "therefore" links it with that which goes before. Dr. G. Campbell Morgan aptly says, "If we omit the 'therefore,' we cannot obey the verse. If we retain the 'therefore,' and are driven to ask, to seek, to knock, and to know that the Listener to the asking, to the seeking, to the knocking, is our Father, then the rule is golden with heaven's own light, but in no other way."

The Golden Rule is really the fulfillment of the law and the prophets, but in the light of Christ's glory it is also a great principle of Christian love and consideration.

IV. Walk in the Narrow Way (vv. 13, 14).

The road to heaven is a narrow way because it is built to carry us through the quicksands of this world to a glorious consummation. It is not a dismal road, for it is lighted by God's glory; and it is not a lonesome road (even though few go that way), because Jesus walks with us.

The road to destruction is broad. The entrance is easy; there is much company, but one soon finds that the company is distasteful—just fellow sinners. Jesus is not going that way. The best people, God's people, are going the other way. The road leads into all kinds of by-ways where pitfalls abound. The earthly pleasures one thought to enjoy have, as Maclaren puts it, "a strange knack of losing their charm and at the same time increasing their hold."

Full of Grace

I will neither be content with what measure of grace I have, nor impatient of God's delay; but every day I will endeavor to have one drop added to the rest; so my last day shall fill up my vessel to the brim.—Joseph Hall.

When the Master gently pushed aside the mystic veil that hides the seen from the unseen and bade Mrs. Mary Klein, of near Kenton, enter, the cordial welcome with which He receives all who have lived well in this present life was accorded to her. She had attained the proverbial four score years, and following a brief illness November 5, 1939 death terminated a long life of usefulness, at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Riggs, with whom she made her home. She was a lovely christian character and her characteristics of loyalty and devotion remain a blessing like the lingering softness of twilight after the sun has set. On Tuesday afternoon the last rites were conducted by Rev. Wright at the Methodist church at Staffordsburg, followed by interment in the Independence Cemetery. Serving as pallbearers were the following grandsons and great-grandson: Edgar Riggs, Roy Klein, George W. Klein, Jr., Bobbie Klein, Russell Klein and Billie Durr. Beautiful floral tributes were carried by Mrs. Edgar Riggs, Mrs. Lybran Richardson, Mrs. Viola Watson, Mrs. Lorena Martin, Miss Virginia Klein, Miss Emily Klein, Miss May Klein and Mrs. StellaKlein. We recived some of the lovely white and orchid chrysanthemums and ferns for which deepest appreciation is expressed. Survivors include one daughter, Mrs. Frances Klein Riggs, three sons, Charles Klein of Dayton, Ohio, Jonn Klein of Independence, and George W. Klein of near Kenton, 11 grandchildren, 7 great-grandchildren, 2 sisters and 2 brothers. Chambers & Grubbs, efficient funeral directors of Walton, had charge of arrangements.

REV. JOHNSON CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY, SUNDAY

A happy occasion it was, when on Sunday last, a crowd of relatives and friends gathered at the home of Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Johnson to celebrate Bro. Johnson's birthday.

When the noon hour arrived Rev. Johnson blew out the candles which crowned the large, delicious and beautifully decorated angel food cake baked by Mrs. Nell Hunt. After Rev. Alford invoked the blessings of the Heavenly Father on the assemblage, all partook of and enjoyed to the fullest the bounteous lunch which had been prepared by many loving hands.

In the afternoon a sad note was struck when instead of sharing in a period of religious devotion which heretofore has been observed on these occasions, most of the guests accompanied by their host, felt called to go and pay their last respects to a relative and friend, Mrs. Benson, whose funeral was conducted at the Baptist church.

However, all had expressed their love and friendliness to Bro. Johnson and all joined in wishing for him and his faithful wife, many more happy years together. Bro. Johnson received several nice gifts.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Pinner and son Jimmie of Norwood, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Griffith of Burlington; Mr. and Mrs. Bud Hamilton of Winchester; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sleet, Mrs. Fannie Brittenhelm, Mrs. Mattie Doubman, Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Alford, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Franks, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Jones, Mrs. Susie Norman, Mr. and Mrs. Powers Conrad, Mrs. E. B. Tobacco Referendum Educational Meetings for Kenton Growers

The Burley Tobacco Referendum will be explained at a series of meetings to be held as follows:

Fiskburg Hall, Fiskburg, Wednesday, November 15, 7:30 p. m., EST.

Independence Court House, Wednesday, November 15, 7:30 p. m., EST

Huff's Hall, Bracht Section, on Thursday, November 16, 7:30 p. m., EST.

The purpose of the educational meetings is to inform the Tobacco growers in the county about the tobacco situation and explain the Burley Tobacco Referendum.

All tobacco growers who produced tobacco in 1939 are urged to attend the meetings to learn about the Burley Tobacco Referendum.

Burley Growers to Vote on Marketing Quotas Nov. 21, 1939

A referendum on burley tobacco marketing quotas for the 1940 crop is scheduled to be held November 21 in all regions growing this type of tobacco. A majority of two-thirds of those voting must approve the marketing quotas to make them effective.

Under the quota plan, farmers would be given acreage allotment for the coming year, and would be permitted to sell all of the tobacco they produced on such allotments. Non-cooperating growers would pay a penalty of 10 cents a pound on tobacco marketed from any acreage in excess of their allotments.

Voting places will be open in each community in which burley tobacco is grown. Three local farmers will be in charge. Any person will be eligible to vote who shares in the proceeds of the burley crop this year and also any person who planted burley tobacco this year and due to reasons beyond his control will be unable to market any tobacco.

The referendum will be held in accordance with the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, which provides that marketing quotas shall be proclaimed by the Secretary of Agriculture when the supply of burley tobacco is 5 percent above normal. The total supply of burley on October 1, this year, was put at a billion and forty-six million pounds. This is the third largest supply on record and forty million pounds above the supply a year ago.

JOTTINGS ON JUNIOR FOODS

Have you been wondering, as your baby nears the first year mark, just how you will begin to adapt a new diet to his growing needs? His teeth are coming in faster now and his gums and intestines are beginning to need exercise. Before you know it, he'll really want something more solid to chew on than the smoothly strained fruits and vegetables he's been eating since he was four or five months old. This period varies somewhat with different babies. Some children, at nine months, are ready for slightly more solid fare. Other babies work into it at about twelve months. While a few more, who are a little slower in their development, reach this point at about fifteen months. It depends entirely on the judgment of the physician who has been caring for your baby since his birth to decide when this peak has been reached.

But nowadays, when the doctor says the word, your baby is in for a lot of really fine food. The same dependable food purveyor who packed the strained foods your youngster used, is now putting out a line of junior foods—quality foods of a little more solid consistency that will bridge the gap perfectly between baby foods and regular family fare. These foods are prepared from the same high quality of raw materials as the strained foods. Select fruits and vegetables are picked at the peak of perfection and rushed promptly to the nearby factory, where they are cooked with laboratory precision. To these nutritionally rich foods—greens, fruits, cereals, meats and milk—are added special nutritive materials such as liver, dried brewer's yeast, wheat germ, soy bean flour, and whey powder to increase still further the vitamin and mineral content of these fine foods.

There is a great deal of variety in these new foods now—all that is needed to make a series of balanced menus—soups, chopped vegetables, creamy cooked vegetables, meat and vegetable combinations, and several kinds of fine-flavored fruit puddings. Why you can work these new junior foods into the baby's diet and serve a different one every meal for days before you have to start repeating. Your baby will particularly relish the fine natural flavor of these foods, cooked delicately and seasoned so mildly as to give them just the perfect blend of flavors. Many of these varieties are real combinations, cooked like grown-up recipes—tomato and rice for instance, chicken farina vegetable porridge, or pineapple and rice pudding. In fact, all these varieties have such fine flavor, are so dependable, so quick and convenient to use that both you and your baby will welcome the junior foods stage and find meal planning a real pleasure.

JONESVILLE

Rev. G. C. Mullins filled his regular appointment here Sunday and was entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Stewart and family.

The Baptist church will observe Thanksgiving on Nov. 30 with an all day service. Everyone is invited to bring their lunch and enjoy an old-fashioned Thanksgiving day.

John C. Beatty, who returned from the Kings Daughters hospital in Frankfort, is still very ill.

Friends here were sorry to hear of the death of Madison Elmore of near Wheatley, who died in a hospital with pneumonia following an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter Greene of Tennessee, who have spent the past two weeks here have returned home

Miss Mabel Kemper of this place and Mrs. Martha Poland of Glencoe spent the weekend of Nov. 4th at Georgetown college and attended the Home-coming football game, which was won by Georgetown 14 to 7 over Louisville.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Poe and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Orville Stewart and daughter.

Their many friends here were sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. A. V. Barbe last week. Bro. Barbe was pastor of the Methodist church here several years ago, but since has resided in Richmond, Ky.

Price Furnish, Bradford Kemper, Franklin Martin and Enlow Cammack went to Louisville, Sunday to see Willard R. Furnish, who is in the Baptist hospital. Mrs. Price Furnish accompanied them home.

Earl Poland, Jr.

As the morning veil was breaking, showing the coming of the day; and the stars of night were fading in the heavens far away; as the dear parents were watching and praying, for the one they dearly loved; there came the final summons to Junior to come to his home, up above.

On Saturday morning, Oct. 28 at 4 a. m., little Junior Poland heard the voice of Jesus say, "Come unto Me and rest," and his spirit was taken to its heavenly home to be with Him who gave it. He had attended school at Long Ridge on Friday and became suddenly ill a few minutes after returning home. Dr. L. C. Roberts was called and found that Junior had appendicitis. His parents worked with him all night and thought he was resting better when the end came very suddenly just before dawn.

Junior died on his 10th birthday, when he was looking forward to a good time with his friends, for his mother was planning to have a birthday dinner for him on Sunday.

The school at Long Ridge, which Junior attended, was plunged into sorrow when it heard of his sudden death. Little did his school mates and teachers think on that last Friday, when he came to school, that it would be his last day with them. He was a quiet, lovable, sweet-dispositioned child and always did excellent work in school, being one of the honor pupils.

Funeral services were held on Monday afternoon at the Glencoe Christian church, of which his family are all members, and where he was a regular attendant at services, by the pastor, Rev. Dennison and Rev. Stephenson. Three other ministers were present, Rev. Dunaway, Rev. Pierson and Rev. Gilbert, besides a large crowd of sorrowing relatives and friends. Many of his classmates, schoolmates and teachers from the Long Ridge school and also of the Glencoe school, where he had attended a few years ago, filled one aisle at the church and with sad hearts came to show their last tribute of respect to one they loved so dearly.

Pallbearers were his cousins, Johnnie and Woodrow Poland, Ohlen and James E. Scroggins, and Austin and Ralph Williams.

The little flower-bearers were boys from his Sunday School class, Paul A. Chapman, Lawrence E. Glacken, Harry T. Baker, Roy Hicks and Harry D. Hicks.

He leaves to mourn for him, his devoted parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Poland, two sisters Dorothy and Fay, and one brother Malcolm, one uncle, six aunts and 35 cousins besides a host of other relatives and friends.

Burial was in the Glencoe cemetery, in charge of Carlton & Son.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Green and William Huey Green attended a family dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Detmer of Aurora, Ind., recently.

Regular services will be conducted at the Baptist church, Sunday, Nov. 19 at 2 p. m., by the pastor Rev. R. A. Johnson. Everyone is invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moore and R. E. Moore spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Points of Sherman.

Mrs. Charles Melvin received word Saturday that her mother, Mrs. Lute Baker of Fort Thomas, had fallen and broken her hip. She is being treated at Speers hospital.

FLORENCE

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Stephenson of Irvin, Ky., spent several days last week with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Taylor spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Snelling and family of Hebron

The many friends of R. H. Tanner regret to learn that he was kicked by a horse, on the hand, and it took nine stitches to close the wound.

Mrs. Glen Carisler and Miss Billy Nixon and Mrs. Brady Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Stephenson were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Hank Tanner.

Charles Marksberry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Marksberry, had the misfortune to fall and cut his head quite badly. We wish him a speedy recovery.

The many friends of Mr. Howard regret to learn he is a patient in St. Elizabeth hospital, and very low at this writing.

The many friends of Dr. Gladys Rouse regret to learn of her illness at her home here.

A number from here attended the funeral of Mrs. Rebecca Utz, which was held on Wednesday afternoon of last week, at her home.

Mrs. Fannie Utz entertained with a family dinner last Sunday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lon Beemon, Mr. and Mrs. Fitzhugh Tanner, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. McHenry and daughter Dorothy.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burris and son Eugene spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Snyder.

Vanderbilts Long Sought Prestige, Says Writer

THE day Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt died, January 4, 1877, throughout the country ran the question, "How Has He Left the Money?" The stock market, the family, the entire financial world held its breath. The Commodore's fortune amounted to $105,000,000.

The world was soon to know, recounts Cholly Knickerbocker in a second article on "The Vital Vanderbilts" in the December Cosmopolitan. The bulk of the fortune, $90,000,000, the Commodore left to his son William Henry Vanderbilt, with orders to keep the money together and to keep the New York Central a Vanderbilt road. William Henry's eldest son, Cornelius Vanderbilt 3rd, received a legacy of $5,000,000. The balance was divided among the Commodore's widow and his seven daughters, except for a life income of $200,000 to the Commodore's other son, Cornelius Jeremiah.

Cornelius Jeremiah balked; he raved and shouted. He set about to contest the will; he had expected a better slice of his father's hundred millions. What he forgot was that the Commodore and the rest of the family had always considered him a wastrel. Cornelius Jeremiah charged that his father had been insane for years; that he had frequented mediums and spiritualists; that he had his first wife committed to an insane asylum; that he had been influenced by son William Henry. The will held, after a notorious fight; but the two brothers did come to some financial agreement. The seven sisters also received an adjustment.

The scandal hushed up, William Henry's wife, the former Maria Kissam, was now free to make solid the social position of the family. She and William built a new house on upper Fifth Avenue. They built homes for the eldest of their four sons, Cornelius 2nd and William. "The Vanderbilt cavalcade up Fifth Avenue had begun," says Knickerbocker. The "right people" could now be met; "prestige" was the family battle cry.

Mrs. Wm. K. Vanderbilt

Money Talks

By
Frederick Stamm, Economist
Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

Every now and then some outstanding business incident clearly illustrates that the prosperity of one section of the country depends to a large extent on the prosperity of other sections. The present dispute in the Chrysler Corporation automobile factories emphatically brings this out.

The Detroit Chamber of Commerce estimates that purchasing power in the United States is being reduced by at least $3,000,000 a day and a total of $24,000,000 since September 30. At present, about 56,000 Chrysler employees and 15,000 of the Briggs Manufacturing Company are idle. In addition, thousands of employees in rubber, glass, and steel plants have been affected.

A rough estimate is that the Chrysler Corporation has failed to place about 150,000 cars on the market since the dispute began October 6. This has cost the employees of Chrysler and Briggs some $420,000 in wages every day of the dispute.

"But how does this affect me?" you may ask.

It does affect every one of us and in a very real way. In the first place, there are 11,000 Chrysler Corporation dealers scattered in villages and cities throughout the United States. All of them are now "feeling the pinch" because they have no cars to sell. When they do not sell, they cannot buy from the baker the butcher and other retail stores.

Secondly, this depressing action is especially strong in the vicinity of Detroit, which means that the flow of goods to that section is considerably slowed down. This affects not only farmers and manufacturers of that region but also all farmers and all manufacturers. Because to stop purchasing power in one place, stops it all along the line—from the man who digs the coal to smelt the iron ore to the man who admires the stainless steel in his new car.

Detroit may be hundreds of miles from your community, but this dispute reaches right down to your town and affects the well-being of you and many of your friends. This I believe, illustrates well how much we all depend upon each other.

Former Red Leader Exposes Workings of Party in U. S.

"SOVIET Russia was our fatherland; its Red Army was our army, its red flag our flag. Patriots of Soviet Russia, we would not hesitate to commit any act of violence or treason against the country in which we lived, if ordered to do so by the party."

Words by Ben Gitlow, former secretary and leader of the Communist party in the United States, who exposes the secret workings of the party in this country in an article, "I Confess," in the December Cosmopolitan. Gitlow gives names, dates, places. He should know; he helped launch the party here in 1922.

Ben Gitlow

"I feel I must warn the American people," says Gitlow, "against the Communist juggernaut which, if it ever attained the power it is plotting to secure in the United States, would establish a Russian despotism which would enslave us as it has enslaved the Russian people."

From the very beginning, Gitlow reveals, Moscow supplied the money with which to build and expand the Communist network. Millions have been poured into it; some years the appropriation ran as high as $250,000. Gitlow lists a few typical grants: $100,000 for fomenting strikes; $35,000 to run the Daily Worker; $35,000 for work in Latin-America; $50,000 for organization of seamen, $10,000 for the Young Communist League.

Financial resources in this country are also tapped, says Gitlow. Of the $1,000,000 raised by the Friends of Soviet Russia, an "innocent" organization created by the Communist party to collect funds for the starving in Russia, ninety percent of this sum went into the coffers of the party.

Gitlow himself carried back money from Moscow, $10,000, to support the 1928 election campaign here. Thirty-five thousand in all was contributed by Russia; for the 1924 election the sum was $50,000. Gitlow handled that money; he was the party's vice-presidential candidate.

Recent testimony before the Dies Committee revealed that William Browder, brother of chief Earl Browder, is the keeper of the funds today. In two New York banks Browder had deposits in his own name totaling over $1,300,000, it was established before the Committee.

Christmas Gifts of Today —The Heirlooms of Tomorrow

THERE is no time like the present to start these lovely needlepoint pieces for Christmas gifts.

Turn your leisure hours into interesting ones—and, at the same time, create useful decorative pieces of true heirloom value. Needlepoint lends to the home a charm which cannot be equalled. Needlepoint—with the glamour of centuries of tradition is the utterly fascinating handwork that has the added advantage of being easy to pick up.

We realize nowadays that needlepoint is not as hard to do as it may seem and the above Hiawatha pieces, designed by the Heirloom Needlework Guild, are doubly easy. All come packaged—each a complete outfit. Once you start, you'll never stop—and the finished product more than repays you for the effort put into it.

These unusual needlepoint package outfits can be found, with other fine designs, for chair seats, benches, footstools and many other uses, in the art needlework department of your favorite store

Social Security News

Editor's Note: This is the seventh in a series of questions and answers regarding the old-age and survivors insurance program as recently amended by Congress. Additional information concerning the enlarged social security program may be obtained from Frank H. Decker, Jr., manager of the Social Security Board field office in Covington. Other questions will appear in our next issue.

Question: Under the old-age and survivors insurance program, what is meant by the term "currently insured?"

Answer—The status of being "currently insured" applies only in the case of a worker who dies before becoming "fully insured." A "currently insured" individual is one who has worked in covered employment for at least half the quarters during the three years prior to his death.

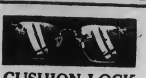
Question: For example, a worker who dies January 1, 1940 has been employed for more than six quarters during the last three years, and has contributed from his wages under the old-age insurance program. Would he be classed as "currently insured?"

Answer—Yes, there have been 12 calendar quarters since the social security program became effective. This man served in covered employment in six or more of these quarters and is therefore "currently insured."

Question: What survivors' benefits may be paid with respect to a currently insured individual?

Answer—If an individual was currently insured the following survivors' benefits are payable: (1) monthly benefits to dependent children and to a widow with such children in her care; (2) if there is no survivor entitled to monthly benefits, a lump-sum death benefit.

Question: Then dependent children and widows with such children are assured of monthly benefits, whether the worker was fully or currently insured?



Answer—Yes, but aged widows and dependent parents may receive monthly survivors benefits only if the worker was fully insured.

Question: Under what circumstances do the admendments provide for lump-sum payments?

Answer—If a wage earner who is fully or currently insured dies, leaving no survivor entitled to monthly benefits at the time of his death, a lump-sum death payment will be made to the widow or widower, children or parents, of the deceased equal to six times the monthly benefit that would have been due.

Question: And if no such person is living?

Answer—Then a payment will be made covering the funeral expenses This payment will go to the person who paid these expenses.

NEW STREAMLINE "THE CHAMPION"

Deluxe chair car trains to operate on daily 25-hour schedules.

THE new streamlined train with which the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad and the Florida East Coast Railway will inaugurate the fastest New York-Florida service in history, has been named "The Champion," officials have announced.

The train will operate on a daily basis, and the service will be inaugurated December 1.

The Atlantic Coast Line, which will operate two of the new trains, will coordinate its daily service with the Florida East Coast Railway, which will also take delivery on two of the new flyers. Three trains of the new fleet will ply between Miami and New York, the fourth operating on a fast daily service between Jacksonville and Miami.

Now nearing completion in the plant of the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Company in Philadelphia, the new streamliners will offer accommodations which are the newest in luxury, yet the cost of travel on the fleet will be based on the lowest coach fares in history.

Four of the seven lightweight cars on each train will be of the new reclining-chair type, with adjustable, softly upholstered seats and spacious lounging rooms; one, a modern, beautifully decorated diner; one a combination baggage car with accommodations for the train's crew, and one a strikingly arranged tavern-lounge-observation car, equipped with radio. All seats on these trains will be reserved.

Providing a complete travel service, a passenger department representative will be on each train, and coach attendants and maids will attend to passengers' comfort.

Full air conditioning, interior decorations featuring mirrors and color effects expertly designed to produce a restful and cheerful effect, are among the features of the new trains.

Fluorescent illumination, which closely resembles daylight, will be incorporated in the trains' lighting systems in such a way as to give evenly diffused, glareless light which has been skillfully used to accent the beauty of the decorations. Stainless steel, strongest structural material known, is utilized, not only for the gleaming exterior of the trains but for the Budd built-up truss construction of every car as well—the most modern type of construction known.

The addition of "The Champion" to the largest fleet of winter trains gives Florida the most complete and diversified train service in its history. It is anticipated that this will play a major part in the increasing development of the state as an all-year playground.

FRANCES BELL DUDGEON DIES FOLLOWING STROKE

Miss Frances Bell Dudgeon was born Feb. 9, 1889 and departed this life Nov. 3, 1939, being 50 years, 9 months and 6 days old at the time the Great Master called her home.

Her death followed a stroke early Friday morning while visiting her sister, Ann Dudgeon, of Walton. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Dudgeon. Her parents preceded her to the Great Beyond some several years ago.

Her body was taken to Chambers & Grubbs funeral home for preparation and later removed to the home of her sister, Mrs. Ray Sparks, with whom she made her home, and laid in state there until Sunday and then conveyed to Beaver Lick Baptist church for funeral services. She was a faithful member of this congregation until poor health prevented her attendance.

She had been a sufferer for more than five years, but bore her affliction without a murmer, waiting for God to call her home. All was done that loving care could do for the relief of her suffering. During the years of her suffering she always met her friends with a kind word and a smile.

She leaves to mourn her passing four sisters, Miss Ann Dudgeon, Mrs Edith Black, Mrs. Kathern Sparks and Mrs. Norna Sparks, two brothers, Omer and James Dudgeon, and six nieces and three nephews, several aunts and uncles and many other relatives and friends.

After the services at 2 p. m. at the Beaver Baptist church, the body was laid to rest in the Hughes Chapel cemetery by the side of her parents.

The pallbearers were James Omer Dudgeon, Taylor Dudgeon, Elmer Waters, Joe Dennigan, Bud Black and Charles P. Baker.

Chambers & Grubbs had charge of the funeral arrangements.—A Niece

Red Cross Health Nurse

At the meeting of the Roll Call workers, a unanimous expression was given that Boone County should have a Nurse. If you are interested in seeing a program of health, superintended by a Red Cross Nurse, please fill in the blank below and mail to the Rev. Mr. J. Russell Cross, Chairman, Boone County Chapter of Red Cross.

There is no more appealing picture than that of compassionate womanhood, wearing the Red Cross uniform emblematic of skill and selflessness, binding the wounds of the injured. During the past year Red Cross public health nurses cared for 272,720 people and cooperated with physicians in examining 595,575 school children.

All will agree that the Red Cross public health nursing service fills an essential want. But you will agree, too, that the Red Cross educational program of home hygiene and care of the sick is equally important.

During the Annual Roll Call, which is now in progress in Boone County, a million new members must be secured if it is to meet its obligations to the people. Plans for augmenting the effectiveness of nursing service alone call for a vastly increased membership support. Join hands with the Red Cross by joining through your own Boone County Chapter today.

Out of each $1.00 membership fee contributed, one-half or fifty cents remains in the Boone County Chapter Treasury. We are hoping this year to have a sufficienty worthwhile Roll Call that we can see our way clear to begin negotiations for a Red Cross Nurse for Boone County. Are you interested? Then do two things—(1) Join the Red Cross Today, and (2) Send in the following blank, properly willed in.

RED CROSS HEALTH NURSE

ADVERTISER EARLY

You are receiving your paper one day early this week—we hope. The reasons for doing this are: Nov. 23rd will be observed as Thanksgiving by the Post Office Department and many Northern Kentuckians; we have a large amount of Covington advertising, and we want to be of the most benefit to both the advertiser and shopper, thus we printed our paper on Tuesday evening instead of Wednesday evening.

WORK PROGRESSING ON NEW BUILDING

Work on the new business house being constructed by Geo. P. Nicholson & Son on North Main street for B. T. Elliott of Bracht, is progressing rapidly and the laying of the brick is expected to begin at once. The structure is to be one story with a large basement.

When completed, which is expected to be about March 1st, Mr. Elliott expects to open a hardware and general merchandise store. He will handle International Harvester Tractor, implements and a full line of parts, in addition to a full stock of shoes, clothing, etc.

Ky. Merchants Name Officers

Members of the Kentucky Merchants Association, at their Annual meeting, November 14 in Louisville, elected Robert J. McKim, Louisville merchant, President of the Association, to succeed Frank J. Lanz of Elizabethtown, who became Chairman of the Board of Directors.

Other officers elected were: First Vice-President, Gaines Cooksey of Russellville; Treasurer, Shirley E. Haas, Louisville; Secretary, Uncas Peacock, Louisville; and Field Secretary, Mrs. Ruth Gilbert, Louisville.

Directors named for the 5th Congressional District are:

Joseph M. Luhn, Covington, Vice-President; William Macklin, Covington; Milton Marx, Newport; Conrad F. Nagel, Ft. Thomas; P. L. Sidebottom, Williamstown; B. H. Ellerman, Covington; Clarence Jansen, Covington; Henry Schmits, Newport; W. S. Brim, Carrollton; J. B. Miller, Williamstown, and Muir Minch, Shelbyville.

THANK GOD, WE'RE AMERICANS!

HONORED BY KENTUCKY CLASSICAL ASSOCIATION

Miss Mary L. West of the University High School, Lexington, was elected president of the Kentucky Classical Association at its 21st annual meeting at Bardstown, Nov. 17 and 18. Nazareth College and Academy were hosts for the meeting. Classicists from the different high schools and colleges in the state attended.

Miss West gave a talk Friday morning on "Latin Tests."

Miss Georgia M. Rouse of Dixie Heights High school talked on the subject "As the Dean Sees Latin."

Miss Rouse was accompanied to Bardstown, by Miss Hattie Brumback, dean of John G Carlisle school in Covington.

HAPPY HELPERS ENTERTAINED

The Happy Helpers class of the Walton Methodist church met with Mrs. Fay Conner last Tuesday evening for a business meeting and social hour. Rebuilding toys and acquiring clothing for the Methodist Orphans Home at Versailles, was discussed. December 19th was set for the next meeting to be held at the church for members and invited guests for the annual Christmas party and banquet, at which time election of officers for the year 1940 will take place. Rev. Talley was elected teacher of the class and Rev. Bedinger formally elected substitute teacher.

A tour of the Conner residence, games and conversation featured the social hour. Those present were Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Talley, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Pruett, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Young, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carlisle, Mrs. E. B. Wallace, Mrs. Horace Johnson, Mrs. Roland Glenn, Mrs. F. E. Bedinger, Mrs. Muriel Wines, Mrs. Nancy Cooper, Mrs. Mildred Rice, Miss Emma Jane Miller, Miss Florence Dorsey, Miss Alice Bondesson, William Roberts, Misses Beverly Jean Pruett and Coreda Rice, and Master Jack Conner.

Mrs. Conner, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Hattie Metcalfe, served tasty pumpkin pie with coffee, all of which delighted the guests.

UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICES NOV. 30th

Union Thanksgiving services of the Walton churches will be held at the Baptist church on Nov. 30th at 10 a. m. Rev. J. H. Talley, pastor of the Methodist church, will deliver the sermon. The public is cordially invited to attend this service of Thanksgiving.

DO NOT HUNT ON NOVEMBER 23

Many hunters are accustomed to hunting on Thanksgiving Day, and this day will be observed by many on Nov. 23rd. However, the hunting season in Kentucky, on quail and rabbits, does not open until Friday, November 24, and the lovers of this sport are warned to keep dog and gun in seclusion until then. E. M. Johnson states that Game Wardens will be on duty and any violators will be arrested.

WALTON ROTARY HAS BIRTHDAY

On Friday, Nov. 17th at their regular weekly noon-day meeting, the Walton Rotary club celebrated its first anniversary. A delicious turkey dinner was enjoyed by the members—100% attendance—and 2 visitors.

The speaker for the day was a Mr. Walker from the Carey Roofing Co. He discussed the roof making business in detail and showed samples of the various materials used in its production. The talk was greatly enjoyed by all.

Soil Conservation Districts Explained

What are soil conservation districts?

This question, according to Ward T. Darnell, Superintendent of the CCC Camp at Walton, is being asked by many local people.

"The best answer," Mr. Darnell said, "is that soil conservation districts are local erosion control cooperators, organized and managed by groups of farmers who have a common land problem. These farmers assume responsibility for developing and carrying out plans that will coordinate the activities of all agricultural agencies—drainage, erosion control, agricultural adjustment, farm credit, submarginal land purchase—into a program specifically designed to meet the common ills of the lands with the district."

The Camp Superintendent pointed out that farmers in 27 states are organizing soil conservation districts and that 9 additional states, making a total of 36, have passed laws that permit the formation of erosion control associations. "Nearly 200 soil conservation districts have been organized in the country to date, and as many more are in process of being formed," Mr. Darnell said.

Legislation that will permit the formation of soil conservation districts in Kentucky has been proposed for the consideration of the next state legislature, and this is probably the reason Kentucky farmers are asking questions, Mr. Darnell said.

Constance Man Named Chairman Of County Christmas Seal Sale

R. V. Lents, Principal of the Constance school, has accepted the chairmanship of the 1939 Christmas Seal Sale in Boone county, it was announced by E. E. Smith, Executive Secretary of the Ky. Tuberculosis Association. This will be the thirty-third year that the nationwide educational campaign against tuberculosis has been carried on by tuberculosis associations, both state and local.

"Protect your home from tuberculosis" is the slogan of the campaign, Mr. Smith said. No home is safe from this disease until all homes are safe. Tuberculosis is still the leading cause of death in the age group from 15 to 45. This group includes our young people, and men and women in the most productive years of their lives.

The Christmas Seal campaign will open in Boone county, Thanksgiving day (November 30) and continue through Christmas, Mr. Lents announced. The purchase of these gay stamps makes possible a continuation of those measures which are bringing about the gradual eradication of this disease. The civic minded people of Boone county may be depended on to make this campaign a successful one.

According to Mr. Lents all the schools in the county are cooperating in the sale of the seals, and each school has received an ample supply. The pupils will offer the seals for sale, and make a house to house canvass. The chairman announces that some patrons will receive the seals in blocks of ten and may return the stamps not sold addressed envelope inclosed with the seals. He urges those that receive the seals mail him the dollar or the amount for the seals that you wish to use. Your school will receive full credit for the sale.

Due to the fact that Boone county has no facilities to take care of tuberculosis patients, and has no organization to spend th money to aid directly in the fight, the county's part of the funds will go to aid in the hospitalization of the Boone County Schools. Much was done last year to purchase medical supplies, first aid kits, cots, etc. from the sale of the seals, but still the schools are not adequately supplied with medicine and cots.

Many times pupils become ill at school and may live so far from the school hat going home is out of the question. If the school is not supplied with cots where the pupil may lie down, he must tough it out intil the bus is ready to take him home. By taking proper precautions we may be able to prevent many cases of tuberculosis among our young people. Buy Christmas Seals. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. "We expect to use the county's part in attempting to prevent tuberculosis," Mr. Lents said.

BUSINESS METTING AT NEW BETHEL CHURCH

A business meeting will be held Sunday morning, Nov. 26 at the New Bethel church, Verona. The matter of calling a pastor will be taken up and all members are urged to be present.

W.-V. Bearcats Calm Knights

The local high school basketeers bagged their third straight victory last Friday night at the home stand when they turned back the Florence Knights 21 to 16. This was a Boone County Conference tilt, and the second won by the Cats.

The teams started slow and at the end of the first quarter the score was 3-all, but in the second frame the Bearcats outscored their opponents 10 to 7 to hold a 13 to 10 edge at the half. The locals were never headed afterward and pulled up at the finish line with a 5 point margin.

DeSha McElroy, "big brother" again, led Walton's point-making attack with 12 markers. Shotwell, Florence center, was high for the losers with 7 points.

Florence has a scrappy outfit this year and should improve as the season rolls along, but Friday night they lacked that certain something, once the Cats gained the lead and so had to be content with second place. But then, don't forget the Bearcats—they are playing a pretty fair brand of ball—and they too, will grow tougher with age.

In the premilinary game, the W-V reserves had little difficulty in taking the measure of the Florence seconds, 36 to 7.

Play New Haven Friday

Friday night, Nov. 24th, the Bearcats and Cubs will play their second away-from-home games of the season when they go to New Haven for contests with the Tigers and their reserves. Coach Maurer has a well rounded club and a nip-and-tuck battle is expected. We'll see you there!

TOBACCO SALE AT CARROLLTON, DEC. 12th

George Baker, General Manager of The Carrollton Tobacco Warehouse Co., announces that their opening sale will be held December 12th—not Dec. 5th. This company operates the Brite Lite, Farmers, Smith & Turner, 4th Street, and 6th Street houses. These houses are now open to receive tobacco.

N'cKinney--Wolfe

A beautiful wedding took place November 4th in the parsonage of the Christian church of Erlanger, when Miss Anna Margaret Wolfe, daughter of John Earl Wolfe, of Florence, became the bride of Mr. Everett W. McKinney of Elsmere, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKinney.

The ceremony was performed at 2 p. m. by Rev. F. B. Young, pastor, before the close friends and relatives of the contracting parties, after which refreshments were served.

The attendants were the brothers and sisters of the bride and groom, Maxine and Erwin McKinney and Laura Frances and Everett Lee Wolfe.

The vocal music was rendered by Miss Rice of Erlanger, and John Hammatt of Covington.

The bridal party and guests then assembled at the McKinney home on Garvey Avenue, Elsmere, where a bountiful dinner was served. At a late hour the guests departed wishing the bride and groom long life, health, happiness, and prosperity.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. W. McKinney, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Harrison, Mrs. F. B. Young, Mrs. Charles Popham, Miss Harriet L. McKinney, Miss Laura Wolfe, Miss Wilma McKinney, Miss Anna Lee Wolfe, John Hammatt, C. W. Dickhaut, Miss Rice, Ralph Wolfe and C. S. Long.

ARE YOU SCHOOL MINDED?

The time is now here for individual and personal work in behalf of efforts to obtain additional funds for the operation of our schools for your boys and girls.

The men who will have the power and authority to consent or deny have been elected by the people. The people who know the needs of our schools should ask those who represent them to provide for the needs of our schools.

As a public spirited citizen you have the right, and perhaps the duty, to interview your representatives and senators and request them to write to the Governor and the Lieutenant Governor and urge them to place in the budget for schools a sum sufficient to provide a $15.00 per capita. Furthermore, you should ask other citizens and patrons of the schools to write letters—no form letters or identical letters, but original letters—setting out the facts and the needs.

Here are some of the outstanding facts which show decidedly that a larger increase in per capita is needed:

There are 115,230 more children to be educated in Kentucky than there were ten years ago.

There are 2206 more teachers teaching in Kentucky than there were ten years ago.

The total revenue receipts per child in Kentucky are $4.26 less than in 1928-29.

The schools are teaching 115,230 more children with 2206 more teachers and with $4.26 less money per child than was provided ten years ago.

Thirty years ago the state was paying about 62 percent of the cost of education. Now it is paying about 40 percent.

Seventy-nine counties have only seven months of school.

There were 331,545 illitgrates in Kentucky in 1930.

Only one state in the South has less debt than Kentucky.

Shouldn't and couldn't the state of Kentucky provide additional funds for our boys and girls? Think the above facts over—and act!

Wars Make Strange Bed Fellows—

Washington, D. C.—A special session of Congress produced the strangest alliances for and against the Administration's neutrality bill that could possibly be imagined. Editorial and news writers have as a rule refrained from questioning the motives of Senators and Congressmen who have been making strange line-ups.

In Washington we have been boasting about the victories of "love of country over politics." But those who took comfort in this form of praise for Congress had to pull in their horns when the vote of the House was recorded showing the President's program approval by all but 36 Democrats, while Republicans lined up with 143 votes against repeal and one single vote from that party in favor of repeal. So there you are with a clear responsibility for passage of the Neutrality Act assumed by the Democrats in both branches of Congress.

Senator Pittman brushed aside Colonel Lindbergh's speeches by expressing doubts about Lindberg's competence to discuss the issue before Congress, and the country, and one of the nation's principal news commentators felt sure that Lindbergh sympathized with the Nazis. She made a very weak case of her charges and suspicions.

There is no man in the country whose opinions carry more weight among Republican leaders in the two houses of Congress than those of former President Hoover. And yet he is quoted very little. While he was in office Hoover was "smeared," and he is still being smeared. Nevertheless he proclaimed his position and Lindbergh simply seconded his motions.

Senator Carter Glass has opposed practically every suggestion coming from the White House for six years, but in the neutrality matter he slopped over pretty badly when he said it was "the sheerest drivel," to say that the President could involve us into foreign conflict.

One might well inquire how competent Senators and Representatives are, and just how much weight their opinions amount to when they doubt the "competence" of any personwho offers independent suggestions about the conduct of our government toward the European war. Millions of American citizens everywhere are constantly discussing the dangers of becoming involved in the European slaughter. Groups of friends divide almost as irrationally as Washington statesmen.

The majority of persons in official and private life are so mixed up that there seems good reason to revise the old saying to read "wars make strange bedfellows." The mixtures supply alibis for politicians. —J. E. Jones.

Oil and Water—

Fifty years ago one of the great national problems related to water supplies for cities. The question was where to get water for all these people. The quantity of water was ample, but the problem was one of quality. While the answer was being sought likely a few million people died from contaminated water. The scientists and engineers and the health officials came along with their cures that included chlorine, plus filtration plants, and every device that would aid in producing pure water.

About the time the water problem was being solved a general fear gripped the country as to theshortage of oil, particularly during the great World War. Apparently authoritative estimates were published which showed, in 1919, that the oil wells would all run dry by 1939.

Therefore it seems pertinent to report that recent estimates of oil reserves of 17,500,000,000 barrels of oil are now ready to be pumped and that this supply is sufficient to meet any petroleum emergency that may exist in years to come. To support the estimates basic figures show the daily demand for petroleum is about 3,000,000 barrels. Texas alone can produce 15,000,000 barrels daily.

These statistics concerning oil resources combat the suggestions that the Federal Government be given authority to fix production quotas.

Conservation of oil has been a live question for many years and every time some brain-trusting idea is proposed—such as was applied to pigs and corn control—old Mother Earth seems to respond with new discoveries of fresh millions of barrels of oil. The Nation's oil wells apparently reach down through the center of the earth to points near China.

Oil has been as scientifically refined as water. And it is our guess that there is plenty of oil and water to last until Noah shall float his Ark again.

Garner Is Good—

When Jack Garner became Vice President the public prayed that nothing "might happen to Roosevelt." From that point Garner rose steadily in public opinion, until about a year ago, when he became a leading favorite as a Presidential possibility for 1940.

In like manner Garner was regarded as an enemy of many experimental plans of the President. That was fiction.

Garner explained his position, once, himself, when he said of Roosevelt: "I love that man, and that's the reason I tell him just what I think of what he is doing."

Garner has been Roosevelt's balance wheel. That's where he is at his best, and for his excellent service he should be given the praise and thanks of his countrymen. For many years he has been an "old sure foot."

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5822 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio

While spending the week-end at my old Kentucky Home, College Hill, Ky., I learned that my good friend Alexander Williams had passed on to the Great Beyond a short time ago. He lived to the good oldage of 88 and was honored by all who knew him, having spent all his life in the village of his birth. How well do I remember his father, Campbell Williams, the village shoemaker, who would entertain the youngesters with his stories and good advice. After learning of the early life of ex-president Calvin Coolidge and his early association with his village shoemaker and the influence he had over the boy who afterwards became the president. I often compare our village shoemaker with Calvin Coolidge's shoemaker.

I will never forget the good advice our shoemaker gave me as well as his incentive and encouragement to make a good man. He said one thing in particular that I will never forget. He said, "Boy, if you make as good a man as your father, you will be a good man honored by all." While my father never reached to high attainments, he had high ideals which he impressed on me.

There is never anything lost by encouraging a boy, which reminds me of a story. Mr. Moody, the great evangelist, being the teller. He said when a small boy he heard of an old gentleman who made a practice of giving a new boy visiting his village a penny, good advice and encouragement. Mr. Moody went to the village for his first visit, with an older brother, who said, "yonder comes the man who gives new boys a penny." Mr. Moody said he was so afraid the man would not see him that he got in the middle of the street. When the man met him he said, "you are a new boy in our village." He gave me a penny and laid this hand on my head." Mr. Moody recalled, "I will never forget his kind and encouraging words which have followed me through life, though he has gone on. I can feel his kind, good sympathetic hand on my head now." The outstanding lesson in this story is that we should give kind and encouraging words to everyone.

O'ER THE RAMPARTS THEY WATCH

WHY is an apple like a cannon ball? This is no game, no conundrum, no parlor-room riddle. Both are concerned with defense is the answer. The cannon ball defends the country; the apple defends the body. The apple is richly endowed with those three sturdy sentinels —Vitamins A, B, and C—as well as a supply of desirable minerals. Diarrhea and constipation, most discomforting of the human ills, are warded off and put to retreat by the power of the little red or yellow apple, Dr. Walter H. Eddy, director of the Good Housekeeping Bureau, recalls in the December issue how wise his grandfather was on the days of those big, festive holiday meals in Vermont many years ago. A few hours after the mid-day feast, grandfather would go down into the cellar and come up with a jug of cider and a basket of apples. Nobody kept count of the number of apples the family ate. And that night there was not a single groan or ache as a result of too much roast, turkey or pie. The apples had kept watch!

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

"Mending the political fences" is a homely phrase right out of the farmer's vocabulary. Since representative democracy, the American method of doing things, is grassroots and cornfed in nature, it is only natural that it should be so.

It refers, of course, to the Congressman's periodical return home to find out what his constituents are thinking. He tries to get a good picture, at such times, as to what the home folks think about the way he acted in the past and the way he should act in the future.

The mistakes he made in the past are "breaks" in his "fence" of votes. Obviously, he wants to repair them.

At any rate, this familiar process is in operation again now that debate on neutrality has given way to decision and Senators and Representatives are back home again. The instigators of our national legislation are anxiously trying to find out what their public, so many of whom are farmers who spend part of their own time "mending fence," think about national affairs.

Washington observers and most wise Congressmen could readily construct a handy checklist to aid in interviewing constituents. It would no doubt include the following important subjects:

1. Taxes. Realistic minds in the Treasury Department are trying to find out these days how to adjust tax legislation so that business will be encouraged to expand its operations. There is no "Good Samaritan" attitude motivating this; it is realized that unless there are business profits, it is impossible to collect much in the way of taxes.

Congressmen will try to find out whether the voters are in favor of this idea of helping business and industry. The answer is probably "yes"—simply because the average American wants for himself the prosperity that can come only with business welfare.

2. Pump-priming. This is a phrase and idea that has dropped out of the newspaper headlines these days. But there is still a little bloc of its supporters in Washington who, on the basis of their fixity of purpose, put this observer in mind of the small group at the 1924 Democratic convention who through thick and thin continued to cast "twenty-four votes for Underwood." These forces remain anxiouvs to spend more federal billions to "promote recovery" under various guises.

Congress was hailed for licking the last "spending" bill. It is unlikely that public sentiment has since swung in the other direction.

3. Labor legislation. Investigation of the National Labor Relations Board is still in progress these days, and amendment of the Act itself is still being sought by all groups in our economy. Since groups are the multiplication of individuals, it is patent that the Congressman returning home is going to find a strong sentiment for overhauling labor legislation to insure fair play for all.

4. War and peace. Disagreements exists concerning the best measures for keeping this nation at peace. But there is no disagreement at all concerning the desirability of peace itself. Congressmen know that any bill of goods sold the voters must carry the conviction of their sincerity in this aim.

Meanwhile, New Dealers are beginning to worry about a business recession early in 1940. Some say it will be a sharp slump; others that it will be short and mild; but all New Deal economists agree that there will be a slump. This, of course opens the door for more talk about pump-priming, spend-lend, and what have you on the part of the determined small group mentioned above.

What these folks fail to realize is that the present business upturn did not start until last May, which was after Congress had begun to do a number of things which gave hope to the business community. Congress turned thumbs down on spend-lend, it tightened WPA blank-check spending, it began a probe of the National Labor Relations Board, it made some tax law changes and showed a willingness to make more. And since then, business has gone up and up and up.

It's a pretty safe bet that if the New Dealers don't try to ram a bunch of new experiments down Congressional throats next January, the business upturn will continue and the 1940 recession, if it comes, will be just a passing phase.

In this connection, people who have done some traveling lately bring back to Washington interesting accounts of the condition of business. They point out, for example, the difference in business conditions in California, Washington and Oregon, geographically next door neighbors. In California and Washington, business generally is bad to slow. In Oregon, it is much better.

Business is improving in Pennsylvania, and it is generally on the upgrade in New England.

Perhaps the political situation in these states is only a coincidence, but it probably is much more than that. In New England, Pennsylvania and Oregon party affiliations vary but each state has a so-called moderate or conservative government. In the State of Washington, Dave Beck and his Teamsters Union are maintaining alabor monopoly, while California has a Governor who is elected to office on a $30-every-Thursday plank and who frees Tom Mooney and Warren Billings.

In other words, radical or "liberal" states seem to be having a tough time of it; the moderates or conservatives are faring much better.

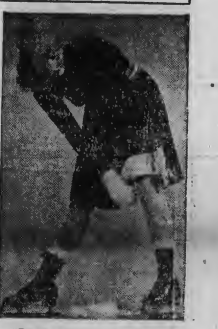
Singing Around the Organ

Not every home could afford an organ in the old days, just as not every home has a piano or radio now, but every organ was a community instrument, anyway, and could beused whenever it was so desired. Sunday afternoon was the official time to gather at some place where there was an organ and sing until it was time to go home to feed the stock.

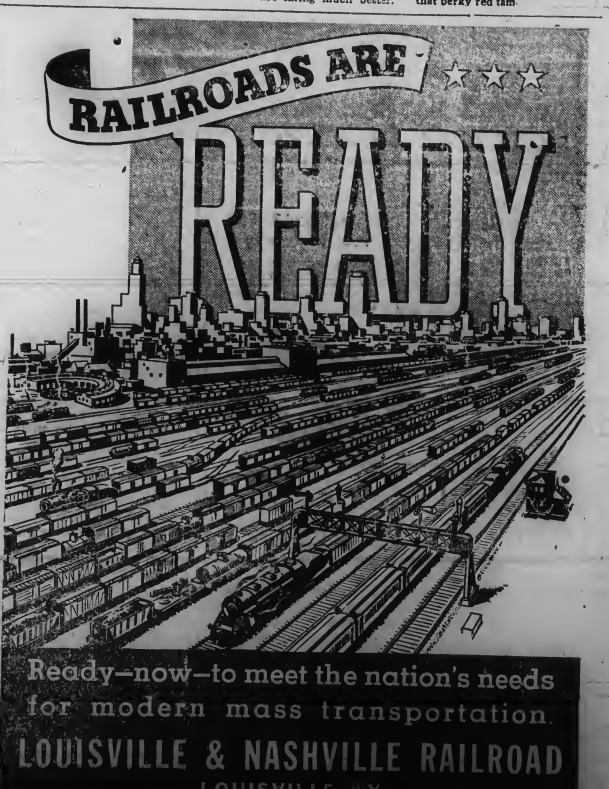
It was not necessary to be a real musician to play the accompaniment to the songs we sang. Some good chords would do, if one did not know how to read the soprano and then make up the bass. Most organists, though, could do pretty well for their training. Some other person did the leading, most of the people, male or female, singing the air. Of course, there was the neighborhood alto, such altos are rarely found now, but they were rare.

Most homes would not tolerate anything but sacred songs on Sunday. That meant that we must resist the temptation to sing "Maggie," "Darling, I Am Growing Old," and dozens of other more wordly things that could be sung on any other day, with or without the accompaniment of the organ, the fiddle, or any combination of musical instruments. Occasionally we broke over, anyway, and were scolded only mildly, for the heads of thehouse had to confess to a joy in hearing us, in spite of the harm done on Sunday. Some of us knew this and acted accordingly.



There is something very appealing to me yet in seeing people gather around the organ to sing. There is a neighborliness in it all, which Seth Parker, in his radio programs, has perpetuated in our sophisticated time. Old people, with broken voices often joined in with us, moved by the spell of other times and places.

A word should be said for the organ, for most organs were worthy of notice, both for what they could and for what they could not do. Seldom did an organ keep its true tone for more than a few years. If there were mechanics who could help them, I never met any such. Sometimes a key would get stuck and carry its tone right through the whole piece. Still more often the octave stop would get out of order, so that a note might be a mile too high. But people around the organ, singing lustily because life was sweet, did not pay much attention to such minor things as a note's being obstreperous.



Very rarely we opened the front room on other days besides Sunday. Then anything was appropriate, even fast melodies. Select company sometimes came on off days and could play in any way they chose. Comic songs thus sometimes got to us, songs that we clung to ever after played the organ on such occasions sang the song himself, doing what we all admired as something skillful, both playing and singing.

The radio brings us great things, things I enjoy as much as any one, I am sure. But sometimes I long for a full-voiced group of amateurs around the organ or, now, the piano a group that takes seriously the responsibility of providing its own entertainment.

Social Security News

This is the eighth in a series of questions and answers relating to the amended Social Security Act. Individual questions may be addressed to this newspaper or to Frank Decker, Jr., manager of the Social Security Board field office in Covington, Ky.

Question—Are wage earners the only persons who are entitled to receive monthly benefits under the amended Social Security Act?

Answer—No, the law has been changed so that survivors of wage earners as well as the workers themselves will, after January 1, 1940, become eligible for monthly benefits under the new program of old-age and survivor insurance.

Question—What survivors are eligible for such benefits?

Answer—There are several groups An aged widow, one who has reached her 65th birthday, is eligible for a widow's benefit in the event of the death of her husband, provided of course, he was an insured worker.

How much is the widow's benefit under this plan?

Answer—It is three-fourths of the benefit to which the worker was entitled at the time of his death. If his benefit was $44 then the aged widow would receive three fourths of this sum, or $33.

Question—How long would the widow continue to receive these benefits?

Answer—Until she died or remarried.

Question—May a widow who has not reached age 65 receive monthly benefits in the event of the death of her husband?

Answer—Only if she has one or more of the wage earner's minor children in her care. In such cases she receives the same benefit as that paid the aged widow. This is three-fourths of the husband's benefit plus 50 percent of the primary benefit for each child under 16 years of age, or under 18 if the child is regularly attending school.

Question—What is the maximum that may be paid to any worker or to any household receiving benefits under this plan?

Answer—The maximum is $85 a month.

Question—Is there any other type of survivor benefit to be paid under the amended act?

Answer—Yes, if there is no widow or no dependent child eligible for benefits, then aged parents who were dependent solely on the wage earner at the time of the latter's death may receive monthly benefit.

Question—If there is no such survivor in any of these groups, what benefits are paid?

Answer—Provision is made for a lump-sum benefit which goes to certain near relatives or to the person who paid the funeral expenses incurred in connection with the death of the wage earner.

Question—What is the amount of this benefit?

Answer—It is a sum equal to six times the monthly benefit to which the worker was entitled at the time of his death.

Weevil damage has been reported in considerable old corn stored in Montgomery county.

Vetch, rye grass and wheat constitute most of the cover crops sowed in Owsley county.

TREE OF CHRISTMAS

By Daniel Henderson

(From the December Good Housekeeping)

Rise, tree of Christmas, in this room
And blossom with miraculous bloom
Let every tree in every wood
Lift up as a Beatitude.
For Christ, Whom ancient trees befriended,
Must now be worshipped—and defended.
Rise, tree of Christmas, for you are
The gallant symbol of the star
Whose glory bid the sages come
To hail the First of Christendom,
And you must still the symbol be
Of Love's eventual victory.

THE WORKS OF THE MESSIAH

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 8:14-27.
GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus of Nazareth . . . went about doing good.—Acts 10:38

"Does it work?" Modern man is not impressed by a thing simply because great claims are made for it or it is intricately organized. After all, the important thing is, does it really work? Such a test can be carried to an extreme and the finest and richest things of life be thrown aside because they have no utilitarian value. But in general, the question is a good one, and especially is that true as it is applied to religious systems and philosophies of life. These claim to have power to deliver man from his sin and give him peace and rest. What we want to know is, do they actually do it, not only in the day of health and prosperity, but in the hour of death and devastation? The answer is that every one of them has failed and does fail, with the exception of Christianity, which comes "not in word but in power" (I Cor. 4:20). In Christianity is found the only real dynamic for daily living.

I. Personal Needs Satisfied (vv. 14-17).

This entire section of the Gospel of Matthew is concerned with miracles. It is interesting to note how many of these events concern personal needs. There is scant comfort to the needy one to speak to him in generalities about a great God who is ready to help people. When I am in need I want to know whether there is any help for me. Jesus healed Peter's mother in the home, and then He went out and healed multitudes in the throng, but in each case it was a personal interest which He took and a personal healing that was received.

Observe also that He met the need of all whether they were sick in body, mind or spirit. Someone may say, "That is all very well, but that took place when He was here on earth." Well, He is here now, working in and through the power of the Holy Spirit and in and through His children. The Lord Jesus Christ daily satisfies every need of His disciples, and often does so in ways which are miraculous in their sight.

II. Sacrificial Service Exemplified (vv. 18-22).

Following Jesus in discipleship is more than speaking sweet words of devotion or of taking part in the carrying out of some public worship ministry. To really follow Him is to "follow one whose vocation is such that there are incessant demands compelling the renunciation of home and the comforts of a settled life. Only the call of God can make one equal to the demands of such a hazardous life" (Edward E. Anderson).

Observe that even the demands which love may present on behalf of an aged father must not be permitted to stand between the disciple and his Lord. There is no thought of unkindness or lack of consideration here, for as our Lord points out, those who are spiritually dead, although still physically alive, may well be called on to care for the physical needs of an aged parent, even in the hour of death, if the Lord Jesus has work for His disciple to do elsewhere.

There is no thought of neglect of the duties of life, but rather of a placing of the Lord first, whatever else may take the second place. The blight upon many a Christian experience is that almost anything else which is of interest is allowed to take first place and the Lord must take second place if He is given any place at all.

III. Divine Power Demonstrated (vv. 23-27).

There are those in the world who are unable to see the workings of God's power in the spiritual realm because they themselves have not been spiritually born again (I Cor. 2:14). For these the Lord here presented the working of His mighty power in the realm of nature.

Satan, who is "the prince of this world" (John 14:30) had evidently whipped the waves of the sea into a mighty storm, possibly thus hoping to drown Jesus and get rid of his divine adversary, but the Lord Himself speaks in the majesty of His eternal power and we read that "there was a great calm" (v. 26). Even His disciples were strangely astonished that the very "winds and the sea obey Him." Yes, the forces of nature respond to His slightest word. The winds and the sea obey Him. But what is even more wonderful is that the turmoil of a man's soul becomes a great and blessed calm when this holy Lord Jesus speaks the word of peace.

Confused and troubled man or woman who reads these words, will you not now by faith submit yourself to the One who can speak to you, who can meet and satisfy every one of your needs, and who can give you the blessed privilege of sacrificial service on His behalf in a needy world?

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

FARM INCOME

It appears to me that the farmer is on the road to recovery. There seems little doubt that cash farm income will run between eight and eight and a half billion dollars in 1939. Farm income for this year probably will be larger by approximately 160 million dollars than it was in 1938.

Farm outlook was not so rosy during the first six months of 1939, but since mid-August, price increases have been all in favor of the farmer. According to the Bureau of Labor statistics farm prices have advanced about twelve per cent while wholesale prices in general have increased six per cent. This simply means the farmer can buy more with his dollars than he could a year ago.

Another important factor making for higher farm prices and income is the current industrial recovery. Factory employment and payrolls are up seven per cent and fifteen per cent respectively, and when the industrial worker has money he spends it freely.

Some states, Kentucky for example, have not shared in this recovery and during the first nine months of 1939 they received about seventeen per cent less than in the corresponding period of 1938. The last three months should show very decided improvement in these states and although they may not catch up with farmers in more favored sections, they will see a very definite upturn in income.

With Europe buying more in 1940 than for some time and with our industrial recovery in full swing, farm income in 1940 should go well over nine billion dollars, highest since 1929. Farm costs are bound to rise but at a slower pace than income, and the farmer will have more money to spend in 1940 than for some time past.

Farmers, poultryraisers, hatchery operators and feed dealers inspected the modern poultry plant of Mrs. L. E. McKinney in McCracken county.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Rouse (nee Sarah Wilson) are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a fine son since Sunday, Nov. 5.

Mrs. Lucy Pearson

Many hearts were overshadowed by sorrow to learn of the passing of Mrs. Lucy Pearson, Wednesday at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington, after a short illness. She was a devoted wife and lovedone. She sank peacefully into that dreamless slumber with the calm and sweet repose of eternal rest upon her brow and like the shadow of a passing cloud her spirit wended its homeward flight. Mrs. Pearson had a kindly and likeable personality and at all times was affable and her characteristics of friendliness and loyalty remain a blessing like the lingering softness of twilight after the sun has set. Her funeral was held on Friday afternoon from the residence, with burial in the Florence cemetery. She was 70 years of age and was a member of the Florence Methodist church. She leaves her devoted husband, Robert L. Pearson and a number of other relatives and friends who mourn her passing. Deepest sympathy is extended to the husband and family from this community.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

HIGH-PRESSURE SALESMANSHIP

A SALESMAN, 10 years ago unscrupulous but successful, came in to see me today with his troubles. He no longer makes sales. I asked him what he thought was the matter.

"That's just it," said he. "I don't know. I give 'em the works—but they don't buy."

This man is a salesman of the old school—a worshipper at the shrine of high pressure salesmanship. His methods no longer make sales. He thinks he's losing his grip.

Charles Roth

That is not the trouble. The truth is that high-pressure salesmanship is out, is dead, is obsolete, is without power to make sales in these days of greater education.

People haven't changed, but they have become better educated in the higher education of taking care of themselves and their money. The process which brought about this education is newspaper advertising.

It used to be possible for a glib talker to take almost anything out to sell, no matter how worthless or inferior, and by sheer high-pressure selling to "clean up." But not now.

Even the lowliest buyer knows that certain claims are untrue, and that the price asked for certain items is excessive. These things he knows because advertising, his refuge against false claims, told him so.

The average customer today is much better informed than even professional buyers were 20 years ago.

The housewife knows which foods contain vitamins, which contain vegetable oils, which contain expensive ingredients and the like. She knows the effect of this or that product.

She is never, therefore, at the mercy of the high-pressure artist who seeks to rob her by giving her less than others and charging her more for it.

Advertising in the newspapers, which she consults regularly, has built into her life an expert knowledge of values and prices and qualities. These make her an extraordinarily well informed person.

He who would sell the average customer must come with good value, a fair price and high quality. Otherwise he won't get even a hearing, because we have something now with which to compare unknown or new goods—and we are quick to reject those that do not measure up.

Much more than a selling aid for business is advertising. It is an educational system which is making Americans the best-educated buyers in the world. It is an economic system which is giving Americans more for their money every day.

Christmas Decorations Give An Illusion of Loveliness

ONCE a year, even the most commonplace homes take on a slightly festive look that instantly removes them from the realm of commonplace to beauty. The beauty may not be actual but the implication of Christmas decorations gives the illusion of loveliness as no other method of alteration can.

The Christmas spirit may be brought into the home in the simplest, most inexpensive ways—so long as the spirit is really there. Helen Koues in the December Good Housekeeping, tells of arrangements that need not cost more than a dollar or two, yet will linger on in the memories of every one in the home.

In ten cent stores or specialty shops, little figures to group around a creche for a Nativity scene may be purchased. Pine branches and pine needles are all that are needed to make lovely little settings illustrating the meaning of the day. The figures may be grouped in any way that pleases the family—and the whole family can take part in the arrangement.

Or, for your mantel piece, a "plum pudding" of greenery adds a pleasant touch. It can serve a double purpose, if necessary, for it also makes a decorative centerpiece for your Christmas dining table. The making of such a decoration is easy and the cost low.

You will need 15¢ worth of sphagnum moss from your florist; some shiny evergreen, such as boxwood, ilex or yew, 50¢; Mahonia, holly, or evergreen barberry, 25¢; 1 yd. narrow red ribbon, 10¢; Make a 5" ball of moss by winding it over and over with string to make it firm. Sharpen the ends of 6" sprigs of shiny evergreen and force them into the ball until it is completely covered except for the part that rests on the mantel. Then trim to spherical shape. Insert longer branches of contrasting greenery at sides to lie flat. On this 5" sticks tie little bows of ribbon and insert at each side. A few twigs of red berries or mistletoe at the top add interest.

YOUELL HERD MAKES D. H. I. A. RECORD

The 18 cow purebred Jersey herd of Robert Youell, Ludlow, Route 2, the past year produced an average of 438.5 pounds of butter fat on 8,440 pounds of milk in the Boone, Shelby, Carroll County Dairy Herd Improvement Association. John V. Hood, tester of the Association, supervised the record.

This is the highest DHIA herd record made in Boone county to date. The major portion of the cows in the above herd were heifers with their first and second calves and when their records are finally adjusted to mature records by the College of Agriculture, the production will be rated up to 30 percent higher on individual cows.

Most of the young cows in the herd were sired by Ada's Tormentor No. 345856, owned by the Boone County Jersey Bull Club No. 1. Members of the Boone County Jersey Bull Club are Robert Youell, Ludlow, Route 2; R. B. Huey and Son, Burlington, Route 2, and Jesse Wilson, Verona. All these men are members of the DHIA and have high producing purebred herds.

Barley, wheat and Rosen rye, in the order named, made the best growth in Bath county this fall.

QUICK FALL FEAST

How would you like to try your hand this fine fall day at a meal that will take but a trice to prepare and guarantee you good eating in the bargain? Then plan to serve copious soup plates of vegetable beef soup to start the meal with zip and zing. Just open the cans of soup and heat and serve. For the main course, bring on a fat casseroleful of delicate cooked macaroni topped with a pinwheel of tender asparagus tips. An unusual combination, to be sure, but a most delicious dish when you use the ready-to-serve cooked macaroni that comes done up in tins. This savory macaroni is simmered in a rich cream sauce flavored with a nippy blend of cheeses. It surely makes a tasty main course service when you prepare the dish this way:

MACARONI AND ASPARAGUS CASSEROLE

Arrange a thin layer from—
1 medium (17 oz.) can cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese in a shallow buttered casserole.

Top with a layer from—
1 small can asparagus tips, having tips radiate from center. Repeat each layer, having asparagus on top.

Sprinkle with—
¼ cup fresh bread crumbs, buttered.

Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) 20 minutes or until macaroni is heated through. (Serves 4.)

SUCCESSFUL CHIFFONADE SALAD

With the macaroni casserole, you'll want a big bowlful of crisp salad greens drenched in a spicy dressing. Line your bowl with succulent leaves of romaine or other salad greens, then shred or cube a solid head of iceberg lettuce into the bowl and pour this cool and colorful chiffonade dressing over the greens:

BOWL OF SALAD GREENS WITH CHIFFONADE DRESSING

Line salad bowl with—
Romaine or other salad greens.

Cut in 1-inch cubes—
1 head lettuce.

Heap lettuce cubes in center of bowl and serve with chiffonade dressing (below).

CHIFFONADE DRESSING

Mix together—
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon paprika.

Add, then beat thoroughly—
¼ cup pure cider vinegar
½ cup pure olive oil.

Add, mixing well—
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 teaspoons chopped onion
1 hard cooked egg, chopped
¼ cup chopped cooked beets.

Serve over salad greens.

DAINTY DESSERT

For dessert turn out a batch of chocolate crunch made by tossing crisp golden rice flakes in a sauce of melted dipping chocolate. Just before the dinner hour, send your nimblest youngster to the store for family sized scoops of ice cream. Then, break the crunch up into crumbles and arrange, sundae style, in deep dessert dishes. (Your youngster will love this dessert for his next party.) Here's how:

CHOCOLATE CRUNCH SUNDAE

Melt over hot water—
¼ lb. sweet dipping chocolate.

Stir in gently until they are well coated with chocolate—
1½ cups rice flakes.

Spread rice flakes in a thin layer on waxed paper and cool. Break up finely with fingers and sprinkle over Vanilla or frozen custard, ice cream. (Serves 10.)

MORGANSVILLE

"Bless the Lord, O my soul and forget not all His benefits."

The Thanksgiving season should be one in which we turn to God in thanks for the blessings He has bestowed during the past year. Love to God must show itself by love to our fellowmen. If the hand beout-stretched in supplication toward God, it must be opened in benediction toward men.

The glow of happiness lighted up the youthful face of little golden haired Jacquelyn Morgan on beholding tokens of affection given in honor of the third anniversary of her birthday, for which she expresses grateful appreciation to Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Wolfe, James T. Hurt, Mrs. Bessie Trapp, Mrs. Jessie M. Barry, Mrs. Jasper N. Williams, Mrs. E. Bruce Wallace, Mrs. John Klein, Mrs. Price Conner, Mrs. Thomas Stephens, Miss Ramona Stephens, Miss Alice Jane Williams and Miss Bessie Cree

Mrs. Grover Cleveland Morgan of Independence has been called to Hyde Park, Cincinnati, by the recent death of her cousin, Mrs. Geo. P. Smith.

Most heartily do we thank James T. Hurt of Walton, for again giving roses while their fragrance could be inhaled. Truly, a rose to the living means more than countless wreaths for the dead. He is a noble christian character in possession of many sterling characteristics. Even in these dark stressful days his life is resplendent with kindly deeds and he brightens each path he chances to cross. May his sunset years be his brightest and best and from the flowers he has scattered in so many lives, there may be yielded back to him a perpetual fragrance.

Mrs. Jasper N. Williams and attractive daughter, Miss Alice Jane Williams, whose countenance is expressive of amiability and charm, and a highly efficient member of the Independence faculty, Mrs. Thomas Stephens and winsome little Ramona June Stephens, were pleasant callers Sunday afternoon. Deeply appreciated were lovely gifts from Mrs. Williams and her daughter, Mrs. E. Bruce Wallace, of Walton. A good deed never shines more lustrously as in times like these.

For a lovely handkerchief, heartiest thanks are extended to the "Mystery Daughter" of the Loyal Class of the Independence Christian church and for luscious pears to Mrs. John Schmidt and daughter, Miss Ruth.

Fire destroyed a meat house, a short distance from the residence of Thomas Stephens, but through heroic efforts of the Independence Fire Department and neighbors, the dwelling was saved from destruction.

GIRL'S RECORD WINS IN NATIONAL CONTEST

4-H work in Boone county has won national recognition according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent, through the receipt of medals to be presented a Florence girl for making the finest record in the county in the National 4-H food preparation and 4-H Dress revue.

The medals will be presented to Ardelle Tupman, a member of the Florence X-L All club. Ardelle has received a special distinction thru qualifying in the National 4-H Dress Revue. The medal is a specially designed silver medal and bears the words "County Dress Revue." This contest was sponsored by the Chicago Mail Order Company.

A gold medal will also be presented to Ardelle for making the best record in the county in the National 4-H Food Preparation Contest. This award is provided by Servel, Inc.

These contests are held in cooperation with the National Committee on Boys and Biris Club Work.

Ardelle Tupman has completed 4 years of 4-H club work. She has represented Boone County twice at the State gathering of 4-H members at Junior Week at the University of Kentucky. She won the county "Dress Revue" at Rally Day last spring.

Construction is progressing on about 100 miles of Rural Electrification Administration lines in Pendleton county.

SOIL CONSERVATION

Once a state passes enabling legislation, according to Mr. Darnell, any group of 25 or more farmers may start to organize a district. Once their petition to organize is approved by the state soil conservation committee, which is composed of representatives of agricultural agencies in the state, the farmers hold a referendum.

All farmers, Mr. Darnell pointed out, are eligible to vote, and if the vote is favorable, a district can be organized. A district may include several magisterial districts, a watershed, or parts of more than one county. Once a district is voted the state committee appoints two supervisors, and three supervisors are then elected by the farmers within the district boundaries.

Another question often asked, according to Mr. Darnell is: What are the advantages of soil conservation districts, and why are they being organized rapidly all over the country?

Districts, Mr. Darnell said, permit farmers to receive the assistance of state and federal agricultural agencies in working out an erosion control program that the farmers, themselves, have planned and will direct. This assistance may be in the form of furnishing trained experts, CCC camp labor, such materials and equipment as may be available, and even financial grants.

"Assistance like this," Mr. Darnell said, "is available now, under the demonstration program, to only those farmers who live in work areas of erosion control camps or demonstration projects." This limits the benefits of federal and state help to relatively few farmers since these work units are scattered rather widely and moved every few years, Mr. Darnell pointed out.

CARD OF THANKS

We want to thank each person that came and fought the fire, risking their lives, to help us when our home burned.

We do appreciate the quick response of the Walton Fire Department and their work in an attempt to control the blaze; also we appreciate the ones that packed all breakables and put them away. Our friends came to our aid when we needed them most. We certainly appreciate everything each person did and we would like to thank each individually.

Most sincerely,

JAKE & EMILY CLARK.

Bearcats Defeat New Haven 21 - 13

The Walton-Verona high school Bearcats hung up their third straight Boone County Conference win and their fourth victory, in as many starts, Friday night at New Haven, when they set back Ralph Maurer's Tigers 21 to 13.

The Cats played their best game of the season in taking the Maurermen and the contest was fast and furious throughout. Improved defensive work aided the Bearcat cause no little, and this, coupled with superior ability to "hit the hoop" proved too much for the courageous Tigers. Of course both teams missed some good shots but the Black and Red seemed to be "off" more than the locals.

The Bearcats took the lead early in the game and it was never relenquished. At the half W.-V. was in front 11 to 6. In the last quarter New Haven pulled up to within 3 points of the Blue and White, the count being 16 to 13, but two quick baskets by the Cats put the game "on ice" and a free toss as the game ended gave them the 8-point margin.

For New Haven, Townsend, aside from playing a good floor and defensive game, led his team in scoring, with 7 points. "Sha" McElroy and "Chuck" Ransler of the winners, teamed up to score 14 points—enough to win the game—with the former collecting 8 and the latter 6. With the exception of some wild passing the Bearcats played a good game of ball, and we believe they will continue to improve with each game—don't let me down boys!

The preliminary game, between the reserve teams, finished a more exciting one than the main attraction. New Haven led throughout but in the final minutes of play the Cubs pulled to within one point of a tie, but here the fray ended with N .H. on top 11 to 10.

Cats at Hamilton, Friday

Friday night, Dec. 1, the Cats and reserves will go to Hamilton for another Conference tilt and the "Bee" will really be on the Bearcats Hamilton has a veteran team and one that is used to the "band box" in which they play. So in order to keep their record clean, the locals will have to "bear down" with a capital B. You say they can? O. K!

UNION MEETING OF COMMUNITY Y. W. C. A.

On November 16th sixty-five women representing the Walton, Hebron, Dixie Heights, Butler and Independence Y. W. C. A.'s met in the Simon Kenton school for a union meeting.

The meeting was preceded by a lovely dinner in the cafeteria, after which the women went to the auditorium for a program. The Simon Kenton Band rendered five selections. The lovely devotional was in charge of the Butler club, and the Walton club supplied a beautiful piano and vocal solo. After this the women enjoyed fifteen minutes of old time community singing, directed by Miss Helen Metcalf, with Miss Louise Talbott at the piano, both from Dixie Heights. Miss Esther Morrison of the University of Louisville, and the Y. W. C. A. office in Louisville, talked for fifteen minutes on Y. W. C. A. clubs and their place in the community. Following this a fifteen minute discussion of club work, plans for the future of the clubs and District was participated in by those present.

It was decided to make this a permanent group and the Walton club invited the group to meet there for the next meeting.

TALLEYS HONORED BY FRIENDS

Rev. and Mrs. James H. Talley were honored in their home on North Main street last Tuesday evening, when they were given a surprise shower by members and friends of the Walton Methodist church, of which Rev. Talley is the pastor.

Walton Chapter O. E. S. Meets

Walton Chapter, No. 161, Order Eastern Star met last Monday evening at the Masonic Hall. Mrs. Clinton F. Cleek was initiated into the order.

After the close of the meeting a social time was enjoyed by all present, with a lovely lunch. Members present were Mrs. Edith Stephenson, Mrs. Ora Stone, Mrs. Effie James, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Bedinger, Mr. and Mrs. George Nicholson, Mr. and Mrs. Will Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Rouse, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Rouse, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Lusby, Mr. and Mrs. John Bedinger, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Vest, Mrs. Kleo Vallandingham, Mrs. Ella Collins, Miss Nora Roberts, V. D. James, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Chambers, Mrs. Mary Stephenson, Grover Ransom, Mrs. Blanche Coffman, Joe Stephenson, Buddy and Jack Rouse.

WILLING WORKERS ENTERTAINED

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Doan and Miss Mary Ransler entertained on last Tuesday evening for the monthly meeting of the Willing Workers' class of the Walton Christian Sunday School. The newly elected president, Mrs. Hugh Arnold, conducted the business session. Rev. Jack Ervin, on behalf of the class, presented the retiring president, Mrs. Powers Conrad, with a corsage of roses.

Rev. and Mrs. Ervin, who left this week for their new home at Versailles, were honored with a handkerchief shower from the class.

A covered dish dinner was enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bush, Mr. and Mrs. Evan Hance, Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Ervin, Mr. and Mrs. Powers Conrad, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Grubbs, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Rouse, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. VERONA HOMEMAKERS TO MEET DEC. 1st

The December meeting of the Verona Homemakers club will be held at the school building Friday, December 1, at 10:30 a. m.

The main topic of the day is Christmas, with the roll call being answered with "My Christmas Wish."

Tobacco Markets To Open Dec. 12th

Tobacco markets in Northern Kentucky will open December 12th instead of Dec. 5th. This change was made in keeping with the custom of opening one day later than the Lexington markets, which will be on December 11th.

The change in dates was made because of the inability of companies to send buyers to Kentucky from the Carolina markets. The delay will probably mean that warehouses in this area will have greater sales than ever for the first two weeks. Growers will be anxious to get their crop sold in order to get Christmas money.

DORCAS CLASS MEETS

The Dorcas class of the Walton Baptist Sunday School met Thursday with Mrs. R. E. Ryle.

Those present were Mrs. James Pennington, Mrs. Levi Pennington, Mrs. Bess Conrad, Mrs. Jesse Wilson, Mrs. W. L. Sturgeon, Mrs. Fannie Brittenhelm, Mrs. John Sleet, Mrs. Susie Norman, Mrs. T. W. Jones, Rev. and Mrs. C. J. Alford, Mrs. T. C. Mason, Mrs. O. P. Mann, Mrs. Cecil Gaines, Mrs. F. E. Fisher Mrs. William Ryle, Mrs. Blanche Coffman, Miss Hamilton and Miss Martha Howe.

FARMERS SIGN ACP APPLICATIONS

Nine hundred eighty Boone county farms are eligible for payment under the 1939 Agricultural Conservation Program. Seven hundred fifty of these had signed on Tuesday of last week, according to H. B. Forkner, County Agent. The remaining applications may be signed in the County Office in Burlington at the convenience of the cooperators. Delay in signing applications will cause delay in receiving payments.

This is the earliest date that applications have been signed since the inauguration of the A. C. P. This means that farmers should receive payments earlier than in previous years.

MARTIN-JACOB

Mr. Russell Jacob, son of Thomas Jacob, a prominent Pendleton county farmer, and Miss Florence Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Madison Martin, also of Pendleton county, were married at the Walton Methodist church at 4 p. m., Nov. 25th, by the pastor, Rev. James H. Talley. The attendants were Miss Mildred Taylor of Falmouth, and Mr. Willard Rose of Ludlow.

The bride wore royal blue velvet with black accessories and carried a corsage of rose buds. The bride's maid worea navy blue suit with plum accessories and rose buds.

The groom is a splendid young farmer, residing on the Jacob's home place near Falmouth, where they will make their home.

The bride, for the past four years, has been employed at the LLL Restaurant in Falmouth.

Interest Great In Dividend Club

Covington merchants who are participating in the Pre-Christmas Dividend Club report there is far greater interest on the part of the Christmas shoppers this year than in previous years. They state that the shopper almost invariably asks for his or her coupons, which give an opportunity to share in $650 in cash awards, with a first award of $250. There will be 71 other cash awards.

A complete list of merchants who issue Pre-Christmas Dividend Club coupons will be found on page 5 this issue. They urge you to do your Christmas shopping early, while stocks are complete. The club plan ends on Dec. 15th.

Walton Girl Wed To Hebron Man

Wednesday evening, Nov. 29th at 7:30, Miss Nannie Lee Roberts, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Roberts who united in marriage to Mr. Willford Sickman of Hebron, by the Rev. Noble Lucas at Petersburg, Ky. The attendants were Miss Francis Sickman and Mr. Jack Roberts, brother and sister of the bride and groom.

Mrs. Sickman was graduated from Walton High school, and since finishing her education at Eastern State Teachers College, Richmond, has taught school. At present she is a member of the Walton graded school faculty, and previously she had taught in the Hebron school, where this romance had its beginning.

Mr. Sickman is a prosperous young farmer, and is well known throughout Boone county. He formerly was employed in Cincinnati. The groom has furnished a home at Hebron, and after a short wedding trip, will reside there.

Their many friends extend congratulations and wish them happiness and prosperity.

4-H Tobacco Shows At Burlington, Dec. 2

Boone county 4-H club members will hold a tobacco show at the old Burlington school, Saturday, Dec. 2, at 10:00 a. m., according to H. B. Drake, Assistant County Agent. The 10 best crops in the county will be selected at the show to represent Boone county at the District 4-H Show.

Each 4-H tobacco member is entitled to exhibit 2 hands each of 3 grades of his tobacco. Record books will be displayed at the same time. Members are urged to show their 4-H tobacco at this show as there will be no other opportunity for all members to display their project. It is hoped that several dollars in cash prizes will be available for the show.

The Kenton Loose Leaf Warehouse has agreed with the State 4-H Club Department, not to hold the annual district show and sale, but to hold a special 4-H tobacco show with the 10 best crops and 2 additional alternate crops from each county.

First Lady offers to face Dies probers in interest of "truth" about students.

Early Christmas shopping brings optomistic note from merchants.

ERLANGER JUNIORS TO GIVE DANCE

The Erlanger Jr. O. U. A. M. baseball club is sponsoring a dance to be given at Zimmer's Pavilion, Florence, on Saturday evening, Dec. 2nd. Admission will be 35 cents per person. A floor show will also be offered. Jerry Lane will appear in person with his Cotton Club band to provide music. This band is composed of versatile, capable, performers and musicians and is in demand in all sections of the country among the smarter night clubs. They are currently playing at the Cotton Club in Cincinnati.

The Erlanger team, the past season, won the State and National Jr. O. U. A. M. championships. Chester Bonner, manager of the team, is also chairman of the dance committee.

SIMON KENTON P. T. A. TO MEET

The regular meeting of the Simon Kenton P. T. A. will be held Monday, Dec. 4th at 8:00 p. m.

A round table discussion on "Family Relations" will be directed by Supt. J. A. Caywood and Mrs. W. A. Stewart of Latonia. If you have any questions regarding the direction of your boys and girls or questions about the school curriculum please write them out and bring them to this program where a box will be provided for them.

We all have problems that worry us, so let's bring them out and discuss them, with other parents, and perhaps we will find a solution for ours and help some one else at the same time. Remember the time, December 4th at 8 p. m. in Simon Kenton auditorium.—Pub. Com.

PANCAKE SUPPER, DEC. 6 AT OHIO VALLEY BEAGLE CLUB

A Pancake supper will be given at the Ohio Valley Beagle Club, near Union, on Route 42, Wednesday evening, December 6th, 5:30 to 7:30 Central Standard Time.

DRAPE AND SLIP COVER CLASS AT COPPIN'S

A new class in draperies and slip covers was opened by the Lenora Mayrose school of Dressmaking in Covington. Registration was held last week. Classes are conducted daily from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. at the school, 2nd. floor, Coppin's.

There is a small registration and lesson fee. A new dressmaking class was also started at the same time. Children 9 to 15 may enter the Saturday class.

Fire Hits Warsaw Sunday Night

Late Sunday night, as the movie "Some Like It Hot," was being shown at the Warsaw Theatre, fire broke out in the projection room. A small number of patrons immediately left the theatre and the operator, Roy Wilson, who lived in the building, took his family to safety. The entire building was soon a mass of flames and the adjoining building, a 2-story brick, was ablaze.

The brick building housed the telephone exchange, but Mrs. Lillian Whitehead, night operator, stuck to her post until calls were made to Carrollton, Ghent, Covington, Elsmere and South Fort Mitchell fire companies for assistance.

For a time it was thought a third structure, the Brown Hotel, would be destroyed, but aid arrived in time to save it, as well as other near-by buildings.

In addition to the Wilson apartment, the theatre building housed WPA offices and the County Agents office, in which all county farm records were lost. The brick building housed a poolroom, the telephone exchange, attorney's office, ladies' dress shop and beauty parlor, and offices of Dr. C. E. Threlkeld, County Judge H. G. Beall and Sheriff Berl Spencer. This structure was owned by Mrs. R. B. Brown, and is expected to be rebuilt in the near future.

This was one of the worst fires in the history of Warsaw, and the loss is estimated at between $30,000 and $50,000. Part of the losses were covered by insurance.

This Country Needs Economy

Washington, D. C.—In the majority of states and cities every person who orders a meal at a restaurant or a hotel finds that there is an item of one or more cents on their bill called the tax. If you buy something at a shop or store there will still be an item on the bill called the tax. It is the same at the gas service station, the cigar counter, the liquor store—in fact everywhere you go. The Old World has followed similar plans of taxation for years. Apparently our country is becoming Europeanized.

The greatest business group in the United States has drafted a program at its headquarters in Washington proposing forty changes in the Federal tax laws. It would like to have its suggestions taken up by Congress.

The big Chamber of Commerce is not butting in, this time, with fresh tax proposals but it states that it is presenting the "composite views of all elements of business in response to a request from the United States Treasury for suggestions on how the tax laws could be improved."

About the only one of these forty recommendations worth mentioning, (because the rest of them are from four to six years old), is the proposal to eliminate "double taxation of dividends."

These big organizations are supported by brilliant leaders in the business and political world. All too often they side-step the real questions. In old-fashioned English the real remedy most neded is ECONOMY.

In six years the National debt has been multiplied several times. At the end of each fiscal year the deficits of the Government have become greater by millions of dollars than they were the year before. The Government has simply gone wild on one spending spree after another.

It is beside the question to lay all the blame on the President because Congress votes the money and if Congress was not a profligate Mr. Roosevelt could not splash around with all these billions of the taxpayers money. The voters' can pin down their candidates in 1940 and pledge them to economy. In the days when Cal Coolidge was President of the United States the national debt was reduced 10 billion dollars. It can be reduced again.

A Hard Nut for McNutt

The National Youth Administration is accused with competing in the private production of school furniture, equipment and supplies and a complaint has been made that the "continuance and extension of NYA activities would be a death sentence for private industry."

The protest has reached Paul V. McNutt, who as head of the Federal Securities Administration is tops of the NYA.

Just what McNutt will do with this report of a private survey that shows invasion of private industry by the youths cannot be stated. Apparently it is one of those cases where Peter is being robbed to pay Paul.

For the Diet Sake

Diets have tended to improve in the last 50 years when measured by the protective foods—such as milk, green leafy vegetables, tomatoes and citrus fruits—consumed by city and village families. The Department of Agriculture reports that families spending $1.25 to $1.87 a person a week bought 294 pounds of grain products for each individual in the period 1885 to 1904, but dropped consistently to 155 pounds in 1935-37. Meat fish and poultry consumption dropped from 123 pounds in the earlier period to 85 pounds. Increases are noted in milk and its products, from 41 quarts to 118 quarts; eggs, 12 dozen increased to 16 dozen; leafy, green and yellow vegetable, from 24 pounds to 53 pounds, and tomatoes and citrus fruits from 10 pounds to 45 pounds.

Ships That Sail In the Night

War, neutrality, embargoes, and restrictions, have spread darkness over the face of the deep and American ships do not know whether they are going to see the ports they made in the days of peace.

Panama seems to be courted by some American shipping companies that want to register their fleets in that country. The neutrality act was supposed to close all loopholes by which American ships could be transferred—but that appears to be a doubtful supposition. Ship owners are in a plight and if there is a way out they want to find it. They have been forbidden to carry on their trade and in consequence are facing great losses. The device of changing registry looks good to them.

To the surprise of the American public there is an apparent indication that the Administration at Washington is willing to shut both eyes and turn the liners over to their own fate if they want to take the responsibility of going to sea, particularly if they don't carry United States crews and passengers. It is said in Washington that if anything happens to these American ships that their owners will have very little reason to ask their Government to get behind them and help them out.

More Persons Want Relief

There are now more than 2,500,000 applications on file for work relief than at any time since the 1937 slump and the WPA officials in Washington state that this is an excess of 700,000 more jobs than the total of WPA rolls last month.

While the country at large is finding evidence of a war boom the WPA officials find themselves confronted with a possible demand for increased relief. When the weather gets colder WPA will increase its activities with 300,000 more jobs in December, and another 100,000 jobs in January.

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5822 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio

A darkey got into trouble and went on trial in the Cynthiana (Ky.) Courthouse, which gave a case for two lawyers, one to prosecute and one to defend. The darkey's name was Anse Harris. His defender's name was John Harris and the prosecutor's name was John Howell. It developed in the trial that Anse had misappropriated some of his neighbor's chickens. At least that was what the prosecutor was trying to establish. The lawyers had quite a legal tussle and what made it more bitter—they were enemies and put personality into the trial.

Finally it came Anse Harris' time to take the witness stand. The prosecutor asked him to tell the court his name. He said, "Anse Harris." To belittle the defendent the prosecutor said, "Anse Harris, are you related to your lawyer, John Harris?" The darkey said, "No sir, he is a white man, and I am a colored man."

Mr. Harris jumped to his feet fighting mad, and went back at the prosecutor, saying, "I would rather be related to the darkey than to have a drop of Howell blood in my veins," which caused such a commotion that the judge fined both the prosecutor and defender for contempt of court and turned the darkey loose for want of proper evidence.

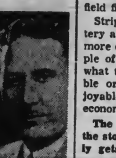
This reminds me—when I married a Cincinnati girl, I took her to Richmond, Ky., to the county fair to meet my friends and relatives. This was in horse and buggy days. We drove around Richmond and the suburbs.

As it was my native home, I knew a good many of the old darkeys; would meet them in the street and on the roads, and I would say, "Good morning Uncle, good morning Aunt." (My wife said to me, "Are you related to all those darkeys?" I said good-naturedly, "Yes mam."

She said, "I didn't know when I married you that you had so many darkey kinfolk." While that was a joke, my wife met so many of my relatives, and they all wanted us to go home with them, which we could not do as we had only three days in the country. My wife said some of them got mad because we didn't go home with them. She said she was not going back any more, because she could not please them all and I had too many kinfolk.

Believe it or not, I have never been able to get her to go back to Madison County.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING



By CHARLES B. ROTH

MEMORY COURSE IN 1,000 LESSONS

THE German psychologist, Ebbinghaus, a careful, scholarly observer of the workings of the human mind, has said that we forget 90 per cent of what we learn within 24 hours. From your own experience you know that what he says is true.

The business man, noting this, understands why he must advertise, not occasionally nor sporadically, but all the time. It's the only way he can be of the greatest service to his customers.

His advertising reminds us of him and of the things he sells, and though we may forget him and those things between times, every advertisement he publishes renews the impression and creates recognition of his business.

Charles Roth

His problem is to find the most economical way of reminding us that it is to our advantage to trade with him.

He discovers soon that nothing is so economical a medium for this purpose as the newspaper. There he advertises. We read. Both he and ourselves benefit by his repeated advertising.

He benefits in the obvious way, by winning us as steady customers. We benefit in an equally obvious way, by finding a man whom we can trust and from whom we can buy all the many things we need to make our lives more interesting and complete.

Advertising is the news of business. Often that news is of far more importance to us than any other news in the paper.

For example, if a woman needs a new coat and scans the advertisements to see what is being offered, the business news she reads is of far greater moment in her life right then than the story on page one of a war in Asia Minor or of an oil field fire in Texas.

Stripped of all glamor and mystery advertising amounts to nothing more exciting than this: telling people of a place where they can get what they need to make life possible or endurable or lively or enjoyable at the most satisfactory and economical basis.

The advertiser who keeps telling the story of his advantages naturally gets the bulk of the trade, because, as you have just learned, we all forget rapidly and must be reminded continually if we are to act.

When advertising is carried on for a long enough time, the name of the man and his product become a part of the daily life of millions of households, respected, revered things and names, almost as close to us as friends or members of our own family.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

Farm Power is becoming a definite factor in war planning.

The phrase "farm power" is seldom used. The economists employ a more intriguing phrase "Economic Power."

In the days of small, professional armies, economic or farm power was not so important. But now that whole nations go on a mobilized basis farm power becomes all important.

The key to farm power is this: It is the persentage of population required to produce food for the total population. In either peace or war a nation must feed itself first. Napoleon summed this situation in his terse remark that "an army marches on its stomach."

Here are some figures on economic power.

In the U. S. it requires only 20 per cent of the population to feed 100% or the whole nation. (And at this 20% frequently produces too much.)

In Russia it takes 80% to feed 100%.

In Italy 55% feeds 100%.

In England-France 40% feeds 100%.

In Germany about 35% feeds 100%.

These figures have been compiled by a prominent Washington economist who points out that in considering the percent required to feed the whole, two factors must be remembered: the percentage must include the number required to produce the actual food and also the number required to produce the cost of imports necessary to supplement domestic production.

In England the production percentage has gone up. While labor leaders probably hold a contrary view, economists argue that restrictions imposed by union labor regulations are the cause.

The production figures also indicate that Russia can give little aid to Germany.

Public conception of the two-ocean navy is different from what naval experts want.

Naval plans do not contemplate two actual fleets; that is one for the Pacific and a separate fleet for the Atlantic. The naval men want one fleet sufficiently strong to meet any combination of fighting craft which might be brought against them in either ocean.

One big reason for one fleet is that a divided fleet often leads to disaster. Then too, the Navy is afraid of local pride and local fear. For example, with war going on in Europe the Atlantic coast states might raise an awful protest against transfer of the Atlantic fleet to the Pacific if trouble developed there.

Take Czarist Russia. The Czar had a Far East fleet, a Baltic fleet and a Black Sea fleet. But the Japs sank the Far East fleet before the Baltic fleet arrived and then sank the Baltic fleet when it showed up. The combined Far East and Baltic fleets most probably could have whipped the Japs.

In a recent case before the Supreme Court, the Chief Justice asked the general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board if there were any examples of actual domination by employers of unions after an independent union representation plan was revised. The Labor Board counsel said that there were no such instances in the court record but the Labor Board believed that the plan held the seeds of company domination. In other words, a government agency, the Labor Board, is now suspecting employers will violate a law they have not violated.

Secretary Wallace is so opposed to American involvment in the European hostilities that he will not permit the war situation to be discussed in his office. This example is not followed by all in official life.

More than one person is remarking that of all domestic news stories that of the Dies un-American investigating committee alone has remained on the front page since the start of the European War.

A check by Dies committee attaches shows that the committee received as much front page space as the world series.

Diss wants more money. The best bet here is that he will get more Washington clearly shows that money because word reaching Americanism is the only Ism the American people want in government.

Strawberry fields on several Crittenden county farms have been certified as free from crown-borer.

FIRST LADY ENVISIONS A BRAVE, NEW WORLD

AS guest speaker before the Good Housekeeping Brides' School recently, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt struck a note that should warm us and help us fight off any feeling of futility as the Christmas period approaches.

One of the brides asked Mrs. Roosevelt if she did not feel it was difficult to plan anything—children, a home—with the world involved in a war, a war that might last a decade. The First Lady answered:

"Of course it is hard to plan anything, hard to feel that anything you do is worth while, when you realize that the world has gone insane. On the other hand, some people have to remain sane and have to go on with daily living and have to have a vision of the possibility of building a world in which there will be no war.

Don't let yourself feel—I have had the same feeling — that life isn't worth while. Living is worth while, and you have to keep yourself sane by thinking ahead and by doing the daily things every day. Don't get the feeling of utter futility, but watch for things you can do that will build a different world.

"They will come along in the next little while. I am sure."

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

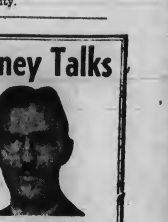
Right Hand, Left Hand

So much is being done for the old and the poor that one might say that social security is the biggest idea of our time. Probably some of the hopelessness of the aged and poor will cease to be, and life will not be regarded as a burden to be borne. Whatever is done by the states and the nation in guaranteeing an old-age security to everybody, it will still remain a matter of local pride that we formerly provided fairly well for the aged and the poor of the old-fashioned country neighborhood.



Fidelity was and is very much like hundreds of other out-of-the-way places; in mentioning a noble deed today, I am merely chronicling what must have happened hundreds of times. Some of the best deeds I have ever heard of died without being trumpeted abroad. It is probably doubtful propriety to save from oblivion, even for today, the story I am to tell you.

Old Man George Watson died some fifty years ago and left a very small farm, a small house, and two old mules as his legacy to his three old-maid, daughters. For a few years the old ladies lived on their farm and were able to make a meager living. The mules were among the oldest I ever knew of, for one of them lived to be thirty-six. In their younger days they had drawn a prairie schooner, "covered wagon," all the way to the Panhandle of Texas and back, when Old Man George got a fit of roving fever. The old ladies plowed after a fashion and raised enough to feed themselves and their stock. But age attacked mules and old ladies alike. There came a time, some five years after Old Man George died, when it seemed that the poor-house, called for euphemism's sake the "county farm," would be the last home of the old maids. And then something happened worthy of telling.

The neighbors would not hear to sending the old ladies to the poor-house. The women of the neighborhood took charge of providing for their needs; the men agreed to furnish wood and other supplies. Every year there would be a gathering at the simple little farm, a donation party on a large scale. The women brought canned fruit, dried fruit, meat, flour, meal, and clothing; the men chopped wood and made repairs on the little house. Various neighbors from time to time took turns about in seeing that everything was all right with the three old "girls," as they were called locally. Even in the worst weather people called by to see the old ladies and to keep them cheered up. This went on for years and years. By and by one of the girls died, but the other two were supported in their simple life. When the second died, it was necessary to break up housekeeping, for the one remaining was too old and feeble to live alone. She was taken in by a relative and lived only a few years.

If you were to go into that neighborhood today and say how much you feel that this is true charity and true neighborliness, you might be met with a blank stare, for the Fidelity people are fond of following the Bible injunction of not letting one hand know what the other one has done. It seemed so natural to them to treat their aged and dependent people like this that you would hurt their feelings by praising them for such a deed. But I felt that I ought to chronicle this, just to show how people could and did take care of their problems before the days of state and national social security.

Money Talks

By
Frederick Stamm, Economist

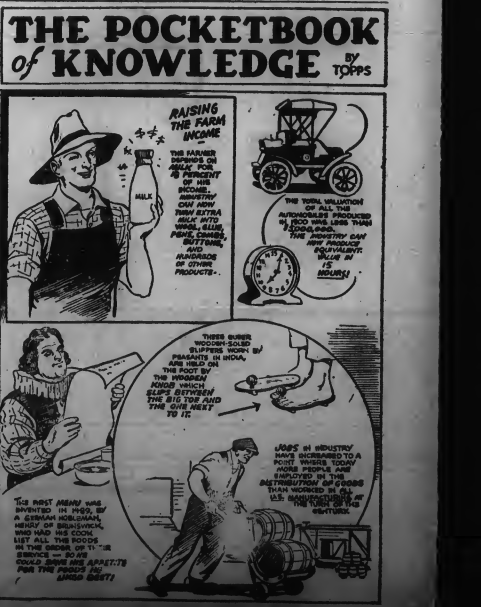
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

Our National Income



American shoppers will have more money to spend this year during the Christmas buying season than for some time, and indications point to the fact that they are already beginning to buy. Retail sales in small towns and rural areas for the first nine months of this year were eleven per cent greater than in 1938, and city department store sales are also up about five per cent. Shoppers should be happy because retail prices are slightly lower than last year, and their money will go further, that is, buy more.

Increased employment, longer working hours, and higher wages have put more money in the workers' pockets. Corporation profits are expanding, and those of us who are stockholders may look forward to larger extra year end dividends than for some time. Farm income and the farmers' profits have been bolstered by the war rise in price. Summed up, our national income should reach sixty-eight billion dollars in 1939, or two billion over last year.

The distribution of about $350,000,000 (more than for many years) in Christmas savings to over 7,000,000 Christmas Club members will begin the first week in December. Retail merchants should be happy, for Christmas Club officials estimate that at least one-third will be spent on Christmas purchases.

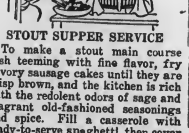
HOT BUNS FOR SUPPER

Next time you'd like to give your family a special treat for supper, serve a heaping basketful of hot bread tucked all snug and cozy in a napkin. Fat little cinnamon buns studded with fruity-flavored mince meat. It's the mince meat that gives these buns their tantalizing fragrance. Mince meat made of tender bits of beef cooked down with old-fashioned sweets and spices—plump amber raisins, juicy currants, chunks of tart apple, candied citron and lemon peel, all melded into one sweetly tart aroma. Spread on a layer of biscuit dough and rolled up into pin wheels, this makes mighty tasty little tidbits done so:

MINCE MEAT CINNAMON BUNS

Prepare—
Biscuit dough.
Melt—
¼ cup butter.
Grease biscuit pan with 2 tablespoons of the butter, then sprinkle with—
¼ cup sugar.
Line with a thin layer of—
Mince meat.
Roll biscuit dough ¼-inch thick, brush over with remaining butter, then sprinkle with—
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Roll up as for jelly roll, cut in slices ½-inch thick and place, cut side down, on top of mince meat. Bake in a hot oven (450° F.) 15 minutes. Turn upside down on waxed paper as soon as they come from oven. Serve hot or cold.



LIGHTSOME DISH FOR A LADIES' LUNCHEON

Here's a favorite new dish for a ladies' luncheon that's so simple you'll wonder you didn't think it up for yourself—a canful of salmon flakes simmered in a thick creamy mushroom sauce, then baked in a copious casserole with crisp little potato chips. It's the potato chips that give this dish the light crunchy texture, and fine salty flavor that adds so much character to the food. We guarantee it a favorite with the ladies, served with a bowl of salad greens—say lettuce and endive with slim radish slices and thin wedges of pineapple, drenched in a tart French dressing. Add hot rolls, apple butter and coffee and you'll have a fine one-course menu any bridge club would take to. Here's how:

SALMON AND POTATO CHIP CASSEROLE

Drain, then remove skin from—
1 16-oz. can red salmon.
Melt—
2 tablespoons butter.
Add and blend well—
3 tablespoons flour. Cook until bubbling.
Add—
1 medium (16 oz.) can cream of mushroom soup. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened.
Add salmon and greater part of—
2 cups broken up potato chips.

Mix well. Pour into casserole, then arrange remaining potato chips over top. Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) 20 minutes.

STOUT SUPPER SERVICE

To make a stout main course dish teeming with fine flavor, fry savory sausage cakes until they are crisp brown, and the kitchen is rich with the redolent odors of sage and fragrant old-fashioned seasonings and spice. Fill a casserole with ready-to-serve spaghetti, then cover with slim slices cut from a fat Bermuda onion. Crown each slice with a sausage patty and bake in a moderate oven 'til the spaghetti is sizzling hot, and the flavors have mingled and merged clear through the whole pot. I tell you, this dish makes mighty good eating for a hungry family, served with a crisp salad bowl, plump supper rolls, and a fine old-fashioned fruit pie. Try it for supper tonight and see how it goes.

SPREADING THE GOOD NEWS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 10:24-39
GOLDEN TEXT—Let him that heareth say, Come.—Revelation 22:17

"Bewilderment." That is the word which the president of a great American university recently said accurately described the present condition of the minds of men. Little wonder that the men of the world are bewildered, for they are like mariners who sail an unknown sea after having thrown away map and compass. Without Christ and without God's Word men cannot be anything but bewildered.

That which gives us even greater concern is that many who are Christians, who really know the Guide and who have the Guidebook, are also declaring themselves to be utterly bewildered. What is the reason? Obviously that they have not read the Book and have not talked with their Lord.

Our lesson for the coming Lord's Day touches on one of the problems which causes many Christians to question God's love and care. They find that their efforts to testify for Him by word or life meet with a violent reaction from a bitter world, and they discover that such a life involves personal sacrifice and frequently results in even the members of their own families turning against them. Can this be God's way of dealing with His people? The answer is found in His Word. The Christian is to be

I. Fearless in a Hostile World (vv. 24-28, 32, 33).

Note carefully that he is not to be silent (vv. 32, 33). We deny our Lord when we fail to speak for Him when we ought to do so. Christianity is not something to be hidden in one's own bosom, a fire to warm one's own soul. It is good news which is to be proclaimed even from the housetops.

But, someone will say, when I do speak there is opposition; they call me names, they threaten to kill me. Yes, and what of it? "The disciple is not above his master, nor the servant above his Lord" (v. 24). They called Jesus a devil. They even crucified Him. Should we then expect to be borne to glory on flowery beds of ease? God knows all about this, yes, even about the hidden and whispered plottings of evil men (v. 26). He will deal with them and judge them in due season.

We need not fear men. The most they can do is to kill the body. Let us consider the eternal God, who not only may take the life out of the body, but is also able to cast both soul and body into hell (v. 28). God is not as a theory, a bit of pious imagination. He is real, He is all-powerful. Why then should we be fearful if we serve Him in faithful devotion?

II. Fearless in Personal Life (vv. 29-31).

It is one thing to be bold in the midst of battle. It is quite another thing to be fearless in the quiet of one's own room, or of one's own heart. Satan is expert at that point. He comes to us with his humiliating accusations of our unworthiness, yes, of our worthlessness. Sadly enough our own knowledge of ourselves confirms his dismal judgment.

But wait! If we are Christians we are not our own. We are bought with a price, the precious blood of Christ. We belong to Him. He is our advocate with the Father. Let Him meet our accuser. What does He say? He tells us that He has numbered the very hairs of our head (v. 30), that even a dying sparrow concerns Him, and that we are worth more than many sparrows (v. 31). We are His and He is our Saviour, Friend and Brother. Let us look up and be without fear.

III. Fearless in the Family Circle (vv. 34-39).

Here, after all, is the acid test of discipleship.

Christ did not come in order to stir up needless strife between members of the family, but He well knew that divisions would come as the result of true discipleship. Men who are ordinarily kind and cultured in their dealings with their friends and families but who do not know Christ, can become like veritable demons against any one in that circle who hears the call of Christ and follows Him.

No human tie, no matter how intimate or precious, is to be permitted to stand between the individual and his devotion to Christ. If it does, Christ is evidently no longer first. He is no longer Lord of all in the life, and if He is not Lord of all, He is not Lord at all.

While it seems almost paradoxical to say it, Scripture teaches and experience demonstrates that if you keep your life for yourself and your own interests, it will die in your very hands and you will lose it. If you give your life in glad abandon to God, on the other hand, you will receive it back from Him transformed, enriched, and glorified by His grace and blessing.

Kenton Farm News

PLANT WALNUT SEED NOW

Why not every farmer plant a supply of black walnuts this fall? Nuts are easy and cheap to secure, according to W. E. Jackson, Extension Forester.

This prolific nut bearing tree with its valuable wood contents, should be growing on every farm in Kentucky, either large or small. While it should be grown only on the better soils, yet considering the different type of soils to be found on the average farm unit, there usually can be found a suitable planting site, no matter how limited in area, thus enabling the farm family to grow a sufficient supply of nuts for home consumption and for selling the picked-out kernels in the market.

It is always the better and safer plan to plant the nut where it is desired for the future tree to stand, rather than to transplant seedling trees secured from a nursery. It has been found that where young seedling trees are planted, which are secured from a distance, the large mortality suffered from the drying-out of the small root system as well as the stagnation and slow-death of the young tree from main root stem rot, (where same has been bruised or pruned) more than offsets any increased rate of growth which might be secured by planting seedling trees. Walnut seedlings may be transplanted from near-by areas with a fair assurance of their taking root in the new location.

When the nut sprouts have grown about eight inches through the ground, the more thrifty one in each planting spot can be selected for continued growth and the less thrifty sprouts destroyed. The nuts should be planted from three to four inches deep, depending on the looseness of the soil. Two or three nuts should be placed in a planting spot spacing the nuts approximately 3 inches apart. If the soil is extra loose, it should be firmed down after planting (If planting is done in the Fall), so as to prevent "heaving" of the nuts, caused by the alternate freezing and thawing of the soil, thereby damaging the root sprout.

The nuts may be planted either in the Fall or Spring. If planted in the Spring care should be taken that the nut kernel has not become dried out during the winter. Nuts may be planted with the outer hull on or off. Protection from livestock, especially rooting animals, should be given the planted nuts after thes prouts come through the ground. To secure rapid growth, all lower limbs 6o a height of six feet from the ground, should be kept pruned.

Due to the growing poularity for their flavor and to the many uses found for them in manufactured foods, the market for walnut kernels is getting better established all the while, and should not be overlocked by farmers as a possible source of income for the farm family. The mature tree itself will sell for an excellent price.

Further information may be had by writing the Extension Forester, Agricultural Experiment Station, Lexington, Ky.

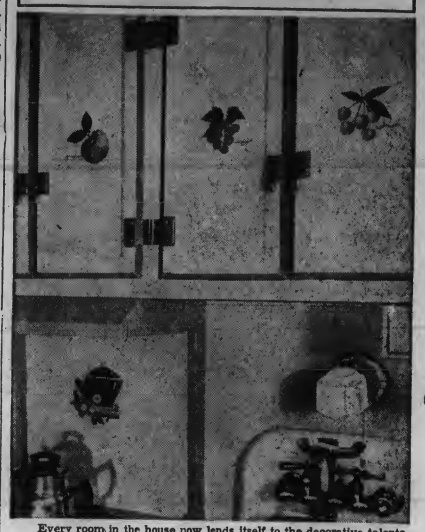
"Again loved Christmas is here"

"AGAIN loved Christmas is here, full of divine benedictions and crowned with the dearest memories in human history the earthly advent and nativity of our Lord and Master At this happy season the veil of time springs aside at the touch of Love. We count ur blessings and see whence they came and whither they tend." So writes Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, on page 256 of "The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany."

This impressive season will never lose its attraction for humanity, whose innate desire is to express love. Human hearts are softened in commemoration of the blessed Bethlehem babe, whose birth dated the Christian era because his life set a new standard for human thought and action Jesus advent in the flesh marked the appearing of the Messiah, or Saviour of mankind, for which prophets and godly men and women had longed with tender expectation, and which they greeted with praise and gratitude.

The devout New England preacher-poet, Phillips Brooks, caught the beautiful sentiment of Christmas, and indited a hymn which has since become beloved. The tenderly impressive first verse reads:

"O little town of Bethlehem,
How still we see thee lie;
Above thy deep and dreamless sleep
The silent stars go by;
Yet in thy dark streets shineth
The everlasting Light;
The hopes and fears of all the years
Are met in thee tonight."



Yes, the hopes which had been entertained by consecrate Biblical characters, during the preceding centuries, met their fulfillment that night, when "the everlasting Light" shone over Bethlehem, and the precious promise of mankind's salvation began to be realized. And today it is beyond human ability to measure the beneficent results of the advent of Jesus nineteen centuries ago.

At Christmas time spiritual qualities are more clearly recognized and valued, and are expressed to a greater extent. It is not material gifts in themselves that count, but the thoughtfulness, the loving-kindness expressed in little tokens of love, the desire to surprise a loved one and to impart joy. Everyone values these signs of love, and seeks to reciprocate by tendering, in exchange, appreciation and gratitude. Thus is the spirit of the Christ expressed in loving deeds, even as the Apostle Paul urged upon the Romans: "Let love be without dissimulation. . . Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love" (Romans 12:9, 10). The true worth of Christmas lies not in material gift giving, but in the deepening and extending of the true sense of love between brethren, and in a broader answer to the question, "Who is my neighbour?" . . .

Human life is enriched beyond calculation, because centuries ago there was born, in Bethlehem, the babe Jesus, who, in his later ministry, faithful to his trust, revealed and demonstrated the Christ, founded Christianity, and gave to all men the gospel of love. This, then, shows whence come our blessings, "and wither they tend."

It is the Christ-spirit, the tender influence of the Christ-power, that is making the world a better place in which to live. Gratefully may we acknowledge this sacred influence upon the lives of men, and seek to reflect divine Love, in spreading kindness, love, and cheer around us. Our true desire finds expression in Mrs. Eddy's Christmas message for 1900 (ibid., p. 257): "To this auspicious Christmastide, which hallows the close of the nineteenth century, our hearts are kneeling humbly We own his grace, reviving and healing. At this immortal hour, all human hate, pride, greed, lust should bow and declare Christ's power, and the reign of Truth and Life divine should make man's being pure and blest."—The Christian Science Monitor.

The Kitchen Goes Decal!

Every room in the house now lends itself to the decorative talents which decalcomania provides the homemaker. Fruit designs in natural colors as well as tea sets, dishes and silverware, adorn kitchen walls and cupboards as shown here. Adding details and brightening otherwise ordinary surroundings, decals are available in scores of designs and colors for any room. Application is simple. Just dip the decal in water, slide it off the backing-paper onto the wall or article and smooth down with a cloth. These modern decals are permanent and can be washed without damage.

Medals For Heroic Milkmen

Fire Chief Arnst, Fred Richardson, F. F. Rennie, Jr.

Milkmen heroes of the nation were honored with Pasteur Medals awarded for valorous deeds on early morning rounds at the recent milk convention in San Francisco.

Fred Richardson, Marin County Milk Co., San Rafael, Calif., received the gold Pasteur Medal. He discovered a brush fire making dangerous headway. The truck fire extinguisher played out but he soaked burlap sacks in melted ice water and beat out the fire. Fire Chief D. L. Arnst of Mill Valley said "a major conflagration was prevented." A fire starting under similar circumstances once destroyed more than 100 homes.

The Pasteur Medals awarded by the Milk industry Foundation, were announced by Frank F. Rennie, Jr., Richmond, Virginia, president, International Association of Milk Dealers. A Chicago milkman won a silver meda. and bronze medals went to milkmen from various cities.

President Rennie urged the milk industry to "show the public how the American milk distributor renders a service that merits the strongest consumer support against unwarranted and misleading attacks".

"This industry gives year-round employment to thousands, creates for the American farmer the vast markets for milk that bring him Class 1 prices, a mainstay of agriculture. At present prices milk is the cheapest and most nutritious food, well within the means of the lowest income groups because the consumer gets more for his money in a bottle of milk than for any other single food.

"The industry is one of the stabilizers of the country's economic position despite attempts to make the milk dealer a political football to be kicked around by ill-informed critics. The milk distributors are a convenient minority for carping critics, targets for magazines trying to go sensational.

. More than 100 speakers appeared including Dr. Leland Spencer, Cornell University; Dr. Karl F. Meyer, University of California; Dr. Charles F. Nelson, Beverly Hills; Dr. Frederic F. Woellner, University of California, Los Angeles; Dr. G. H. Hart, University of California, Davis; Dr. Harold Jeghers, Boston University; Prof. C. S. Mudge, Dr. C. L. Roadhouse, Dr. N. P. Tarassuk, Dr. J. L. Henderson, Prof. R. L. Perry, University of California, Davis; Dr. J. C. Geiger, San Francisco Health Director and Prof. G. E. Gordon, University of California.

INDEPENDENCE

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Glass of Independence announce the marriage of their daughter, Anna Katherine to Mr. Carl Wichterman, son of Bernard Wichterman of Ocala, Fla. The ceremony was performed at 4 p. m. Saturday at the parsonage of Rev. F. H. Malone, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church. The couple's attendants were Mrs. Marion Johnson and Mr. Paul Wichterman, sister and brother of the bride and groom. The bride, who is exceedingly beautiful was lovely in her bridal gown of white brocade. The bride carried a boquet of pink roses. The bridesmaid was in an aqua frock. Following the ceremony the wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's father. The couple will make their home in Florida, where Mr. Wichterman will be employed.

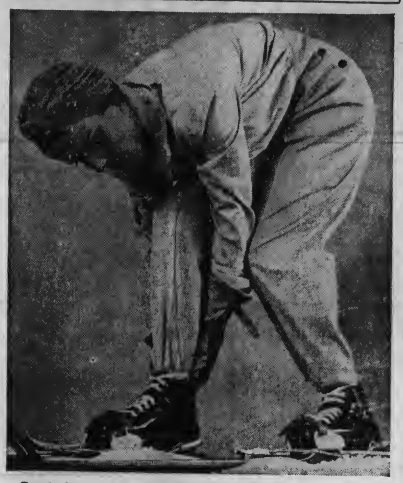
Fertilizer Boosts Farm Income



CHICAGO.—One dollar out of every eleven received by American farmers from the sale of farm products of every kind annually represents income resulting from the use of fertilizer promoting increased crop yields.

At the same time, only one dollar out of every thirty-nine received from the sale of farm products is spent for fertilizer, according to a study of farm income.

"In 1938 farmers received $7,558,000,000 for all agricultural products, including livestock," a bulletin points out. "In the same year they paid $192,000,000 for their commercial fertilizer. Thus the increased profits resulting from the use of fertilizer were $678,420,000 or more than three dollars for every dollar spent.

"While the price of fertilizer is lower by comparison than practically any other commodity the farmer buys, he spends less for it annually than for wages for hired help, feed for livestock, farm implements, gasoline or taxes."

Social Security News

This is ninth of the series of questions and answers concerning the amended Social Security Act. Individual questions about any phase of social security will be answered either through this column or personally if desired by submitted inquiries to Frank Decker, Jr., Manager of the Social Security Board field office in Covington, Ky.

Q. What is meant by "a primary insurance" benefit under the amended program of old-age and survivors insurance?

A. This is an insured worker's individual benefit, payable after January 1, 1040, to workers who retire at or after age 65 after having worked in employment covered by the Social Security Act.

Q. How are the individual benefits of such workers determined?

A. From the average monthly wage which an individual has received while working in covered employment.

Q. What is the formula used in calculating these benefits?

A. The worker will receive 40% of the first $50 of his average monthly earnings plus 10% of his additional earnings over $50 and not exceeding a maximum of $250 a month.

Q. Give an example. What would be the monthly benefit of a worker who has earned $200 a month and who worked steadily ten years prior to retirement at age 65.

A. The benefit would be figured as follows. Forty percent of the first $50 is $20. Ten percent of the additional $150 is $15. This makes $35 in all. To this is added one percent of $35, or 35 cents, for each year of service. Ten times 35 cents is $3.50—so this workers benefit would be $38.50 a month under the amended program.

Q. How long would these benefits be paid?

A. From the time the worker retired until he died. If the worker returned to covered employment after retirement and earned $15 per month or more his benefits would be suspended in the months he had such earnings.

Q. Suppose this worker bought a farm and earned money raising crops or chickens. Would he still be eligible for his monthly old age insurance benefits?

A. He would. Farming is not covered by the old-age insurance program nor are such wags taxable under the Social Security Act.

Q. Suppose this worker had an income from an insurance annuity which he had purchased by payment of the usual premiums. Would that affect his old-age insurance benefits?

A. Not at all. Old-age insurance benefits have been earned as a matter of right and are paid to insured workers regardless of their financial status or income from any other than employment covered under this system.

Q. How many persons are now earning wages which may later be the basis of benefits of this type?

A. More than 36,000,000 persons have now earned some wages in employment which is covered by the old-age insurance system. All of these persons may be eligible for monthly benefits if they meet the provisions of the amended act.

A Christmas Message to Youth

By ARTHUR H. COMPTON

Nobel Prize Winner for Physics

(Reprinted from the December Good Housekeeping)

CHRISTMAS comes again, with its age-old story of shepherds watching their flocks by night, of herald angels singing, and of Wise Men following a star to the birthplace of a King.

As these words are written, there seems little hope of peace on earth for many months to come. Yet, despite the rumble of guns abroad, I have a Christmas message to offer to my own countrymen. And I wish to offer it primarily to the twenty-five million young Americans between fifteen and twenty-five years of age.

To you young people what Christmas symbolizes is of the greatest importance. You are on the threshold of opportunity. By your own leadership and by the ideals you instill in your children, you will determine what our country, and, indeed, the world, will be half a century from now.

Six million of you are in high school; more than one million in college; twelve million are employed; six million are jobless. Whether you are in the fortunate group still pursuing your education, or have found your place in industry, commerce, or a profession, or are unfortunate in not yet having found your place, Christmas still makes you the most favored youth group in all the world.

Thank God this Christmas for the freedom that is yours and that the spirit of Christmas gives you—the freedom to think as you please, to do as you will; to get an education, to plan a career; to marry and build a family; to share in government, to criticize public servants, to run for any office; to seek your fortune in high or low places; to have a home that is your castle; to worship or not as you desire; to rise or fall by your own efforts; to speak unhesitatingly what you think, without fear of reprisal; to have complete liberty of conscience, to be the ruler of your own destiny, the sovereign of your own personality.

These are some of the liberties in our land, the oldest of the world's great democracies — paradoxically, and significantly, located in the "new world." We have taken our liberties for granted, like the air we breathe, the telephone we use, the radio to which we listen. They seem automatic, as matter-of-fact as if they had always been ours. Yet these very liberties have been acquired, and can be taken away.

Because Christianity has emphasized the importance of the human spirit, it is the basis of the modern democratic idea of the rights of man, out of which in turn has come the best in modern science and social advancement. Conversely, with the departure of religious faith go democracy, science, freedom of thought, and the sacredness of human personality. We have seen it happen wherever totalitarianism preaches the absolutism of the state over man's mind and soul.

Christmas is the symbol of human progress, the keenest desire for which is manifest in youth. It stresses charity to the poor, care of the underprivileged, a chance for all. The Yule season is electric with the spirit of good will. It sometimes conquers even the hate of war. There are instances on record in the Civil War and in the First World War of enemy soldiers fraternizing on Christmas Eve.

It is this spirit of good will, of charity, of sacrifice, of service, of search for truth, born of Christianity, that has given to the world the chain of hospitals and universities, the old people's homes, the orphanages, and the vast program of education and social welfare. In no field has science done more for the benefit of man than in the battle against ignorance, superstition, disease, poverty, and underprivilege. It is in these practical human effects that modern science is most clearly distinguished from the earlier eras of science.

There is no room for cynicism, for defeatism, for frustration in the message of Christmas to youth. It stimulates visions of a better world. It gives to life a purpose and to every personality a destiny. Its resistless urge is that everyone should go forward. In spite of the turbulence in the world today, a tremendous program of advancement is under way, born primarily of missionary endeavor. To produce such an effect there must be an adequate cause. That's an elementary rule of science. Since Christianity produces such results, it is itself of vast intrinsic worth. Put it in the test tube, and it proves its value.

I can wish for youth today nothing better than a vital Christian attitude. I stress no doctrine, for that is for the individual to determine for himself. But I do urge the scientific-mindedness of the Christian faith. Let fellowship with God be intimate; let the beauty of the teachings, of the example, of the sacrifice of Christ grow upon you; let the relentless search for truth guide you; let the spirit of good will possess you.

I would like to stress the fact that there is no real conflict between science and religion. Many people have the mistaken idea that science is purely abstract investigation, utterly removed from the affairs of everyday life. Yet science in its laboratories, in its study of the stars, in its theories and laws, has but one objective: an understanding of the world that will add value to life.

Ready For the Season's Biggest Bout

THE battle's on, folks. On the right, Snerdsville's Snerd, 42½ pounds of rough pine. And on the left, 40 pounds of polished veneer from the city, Mr. Charles McCarthy. Referee of the season's mightiest radio fisticuffs is Edgar Bergen.

It all came about when Snerd, the midget Mortimer, vowed he'd "mow down" McCarthy's terrific conceit. It was to be just a quiet, before-the-mike job, just a minute or two, with Bergen as mediator.

But the rough and ready country lad discovered that demon-with-the-ladies McCarthy was a bit more than he could whittle, and that it would take more than a one-round match to put the fashionable Charlie in his place.

The gong for another round is sounded each Sunday at 8:00 p.m. (EST) over the NBC-Red network with Rudy Vallee, Donald Dickson, Dorothy Lamour, and Robert Armbruster's orchestra at the ringside.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Grover and son of Covington were calling on Mr. and Mrs. Roy D. Webster, on Sunday.

Mrs. Maxie Webster and granddaughter Julia attended the funeral of Mrs. Mark Benson at Walton.

We are very sorry to say our Post Office was discontinued Nov. 15, as the Postmaster who passed away had it for 39 years. But we will welcome our mail carrier, Mr. Macrander, and hope he is successful with the new route.

IN LOVING MEMORY

Of Ina Elmer Webster, who departed this life Aug. 17, 1939.

He is gone but not forgotten
As it dawns another month,
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of him are always near
Days of sadness still come o'er us
Friends may think the wound is healed;
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within our hearts concealed
When evening shadows are falling
And we sit in quiet, alone,
To our hearts comes a longing,
If he could only come home.
Friends may think we have forgotten, Dear Grandpa,
When at times they see us smile.
But they little know the heartaches
Our smiles hide all the while.

—Sadly missed by his Wife, Son and Wife and Grandchildren.

EAGLE TUNNEL

(Delayed from Last Week)

"Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man sow'eth, that shall he also reap."—Galatians 6-7.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wood of Cincinnati spent Sunday at their farm the guests of Wm. Wallace and family.

Mrs. Noble Lillard and children of near Louisville were guests of Mrs. Lillie Lillard and family last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lummie Kemper of Warsaw Heights were the Sunday guests of their daughter, Mrs. Jack Duncan and family.

Miss Maud Day of Paris is visiting her sister Mrs. Joe Reffett and Mr. Reffett.

Several from this neighborhood attended the tobacco meeting at Warsaw, Saturday afternoon.

Miss Wilma Arrasmith spent one night last week with her school mate, Miss Elaine Duncan.

MORGANSVILLE

"Therefore be ye also ready for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh."

"Christians are the Bibles most read men."

Deep appreciation is extended to Mr. and Mrs. John P. Riggs, Mrs. Jasper N. Williams, Mrs. Abbie Bush and Mrs. Loretta Richardson for lovely gifts.

A shadow of deepest sorrow was cast upon the household of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Armstrong of near Nicholson, Nov. 16th when little Miss Norma Jean Canaday was suddenly and fatally stricken while on a visit to her devoted grandparents. She was the beloved 2½-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Canaday and like a ray of golden sunlight her little life brightened all those with whom she came in contact. Before the cold, wintry winds of time could chill and blight her tender young life, has this delicate flower been transplanted to that Heavenly Garden where it will unfold in its full beauty. Beautiful floral tributes adorned the tiny casket and little friends served as pallbearers. Following the last rites, conducted by Rev. Case, burial took place in the Independence cemetery.

Greenup county merchants awarded prizes in a canning contest among members of homemakers' clubs.

W.-V. SCHOOL NEWS

— Evelyn Phillips —

The Walton-Verona Bearcats played the New Haven Tigers last Friday night, Nov. 24 on the New Haven hardwood. In the preliminary our second team lost by a score of 11 to 10, but our first team was victorious by a score of 21 to 13. This makes our winnings four in a row.

† † †

On Friday night, Dec. 1, our team will venture to Hamilton to play the Farmers. Come on out and boost your team on to another victory.

† † †

The girls who attended the annual District Girl Reserve Conference were Rosellen Chapman, Evelyn Coffman, Mary DeMoisey and Mabel Cook. Evelyn Coffman was elected Vice President for next year's conference which will be held at Burlington.

† † †

The Girl Reserve held a bakery sale at Laws Grocery Saturday and it was quite a success.

† † †

The Juniors and Seniors raffled off a turkey Saturday afternoon to make money for their classes. The lucky winner was Rosalie Sizemore.

† † †

The students who were on the honor roll for the last six weeks in the first five grades were:

2nd Grade—Betty Northcutt, Earl Richard Flynn, and Tommy Johnson.

3rd Grade—Earl Bickers, Maida St. Clair, Geraldine Simpson, Peggy Vest and Marjorie Carpenter.

4th Grade— Johnny Brakefield, Buddy Rouse and Jerry Rouse.

BANKS SPONSOR 4-H TOBACCO SHOW

Boone county banks are sponsoring the first County 4-H Tobacco Show to be held at the old Burlington school gymnasium on this Saturday, Dec. 9th, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The winners of the show will represent the county at the District Tobacco Show to be held in Covington, Dec. 16th.

Cash prizes will be awarded the best twelve crops selected on two hands each of any five of the six crop grades: flyings, trash, lugs, bright leaf, red leaf or tips. Project record books will be considered in selecting the best crops. Additional cash prizes will be awarded on each of the five grades: flyings, trash, lugs, bright leaf and red leaf.

Tobacco is one of Boone county's big cash crops. This year the county has produced approximately 2,237,000 pounds valued at approximately $401,796.60.

One hundred and eighteen 4-H Club members completed their tobacco project and are eligible to compete in the show Saturday, and fifteen have already reported they intend to enter.

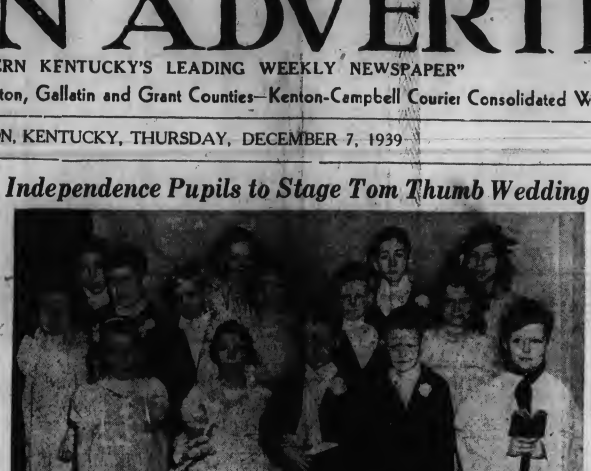
Sherman Woman Burns To Death

Mrs. Eva Porter Price, 55, was burned to death Sunday outside her home in Sherman.

Rev. Z. W. Pigg, a neighbor, saw a burning object and went out to investigate, and found it was the body of Mrs. Price.

Coroner Claud Neal of Grant county, said it was a case of suicide, and reported the woman had saturated her clothing with kerosene and set it afire. She is survived by her husband, Howard Price, 60, who was committed to Eastern Hospital in Lexington, for treatment last Friday, and two children, Carol, 16, and Charles, 18.



Funeral services were conducted from the Sherman Baptist church Monday morning, with burial in the Williamstown cemetery.

ATTENDED INTERNATIONAL LIVE STOCK EXPOSITION

Ryle W. Ewbank and daughter, Mary Katherine, of Warsaw, were in Chicago, the first of the week, attending the International Live Stock Exposition. Miss Mary K. also attended the National 4-H Club Congress, where she was honored as Kentucky State Sheep Champion. She is the owner and breeder of the undefeated ewe lamb of the entire United States in 1939. This is indeed an honor and Miss Ewbank is justly proud of her accomplishment.

Bearcats Bow To Hamilton

Last Friday night the Walton-Verona Bearcats traveled down to Hamilton where they encountered the Farmers in a Boone County Conference melee. The Farmers, a veteran quintette, were figured to give the locals plenty of trouble—and they did just that—upsetting the Cats 34 to 24. This was the first loss of the infant season for the Blue and White.

In the first quarter the teams played on even terms, the count being 6-all at the end of this period. Soon after play was resumed, Hamilton forged ahead and "showed the way" throughout the remainder of the contest. At the half they were in front 14 to 8 and 21 to 11 at the end of the third quarter.

Hubbard, husky Hamiltonian, and one of the best basketballers in the Conference, led his team in offensive play with 11 points. "Sha" McElroy was the "shining light" on the Bearcat squad and registered 16 points for the losers.

The Bearcat reserves were victorious in the opener, subduing the Hamilton second team 15 to 5. W. V. led at the half 4 to 0. After the rest Hamilton scored 5 points to take the lead, but were unable to score more and the "home" lads moved on to win the fray.

At Newport, Dec. 8th

On Friday night, Dec. 8 the Bearcats go to Newport, where they will clash with the Wildcats. Newport has an inexperienced team, but the Waltonians will probably be in for a rather hectic evening.

Simon Kenton Here, Dec. 12th

The next home game for the Bearcats will be on Tuesday night, Dec. 12, when they are hosts to the Pioneers from Simon Kenton. A bit of friendly rivalry exists between these teams and an exciting and hard fought game is expected. You'll be there won't you?

FLORENCE AWAITS APPROVAL OF WPA

Although federal approval of a $181,000 Work Projects Administration grant for construction of a sanitary sewer system in Florence, was given several months ago, the city is still waiting approval of the Kentucky WPA office before it can start work. John Fink Dies After Long Illness

John Fink, 69, passed away at his home on South Main street, early last Friday morning, after an illness of about a year from cancer. He had been serioual ill for three weeks.

Mr. Fink was born at Verona, and moved to Walton when quite young, where he had resided ever since. By profession he was a painter, and also did carpenter work. He was a proficient workman, and for years, his services were in great demand, both here and elsewhere.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Chambers & Grubbs Funeral Home, in charge of Rev. C. J. Alford, assisted by Rev. R. F. DeMoisey and Rev. J. E. Roberts. Mrs. Olivia Wills and Miss Kathryn Chandler sang, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Wilford M. Rice. Burial was in the Walton cemetery.

The pallbearers were George P. Nicholson, Nathan Northcutt, Wilford Rice, Walter Whitson, Fred Holden of Ludlow, and C. F. Clutterbuck of Erlanger.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Pearl Fink, and two daughters, Miss Ruth Fink and Miss Mary Fink, both at home.

Chambers & Grubbs had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Attended the Funeral

Among those from out-of-town who attended the funeral were:

C. O. Grubbs, Robert Grubbs and Miss Myrtle Edwards of Glencoe; Mr. and Mrs. Virge Beall of [illegible]

R. E. A. Educational Meetings Scheduled

Meetings to discuss R. E. A. wiring, lighting fixtures and electrical equipment will be held Thursday and Friday, Dec. 14 and 15, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Chester Roland, manager of the R. E. A., Earl Welch, engineer, College of Agriculture, Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Dimonstration Agent and others will speak on the program.

The schedule of the meetings is as follows:

Walton - 1:00 p. m., December 14.

Hamilton School - 7:00 p. m., December 14.

Burlington - 9:30 a. m., Dec. 15.

Recommended types of wiring and equipment will be on display and discussed at these meetings. R. E. A. prospective customers will find that they can wire or light their homes just as cheaply with the most serviceable types of equipment as they can with poor quality equipment. Every propective user of R. E. A. electricity and others who are interested are invited to attend one of these meetings.

DIVIDEND COUPONS STILL BEING ISSUED

Participating Covington merchants are still issuing Pre-Christmas Dividend Club coupons, but the time is drawing to a close—Thursday, December 14th is the last day. These coupons give the holder an opportunity to share in the $650 to be given in cash awards, Dec. 15th. There is a first prize of $250 and 71 other cash prizes.

FRUIT COMMITTEE TO MEET DEC. 13

The Northern Kentucky Fruit Grower's Committee will meet on Dec. 13th at 1:00 p. m. at the County Agent's office in Independence to locate an insectary for Northern Kentucky.

The Boone county committee is composed of B. C. Stephens, F. H. Rouse and Sterling Rouse. The committee has been working with committees of other counties and the College of Agriculture.

The insectary will be used to study insect and disease development on fruit. Growers cooperating in the program will receive timely notices as to proper time to apply insect and disease control measures.

"The Hoodoo" At New Haven Dec. 20

A large cast from the New Haven Dramatic Club, under the direction of Miss Rebecca Sleet, will present a treat to the public on Wednesday night, Dec. 20th in the form of a laugh-provoking three-act comedy entitled "The Hoodoo."

Professor Solomon Spiggot, an expert in Egyptian history, brings a gift to the gay bridegroom of a merry wedding party—an Egyptian scarab, over four thousand years old and worth thousands of dollars. But the mysterious scarab must be burried for twenty-four hours or the possessor experiences the displeasure of all the Egyptian gods. Before this is done, much trouble comes to the bridegroom; to Billy Jackson, the heartbreaker; to Aunt Paradise, the colored cook; to Dun, the burglar, and to Professor Spigot; but to the audience—laughs, thrills, and more laughs!

You can't afford to miss seeing "The Hoodoo," Wednesday night, December 20th.

WALTON COUPLE WED 40 YEARS

On November 30th, friends of Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Ryle celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary, at their residence on South Main street, with a surprise open house. About sixty guests called between the hours of three and five.

Dr. and Mrs. Ryle were married by the late Rev. S. M. Adams at the Beaver Lick Baptist church on Thanksgiving evening, 1889. They lived for several years at Big Bone, then moved to Beaver, where they remained until they located in Walton in 1923. Dr. Ryle has been actively engaged in the practice of medicine since before his marriage, and has many warm friends who welcomed this opportunity to show their appreciation of him and his good wife.

The affair was arranged and carried out by their son, William, and his wife, aided by Dr. and Mrs. D. L. Maddox, Rev. and Mrs. C. J. Alford, Martha Brown and others. They had managed to have Dr. and Mrs. Ryle go away from home in the afternoon for a call. When they returned, many of the guests has assembled, and Dr. and Mrs. Ryle entered the house to strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played on the piano by Mrs. John Delahunty of Florence, who had played the march for the wedding forty years before.

Among those present were Mrs. Lydia Taylor McCormac of Verona, bridesmaid, Mr. Denton Cotton of Jonesville, Grant county, best man, and Mr. John W. Sleet, who was an usher at the wedding. A number of the guests present had also attended the wedding.

The dining room table bore a beautiful boquet of chrysanthemums, the gift of Mr. C. Scott Chambers. Guests presented a number of beautiful and useful gifts. Mrs. Ryle opened these, and thanked the donors.

Refreshments consisted of brick ice cream, bearing a ruby colored 40, and delicious home made cakes, brought by neighbors and friends.

The following called during the afternoon:

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Noell, Mrs.

Knights of the Road

Time was when no more popular criticism could be made than a vitriolic assault upon the truck driver, often referred to most disparagingly as a "highwayman." Apparently the basis for such criticism has been largely removed in recent years, as witnessed by popular reaction to the "unfair maligning of truckers" the other day by Secretary of the Interior Harold E. Ickes, who even expressed a desire to drive an armored tank down the highway in open warfare.

Numerous have been the spontaneous protests against this blast, as gleaned from editorials, Letters to the Editor, and newspaper columnists. Here are two typical examples:

"I'm not a truck driver and I have no connection with the trucking industry. All I can say is, I wish half the pleasure-car drivers were as courteous, cautious and correct in their driving as the average truck driver. Believe me, it's a rare truck driver that exceeds speed limits, gyps traffic lights or drives on the wrong side of the road."

"As a car driver I learned that the trucker was the one man on the road I could depend upon. I could count on him to stop if I was in trouble at night; to pull me out of a snowbank or a mud hole, out of the ditch or out of any of the troubles that beset a man trying to make mileage day and night. The trucker gave me the road when I flashed by lights to him; he held me back when passing was dangerous, and gave the 'go ahead' when all was clear.

"My best wishes and 'thanks a million' to the truckers; they have been regular fellows and a true source of comfort to the man on the road at night. He knows that, whatever may happen to him, there's a big, generous, good-natured but eminently capable chap rumbling along in a big cab either ahead of or behind him. And, if trouble does come, so also will help, in the form of that Knight of the Road, the trucker."

Can't most of us recall similar courtesies—really substantial help — from the men in the truck cabs, men generally with hearts as big as the vehicles they guide, men willing to stop in their means of earning a livelihood to lend a big, helping hand?—J. E. Jones.

Economy For Defense

Sentiment for sharp cutting of other government spending to make way for expected increases in defense appropriations at the regular session of Congress appears to be making headway in official circles. Senator Byrnes, one of the majority leaders, is quoted as saying: "I think we are going to find that the people at home are willing to spend all that is needed for national defense, but that they are going to want to cut down on some of the other government spending."

This year more than $1,750,000,000 was appropriated for defense, and it is now believed that an additional deficiency appropriation will be required because of the "emergency" increase made in the army and navy. And men close to Washington affairs estimate that considerably more than $2,000,000,000 will be appropriated for defense purposes in the fiscal year beginning July 1 next.

It should be obvious to the most rampant advocate of government spending that it would be an insane policy to pile new and greatly enlarged defense expenditures on top of our other "deficit expenditures." National security is as much dependent on a sound economic structure at home as it is on battleships and airplanes and tanks. If necessity forces an increase in our defense appropriations, necessity also requires elimination of non-essential spending in other fields.

The whole federal "emergency" and "relief" structure is alive with waste, duplication of effort, and inefficiency. It is as much the duty of Congress to reduce government costs wherever possible as to provide the gigantic sums which are now apparently needed to build up our military and naval establishments.

Experts Suggests Analysis Hints For Propaganda

Those who find it difficult in these confusing days to separate the wheat from the chaff in all they hear and read, may profit from the observations of Clyde R. Miller, director of the Institute for Propaganda Analysis, in the Rotarian Magazine.

Every man can learn to analyze propaganda for himself, Mr. Miller asserts, by stopping when he hears what may be propaganda, and by asking himself: "Who says it? Why? What are the motives of those who influence him? What does he want me to do?" Such a process isn't easy, he warns, because persons are too often ruled by their emotions, but it can be done.

"Few of us are in a position to answer the propaganda campaigns that are staged to influence our thinking," says Mr. Miller, "but all of us can analyze propaganda. If you do not want to be taken in by propaganda, insist on the facts. Weigh the points on behalf of every side." Today's propagandas concern all of us because our reaction to them may determine the kind of world we live in tomorrow, the author comments, reemphasizing the point that while propagandas may be both good and bad, those "supercharged with emotion" must be carefully scrutinized.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5822 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio

The veteran soldiers' bonus march to Washington reminded me of a World War story that may be old to some but new to a great many. I think it worth telling. A captain had his quota of men under him, and received orders from his superior officers to fight to a certain line, stop, rest and recuperate for another charge, which orders the captain gave him men.

Instead of them obeying his orders, they fought on without stopping at the designated line. The captain obeyed orders—allowing his men to go on. The captain was left alone to await his superior officers, who, when they came up, finding no men, were very much disappointed. They asked the captain, "Why did you not obey orders, where are your men?" The captain said they had gone on. The commanding officer said, "Didn't I tell you to stop them here, at this point?" The captain then replied, "How would you expect me to hold them when 2,000 German soldiers couldn't do it?"

The officers then hurried to overtake the soldiers and when they had succeeded, asked, "Why did you not obey your captain's orders to stop, rest and recoup?" Being American soldiers, they said, "We came over here to help win this war, not rest."

The veterans who marched to Washington to demand recognition and get their pay when they needed it showed presistent fighting spirit for what they thought their rights. While some have criticised them and said we could not afford to pay them, so let them wait. We did not say that when we sent them over there. We made all kinds of promises—that nothing would be too good for them. When they came back they were to come first. It is useless for me to repeat the story. Some of them never came back to their loved ones, others came back cripples and invalids for life. Some came back to find their jobs being filled by others, who did not make any sacrifices, while others made millions in blood money—for that is what war is for.

If we squandered our blood money and paid out millions of dollars to high-salaried office holders, why should the needy war veterans be neglected? Many of them belong to that great army of unemployed. Why not pay the war veterans what we owe them?

If our money powers had not loaned so much of our money so freely to foreign countries, who are not paying us, we would have had money to pay the veterans. I have no monetary interest in any money that war veterans may get, but I believe in fair play, especially with the men who helped save our country. I do not say this to criticise, but as an American citizen having at heart the interest and welfare of our country. The legislators at Washington, our representatives and senators did stop, look and listen to the appeal of our World War veterans and did not treat it as an idle gesture.

P. S.—We are glad that our predictions and wish has come true.

THERE'S THAT MAN AGAIN

NEWS ITEM—SLOW-DOWN STRIKES TAKE PLACE OF OUTLAWED SIT-DOWN STRIKES.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

If farmers and small businessmen had been able to slip into a recent closed meeting in Washington, they would be plenty disturbed now. For they would have had an advance peek at some interesting things that are being planned for them, such as laws forcing them to pay no less than $16 a week to any of their employees.

The meeting was the National Conference on Labor Legislation, called by Secretary Perkins of the U. S. Labor Department and attended by official representatives of 39 State Governors. Delegates were either State Labor Department officials or leaders of labor organizations. The purpose was to plan future State and Federal laws.

Among the first orders of business were committee reports advocating State Wage-Hour laws patterned after the Federal statute, and suggesting closer State-Federal cooperation in the enforcement of wage-hour laws. The section on state wage-hour laws made no reference to inclusion of farm workers and domestic servants, so one delegate asked why not. To which an Illinois delegate replied:

"In some states it is necessary to exempt agriculture FOR THE MOMENT in order to get the farm votes needed to pass the legislation."

Stating it more bluntly, that answer means this: Supporters of laws requiring employers to pay specified wages realize that in many states farmers could not afford to pay $16 a week to hired help and therefore would not support a state law forcing them to do so. But their support is needed to get such laws through the legislature. Therefore, farmers will be told how they would benefit if such wages were paid by "industrialists" and "big business" and talked into approving the laws. Then, after the laws have been on the statute books a while, all the other groups will be swung behind amendments extending the minimum wages to farm help.

That has already been done in some states, and the strategy worked so well that the plan will be followed in others.

The labor conferees also demanded Federal action on the question of migratory farm labor; they hit "industrialized agriculture," comparing it to "sweat shops"; they urged abolition of poll taxes; and they suggested limitations upon the employment of young folks on the farm.

There was one substantial ray of hope, however. One delegate demanded a resolution asking the U. S. Labor Department to survey unemployment, find out its cause, and suggest ways to give jobs to the 10 million now jobless. To everybody's surprise, Secretary Perkins after recounting many experiments which have been tried, admitted:

"We know too well that we have not gotten to the bottom of the question of unemployment and that our constructive suggestions have not been enough."

She then went on to say that hope for the future rested with industry and its ability, through research and invention, to develop new products and processes, and added:

"The new frontiers of industry are not closed . . . They do not respond to a resolution or to an act of Congress . . . We must not fool ourselves into thinking there is a remedy or panacea for unemployment which can be put into effect by legislation or proclamation."

A lot of folks doubtless think it is too bad this philosophy hasn't been general in Washington for some time. But now that New Dealers are talking that way, maybe natural processes will be allowed a little more leeway. Remembering, of course, that the intention still is to bring the farmer and little businessman into the corral.

The special House Smith committee investigating the Wagner Act has finally found out why the Labor Board can claim it has settled 21,000 labor disputes cases. The Board takes credit for everything.

For instance, a telegraph operator was fired by a press association for drunkenness. The operator filed a charge of "unfair labor practice" against the man who fired him. The Labor Board investigated, found that the discharge was not "unfair" and simply wrote "settled" on the complaint and put it in the files, among the 21,000 cases.

The telegraph operator's boss didn't even know about the complaint until he got a questionnaire from the Smith committee asking him about it. So it could hardly have been a "labor dispute." But the Labor Board had it on record that way.

Washington's financial experts are at odds again. Congress asked the Treasury to make a survey of the debt-tax situation and report back in January how business could be stimulated by tax law changes. In the middle of the Treasury's study Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board came forth with a suggestion that taxes on both individuals and corporations be increased. Under-Secretary Hanes of the Treasury immediately disavowed the Eccles plan, and said it did not have the approval of the Administration.

Eccles' motive for sticking the monkey wrench into the machinery is still unclear. But he happens to be one of those who think the Federal government should finance almost everything, and that letting it pile up a debt is the way to real prosperity. Hanes, on the other hand, looks forward to the day when the Government will spend no more than it takes in.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

A Village Oracle

Every village has its wise man or oracle; Fidelity would not have been worthy of remembrance if it had not qualified in this particular. Our wise man was an elderly gentleman, Uncle John Hancock, who lived to be ninety-three. He was born before the whole western part of the state was open for settlement, even before it had been bought by the Kentucky and Tennessee commissioners, Isaac Shelby and Andrew Jackson, from the Indians. I heard him say that he hunted in the prairies there while it was still Indian land. But it was not age alone that made him an oracle, however much we children liked to hear him tell of times so remote.

He was a rustic philosopher, far ahead of his age. He had picked up knowledge of law that made him respected by the licensed lawyers of the county seat. He had served numerous times as a squire or magistrate and was known in our community for his fairness in settling cases. There was nothing soft in the old man, even when old age began to come on. He kept his fine physique to the very end and was able to walk some five or six miles, from the home of one of his children to that of another, only a few days before his death. I have seen him walking down the road with a step as firm as that of men young enough to be his grandchildren. I walked with him sometimes and kept a constant stream of questions going, for he loved to talk and was in his way a sort of authority.

Besides law, he knew many other things. In our community he lost caste for a while by voting wet when everybody else of much consequence voted dry. He stoutly maintained that regulated saloons were better than so-called prohibition. From his long experience he argued that humanity was better off when it regulate dits own morals without depending on government to do this. You can imagine how bitterly many of the people of the section opposed this idea. But the worth of the old man brought him back into favor after the election, especially since the dry forces won by a huge majority.

Like Goldsmith's schoolmaster in THE DESERTED VILLAGE, he was an adept arguer, on politics, religion or what have you. I cannot remember what particular faith he professed; it matters very little, anyway, for he could argue for or against any position and do it so well that the younger generation were provoked: they could not afford to get angry with him, because he was such a patriarch, and they could not down him in a fair argument, the only kind he ever indulged in.

Since he was born in 1811, he was fifty years old when the Civil War began. The events of that time he recalled as if they had happened the day before. Though he was a Southerner in sympathy, I never heard him say a bitter or prejudiced thing, which was more than remarkable in our little world. Sage experience had taught him that in every war both sides have good and bad attitudes and that war itself is an unmixed wrong.

Thirty-four years ago, when he passed away, I did myself the honor of writing for the little country paper a brief obituary, which I tried to make less stiff than the ones I usually wrote or read. A whole generation later I am glad to add these few words, since our village oracle was so typical of the wise men that, almost miraculously, appear in every time and place, showing that genius is not a monopoly of any age or race.

Famous Scientist Foresees Crossroads For America

PREDICATED on two small but tremendously important "ifs," a prophesy of a "golden age ahead" or "the sad story of war and oppression as in the past," was made by Doctor Robert A. Millikan in a hundred word brochure enclosed in the Time Capsule which was buried in the New York World's Fair grounds. The capsule is to remain in its deep grave for five thousand years, when, if there aresstill minds free enough to be inquiring, it is hoped that the capsule be found and a guide to the civilization of the 20th century be presented to the historians of that day.

Doctor Robert Millikan is an almost fabulous figure of to-day about whom all too little is known. According to Rupert Hughes, who writes of Doctor Millikan as the Cosmopolite of the Month in January's Cosmopolitan, the famous scientist "tries to be the average man, jovial, well-groomed, and the good business executive that he also is."

As it so often happens, Doctor Millikan became interested in physics through a deep interest in another study. As a student in Oberlin College, in Ohio, his success in Greek led an instructor who knew of his need for money to obtain a job tutoring elementary physics for his bright pupil. The young Millikan was bored by the subject and studied for only one semester.

Later, pressed by economic necessity, he secured the post of tutor in physics at Oberlin and gradually fell in love with the subject, which was a fortunate romance for American and world science.

Unwilling to accept the dogmatic yeas and nays as set down by preceding scientists, Doctor Millikan is largely responsible for the ultimate discovery that the tiny atom was not the most minute ingredient in matter but that, on the contrary, an atom was made up of electrons, protons, neutrons. He even, to clinch the matter, measured the bitsy electrons and set up a census board for them.

Mr. Hughes tells, too, of the achievement, by no means small, of Dr. Millikan extracting, more or less painlessly, four million dollars from the late John D. Rockefeller. The last three million were obtained to be tossed into the pot which was to pay for the biggest telescope on earth. In cooperation with Wilson Observatory in California, the telescope is being assembled on its own private mountain, Mount Palomar.

Doctor Millikan's scientific experiments and ability to impart bits of his own genius to other inquiring minds are largely responsible for the phenomenal growth of the present California Institute of Technology. Appointed director of the Norman Bridge Laboratory of Physics at the college, Dr. Millikan has extracted millions from unwary financiers who fell under his spell and used the millions for the erection of buildings devoted to instruction and investigation.

REACTIONS TO THE GOOD NEWS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 11:16-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.—Matthew 11:28-30.

The response which men and women make to the preaching of the gospel today determines their destiny for time and eternity, just as it did when Jesus was first sending out His disciples to preach.

How do you react to the gospel message? Indifference will keep a man from Christ just as effectively as open rejection. A childlike faith, on the other hand, will bring a man into delightful fellowship with Him in both life and service. The Lord gives rest for the soul and companionship in the yokefellowship of Christian service.

I. Childish Dissatisfaction (vv. 16-19).

Jesus, who was skilled in the art of teaching, took a familiar scene from the daily life of the people to show how utterly childish was the criticism of His enemies. Children at play, trying to interest their companions, present a wedding scene of great joy with no response. They then try the opposite with no better result.

The enemies of Christ were just like such children, and His enemies are the same today. Opposition to the gospel likes to clothe itself in learned phraseology and express itself in the terms of dignified logic, but in fact it is but an expression of personal feelings encouraged by the devil and altogether like those of disgruntled children. Not often does it show its true nature in a forthright expression of unbelief and infidelity, for it prefers to hide behind some self-righteous criticism which it can level against Christian people or against their faith.

Why not be honest, unbeliever who reads these lines, and tell the truth about your reasons for failing to accept Christ. When you do that you will find that they are not reasons at all but only excuses, and there will then be hope for your repentance and conversion.

II. Deadly Indifference (vv. 20-24).

Rejection of Christ may be and all too often is simply indifference to His holy person and work. Jesus pronounced an awful judgment on the cities which had been honored by His presence and His great works, and which should have been awed by His message and power but which had passed Him by in bored indifference.

These again are typical of countless thousands who today comfort themselves by saying, "I do not oppose the Church; I'm not against Christianity. I just don't take any position either for or against." By so doing they have declared themselves to be against Christ. Jesus said, "He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad" (Matt. 12:30). Let not such think for a moment that their judgment shall be less severe than that of the cities of Chorazin and Bethsaida!

III. Childlike Faith (vv. 25, 30).

God the Father and our Lord Jesus Christ have a great and loving interest in the touching beauty of the faith of a child. The unquestioning dependence, the absolute assurance of the child heart, these are the things that receive an answer from the Almighty.

This is not intended to reflect in any way on those who may have learning, wisdom and power but who with all have maintained a childlike humility. God knows them and honors and uses them. The point we do want to make is that all too often learning and standing in this world are a barrier between men and God simply because men put their trust in these things and not in Him. It is always a serious matter when a man permits his God-given ability to think, to come between him and God. What folly it is to expect the infinite and eternal God who made all things, including the brain of man, to in turn pass through the narrow compass of finite thinking.

IV. Restful Companionship (vv. 27-30).

A study of the theories and philosophies of this world leads only to unrest. Bewildered and unhappy is the man who puts his trust in them But in Christ the weary and belabored human soul will find perfect and eternal rest. Why then does the mass of men reject Him to go on to wander in despair?

The rest which we find in Christ is not a useless and inactive repose Far from it. It is a blessed yoke fellowship with Christ in carrying forward His work. Here man finds his real usefulness, for only here is he liberated from the limitations of sin and self and joined in a yoke with the One in whom dwells all wisdom and power.

ADVANTAGES OF JUNIOR FOODS

Among the many modern aids which make bringing up a baby a real pleasure nowadays are Junior Foods—those new prepared foods for babies in the toddler stage—chopped, cooked greens, creamed vegetables, soups, meat mixtures and fine flavored fruit puddings. Unless you've tried them, you have no idea what a great help these foods are in meal planning when you have small fry in the family.

After your baby gets through the milk, and gruel, and strained foods stage he is ready to have soft foods that will give his teeth and gums some exercise. By dint of scrupulous planning and careful cooking, you can combine the baby's diet with the family fare. But one or the other is sure to suffer. The type of menu adapted for baby is so soft and bland in flavor it's sure to tire your robust adults in no time at all. They like a little beefsteak and salad every now and then, but to deviate from the baby's diet in favor of this is of course unthinkable. So it generally means two sets of menus for every meal. Now, by utilizing these Junior Foods which come already done up in tins and ready to use, you can easily serve both factions in the family. Just plan the family menu as usual and serve your baby these fine new prepared foods, supplemented, of course, with the milk, orange juice, hard cooked eggs, etc., prescribed by your physician.

Changing from one type of food to another as the baby develops often entails a struggle, too. But you will find babies take to these new Junior Foods right off. Their fine natural flavors and delicate seasonings appeal to the fresh palate of a young child. And their consistency is easy to handle, too. They have just enough bulk to encourage the baby to begin chewing, and yet are smooth enough to slip down easily. Half the battle of the troublesome "in between" age of breaking babies in on coarser foods is won by offering babies such palatable foods.

You will find these foods are all uniformly high in quality. Only the pick of the finest crops is used in their manufacture and they are prepared under conditions of laboratory precision impossible to duplicate in your own home kitchen. It would be difficult, all year round, to find such choice products even in the finest markets. And your own home kitchen, regardless of all its streamlined progress, could not be equipped with the necessary devices for preserving the nutrient value of these foods.

The high nutritive value of Junior Foods is another strong argument in their favor. There is a good balance of nutrients in each and the maximum value of vitamin and mineral elements is retained by the exacting methods of preparation.

Paul Biddle of Petersburg and Bobby Hays spent several days the past week with Harry Lee and Stanley Aylor.

The Lutheran Sunday School is preparing for a Christmas program to be given Christmas eve, Dec. 24 at the church.

Don't forget to attend the Homemakers play "Those Husbands of Ours," to be given at the Hebron school, Thursday, Dec. 7 at 8 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. John Conaer and son Mickey spent Sunday at Owenton with Mrs. Conner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cotton.

James Conner, student at State University, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Conner. Other guests on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Hemfling and daughter.

Wednesday evening, Nov. 29th at 7:30, Miss Nannie Lee Roberts, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Roberts of Walton, and Mr. Wilford Siekman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Siekman, were united in marriage by Rev. Noble Lucas at Petersburg. They are housekeeping in rooms with Miss Sadie Rieman.

The sudden death of Mrs. Emery Smith (nee Ethel Souther) of Cincinnati came as a great shock Saturday to her many relatives and friends here. They formerly resided in this community. Funeral services at the Lutheran church here Tuesday at 2 p. m. Sympathy is extended to Mr. Smith and son Miles and other relatives.

George Casper, Jr., student at State University, spent the weekend with home folks.

Mrs. Kate Gordon is very ill at her home.

Social Security News

The Social Security Board presents the tenth series of questions and answers dealing with the amended Social Security Act. Individual questions for this column may be referred to Frank B. Decker, Jr., manager of the Social Security Board field office in Covington. They will be answerd in person or through the column without disclosing the identity of the writer.

Q. Does a man who is now 65 and who is working in a machine shop need a social security number?

A. He does. This man's services in this capacity have been covered since January 1 of this year, if he was over 65 at that time. He must get a number, show his card to his employer, and the latter must report this number when he pays the taxes which are due on the wages of this employee.

Q. Is this tax retroactive to January 1, 1939?

A. Yes, the wages earned by workers over age 65 on and after January 1, 1939, are subject to the same deductions and taxes for old-age insurance as those of younger workers.

Q. How does the employer collect the back contribution of such workers, from Jan. 1, 1939, until the time when the amendments to the Social Security Act were passed and regular deductions from the pay of older workers began?

A. That is a matter for the employer and employee to decide. They make any arrangement that is satisfactory to both parties. The Social Security Board does not interfere with employer-employee relationships and has laid down no rules for the collection of this contribution by the employer.

Q. Mr. X reached age 65 in the latter part of 1938. He received a single lump-sum benefit payment equal to 3½ percent of his covered wages earned up until the time he attained this age. Does this payment bar him from receiving monthly benefits under the amended act if he continues to work in the same job in which he was employed before receiving this benefit?

A. The single benefit payment does not bar Mr. X from getting monthly benefits in the future under the amended program of old-age insurance. He may qualify for these by retiring at some time in the future. The amount he receives will be fixed by his average wages and by the number of years he has served in employment covered by the Social Security Act.

Q. Is it possible for a man or woman who has not yet reached age 65 to receive monthly benefits under the Social Security Act?

A. This is impossible as the act is now drawn. Benefits are paid only to those who have reached or passed age 65, who file applications for these benefits and who retire from work covered by this program.

Q. Mr. Y has been unemployed for the past ten years. He has earned no wages of any character. He is now 70 years of age. Can he receive benefits under the old-age program?

A. Not unless at some time hereafter he obtains empioment in commerce or industry. If he has sufficient earnings over a period of six calendar quarters or more he may become entitled to monthly benefits. He can not get benefits of any character unless he has such a record of employment.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF SUCCESS

WE OFTEN say when we discuss various things we acquire that it isn't the original cost that counts. It is the upkeep. This is particularly true of success.

The fact is that there is a responsibility of success which failure or mediocrity never knows. The man who is successful, who achieves in whatever line he may enter, has an obligation and a responsibility which requires that he continue to do his very best.

Especially is this true of business. To make a brief success of a business isn't hard. To build a lasting success requires close application and a fine sense of the obligation which success implies and demands.

If advertising served no other purpose than to create the obligation of success it would perform a useful social and economic act, for advertising holds up this obligation of success and demands that it be observed constantly.

Charles Roth

Whenever a manufacturer or a merchant begins to advertise he sets self-imposed standards on himself. By these standards do others judge him. By these standards do they also classify him.

He has an obligation to live up to every day thenceforward.

If he hadn't advertised, he could give good quality one day and poor quality the next and get by with it. But when he comes out boldly in print and advertises, the die is cast, and he must forever live up to the highest ideals.

Shrewd men have thought that they could controvert this law. By putting quality and good value into a product and then by advertising it, they have succeeded in a short time in building up a big business. And then came temptation.

"Why maintain all this quality?" they ask themselves. The public will never know. Why not cut the quality but continue the advertising and clean up? They have tried. But the public does know quality, is quick to perceive deception, and abandons the man or product which tries to substitute inferiority for honest merchandise.

There is no quicker way to ruin a business than to set up a standard and then violate it. There is no better way to build a business than to set up a standard and then live up to it.

Advertising is the great setter of standards in American business life, and advertised goods are the standards by which you spend your income, confident of getting your money's worth every day.

The man who advertises has assumed the responsibility for success. You'd rather deal with a responsible man, wouldn't you?

ELSIE HITZ'S hobby of talking to the driver while riding in a taxicab proved to be rather expensive recently when she was on her way to a rehearsal of the "Ellen Randolph" series. (Broadcast Mondays through Fridays, at 1:15 p.m., EST, over an NBC network.) Besides making her late to rehearsal, the driver became so interested in showing her photographs of his daughter that he overshot a red light, and by request, had to "pull over".

"It's O. K. We've Got the Light with Us"

Traffic signals are electrically timed to aid the orderly flow of traffic. They are timed in fairness to all who use the streets — drivers and pedestrians — and it would seem a simple matter to obey them. A review of the accident records, however, would indicate that drivers need to be reinformed as to their meaning.

RED means "stop," not "slow down, make sure no officer is in sight, and then sneak through."

AMBER means "walk," not "step on it and get through before she turns red."

GREEN means "proceed with caution, and with due respect for the rights of others," not "go like blazes."

Nine out of ten accidents that involve drivers' mistakes, according to Travelers Insurance Company records, are caused by undue haste.

Slow down, and live longer.

Money Talks

By
Frederick Stamm, Economist
Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

Business activity continue sto expand and the December outlook is the best since 1929. The index of business activity is now slightly above the 1937 recovery peak. Retail sales during the Christmas season are expected to be the largest in ten years and should average from eight per cent to fifteen per cent ahead of 1938. Consumer purchasing power has been increased sharply in October and November by rising industrial employment and payrolls and expanding farm income.

The merchants of this section should plan to have well-stocked shelves if they are to take full advantage of this increased demand for goods. Wholesale prices (as well as retail) are edging upward, and good business during the first two months of 1940 seems assured. Purchases by store owners now will probably prove very wise in view of these rising prices. Chances of inventory losses through price decline appear very slight. With this in mind, merchants can safely stock more merchandise than for some time and thus take advantage of expanding business. Sales of higher priced luxury goods will also be greater this year than for some time.

Past war conditions have always brought higher prices, and this one appears to be no exception even though, as I said a few weeks ago, prices during this war should not skyrocket as they did from 1914 to 1916. Nevertheless, only the bare possibility of an early peace could change the usual wartime trend.

BETTE PLAYS HER DREAM ROLE

BETTE DAVIS ERROL FLYNN

FEW women will willingly make themselves ridiculous for the sake of art. And fewer Hollywood stars will face the camera in make-up that makes them just a touch hideous. But Bette Davis does just that in her new picture "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex," in which she co-stars with Errol Flynn.

So important did the role seem to Bette that she insisted on make-up that closely followed Elizabeth's years. Learning that, in her later life, Elizabeth cached her hairless pate beneath a wig, Bette demanded that one scene be shot in which her wig slipped off and disclosed a completely bald head. Art with a vengeance.

Jane Hall, in the January Cosmopolitan, tells us: "Bette's make-up for Queen Elizabeth is magnificent. So is Bette. She has wanted to do this characterization all her life. So sincerely that when the time came she was ready to postpone it for another five years—for fear she wasn't quite good enough."

LANDS END

As this particular spot hasn't been edited for some time, we were beset by the urge to bring ourselves farther out into the light of modern day news items. Crazy idea, what?

News of the recent Thanksgiving holiday goings-on might include the following items:

Mrs. Elizabeth Edwards and two children of Newport, Ky. spent the holiday vacation with her relatives here.

Rev. Godbey delivered the message at the Thanksgiving service held at Big Bone Baptist church on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Orin Edwards and children, Mrs. Betty Allen and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Bodie were entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Asbury and mother on Thanksgiving day.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pitcher and children were the dinner guests of Mrs. Pitcher's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hodges.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Huff and daughter were guests of her sister, Mrs. Claud Black, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Garland Huff entertained at dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Everet Ryle, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Huff and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sebree and daughter.

Naturally, there were other bits of entertaining that have never reached this news mongers ears. We are sure they all enjoyed themselves.

Land's End was quite well represented among the crowds of shoppers seen on the streets of Covington, Saturday. Manifestations of the Xmas spirit, no doubt.

The Hamilton Farmers are well able to "take it" after a long period of experience in doing just that. That is, to a certain extent. But the can also mete the same dish out to others when the end justifies the means. And so we take great pride in reporting that the Farmers came out of their Band Box (does this term sound familiar?) with very little hayseed in their hair Friday night after defeating the Walton Bearcats 34-24, keeping their "undefeated" record spotless. In the preliminary, the Little Farmers were defeated by a score of 15-6. This was largely accounted for by the fact that one of the main players was off duty at the time. So we say, come on Farmers! Tere's a Jack in your "little box" and the lid's off.

(Note—Glad to hear from you, Land's End. Would be pleased to have you keep up the "good work." —Editor.)

The farmer depends on milk for 18 percent of his income. Industry can now turn extra milk into wool, glue, pens, combs, buttons and hundreds of other products.

Above-Standard Youths Must Have Their Chance

A SCHOOL without any buildings, any name, any endowment and any faculty with the exception of one man is, to the average citizen, a new departure in education. Yet there has been in existence for twenty years, such a school. And it has the proud boast that not one of its graduates has failed in life, no matter in what branch of living he has found his niche.

A weak link in our educational system is the fact that the average student is the one for whom everything is planned. Above standard youngsters are apt to be penalized simply because they are above standard. Many intelligent, high-spirited boys, for example, have been dismissed from schools simply because they lacked an outlet for the qualities of leadership, superabundant energy or other characteristics that go to make up leaders of men.

The school without a name is one man's answer to that problem. Rex

DR. GEORGE I. BALDWIN

Beach tells the story in the January Cosmopolitan of George L Baldwin, son of a wealthy Wyoming rancher, who gave up an easy life on his father's ranch to become an Episcopalian clergyman and to devote his life to giving boys a chance in life which they might otherwise have missed.

It is a conviction of Doctor Baldwin that society needs nothing so much as men of character and integrity who have the ability to influence those among whom they live. His school is a family affair, a partnership with a community fund to which every member contributes according to his ability and from which he draws what he needs. In periods when the going was rough, older boys withdrew from college to aid the Doctor in keeping youngea boys there. One of the few requirements for entry in the school, which is now in Philadelphia, is that the boy be too poor to get along without some assistance. Far more candidates have been turned down than have been admitted. The other boys must approve of the new candidate; he must have what it takes to be a leader in his community.

Life a Community Affair

The cow-boy preacher says he isn't much good in a pulpit. But a record of twenty failureless years of breathing life into the Soul of Youth should be as enduring and eloquent as any sermon that any minister could preach.

MOTORISTS AND TAXPAYERS!

YOU, as users of Kentucky highways, know the danger you meet, the inconvenience you endure, because of big trucks, even though the present Kentucky law limits their length to 30 feet, and their weight to 9 tons.

Certain commercial trucking companies and their allied interests from other States will renew their attack on this law at the January, 1940, session of the Kentucky Legislature. Because of the great financial power which is now massed behind this attack, it will undoubtedly be successful unless the people of Kentucky—motorists, operators of trucks of reasonable size and taxpayers—unite to protect their own safety and their highways, which are their property.

We believe we are rendering a public service in bringing these facts to your attention, and in suggesting that all who are opposed to having larger and heavier trucks express their views to their Senators and Representatives before they go to Frankfort.

Larger and heavier trucks would:

1. Make use of the highways more hazardous.
2. Cause added inconvenience.
3. Destroy the roads and bridges.
4. Increase taxes to build and maintain a few highways for big trucks.
5. Leave little or nothing to maintain secondary and farm-to-market roads.

It has been officially estimated that it would cost $88,800,000 to put Kentucky's main highways in condition to support big trucks.

Why Railroads Are Interested

Railroads build, maintain and pay taxes on their roadways. It is grossly unfair for the government to permit great public utility transportation companies to operate trucks as big as freight cars upon our highways built and maintained at public expense.

As the largest taxpayers in Kentucky railroads have the same interest as other taxpayers in avoiding payment of additional taxes to build and maintain super-highways needed only for super-size trucks which constitute less than one per cent of all highway users.

Like farmers and merchants, railroads are interested in the maintenance of adequate secondary and farm-to-market roads.

Here is What Secretary of the Interior, HAROLD L. ICKES, Had to Say:

"The people started to build good roads so that they might have the pleasure and recreation that is made possible by traveling in their own cars. . . At least this has been what we thought we were paying our road taxes for. . . But now we know better. . . We know now that we have been digging into our pockets to build boulevards for trucks. . . The lord of the highway is the truck driver. . . The monster which he drives each year seems to be growing longer and wider and higher. . . I have promised some day to give myself the pleasure of driving down a truck-infested road in the biggest armored tank that I can find and bumping these pests from the road. . . I wonder if anyone here would like to join me on that joyous occasion. . . But what particularly annoys me on a holiday or week-end trip is to see emerge out of the distance a leviathan that has just had a litter of motor cars lying-in factory. . . Ring from the truck owners, like any well-organized minority, can wield more influence than millions of mere citizens who think that they ought to have a priority in the use of their own roads."

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

CHOOSING A CAMERA

Fast vacation-time action calls for a speedy shutter. Nobody wants to miss shots like this, or get pictures that are blurred and fuzzy because of movement.

IF YOU are planning to get a new camera for your vacation this year, let me suggest that you do not delay until the last moment, and then have to pick your instrument in a great rush.

A camera should be chosen with care and attention to every detail—picture size, lens, shutter, view finder, ease of opening and handling, finish and durability. Moreover, it should be obtained early enough for you to become thoroughly familiar with its workings, because on a vacation you will often want to use it in a hurry.

Compare and handle several cameras before you choose. Study lenses—maybe you will want an f.6.3, to make sure of well-timed snapshots on dull days, or an f.4.5, twice as fast, for speedy action shots in bad light—as well as better indoor snapshots. It is well to bear in mind, too, that a good fast anastigmat lens gives sharper pictures — which means better enlargements if your vacation yields top-notch scenics that you want to have framed.

Make sure that the shutter of the new camera has enough speed to take care of all your probable needs. It is bad when you have a chance for some good action snaps on the tennis court or beach and your camera shutter is too slow to get them. Remember, too, that if your hand is at all unsteady, a speedy shutter is a great help in getting sharp pictures.

You have a wide choice of camera styles and prices. You can get superspeed miniatures with f.2 and f.2.8 lenses; others with f.3.5 lenses; cameras taking larger pictures that have f.3.5, f.4.5, and f.6.3 lens. Naturally, the better the camera is—the more speed and versatility it has—the more it costs, but there is no need to spend in excess of your needs. Thousands of good pictures are made every day with moderately priced cameras, and they will serve for most snapshot purposes.

Walton Post Office Be Open Evenings

Due to the fact that Christmas falls on Monday and that only gift parcels and special delivery packages will be delivered on that day, and since there will be no delivery of mail on Sunday, the Walton Post Office will remain open until 7:30 p. m. on Dec. 20, 21 and 22; until 6:00 p. m. on Dec. 23, and will be open to receive mail for dispatch and deliver mail to you, through window service, on Sunday morning Dec. 24, 1939, from 9:00 to 11:00 a. m. This office has made arrangements to receive and dispatch mail until 10:30 a. m. on that Sunday morning.

We are doing this for the benefit of the general public and it certainly would be appreciated if the patrons would cooperate with us as follows: Mail your parcels early, wrap and tie your packages securely, use special delivery stamps on all late mailings and perishable articles, send your Christmas cards early.

You will receive better service when you send your Christmas cards first class, since the Christmas card sent for 1½ cents cannot be sealed, cannot contain writing, cannot be forwarded, cannot be returned, and first class mail receives preference in delivery. First class mail receives all the above advantages. Remember that any letter or parcel mailed on Saturday or Sunday, and sent Special delivery, will be delivered immediately upon receipt at the office of address.

—C. F. CLEEK, Postmaster.

BUY CHRISTMAS SEALS NOW

Do you know that tuberculosis is a curable disease, and that it is preventable? Do you know that there are twice as many cases of tuberculosis in the United States right now that need to go to bed as there are beds available? Do you know that right here in your own state that The Kentucky Tuberculosis Association at Louisville has a waiting list for sanitarium that it is impossible to accommodate on account of limited funds and sanitarium facilities.

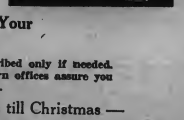
The sale of Christmas Seals is the sole means of financing our state tuberculosis campaign. Practically every school child in Boone county has a supply of these artistic little stamps for sale. Will you, right now, as soon as you read this article, tell some school child just how many seals that you want. Place these seals on your Christmas packages and cards.

Walton History In Communicator

In the November issue of The Communicator, employee publication of the Community Public Service Company, appears quite an intersting article concerning Walton and its history.

The story deals with the founding of Walton about 1786 by Col. Abner Gaines, and the naming of the town after John Walton, who assisted Col. Gaines in erecting a log cabin—which housed Walton's first store.

Accompanying the article were pictures of the Walton-Verona High school, section of the business district, the old tavern north of town, now owned by John Gault, and an interior view of the company office, which only recently was redecorated, and R. M. Hall, local manager. An account of the town, as it now is, also was given, as well as some company facts and figures. From this we learned the C. P. S. has 250 miles of line in the Walton District, serving about 2,400 customers in Boone, Kenton, Grant and Pendleton counties.



The Walton graded school and Walton-Verona high school will be dismissed on Dec. 20th for the Christmas holidays. They will resume their studies Jan. 2nd.

Each member is asked to bring a 10 cent gift.

Cats Break Even In Two Games

The Walton-Verona High school Bearcats divided two games during the past week. Friday night they went to Newport and lost a heartbreaker to the Wildcats, and Tuesday night on the home floor they registered a win over the Pioneers from Simon Kenton.

At Newport, the locals got off on the right foot and were leading 12 to 3 at the half. However, the Postermen turned on the heat in the last half and just before the end of the contest, tied the score at 20-all. In the overtime, the Wildcats registered 2 points—enough to win by a 22 to 20 score.

Rose was high scorer for the winners with 7 points, and for Walton, Ransler was best, with 6. The McElroy Bros. and Simpson were next in line, with 4 points each.

At the home stand Tuesday night the Bearcats reversed their Newport tactics and hung up a 33 to 30 win over Simon Kenton. Walton took a slight lead in the first quarter, but the Pioneers overtook them, to lead 12 to 10 at the half. They held theis lead until the late stages of the game, when the Bearcats rallied and snatched a victory out of the fire.

Paul Simpson, with 9 points, led the Bearcats' scoring parade, and Coyle and Ransler were key men in the last-minute rush to victory. Rust of the Pioneers, scored 12 points for his team, the high of the evening.

In the preliminary game, the Pioneer reserves downed W.-V.'s second team 24 to 13.

Crittenden Here, Dec. 15th

The Crittenden High Bulldogs, a team that has been going "great guns" will come to Walton on Friday night for a set-to with the Bearcats. This is expected to be another "hot" battle—and you won't want to miss it. First game at 7 p. m. Be there!

UNDERWENT OPERATION

MY CHRISTMAS TREE

On Christmas morning when I wake and sleep-dust from my eyes I shake, I see a sight that makes me start and causes thumpings in my heart; a Christmas tree—oh, pretty sight—with candles, bells and balls alight. With horns and dolls and sugar plums, and skates and trains and beating drums. And, oh, it is a wonder tree, with heaps of things for me to see, which tinseled fairies cannot hide. A soldier doll, a doll house, too, and strings of gold come to my view, and as I look I seem to hear sweet Christmas music, soft and clear, a merry Christmas, it seems to say, a merry, happy, holy day!

'Ready Made Family' At Simon Kenton

The Junior class of Simon Kenton High school will present it's annual class play, "The Ready Made Family," on Thursday evening, Dec. 14, at 8 p. m., in the school auditorium. Admission prices are to be 25c for adults and 15c for children. Miss Sallie P. Bell is directing the production.

The cast includes the following:

Betty Collier, Wanda Colclough, Minnie V. Daugherty, Virginia L. Klein, Jennie L. Hillard, Joanne Ruppert, Paul Datesko, Jerry Blair, James Gregory and Elwood Jaeger.

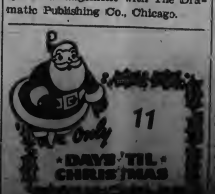
RECEIVES PROMOTION

John R. DeMoisey, son of Rev. and Mrs. R. F. DeMoisey, has been appointed Assistant Superintendent of the Reform School at Greendale. The appointment was made by Miss Wahl and approved by Gov. Johnson.

The Reform School has recently added many improvements and boys and girls sent here have a good opportunity to correct their mistakes and begin life anew. There are 700 boys and 139 girls in this institution.

Mr. DeMoisey and family will move today to Greendale, from Lexington.

THOUSANDS ATTEND JOHNSON INAUGURAL



Frankfort was jammed with from 20,000 to 30,000 people from every county in Kentucky, Tuesday, as the oath of office was taken by Gov. Keen Johnson and his Lieutenant, Rodes K. Myers.

In his inaugural address Johnson pledged himself to operate the state government without increasing taxes, and proposed increased old-age assistance and provision of funds to put the Teachers Retirement Act into operation. He warned, however, that other appropriations would be cut correspondingly to keep expenditures from exceeding the present level.

Senators A. W. Barkley and A. B. Chandler both spoke and praised Gov. Johnson highly. The parade, said by Barkley to be the biggest for any Kentucky inauguration, lasted for one hour and twenty-seven minutes.

JUNIOR PLAY, TUESDAY

On Tuesday night, Dec. 19 at 7:00 p. m., the Junior class of Walton-Verona High school will present their annual Junior play, "Adam's Evening." The admission will be 15 and 25 cents. It is produced by special arrangement with The Dramatic Publishing Co., Chicago.

Covington Tobacco Mart Opens Tuesday

At the opening day sales at the Kenton Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse, Covington, a new high was reached in the number of pounds of burley sold and total money collected. A total of 197,320 pounds were sold, which brought growers $37,666.58. The average price per hundred pounds was $19.06. The prvious high for total pounds sold in one day was 115,310 and was made in 1936.

It was estimated that 2,000 persons visited the warehouse during the day, and many followed the sales, conducted by Col. R. G. Kinman, of Florence. Approximately the same number of pounds were expected to be on the floor for the Wednesday sale.

The top basked of the opening sale brought $27.50 a hundred for 282 pounds, grown by V. P. Kerns of Walton. Mr. Kerns also had the second highest basket, 420 pounds, which brought $27 per hundred. The lowest basket on the floor went for $3.50.

At Lexington, Tuesday, 3,541,962 pounds of weed were sold for an average of $17.95 per hundred, a slight rise over opening day sales. At Carrollton, 787,016 pounds were sold, averaging $18.32, an dat Cynthiana, 515,532 pounds averaged $17.89.

Xmas Program At Methodist Church

The Music of Christmas, a carol choir cantata for mixed voices, will be presented by the Walton Methodist choir, at the church on the afternoon of December 24th at 3:30.

This is a beautiful cantata and rehearsals have been under way for some time, under the supervision of choir-directress, Mrs. Helen Bedinger, and a well rendered program is expected. Accompaniment is ably taken care of by Mrs. Olive Johnson, at the Hammond organ.

Aside from the choral offerings, male and female solos are interwoven into the program.

On Sunday evening, of the same day, at 7:00, the children of the Sunday School will present their Xmas program.

The public is cordially invited to attend these programs—you will enjoy them and the participants will be pleased to have you present.

The World's Most Careless People

We Americans are the world's most careless people when it comes to fire. Nowhere else in the world is the "crime" of fire so prevalent.

A simple set of statistics readily proves this. Fire loss in this country runs in the neighborhood of $2.00 per year for every man, woman and child of the population. By comparison, loss in Sweden is 89 cents per capita; loss in Great Britian is 82c; loss in Italy is 78c; loss in France is 61c, and loss in Germany is 11 cents. In other words, we destroy more than twice as much property with fire as is destroyed in the next highest country—and close to 20 times as much as in the lowest on the list.

Here's a case where alibis are no good. For the greater percentage of all fires, great and small, are the product of human carelessness. Comebody is thoughtless—sombody forgets—somebody takes a chance. And a home or a factory goes up in smoke. Human failure is the great fire breeder.

The record is the more shameful in that we Americans have the best of all chances to fight and lick fire. Organized fire prevention, supported by insurance companies, fire marshals, civic organizations and others has reached a high peak of excellence in this country. Experts scour the country searching out hazards—other experts fight arson 24 hours a day—others examine machinery, building materials, electric appliances and similar commodities and draw up fire-resistant standards of construction—others keep check on fire departments, water facilities and alarm facilities. A wealth of invaluable information is ours for the asking.

We can't pass the buck. Fire is our fault. And fire can be prevented only by the concerted, thinking efforts of us all.

Find the Tax-Free Man!

"A nation-wide poll indicates that 25 per cent of the people believe they do not pay taxes," says the Kansas City Times. "Presumably these are people who never ride in motorcars, who do not live in houses or apartments, who do not buy food or clothing or do any of the other things that go to make up present-day living.

"That 25 per cent is pretty mythical. It's the supreme example of self-delusion. It sees no tax bills and so concludes it does not pay. It's pretty much like saying that because you don't see the heat or cold neither can exist."

What this all adds up to is simply that the great bulk of taxes collected in this country are hidden taxes. Nobody sends you a quarterly or an annual statement showing the total you pay. Instead you pay taxes hourly, daily, weekly, in little pieces—when you make a purchase or pay your rent or go to a show. And, in a year's time, those little pieces total more than 20 per cent of your entire income. In other words, your earnings for over one month out of five go to the tax collector instead of into your own pocket.

A search for the manwho doesn't pay taxes would be about as fruitless as Diogenes' classic search for the completely honest man. He would have to be someone who doesn't eat, doesn't wear clothes, doesn't live anywhere, doesn't buy newspapers and magazines—a man, in brief, who doesn't do anything at all and doesn't need anything to do it with. All the rest of us are taxed—and plenty.

"Please Don't Hurt My Little Girl"

Dear Driver:

Today my little girl is seven years old. She started to school as usual. She wore a blue dress with a white collar. She had on black shoes and wore blue gloves. Her cocker spaniel, whose name is "Scott," sat on the front porch and whined his belief in the folly of education as she waved "Good-by" and started off.

Tonight we talked about school. She told me about the girl who sits in front of her—the girl with yellow curls—and the boy across the aisle who makes funny faces. She told me about her teacher, who has eyes in the back of her head, and about the trees in the school yard, and about the big girl who does not believe in Santa Claus. We talked about a lot of things that were awfully important to us; and we studied spelling, reading and arithmetic. Then she went to bed.

She is back in the bedroom now, sound asleep, with "Princess Elizabeth" (that's a doll) cuddled in her right arm. You fellows wouldn't hurt her, would you? You see, I am her daddy. When her doll is broken or her finger is cut or her head gets bumped, I can fix it. But when she starts to school, when she walks across the street, then she is in your hands. She is a nice youngster. She can run like a deer and darts about like a chipmunk. She likes to go on picnics and swim and hike with me on Sunday afternoons. But I cannot be with her all the time; I have to work to pay for her clothes and her education. So please help me look out for her. Please drive carefully, please drive slowly past schools and intersections, and please remember that children run from behind parked cars.

Please don't hurt my little girl.

Sincerely,
A Father.

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5822 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio

Hearing over the radio the hollering of the great crowd at the Republican National Convention in Chicago, I was reminded of attending a great Democratic campaign meeting at Music Hall, Cincinnati, in the days of Old Roman of the Democratic party, Honorable Allen G. Thurman of red bandana fame. He continually carried a red bandana kerchief. Among other prominent speakers, the Old Roman was on the stage. The crowd kept hollering for the Old Roman to speak. He finally responded.

His opening words were: "You had rather holler than hear me speak." My observation has been, the crowd or party that does the most hollering is generally defeated at the polls, as the quiet, thinking voters do not make so much noise, but vote. More than ever the majority of the voters are doing more thinking and independent voting than ever before. They are studying men and platforms and not being led by the politicians, with the cry of "Stand by your party, right or wrong."

I have had quite an experience as an independent voter. Some of my good Democratic friends have called me everything they could think of because I refused to wear a Democratic collar, voting independently and my convictions. One of my kinsmen, an old dyed-in-the-wool Democrat, tried to get a political quarrel with me. In our argument he put forth a special effort to coin the meanest words he could say to me.

He said: "You ain't nothin'." I laughed at him, having respect for him, as he was much older than I. I did not get mad at him. I said: "Brother, you can call me a nothin'. I want to say to you, kindly, the nothin's, or independent voters, will hold the balance of power and make the old line parties watch their step." The day is past for the politicians to lead the people around with the cry, "Be loyal to your party."

I admire an independent voter who studies men and platforms and votes his convictions. I had a good Democratic friend over 40 years ago to say to me: "Will I was getting uneasy about you. I heard you were not going to vote for the Democratic presidential candidate." My answer was, "You heard right." He said further, "I was afraid you were going to vote for the Republican candidate." I said, "Brother, don't be uneasy, I will not vote for him. I do not consider either one of them worthy of my vote, nor proper representatives of their parties." The man elected gave the country the worst administration we ever had.

I think every voter should study the political and economic issues of every election, use their good judgment and convictions in voting.

My motto is to do what I think is best for the most people. I am not infallible and can be mistaken in my conclusions. I am always willing to give all subjects due consideration.

THE SPIRIT OF '39

NEWS ITEM—"FORWARD WITH THE REPUBLIC" THEME OF ANNUAL CONGRESS OF AMERICAN INDUSTRY IN NEW YORK DEC. 6th 7th 8th

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

Amass of legislative problems is building up for the regular session of Congress convening in less than a month, and one of the most troublesome is the Federal farm program.

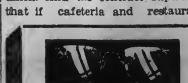
Washington privately finds that the present hodge podge of soil erosion, crop insurance, export subsidy, production control, and so on and on, is not satisfactory. The major reason, government experts say in secret, is that the present plan does not allow enough leeway for natural factors.

Wars, droughts, dust storms, floods and the like don't seem to pay much attention to laws. About the time the program begins running smoothly, one of these, or some similar factor, upsets things. More and more Washington is beginning to wonder whether the real trouble now isn't "controlitis"—too much control of too many details.

Since it would be politically unwise to admit in an election year that the present program isn't all it should be, chances are against any recommendations to Congress for an easing of "controlitis." But Congress may take things in its own hands. It came within inches of prolonging the special session, and would have if the President hadn't found several million dollars to use for drought relief in the Southeast.

Among the other big problems are debt, taxes, national defense, federal labor laws, prices, and annuities.

The Administration has declared it will not ask Congress to raise the present $45 billion debt limit. There is, therefore, talk of economy. But the President conceded that expenditures cannot be cut enough to balance the budget, so with a $3 million deficit at least in sight for next year, Congress will be forced either to raise the debt limit or enact a whopping tax bill. And legislators don't like to levy new taxes just before they go home for an election campaign.



Labor law changes will be sought vigorously, too. An experience in Washington is being cited as an example of the kind of thing that should be stopped. The story is this:

In the many government buildings in the National Capital, a private organization oprates 27 restaurants and cafeterias. Threatened with a strike recently, this private organization signed a new contract with the United Cafeteria Workers local union. And the contract stipulated that if cafeteria and restaurant workers belong to the union, their employer must deduct union dues before paying them. But if they do not belong to the union, then the employer must deduct an amount equal to union dues and turn it over to charity. The effect of this is to penalize workers who do not belong to the union; in fact, it is almost a device to coerce them into joining the union.

Prices are coming in for scrutiny before the Monopoly (newspapermen now call it "Monotony") Committee. New Dealers will attempt to show that there is no justification for any price increases despite higher taxes, higher wages, and the war. Among commodities under study are several which are imported into the United States and over which nobody in the United States has any price control. But the New Dealers figure the fact that these prices do rise will create a scare and help them get price control laws enacted.

On the subject of prices, some New Dealers make clear their idea that nobody can handle them except themselves. One of their primary arguments up to now has been that prices rise and fall too much. But now Thurman Arnold tells the "Monotony" committee that the steel industry is building up a "monopoly" because its prices are too rigid. You just can't please some people.

Rustic Scholars

It is a mistake to assume that education is wholly a matter of degrees and formal schooling, as valuable as these are. In other times, when the general level of formal education was quite low, every community had one or more men or women who represented a species of scholarship. Some of these prided themselves on their skill in arithmetic and were the ones constantly consulted when some baffling problem arose, in the school books or in practical life. Books were used by these local scholars, but more often they relied on certain tricks of the trade that they had learned, in true Biblical fashion, "here a little, there a little." They knew how to measure corn on the ear, with or without the shuck; how to estimate the number of board feet in a tree; how to lay off foundations for houses; how to cut rafters for barns or houses. Some of them could estimate the weight of a hog astonishingly well. So much did we respect them that we seldom appealed from the decision of the chair.

Another kind of scholar knew the tricks of the language and was the court of last resort when we got into a dispute about usage. I fear that many of the decisions were rendered without sufficient evidence but it is remarkable how often these grammarians were abreast of the best scholarship of the times. One such scholar was Bill Maddox, who lived up the creek some four miles and who was seldom seen except at church and on election days. Bill looked the part that he played in our little world; he wore a Van Dyke beard, one of the few men of that kind in a community where flowing beards were the rule. I had not seen any New Englanders then, but I know now that he looked like a professor of literature or fine arts in a New England exclusive academy or college. There was a certain aloofness about him that we came to associate with scholarship, an aloofness that he was the last one to minimize. Away up the creek he lived, in a fine old mansion, one of the few in our neighborhood, but Bill's mind was in contact, though only through the weekly newspapers and the Methodist church paper, with the whole outside world.

Though I grew up in such an environment, I thought that everything worth knowing was to be found in books. When I was eighteen years old, I applied for the Fidelity school, as we said in those days. The trustee, one of our neighbors, had no formal education worth mentioning; he could read his Bible and could sing all the Old Southern Harmony tunes from memory. When I sought him out and presented my claims, which certainly were meagre, he did not give me any direct answer. Instead, he asked me, as if by accident, how many bushels of corn he had in his crib, stating the dimensions. Naturally I went for this, for I knew how many cubic inches make a bushel. I did not take shucks and cobs into account, though, as I had probably never thought of that before; the books said nothing about this. My answer was right and also wrong; I did not get the school. To this day I do not know whether my figuring had anything to do with his decision, but hispractical common sense certainly struck a blow at my rather cocky book-learning. And that was where the average neighborhood scholar had the inside track on us book-trained young squirts.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D.D. Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

Lesson for December 17

PARABLES OF THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 13:3-8, 31-33, 44-46.

GOLDEN TEXT—Incline your ear, and come unto me: hear, and your soul shall live.—Isaiah 55:3.

Teaching by parable, a method so often used by our Lord Jesus Christ, has many advantages. A parable (which is a story relating events in common life to teach or illustrate spiritual truth) is useful in stimulating interest and attention, in making the truth clear, in fixing it in the hearer's memory, and in attracting for further instruction those who are interested even as it eliminates those who make no response. Jesus was the master of this art of teaching. Others have learned from Him.

The interpretation of the parables of Jesus has brought forth much difference of opinion. The important point to bear in mind is that the interpretation must be one consistent with other scripture, as well as with our Lord's own revelation of its meaning when given. We have His own interpretation of the parable of the Sower (Matt. 13:18-23), but He did not interpret the other parables of our lesson, leaving it for us to carefully seek their meaning and gladly receive their instruction.

I. Take Heed How You Hear (vv. 3-8).

This parable is rightly called the parable of the Sower for our Lord so named it (v. 18), but as we read it we see that the lesson it teaches relates primarily to the four kinds of hearers of the Word of God.

There are some who hear and their hearts and minds have so long been the common road over which every worldly influence has passed, that it has become so hard the Word of God finds no lodgment, but is quickly carried away by the birds, which are the "vultures of worldliness" and wickedness (see v. 19). Reader, if your heart is like that, ask God to break it up. Let us all shun those hardening influences which destroy our susceptibility to God's Word.

Others there are who hear and the seed takes root, but the soil is so shallow that it has only a quick growth which soon withers. These are those whose life is largely emotional, thrilling to a new experience, but not ready to face trials and the responsibilities of life (v. 21). As long as the Christian life looks attractive such shallow folk want to be counted in, but when they learn that it involves sacrifice, they are gone. Shallow souls, pray God to give your life depth and real meaning and worth.

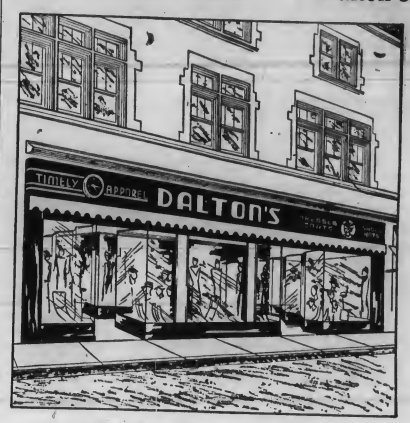
Others hear and receive the truth, but soon permit the cares of life to choke and destroy it (see v. 22). This pictures modern life so aptly that one could dwell with profit on the vital lessons here taught.

Thank God, some of the seed brings forth a rich harvest! There is encouragement for every teacher and preacher of the Word of God. Notice (vv. 8, 23) that if we should bring forth a hundred-fold it would be tragic to bear only thirty or sixty.

II. Beware of the Power of Evil (vv. 31-33).

Just as the mustard plant was never intended to grow into a tree in which the birds would dwell, so Christianity was never intended to be a nominally Christianized world empire in which ungodly men, the dark birds of the evil one (v. 19), should find comfortable lodgment. Unfortunately, that is what much of professing Christianity has become. Let those of us who love the Lord beware that we are not misled by it.

The parable of the leaven teaches the same lesson. Always in the New Testament leaven stands for evil (see such passages as Matt. 22:16-21, 23, 29; 23:14, 16; I Cor. 5:6-8; Gal. 5:9). It is any influence that weakens testimony, encourages hypocrisy, formalism or worldliness. Who can deny that this leaven has spread throughout the Church? The Evil One is powerful. Let us beware of his power and of his leaven.



III. Value Redemption Aright (vv. 44-46).

In interpreting this parable we observe that obviously the sinner had nothing to sell with which to buy salvation, even if it were to be bought, which we know it is not (Eph. 2:8). We do give up some things to follow Christ, but are they not the worthless and degrading things? On the other hand, He gave us His all, even to the shameful death of the cross. This He did for His own people, Israel, and what we are even more interested in, for the Church.

Let us value our redemption highly. We have been purchased with the unspeakable price, the blood of our Lord Jesus Christ. Let us then heed the admonition of the apostle Paul. "Ye are bought with a price, therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's" (I Cor. 6:20).

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

A MAN NAMED CAXTON

YOU may not remember ever hearing the name of William Caxton, but it was his life which makes your life today comfortable. He it was who introduced printing into England. This was in 1476. The introduction of printing has made all progress possible.

It wasn't until 1638 that America had a printing press, this at Harvard university, but after that printing grew, and newspapers sprang up, and modern American life began.

Charles Roth

The printing press is the forerunner of knowledge wherever it is introduced. The printed word, even to this day, has no rival as a quick means of disseminating vital facts and ideas.

The newspaper of today is one of the modern wonders of the world. It is the broadest, quickest, most flexible and most economical way of getting a message into the minds of the people.

Early in our national history, manufacturers and merchants sensed this power of the press. They began using it to carry their advertising facts and ideas into the homes.

These early advertisers were careful business men. The fact that the newspaper would complete the educational process for their goods wasn't enough. It also had to do the job at less cost than any other medium.

And they found, after many trials in different fields, that it did. It got their message to prospective buyers in a manner which was economical as well as effective.

Today this same condition is unchanged. Advertisers, using newspapers year in and year out, find it the most profitable way in which to tell their story to buyers.

The reason is simple. The newspaper is the great common denominator of modern life. It reaches practically every family. It has the confidence of its readers. It stands for everything which is right and good and modern.

The advertisements in your newspaper are as much a part of its vital importance as the editorial and the news columns.

As a matter of fact, most readers find it hard to tell what interests them most—the commercial news, which is called advertising and which touches their lives every day, or the general news, in news story, editorial and cartoon.

They're both valuable.

This man named Caxton was one of the great benefactors of mankind. He lighted the lamp—and it is still burning bright, though centuries have fled since he lived.

SUNFLOWER BLOOMS THE YEAR 'ROUND IN THIS QUILT

By Phoebe Edwards

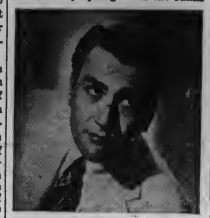
Haven't you often longed to bring indoors, in some enduring fashion, the rich color of some of the lovely flowers that give you so much pleasure in summertime? You can do it, now, by making a quilt from one of the many attractive floral designs which are available today. Quilting is now enjoying a sweeping revival, both because of the creative satisfaction it gives in making something beautiful with your own two hands, and because of the character and color a handmade quilt gives to modern bedrooms.

One of the most beguiling of the many floral patterns is the Sunflower Pattern, illustrated above. The bright yellow, brown and green of the pattern carry out the natural sunflower colors and harmonize effectively with almost every modern color scheme. This pattern is easy to follow, and your finished quilt will be an enduring family heirloom which will live always as a useful memento of your handiwork.

You may obtain a copy of the popular Sunflower Pattern, and complete instructions on how to make it, for 10c by calling at the newspaper office.



SWING ADDICTS IN SOCIETY

AMERICANS being arduous and inveterate joiners, it is not surprising news that there is now in existence a new, not too exclusive but highly inflammable organization in this country. It has no president, no charter, few by-laws. But it is rapidly getting the country in its power. Its name? It's the Swing Set.

Dorothy Kilgallen, in January Cosmopolitan, allows that its roots have sunk much deeper in the American consciousness than most of the oldsters and conservatives realize. As Miss Kilgallen puts it, "few older people are glandularly equipped to take it," but among the younger set these are addicts who all but live for swing. And they are not the exhibitionist jitterbugs.

As a matter of fact, the jitterbugs have really done more harm than good for swing, in the opinion of some swing authorities. As an authentic musical form, the shouting, swaying, rambunctious kids nearly destroyed the significance of swing by turning it into a hey-hey business that brought heavy frowns of disapproval. Artie Shaw, perhaps one of the most dearly beloved of the swing set, is planning to retire and write the first symphony composed for swing alone. To voluntarily drop out of sight for six months and give up a small matter of about $15,000 a week? Certainly there must be love somewhere.

The swing set has an elastic ceiling for membership. Its devotees, the real ones, are not the loud-socked, highpockets who snort and stamp; they spring from the ranks

SERIOUS ARTIE SHAW

MORGANSVILLE

"Christ went about doing good," and the example left to His followers is truly worthy of emulation. We best serve the Lord by serving others. Judgment is upon the way in which in one's daily life he expresses the spirit of Christly sympathy. If one doesn't think right it is impossible for him to act right. We go this way but once, so why not make the journey well worth while, giving to those who travel on with us, a helping hand, a word of cheer, a smile?

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

Moderately higher retail prices for many commodities now seem certain.

Prices of many important raw materials have gone up from five per cent to eighty per cent this year which means manufacturers are paying higher prices for materials which go into finished goods. Labor costs have also increased. All this is reflected first in higher wholesale prices and eventually in higher retail prices. It is foolish to believe that manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers will absorb increased costs. A goodly percentage of this increase, as always, will be passed on the the consumer.

Great Britain and France have opened buying offices in New York City, and they are already asking our manufacturers for bids on shoes clothing and certain foodstuffs as well as war materials. Our own government is increasing the purchase of goods for our army and navy. Such new demand is bound to be reflected in higher prices for some commodities.

Several weeks ago I said I did not look for any violent rise in prices, as occurred in the last war. This still holds true. Factors which sould prevent violent price advances are large surpluses of raw materials stored in this country, increased productivity of factories and farms, the desire of businessmen to keep prices at their present level and the watchful eye of the government. The most powerful weapon against unwarranted price advances is the consumer himself, who ceases to buy when he thinks prices are too high.

Legitimate price advances of as much as five per cent to fifteen per cent in many lines are bound to come, and careful buying now should save you some money. Advantage should be taken of any price concessions retailers are now making for food, and clothing, and such goods. A five per cent to ten per cent saving is not to be taken lightly; it will help the budget later on.

Eighty percent of Hickman county farmers trying terracing are pleased with results.

ALL-TIME ALL-AMERICA BACKFIELD—In celebration of its 50th All-America Collier's picked an all-time team, with Thorpe of Carlisle, Grange of Illinois, Nevars of Stanford and Strong of N. Y. U. The Collier's 1939 All-America team, the 50th, will be announced in the issue published December 8th.

Social Security News

Wage reports received for April, May and June totaled more than 7 billion dollars, the Social Security Board announced through Frank B. Decker, Jr., manager of the Covington, field office.

Of this amount, preliminary returns show it was explained that less than 1 percent represented reports in which employers had failed to specify an account number for the wage earner, popularly called "John Does." Only about 3.5 percent represented reports with an incorrect name or account number, and past experience shows that this proportion can be reduced to less than one-half of one percent in the initial rechecking processes.

Mr. Decker said that the relatively small number of incomplete or incorrect reports is particularly significant when it is considered that these reports came from approximately 1,872,000 small and large employers and represented wages paid to over 29,288,000 industrial and commercial workers.

He added that the Board has instructed him and nearly 375 other field office managers to follow up incomplete or incorrect items by contacting employers and making necessary adjustments. Through this method, the total of such items is being rapidly reduced.

The difference in the meanings of the terms "item" and "account," Mr. Decker pointed out, has resulted in some misunderstanding. An account, he explained, is a bookkeeping record set up for each employee when he or she receives a social security account number card. An item is the amount of wages received by an employee as reported by his employer for posting to the account.

When there is an inaccuracy in recording a worker's social security account number on the employer's report, Mr. Decker said, or when the number is lacking entirely, the wage item for that quarter is temporarily suspended. Such a situation may arise because a worker fails to give his number to his employer, because of the illegibility of the name reported, because the employee without the knowledge of the Board works under a name different from that shown on his account number card, or because there has been a mistake in the reporting of the account number or of the name. A number of items can be suspended temporarily pending complete identification, without permanently jeopardizing the employee's chances of getting the full amount of his benefits, Mr. Decker asserted. Moreover, many discrepancies are rectified at the accounting headquarters while others are sent to their points of origin for correction.

"Suppose an employer files correct wage reports for three quarters and on the fourth he transposes digits in the account number of one employee," Mr. Decker said. "This employee's account already shows his wages for the correctly reported three quarters. The fourth posting is held up pending correction of the inaccuracy which in nearly every case can be done by checking the records."

"It is thus evident," Mr. Decker pointed out, "that a wage item temporarily suspended does not mean that there will be a permanent discrepancy in the worker's account. In fact, the Board's procedure of rechecking a suspended item is designed to obviate such possibilities. Experience has proved that the system now in operation provides effective safeguards for accurate wage accounting."

We are still having fine weather. It has been an unusually fine fall, so different from twenty-two years ago when it snowed on Dec. 9th and it stayed on all winter.

It was fine weather for both Thanksgivings and they passed off quietly. There was some difference of opinion about the date to observe it, but haven't we in America enough to be thankful for to observe two days.

A great many are through stripping tobacco and some have delivered it and are now waiting to see how it sells.

MEMORIES OF ALBERT LEE JOHNSON

Anniversary Dec. 16, 1939

A year ago tonight you smiled
And closed your Dear brown eyes,
To sleep, we know, in Angel's arms
Who sing you lullaby's.
Our broken hearts have memories
And dreams, when day is done,
Of hours when life is finished here
We'll be with you, Dear one.
And it will be like coming home
As we have done before,
To find you waiting, arms outstretched
To greet us at the door.
Sadly missed by Mother, Dad,
Sisters and Brothers.

LANDS ENDS

Walton CCC basketball team visited our gym., Friday night for a tussle with the Farmers, and went away leaving our slate still clear of the word "defeat." The score was 62 to 27 in favor of the Farmers. In the preliminary game the Little Farmers ran up a score of 30 to 24 in their favor. We must say a word for the CCC's; we feel that up to date there have been no better sports on our floor, and we feel that they deserve a word of credit.

We might add for the benefit of future Christmas shoppers that the crowds are getting "worse and worse." We sincerely hope the fad doesn't get out to start Xmas shopping after the fourth of July, instead of after Thanksgiving; think what a time we would have trying to buy a false face for Halloween, or clothes for the school children. So if you have to do your shopping yet—well, you have our profound sympathy.

WALTON ADVERTISER

— NORTHERN KENTUCKY'S LEADING WEEKLY NEWSPAPER —

Devoted To the Best Interests of Boone, Kenton, Gallatin and Grant Counties—Kenton-Campbell Courier Consolidated With the Advertiser

Subscription $1.50 Per Year In Advance. WALTON, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1939 Volume 26; Number 8

4-H Club Show and Tobacco Sale

The Northern Kentucky 4-H Club Tobacco Show and Sale, an annual event, was held Saturday and Monday. This is sponsored by the Kenton Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse Company, in cooperation with the 4-H Club Department at the University of Kentucky. Herbert Whitley, manager of the warehouse, and E. E. Fish, representative of the Club Department, were in charge of the show. County agricultural agents and assistants from the counties of Boone, Campbell, Bracken, Kenton, Grant, Pendleton, and Clermont county, Ohio, participate in this annual event. Ten crops from each of the counties are entered in the show for competition

Each county has a county award crop of five prizes and in addition there is an open show award on the ten best record books and an open show award for the seven best handled crops of the show based on sorting, neatness and freedom from disease and house burn.

A. E. Casey, retired tobacco buyer, of Dayton, Ky., was the judge. In addition to Manager Whitley, Floor Manager George Steffen, and B. E. McElroy, chief bookkeeper, cooperated with the 4-H club members in making the show a success.

The county award winners in Boone and Kenton counties were as follows: Boone—1st, Leroy McNeely; 2nd, Gladys J. Congleton; 3rd, Robert Fulchaus; 4th, Welson Goodridge; 5th, Bobby House. Kenton—1st, Charles Brown, 2nd, Stanley Ballee; 3rd, Ben and Robert Stambough; 4th, Lesley McLaughlin; 5th, Joe Messingschlager.

The champion crop of the show was owned by LeRoy McNeely of Boone county, and Martha McClure of Grant county had the best handled crop.

METHODIST XMAS PROGRAM, SUNDAY

The annual Christmas program by the choir of the Walton Methodist church will be given Sunday afternoon, Dec. 24th, at 3:30. It is a carol choir cantata for mixed voices, "The Music of Christmas," and is expected to be a program well worth hearing—plan now to attend. The public is most cordially invited.

Sunday evening at 7:00, the children of the Sunday School will present their Christmas program.

Buy Tuberculosis Christmas Seals from the school children.

Xmas Program at Richwood, Sunday

The annual Sunday School Christmas Tree and Entertainment of the Richwood Presbyterian Sunday School will be held Saturday evening, Dec. 23rd, at the church, at 7 o'clock. The public is cordially invited to join in this service, which will consist primarily of the singing of Christmas Carols.

The program follows: Welcome, B. F. Bedinger; Christmas Carols; Class participation, Classes of Mrs. John Taylor, Mrs. Jake Cleek and Mrs. Bradie Cox; Dicken's "Christmas Carol," Miss Rebecca Sleet; Special music, directed by Mrs. Stanley Ranson; The Biblical Christmas Story, Rev. J. Russell Cross; Prayer; Christmas tree festivities; Benediction, Rev. Cross.

GIRL RESERVES SING CHRISTMAS CAROLS

On Wednesday evening, the Girl Reserves of Walton-Verona High school sang carols for those who wished to hear them. After the caroling they went to the home of Miss Mabel Cook, where they enjoyed a Christmas party.

Cats Take 1-Pointer From Crittenden

Last Friday night the Bearcats were hosts to the Crittenden Bulldogs, and after 32 minutes of excitement and unrus, the records showed the Bearcats winners 20-19.

The Bulldogs took the lead early in the game, and at the half were in front 8 to 6. In the third quarter the Cats began to "hit" and at the close of this period were leading 17 to 12. The final stanza was "something." The Dogs rallied, and with only 1 minute and 20 seconds left to play, tied the score at 19-all. An over-zealous Crittenden player then made the mistake of talking back to a referee, which resulted in a technical foul. DeSha McElroy tossed in this free throw and then W.-V. controlled the ball for the remaining 20 seconds to win 20-19.

The McElroy Bros. led the Bearcat scoring with 16 points. "Big" collecting 10 and "Little" 6. For the Bulldogs, Doud and Massie were high with 5 points each.

Led by Pennington, who scored 10 points, the Cat reserves had little trouble in defeating the Crittenden second team, 17 to 10. The losers scored only two field goals, and these against the third team, in the last minutes of the game.

Hebron Here Tonight—

Second place will be at stake in the B. C. C. tonight (Thursday) when the Cats meet Hebron on the local floor. The teams are tied for the place spot and a hot battle is assured. This game was originally scheduled for Friday night, but was moved up one day because of the Christmas vacation.

BAPTIST MISSIONARY SOCIETY TO MEET

The Wodan's Missionary society of the Walton Baptist church will meet at the church Thursday for an all day meeting. Business session at 11 o'clock; lunch; program at 2 p. m.; election of officers for the coming year. All members urged to be present.

Soil-Conserving Crop Rotations

Establishment of good stands of clovers and grasses in winter small grains is essential if soil-conserving crop rotations are to result, according to Ward T. Darnell, superintendent of the Walton CCC camp.

The success of these stands can be insured by top-dressing winter wheat and other fall-seeded small grains with barnyard manure at the rate of from 3 to 5 tons an acre. However, Mr. Darnell pointed out, manure is not a substitute for the lime usually needed for successful legume seeding, but its use as a top-dressing will produce suitable meadow stands where failure might otherwise be expected.

Mr. Darnell points out that the manure mulch may be applied, preferably with a spreader, at any time during the fall and winter months after the small grain has been seeded. The manure will provide an available source of plant food for the clover and alfalfa seed that is planted in the early spring. The manure, according to Mr. Darnell, will tend to counteract the effect of competition from the small grain which has been growing since fall, and will permit the sprouting legume seedlings to get a good start.

"The proper utilization of barnyard manure is in itself a soil-conserving measure in that it will insure more productive meadows, thus lessening soil losses, and will at the same time improve the quality and yields of the winter small grains," Mr. Darnell said.

NO ADVERTISER NEXT WEEK—

This week's issue of the Advertiser will be the last for 1939. We are going to adhere to a policy inaugurated last year—that of not publishing a paper the last week in December. Business is, as a rule, light following the Xmas rush, and we feel that the employees are entitled to a few days recreation following the hectic weeks just past. We hope that you—our subscribers, advertisers and correspondents will cooperate with us—just hold your advertising and news matter until the following week.

During the past few weeks we have been forced to omit some of our news matter, because of heavy advertising, and in order to get the paper out on time. We hope our correspondents will forgive us for this. The practice wil not be continued.

Remember — no Advertiser next week—but we'll see you on Jan. 4th.

Activity on Political Front

There is much activity on the domestic political front. The hopefuls are busy as bird dogs as time marches on and the convention dates come nearer.

On the Republican side of the fence, the Dewey-for-President movement is getting under way; is well organized and being aggressively pushed. But the political experts don't give the young prosecutor much of a chance. It is thought that men high in the party, such as potent Herbert Hoover feel that he hasn't yet had enough experience, and that his views on big policies aren't well enough known. He has a far better chance for the Vice-Presidential nomination. At the moment, the odds seem to favor the nomination of some man long experienced in public office. A considerable group backs minority leader McNary, regardless of the fact that he comes from such a politically insignificant state as Oregon—a tough obstacle to overcome.

On the Democratic side, handsome Paul McNutt, ex-governor of Indiana, ex-High Commissioner of the Phillippines, is well out for the nomination. His friends caim he has the support of everyone from the President down. But again, the political experts generally consider the McNutt drive as much ado about very little. Many of his backers' claims of high political endorsement have been vehemently denied by the supposed endorsers. And it is said that Jim Farley's opinion of McNutt is below zero. Farley, a man who makes and keeps legions of friends, commands the Democratic machine. It is difficult to see how any man he opposed could possibly get the necessary nominating votes.

Modern War Has No Victors

This holiday season the U. S. has much to be thankful for—and the ancient greeting of "happy new year" should have more than ordinary significance. Alone of the great powers of the world, we are at peace, and remote from bloody shambles of war.

That we will stay at peace should be every American's passionate resolution. For war does more than destroy lives and property. It destroys ideals, institutions principles—the best that centuries of our forebearers have bequeathed us. Certainly this weary planet should have learned by now that there are no victors in modern war—there are only losers.

Peace is the finest Holiday gift any nation in this war-torn world can have.

The Road to Ruin

Our per capita debt for all branches of government totaled $59.28 in 1913; in 1938 it totaled $432.65. In other words, the worker with the smallest income, who probably delays going to the dentist or hesitates to buy a new pair of shoes because he can't afford it, owes Uncle Sam nearly $500!

Some day a start must be made to pay the public debt. Paying it will be painful—but less painful than not paying it, which is something all of us will eventually find out if we continue to follow the line of least resistance. Those who have subscribed to the belief that we have been getting something for nothing are due for a rude awakening, and the sooner it comes the better off we shall be.

In about nine months, at the present rate of spending, the debt of the Federal government will reach $45,000,000,000. In 1939 alone, the United States spent $3,600,000,000 more than it received in taxes. This is not due to meager tax receipts, but heavy spending. America is taxed to the hilt. Our citizens pay a greater share of total income to government than the citizens of Great Britain, if Britian's present war expenses are excepted. British taxes in 1938 took 21.7 per cent of income; in the same period American taxes took 22.4 per cent of income.

The present government fiscal situation requires little comment: We will either economize or go broke.

How Can It Be Done?

Aid small businesses is the latest advice of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the Banks. Banks are very eager to aid all kinds of business men at all times. But ask them, and they will tell you how they are hampered by the "centralization" in Washington over their affairs.

Fighting Communists

Mrs. Roosevelt has given the Dies Committee some very bad headaches.

The American Youth Congress was called on by the Dies Committee to defend itself against the charge that it was Communistic. Mrs. Roosevelt had gone into that matter months ago and she claimed at the time that no such condition controlled the Youth Congress.

There are two kinds of Communists and the Dies Committee is to be given credit for pointing out the difference. A good many American citizens are impressed by the Communistic school of thought while at the same time they are opposed to Russian Communism. The American Communist does not support any doctrine that is un-American—he is merely an ultra-liberal, or a radical with noble intentions. But at the head of the Russian-controlled group there are leaders who have dominated the Communist party in the United States. They have been the candidates for President and Vice-President. The Russian-Communists are enemies of Democracy. So there you are!

And that's where the differences are that have produced the controversies between the Dies Committee. and Mrs Roosevelt.

Naturally Mrs. Roosevelt likes liberals, and so long as they are not un-American she is willing to defend them. The Dies Committee, on the other hand, takes the position that some of the existing liberalism merges into Communism that wakens our form of Government.

DIXIE STORIES, ANECDOTES, SAYINGS; SOME OLD, SOME NEW, SOME ORIGINAL AND SOME OTHERWISE.

By WILL S. NORRIS
5822 Belmont Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio

Senator Joe W. Bailey of Texas, was an outstanding campaigner for Mr. Bryan and the Democratic party during the great silver and gold fight in 1896. While the majority of the Democratic party believed bimentalism was right, there was a group of Democrats who stood for the single gold standard, who nominated candidates for the presidency and vice-presidency and adopted a single gold standard and went through the campaign as a gold standard party, which was the first real split in the Democratic party.

Everyone knows how it helped to defeat Mr. Bryan. No one felt it more than Senator Bailey. He continued to stand by the Democratic party and did all he could to bring the two factionstogether. During the campaign he spoke to a large Democratic gathering. This was his plea to the gold standard Democrats; "I will not ask you where you have been or what you have been doing, I amgoing to open the doors of the Democratic church and ask all my backsliding friends to come back into the fold, for as long as the lamp holds out to burn, the prodigal sinner may return and come in.

Senator Bailey was a diplomat. He did not abuse the Democratic brethren who did not agree with him, like we often hear people calling their opponents fanatics and other ugly names. The fact is there are many independent voters who vote for principles first and parties second. Then there are Democrats voting for Republican platforms or Republicans voting Democratic platforms. So it is the kettle calling the pot black. The more independent voters there are, the more it will prove to the politicians that they cannot steamroller the thinking voters at their steamroller conventions.

Instead of abusing the indepndent voters, it would be much better to use Senator Bailey's tactics and try to win them with kind words and sound argument. Many a politician lowers himself in the minds of the thinking people in abusing his opponent and making undue assertions which he cannot back up. A great many voters take the stand of being from Missouri—they have to be shown.

HAPPY LANDING?

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

Washington is beginning to realize that a growing proportion of the nation looks to business and industry rather than government paternalism for leadership out of depression and unemployment.

Hence Washington eyes opened to read and ears perked up to listen to discussions of suggestions made by the Congress of American Industry, for these recommendations of steps to improve business came from several thousand serious-minded manufacturers.

Thankful that America has escaped war, these manufacturers this year did not limit their big annual convention to a simple discussion of problems within their own field. Instead, they looked at America, compared it with the rest of the world and tried to find out what America has, how it got it, and how it can keep it in the future.

They talked freedom against dictatorship and government-made life—freedom of opportunity, of religion, of speech, of the press. They studied in detail the contributions that manufacturing, as an essential part of the American system of private enterprise, has made and can make to the nation as a whole.

Even some Washington planners were impressed by the report to the convention that more than half of the time of 23 committees of the National Association of Manufacturers is devoted to "critical self-analysis of industry." Few, if any, other groups, including the planners can beat that record of self-analysis.

It is a wholesome sign when manufacturers undertake to study American fundamentals and determine what contributions they can make to the general betterment. But it is nothing new for them. 150 years ago, many of the delegates to the Constitutional convention were businessmen. And the lawyers who participated realized that without business there could be no nation.

The businessman's record goes even farther back than that. Benjamin Franklin, a printer, made some most important changes in and contributions to the Declaration of Independence even though Thomas Jefferson is popularly credited with its authorship.

Knowing that background, it is only natural that Washington should turn with interest to some suggestions made before and by the Congress of Industry.

The manufacturers were in no mood to join National Press Clubbers in wisecracks about how the Federal budget is being alphabetized now because there are no more new government agencies to which letters can be assigned. The businessmen, thinking the problem more serious than one for wisecracks, did hear advocacy of "heading back toward govrnment solvency." In fact, it was suggested that people should forget something-for-nothing theories—"governmental Santa Clauses."

It was said, too, that although investigation of the Labor Board and amendment of the Wagner Act would help, no law could form harmonious relations between an employer and an employee any more than a law could establish love respect within a family.

It was contended that labor should clean its house of "sit downs" and "slow-downs" and accept responsibilities which go with rights.

Growth of the philosophy that the world, and particularly the government, owes any man a living without his having to work for it was deplored. After all, most of the manufacturers present got where they are by working.

Warnings were sounded, too, against the growth of "bureaucratic despotism." These were especially timely in view of the fact that in Europe and other parts of the world the welfare of the individual is suffering in the expansion of bureaucracy.

Vigilance was called for to protect the American system against the inroads of "isms," removal of taxes which deter business expansion was urged; closer cooperation between industry-labor, was advocated.

Above all, the manufacturers found that the American way of life, and the good things that are available to individual citizens because of the production of private enterprise under the American system, are worth defending, protecting, and expanding. No real American can disagree with that conclusion.

PROGRESS
means more than just growing up

RAILROAD freight rates down 23% since 1921; passenger fares 39% less; freight trains 44% faster; passenger and freight cars improved; pick-up-and-delivery; air-conditioning, utmost safety. These high-lights of progress are only part of what American railroads mean to every individual.

Every time the clock ticks the railroads pay $10.80 in taxes. In Kentucky, add together the $5,746,786 in taxes, the $18,646,807 in purchases, the $45,598,184 for pay to 30,761 employes—and the railroads' annual expenditure in the State amounts to more than $26 for every man, woman and child.

Your neighbor, the Louisville & Nashville, alone, yearly pays two and a half million dollars for taxes in Kentucky and spends over four million dollars for purchases and about 22 million dollars for wages in this State.

* * * *

For an average charge of less than 1 cent a mile for freight and for fares lower than a cent and a half a mile to passengers in coaches, this railroad offers a progressively better and friendly service to the people of the South. And as for safety—no passenger has lost his life in a train accident on the L. & N. in the past 22 years.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for December 24

THE CHILD AND THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT — Matthew 1:18-25; 18:1-6; 19:13-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—A little child shall lead them.—Isaiah 11:6.

The children's holiday!

Yes, Christmas is the children's day of days, and it is also the day for those who have been "converted and become as little children" (Matt. 18:3). It is quite proper that it should be so, for Christmas really means nothing very significant except as we gather at Bethlehem's manger and there we find a child, the Christ-child. Those who come on the morrow to do homage to Him in the spirit of childlike faith will truly keep Christmas. In that spirit the writer of these notes wishes for you who read these lines just that kind of a holy day of joy and gladness.

Let us then go first of all to Bethlehem, and there having seen the One who "became flesh and dwelt among us" as a little child, we shall be ready to go on and learn from Him what a blessed example, responsibility, and opportunity there is in the childhood which we see all around us.

I. The Child—Jesus Our Saviour (Matt. 1:18-25).

The virgin mother Mary "brought forth her firstborn son" and "called his name Jesus"—the one who should "save his people from their sins" (vv. 21, 25). In order that He might be the Saviour, He had to be both God and man. This could only be true as God sent His own only-begotten Son into the world by giving to Him a human mother in whom He as the eternal Son of God was "conceived by the Holy Ghost" (as we express it in the creed) and became the Son of Man.

For anyone who believes that God has all power and all wisdom to do what He wills and as He wills, and who further believes that Christ was pre-existent as the Son of God before His incarnation, there is no difficulty in believing in the virgin birth. In fact, no other manner of incarnation would have been possible. It necessarily follows that the one who denies the virgin birth of Christ thereby declares that He does not believe in the God of the Scriptures and in Jesus Christ His Son our Lord.

II. The Child—Our Example (18: 1-4).

The disciples had been having a discussion about who was to be the greatest in the kingdom of heaven. This was not because they desired their brothers' advancement, for each one wanted to be the greatest (Luke 9:46).

Jesus frankly told them that they needed a real change of heart, a conversion. True greatness is not a matter of worldly position or ambition, but of a childlike humility. Such an idea was absolutely revolutionary in the day of Jesus, and in fact sounds unbelievable to the worldly man today. But it is nonetheless true that the great man or woman is the one who knows and recognizes himself to be utterly dependent on God in every moment, every circumstance, every trial, and in every opportunity of life. We need to learn of our children.

III. The Child—Our Responsibility (18:5, 6).

These awful, solemn words should be considered with great care. What a terrible judgment awaits those who cause little ones to stumble by reason of their false teaching, their failure to bring God's Word to bear upon their lives, improper discipline in the home, or the influence of a bad example. There are probably preachers, teachers in the Sunday School, grandparents, uncles, aunts, mothers, fathers, yes, even friends of little children who need to reread these verses and then cry out to God in repentance before it is too late.

IV. The Child—Our Opportunity (19:13-15).

Jesus knew the real value of a child and His loving heart reached out to invite the children to come unto Him in love, in obedience, and in trust. When they came, He never failed to bless them.

The glorious thing is that we are privileged to thus bring little children to Him. Someone may say, "Jesus is no longer on earth, I cannot take my child to him." Jesus is not here in the flesh, but He is here ever present with His children. You can bring your child to Him, for the coming which He has in mind in these verses is not in any physical sense but rather spiritual. The parents who teach their little ones about the birth of Christ on this Christmas day have brought them to Him. Every word of instruction, every encouragement to pray, every example of devotion to Christ which the child may follow is the true bringing of that child to Him.

Will you do it this Christmas—in the home, in the Sunday School, in the church, anywhere? If you do, there will be blessing beyond your ability to contain it and you will have A Blessed Christmas!

LAND'S END

This is indeed a very busy season; this week will probably be the busiest of them all, as, looking ahead we can see practice nights in line for those who will be on various Xmas programs, and then the programs themselves. On Friday afternoon, Mr. Santa Claus will visit Hamilton school, and of course all the children are exerting themselves to learn that "last line" for Santa, and Friday night, he goes on up to Big Bone Baptist church, where there will also be a program and tree. The children at the Big Bone Methodist church will play host to the good old gent on Sunday afternoon. So, if like most people, you like to attend all the merry Xmas functions in your particular vicinity, you can foresee what a full period this will be. But after all, Caristmas should be a time of full days, and stockings!

We are indeed glad to report that our sick are seemingly on the road to recovery. Bobby Carroll is out and about, carrying his arm in a sling; Roy Pitcher, though still in teh hospital after an operation for the removal of the appendix, is reported doing as well as could be expected.

We wish just now to take space to express our sympathy to the children of James Smith of Union, who is seriously ill with pneumania folowing two major operations.

Mrs. Richard Schwenke entertained her Missionary Union at her home last Thursday. A goodly number were present, including several visitors, as Mrs. Schwenke is a capable hostess and everyone enjoys being in her home.

The Y. W. A. will meet this week with Mrs. Bruce Ryle. In addition to the regular monthly meeting, etc., they are planning on having a few moments left over for a "Christmas party," with the exchanging of gifts.

And now we fell, since we have taken upon ourselves the task of reporting on the basketball situation, as it applies to our little circle, great delight in announcing, "Slate still clear." After the games of the past week, we find our boys, the Farmers, holding first place in the Boone County Conference with Hebron and Walton tied for second place. We had been looking forward—at least some of us had—with some trepidation to the Hebron game, but in the actual tussle our Farmers won by the score of 48 to 15. The Little Farmers, with one player off, lost by one point, 14 to 16. Saturday night we played host to the crack Indiana team, Posey High school of Patriot, and marched off with a score of 39 to 32. Our little Farmers also came off victorious to the tune of 19 to 15..

(Crowded Out Last Week)

Rather troublesome days are present in this community. Roy Pitcher was taken to the hospital Thursday for an appendectomy operation; was considered to be in a serious condition at first, later reports were he was doing as well as could be expected. Then on Saturday night, our young mail carrier, Robert Carroll, while out coon hunting, fell some forty feet from a tree, breaking his wrist and receiving internal injuries, it is feared. Both men are in St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Miss Alberta Sebree enjoyed a weekend visit with her sister, Mrs. Garland Huff.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Walton, Kentucky
C. J. ALFORD, Pastor

These are busy and confusing days. Christmas has been organized and commercialized. It is easy for one to forget that it is the birthday of Christ. Yet those who find Christmas of the heart will hear singing angels and catch a reflection of Bethlehem's star. A beautiful experience will be theirs. They will know that God lives.

Will you accept this invitation for joy? It is yours for the asking. There is room for you near the manger. You can join those paying homage to the babe and find "Christmas of the Heart."

We invite you to worship with us at any and all of our services. The pastor is preaching a series of ten sermons on the "Three Sixteens" of the Bible at the morning worship hour.
